Test Shows Apollo Leak Signal Wrong

Reunited Astronauts Orbit Moon Safely

HOUSTON (AP) — Apollo 15's astronauts operated a flying physics laboratory in moon orbit today after a brief scare Monday night forced them to a real life test of a precaution ordered after the deaths of three Soviet cosmonauts in June.

Their historic lunar surface exploration complete, David R. Scott and James B. Irwin pitched in to help Alfred M. Worden with complex science tasks which continue through Wednesday, when the spacemen fire out of orbit to head for home.

The cameras and instruments are photographically and chemically scouring nearly 20 per cent of the moon's surface. Worden operated them alone for three days while the moon walkers conducted man's longest and most productive exploration on the lunar terrain.

There were a few anxious moments Monday as the astronauts were about to jettison the lunar lander Falcon. Worden noted a higher-than-normal rise in pressure in the tunnel connecting the two ships.

This indicated a possible leak, with oxygen flowing into the tunnel through either the command or lunar ship hatch.

Mission Control told the astronauts they were in no danger and advised them to delay the Falcon jettison while they looked for the potential problem.

The astronauts vented some of the excess pressure down to 1.6 pounds a square inch. They watched it as they swooped around the moon's backside, out of radio contact. When they reappeared, they reported the pressure in the passage and in both ships holding steady.

Mission Control then decided there was no leak and Falcon was kicked loose at 9:05 p.m. EDT, two hours later than planned. The reason for the recorded pressure rise was not known. It may have been a faulty sensor.

As a result of the delay over the Falcon's jettison, Mission Control let the astronauts sleep long past their original scheduled wakeup time today of 3:16 a.m. EDT. Chief Astronaut Donald K. Slayton told Scott and Irwin to take sleeping pills "so you can really power down for the night."

The sudden discrepancy in pressure was reminiscent of the Soyuz 11 accident June 30 when the three cosmonauts died during re-entry after their spaceship sprang a leak and depressurized suddenly.

There was a major difference between the two situations. The Russians could not detect such a pressure leak because their design did not have an adequate pressure-detection system.

A leak would be immediately apparent in an Apollo spacecraft by a variety of means. And the astronauts could overcome it by resealing the hatch. If that failed, the independent pressurization system of their space suits and helmets would have protected them.

The astronauts were wearing spacesuits for the Falcon jettison specifically because of the Soyuz tragedy, the first Apollo crew to do so for this particular manoeuvre.

The jettison is similar to the spacecraft separation manoeuvre that the cosmonauts were executing when they died. So NASA wrote in the suit instruction for Apollo 15 a few weeks ago, after assessing the Soviet accident.

After Endeavour cast Falcon aside, the astronauts had difficulty docking Endeavour. The lander did not move as fast as it should have and instead orbited about 1 in front of Endeavour.

Scott had planned to fire jet thrusters to pull away but held up for fear of a collision.

"She's about 150 feet in front dead ahead, and I'm having trouble seeing her because of the sun," he said.

Mission Control assessed the relative positions and passed up new firing instructions which zoomed Endeavour a safe distance away.

Bike Gang Burns Rivals

SAINTE MARIE DE BEAUCE, Que. (CP) — A province wide search for six members of a motorcycle club wanted in connection with the murder of two members of a rival gang Saturday night has been started by the Quebec Provincial Police.

The badly-beaten bodies of Jacques Giguere, 19, of Sainte Marie de Beauce and Serge Bourque, 24, of nearby Notre Dame des Pins, were found in the charred remains of a gang club house here 36 miles southeast of Quebec City.

The two victims were in the house with six other members of the Jarrets Noirs motorcycle club when six men wearing nylon stockings over their heads burst into the house. The intruders, police said, armed with baseball bats and a rifle, beat Giguere and Bourque, tied them up, doused them with gasoline, set them on fire and fled.

THE WEATHER

Synopsis: The sun is expected to break through this afternoon over most eastern areas as the cooler air continues its slow southward motion over the lower lakes. Temperatures are running about five to 10 degrees below normal in this cooler air. Changeable skies will be the order of the day for most of the province. The cooler air from is expected to stall just south of the lower lakes and the northern edges of the cloud associated with this front will continue to brush the lower lakes for the next few days.

Rover Abandoned

HOUSTON (AP) — They called her "baby," "really super" and a "great machine," but in the end Rover was parked on a lonely lunar hill and abandoned. The little car that could, and did, wasn't needed any more.

When they said go, Rover went — through craters, up small mountains, over rocks and rubble.

She carried the men 17 miles, farther and faster than they could go without her.

There's no way to return her to earth. Rover was carried to the moon in the lunar module which cannot survive the heat of re entry and there is no room for it in the command module Endeavour.

Scott just parked the little car, set the brake and walked away.

Belleville Woman Aboard

Jet Diverted to Denver By Aneroid Bomb Scare

DENVER, Colo. (AP) — A British Overseas Airways jumbo jet with 380 passengers aboard landed here early today after a bomb was reported aboard the BOAC Boeing 747. The device was described as a "high altitude bomb." No bomb was found.

An air traffic controller at Stapleton International Airport said the big jet was on route from Montreal to London when the bomb report was received and the plane was diverted to Denver's mile high field.

The FBI office in Denver refused to comment, saying information would be provided later.

Mrs. Rene Robertson of 200 Harley Avenue, Belleville, in a telephone conversation with husband Jack at 6:10 a.m. today, reported all "passengers behaved splendidly and the crew were superb."

She said there was "no panic".

Apparently, flight officials at Dorval International Airport requested the return of the 747, but the decision to land at the higher altitude field was based on the properties of the alleged bomb, described in several warning calls received at Dorval.

An officer aboard the plane reported cabin pressure was kept at that equal to an altitude of 4,600 feet, within safe range of the bomb described.

Customs officers kept the passengers in the terminal at Stapleton as officials searched the 747.

Mrs. Robertson told her husband the company had been prepared to locate the passengers in a local hotel because the crew required a 10-hour rest after their ordeal. But when no bomb was found the plane took off for an eastern U. S. airport, where it was scheduled to pick up a new crew for the London flight.

The selection of Denver as a landing site closely paralled the plot of the movie Doomsday Flight, which has been linked to three recent airline extortion plots involving barometric or pressure sensitive bombs.

In the movie, an extortionist placed a barometric bomb aboard, landed the airliner pilote at 5,000 feet. The crew aboard, landed he airliner at Denver, where the airfield is slightly higher than a mile, or 5,280 feet.

The movie extortionist died of a heart attack and the $100,000 he had demanded was never paid.

But in three similar incidents in the last year, two extortion ists were paid a total of $585,000. In all three cases, the movie Doomsday Flight had been shown locally on television prior to the extortion demands. No bombs were found in any of the incidents.

Clyde Shipbuilders Angry at Closure

LONDON (CP) — Industry Minister John Davies plans to meet Upper Clyde Shipbuilders in Scotland today in an effort to soothe the anger resulting from a government decision to close two of three world famous yards.

His action follows an emotion-charged Commons debate Monday on the government's move and occupation of the yards last week by workers pledging to keep the industry intact despite the official stand.

Spokesmen for the Opposition Labor party, supporting the workers' occupation, demanded that the government either nationalize the shipbuilding industry or provide financial assistance to help it over present difficulties. The government rejected both suggestions.

The government's decision to close the two yards was upheld Monday night by a 290-to-247 vote in the Commons.

During the debate, former labor minister Anthony Wedgwood-Benn accused the Conservative government of being determined to destroy Upper Clyde Shipbuilders.

Wedgwood-Benn said Britain is alone among modern industrial nations in not supporting its shipbuilding industry.

Davies replied by accusing Benn, who had responsibility for shipbuilding under the Labor government, of inciting shipbuilders to take over their yards in what is being called a "work-in."

Lockheed Saved by Four Votes

WASHINGTON (AP) — With only four votes to spare, the United States Congress has handed President Nixon his narrowest legislative victory by approving $250 million in loan guarantees for Lockheed Aircraft Corp.

Nixon said the action is "in the best interests of the American people."

The Senate passed the legislation Monday 49 to 48. The House of Representatives passed it last Friday 192 to 189.

The president, who sought the loan guarantees in the first place, said in a statement: "This action will save tens of thousands of jobs that would otherwise have been eliminated," and will help the U.S. economy.

"It will also help ensure that this country will continue to play a leading role in the development of aerospace technology."

The measure provides federal backing for a loan which will come entirely from private institutions, and which Lockheed says it needs to stay solvent.

The administration had argued that, 16,000 employees at Lockheed, another 14,000 at the firm's suppliers and sub-contractors in 35 states, and ultimately 60,000 people throughout the U.S., would have been thrown out of work.

"The closeness of this vote, the fact that it passed only 49-48, is remarkable in view of the pressures that were brought on senators," said Senator William Proxmire (Dem. Wis.), who led opposition to rescuing Lockheed.

"It's very important now that we watch Lockheed like a hawk," Proxmire told reporters. "There will be a big temptation on the part of the administration to keep them afloat by giving them sweetheart contracts."

Village Idyll

This is Queensboro, a picturesque rural hamlet of about 100 population, built around the mill pond that has charmed artists for decades. About four miles from the site of Rock Acres Peace Festival being held next weekend, Queensboro is slated to become the hub of off-site activities connected with the event. If the clear skies and warm weather expected blankets the district, the mill pond will be the preferred swimming hole for rockfest fans.

Festival's Foes Disenchanted

By LENNY WILLIAMSON
Staff Reporter

MADOC — Nobody loves a loner, and area people are becoming disenchanted with rockfest townships that have failed to ben the Rock Acres Peace Festival, now speeding to reality this coming weekend.

"They should have kept quiet and saved the county all that money," summed up a garage attendant Sunday, referring to the sums spent on legal fees and expenses for hearings on three injunctions.

The township won the first round and lost the next two in legal battles that saw the James Quinlin family, organizers of the festival, emerge with a go signal for their festival.

Hastings county council pledged financial aid to the township in its fight, but county clerk Carl Bateman said last week he had no idea of the amount involved.

"It was mostly the people in the township who wanted to stop the festival; it didn't bother the village much," remarked one man.

A group of teenaged lads in Queensboro, four miles from the festival site, had already picked out grandstand seats on the grassy lawn bordering the hamlets mill pond, expected to become the festival's unofficial swimming hole.

He had picked a good spot — Queensboro's two country general stores, closest source of provisions for festival fans, sit facing each other across the road from the mill pond.

Back at the Quinlin farm, the weekend was one of celebration over their winning legal battles and the coming festival. Children, grandchildren and neighbors dropped in to offer congratulations and some came to pitch tents in anticipation of next weekend.

James Quinlin Jr. spent the weekend in western Ontario and northern American states, arranging spot radio announcements of the festival on rock stations. Representatives of helping agencies met this afternoon on the farm to make final arrangements for emergency and medical services at the site.

"Even if we don't make money, we've had a lot of fun," chuckled James Quinlin Sr. as he surveyed the preparations going forward at his farm. "People know me that never have met me before and we're meeting lots of people, young and old."

One of the people is a distant relative, living in Brantford, who read about the festival in the Windsor newspapers and contacted the branch of the family she had never heard of before. They hope she will attend the rockfest.

Mr. Quinlin admits he is "sometimes almost put out of the house by the sound of his son Leon's five-amp electric guitar," and I don't know what 500 amps blasting from the stage will be like. I'm a tiny mite worried about the

Sgt. - Major Ray Kowal of the Ontario Provincial Police Division is here is not concerned about the event. Police will run "perimeter patrols" only, he said today, not going on the site.

"All we're concerned about is road traffic flow on county road 12 so the local people have free access to their farms," he said.

The weatherman at CFB Trenton predicts co-operation from the chemicals, clear skies and warm weather are on the way into the district, he says, and will continue, with prospects for next Friday and Saturday being "bright".

There is a possibility of clouds on Sunday, with some showers in late afternoon, according to the long-range forecast.

Big Contract to Local Firm

Stephens-Adamson in Belleville (a division of Borg-Warner Canada Ltd.) is working on a $1.9-million contract for Kaiser Resources Ltd. for the design, construction and erection of high capacity stacker-reclaimer for the huge Roberts Bank superport 30 miles south of Vancouver.

The Belleville-built stacker-reclaimer will double the capacity of Kaiser's Westshore Terminals Ltd. at Roberts Bank. The present stockpile capacity for the big west coast terminal is 500,000 tons.

John W. Hay, general sales manager for Stephens-Adamson, said the Belleville plant had been working on the Kaiser contract for several months and initial construction of the stacker-reclaimer is already under way on the West Coast.

The 1,025-ton machine will be the largest of its kind in Canada.

Mr. Hay said that some of the nearly 42 million contract was "subbed" out, but all the conveyor components have either been built here or are now under construction at Belleville.

The 117-foot-high stacker-reclaimer will be track-mounted to straddle a 1,500-foot-long 72-inch troughed conveyor belt which links a Canadian Pacific perimeter rail line to the dockside.

Coal from rotary dumped gondola cars will be discharged onto the troughing conveyor and then transferred for stacking to the giant machine's own conveyor belt system.

The machine will stack or retrieve 4,000 long tons of coal an hour. A 27-foot-diameter bucket wheel at the end of the boom will stack coal to a height of 85 feet.

One man, located in a cabin mounted near the end of the boom, operates the machine.

Loss $340

Thieves hoisted a concrete block and threw it through a large plate glass window at the Wilson Concrete factory sometime between Sunday and Monday.

Original entry was gained by climbing through a broken window in an overhead door.

In the office, drawers were rifled by what appears to have been a pair screwdrivers, and thieves made off with approximately $140 in cash.

Collector To Continue One Month

TRENTON (Staff) — Garbage collector, Ross Wilman, who told the town Thursday he was quitting his collection service, agreed yesterday to keep on the job for one month.

Mr. Wilman, in consultations Friday afternoon with Councillor George Brown, said he would stay through August while Trenton officials try to alleviate his grievances or, failing that, find a suitable alternative contractor.

"We now have a month to find out what is what," Mr. Brown said in an interview this morning.

Basis of Mr. Wilman's difficulty is the set of rules he must work by in using the Aitken's Road disposal site to which he now transports the town's waste since closure of the Centennial Park dump.

Councillor Brown said Mr. Wilman had told him, "he is ready to go into the new dump at 7 a.m. but it does not open until 8." The refuse collector also complains that he does not have access to the site on Sundays and public holidays.

Operating a trucking business too, the garbage contractor is concerned that he is losing revenue by having to conform to the hours which the Bayside dump is open. He did not have these problems at Centennial Park.

Mayor Duncan McDonald expressed the hope yesterday that the town will be able to come to terms with Mr. Wilman and a majority of councillors are intent on keeping the $29,000 a year garbage collection contract in the town, despite bids from outsiders to take it over.

Jack Wilson Man of Year

Trenton's Mall Was A Success

TRENTON (Staff) — Downtown Trenton returned to normal Saturday night as the Quinte area's first experiment with shopping street pedestrian malls came to an end.

Sufficient support built up during the three - day period that the Dundas St. West mall flourished here. Many merchants have already concluded that the idea must live again in the future.

In tribute to an individual and, in a sense, to the mall as well, Jack Wilson, Chamber of Commerce manager and a behind - the - scenes organizer of the mall days became recipient Saturday night of the first Trenton man-of-the-year award.

The award was presented in absentia as Mr. Wilson was out of town.

Street and stores were filled with people during the mall period and traffic moved briskly across town despite a two - block detour created by the street closing.

Before the mall opened Thursday there had been considerable concern that blocking the main east - west artery of the town would severely disrupt the movement of vehicles, but this did not occur.

Key to the smooth traffic flow appears to be that Trenton's old lower bridge was kept in use.

Last August, when it had been closed for repairs, Trenton was hit by large scale traffic tie-ups.

The possibility that there would be irresquote parking to accommodate the influx of shoppers without use of 55 spaces on Dundas West was also object of considerable pre-mall concern but, if parking was less than desirable it did not deter the crowds.

More than 2,000 spectators jammed the area around Tripp's corner Saturday afternoon as over 90 toddlers vied for top honors in a baby contest finally won by Tammy, infant daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Dean Kemp.

The night before a similar throng had gathered to see 17-year-old Denise Lemoire chosen from a field of four candidates as Miss Teen Trenton.

Boy Pulled From Lake

TWEED — A 15-year-old youth is recovering in Belleville General Hospital today from shock resulting from a near . . drowning in Crowe Lake.

Tragedy was averted Monday afternoon when Geral Luneau was pulled from the water by a passing boat operator after he got into difficulties while swimming. The lad was swimming off an unanchored boat when it drifted too far away for him to reach. He was overcome by exhaustion and began to sink.

Near and Far

As someone has so righly pointed out, if all men are born equal some come to be more equal than others. Goings-on in such widely-spaced communities as Las Vegas and Belfast illustrate this point.

For all the propensity for crime of American cities we suspect Las Vegas is a much more law-abiding and peaceful place than Belfast right now and its capacity for the big time much greater. For example, Caesars Palace president William Weinberger recently threw a couple of $100,000 affairs which included inviting, expenses paid, 20 elegant and titled young Europeans, mostly French and German nobility.

The young aristocrats were impressed. "We do not have things like this in Munich," said a young German banker, while a French princess, Veronique de Rachensky exclaimed: "Fantastic, I tell you . . ." There were visits to the Hoover Dam and the Grand Canyon and what with these and the festivities well, who would not be impressed? Even if one had been accustomed to such an interesting lifestyle in Europe, Las Vegas, brassy as it is, evidently can top it all.

From the Nevada desert to the terrorism-plagued jungles of Belfast's slum areas is a far cry, but here the same principle is at work in trying to expand the horizons of youngsters there whose only experience is that of the dismal tenement streets, who know nothing of park or ocean beach and whose life-in-the-raw lifestyle is in good measure responsible for the deplorable confrontations we read about these days.

It is school vacation time and city youngsters play Protestants and Catholics instead of cowboys and Indians. And all too often it is not a game. The British army, trying to keep the peace, is in the middle, with Irish Republican Army snipers hovering in the wings. The army across the latter of using the stone-throwing youngsters and the women as a cover.

Now city authorities are reported to be joining police and army personnel in organizing vacations for the youngsters. Few from the regular hot spots such as the Falls Road where the Catholic population is concentrated, or the Protestant Shankill Road area, get to the seaside a mere 60 miles or less away. Many families cannot afford it and in any event may be reluctant to leave their homes during such times. They could come back to find their homes wrecked or ransacked.

The city is spending more than $50,000 to provide holiday activities at 21 centres. The coastal trips courtesy of the police and army are starting with trips for Catholics only and Protestants only. Later when the kids have come to know the men running the scheme they will try mixed trips in the hope that the rival groups will get to accept each other.

That such ruses must be adopted seems incredible in this day and age, but that is the way it is in the tougher sections of Belfast. The fact that the police and military are playing a direct part in this new "peace" plan is encouraging. Maybe in the long run it will contribute to a civilizing trend in the trouble areas.

Heady Brew

According to Will Grimsley of The Montreal Gazette athletes attending the Pan Am Games in Colombia found the headiest aspect of pre-Games activity was the coffee. Aside, that is, from the dark-eyed Latin senoritas in orange mini-skirts who kept serving up the national brew.

It was hard, said Grimsley to turn down such appealing boosters of the local coffee, so much so that athletes and officials were drinking as many as 20-cups a day. The stuff is much thicker and blacker than what we are accustomed to here, almost like molasses and it sears your tongue.

Then, again, the Montreal scribe hints darkly, and somebody must drive you home. Imagine — stoned on three cups of coffee.

What then of the chaps who have downed up to twenty cups a day. Out of sight man!

The Games' opening parade Saturday afforded a contrast in styles, with the Canadian girls among others wearing minis while the Americans were in middis lest they should offend some South American countries. Seems they were not aware that in Cali at least the girls are no midi fans.

Lunar Problem

Such a lot of trouble the astronauts had manhandling their moon buggy onto the lunar surface, wasting energy and their "consumables" in the bargain. Another time could the vehicle not be thrust out by an ejector system in the same way that pilots escape from crippled aircraft?

By RICHARD JACKSON

OTTAWA — The way he is getting around the country these days on what his aides still insist is a non - campaign tour, you are liable to get a peek at Pierre.

Which could be a Real-Big-Day or a Ho-Hum-Happening — depending on your political point of view — except here in the National Capital, and on the West Coast, where the Prime Minister has been seen so much as to start becoming something of a neighbor.

And when even a Prime Minister begins to be part of the community, blending with the people-scenery, he tends to be taken in stride with scarcely a sidelong glance or even ignored, except by the tourists and the visiting firemen.

So the following, in case you have not been seeing much of Pierre of late, can be regarded as a sort of "Trudeau alert" . . . what to expect to see and hear when the Great Man comes to town.

The Big City appearance — by the necessity of the pressure of crowds, traffic, security and time itself — is pretty well stylized.

It fits into a format of airport reception, motorcade, press conference, dinner, quick circulation through restricted list of guests, and departure.

Not much elbow room in his Big City schedule for off-the-cuffing it, the impromptu thing, the off-the-beaten-track performance that catches the public eye and headlines.

Time and motion do not usually permit those interesting improvisations that Pierre does so fascinatingly well.

It is the Small City or County Town appearance that gives him the chance to hang loose and do some show-boating.

They were staging "Festival 71" in Perth and the town's 4,500 people plus a fair percentage of folk from surrounding Lanark had turned out early to be on time for the Prime Ministerial put-down in the Canadian Forces' chopper.

Police, from in town and out, had shown up early, too. And for security's sake the side streets were barricaded off from the main route, Gore Avenue, down which the motorcade would roll past a couple of blocks of shops each one with Pierre's picture in the window.

It was a 1969 shot, by famed international photographer Karsh, of Pierre when he was brushing his thinning hair down over his forehead and looking, in profile, like Augustus Caesar. Since then the half has swept far back from the forehead- compensating by creeping down the neck and over the collar, giving him, in profile, the look of Sir Wilfred Laurier.

But before the real live Pierre was to substitute on Gore Avenue for the Portrait-PM in the shop windows, it started to drizzle and there was the white upholstery of the burgundy Cadillac convertible — the carriage of state — getting all wet.

It gave the inventive Pierre the opportunity to start his performance the way he likes best - straight off the top of his head.

Down lumbered the big CH 113A Voyageur 'copter, red taillight flashing, into a school-yard ringed by the expectant crowd.

The chopper door opened, and into the gloomy drizzle of the darkening evening, an arm was thrust, the hand formed to test for the density of the rain.

The arm emerged and with it Pierre, shrugging off the shower, and looking as something straight out of Abercrombie and Fitch in white bell-flared jeans and a red-striped shirt just transparent enough to reveal underneath a peace symbol medallion.

Beautifully pantomimed, the wet - arm exit was good for a laugh and the tension was gone and the police felt easy.

Off then came wife Margaret, and Pierre, likely not for the first time, realized that while Trudeaumania might be waning, Trudeaumargia was alive and oohing - and - ahhing in Perth.

Never much on speeches — either in the Commons or on the stump — the PM opened the festival with a minimum of words, popped into the Caddy rag-top with Marge (hard "g") and it was off, soon-packaged for the parade down Gore to Code Park to savor the pound of a rock group from Hamilton whose electronic thunder shook even the vegetable stone buildings of old Perth from a floating platform in the Tay River.

It was all so folksy, and if you forgot for a moment that Pierre Trudeau is an intellectual sophisticate who has been everywhere and done almost everything, you would believe he was enjoying the coziness of it all.

As darkness fell and the fireflies started clustering around the colored lights on the floating platform, the crowd bunkered down to soak in the rock rhythm, leaving Pierre and Margaret to become just two members of the audience.

The unmistakable odor of marijuana drifted over the park — imagine, in old-world Perth — a few kids plugged into the river, and an enterprising long - haired hippie peddled a canoe past the Trudeaus while his equally grubby and uncombed girl - friend held up a sign that read "Legalize Pot Please PM."

So now you know how it is.

Festivals—and Festivals

Christian Science Monitor

A-year ago there was a bit of relief as well as dismay as rock festival after rock festival, pursuing the Woodstock dream, fell apart into confusion. In this pattern not long ago at McCrea, Louisiana, another rock festival went the way of too much dope, filthy grounds, promoters' venality, and was called off.

But there are festivals and festivals. And those who have followed the Newport Jazz Festival over the years were saddened when the fence-breakers took over, fighting broke out, and the festival called off at its midpoint.

The Newport festival has been a summer mecca for jazz devotees. True, a decade ago there had been trouble off the grounds — the "beer riot" of 1960. But still, the music had been the thing.

As festivals go, Newport was well run. Crowded, to be sure — nearly 20,000 people. Yet, there'd never been talk of "ripoffs" — not getting your money's worth.

It would be too bad if summer festivals generally were to be crushed out by the maddening, rock - hippie - junkie - or - whatever crowd.

The summer festival — whether for symphony or rock or folk groups — is a valuable part of America's cultural scene.

One hopes it's not a passing one.

Victims Two Young Girls

Quebec Murders Revive Call for Death Penalty

Trois-Rivieres Le Nouvelliste.—Alain Guilbert (July 1st: The heinous murder of two young girls from Cap de la Madeleine has revived the famous debate on capital punishment.

Readers will recall that in December, 1967, the House of Commons adopted by a vote of 114 to 37 a bill presented by the solicitor-general of the time, Mr. Larry Pennell, restricting capital punishment to persons convicted of murdering policemen or prison guards on duty. . . .

The Commons is to decide next year whether to maintain the Pennell act in effect or simply restore capital punishment for all categories of assassins .

There is no doubt that the silent majority ardently desires the re establishment of capital punishment. Last October, when cabinet minister Pierre Laporte was assassinated, the so-called silent majority clamored for the gallows for the authors of the brutal murder. The killing of the two little girls from Cap de la Madeleine aroused the same exaction all across Quebec. . . .

In the last four years, since the Pennell bill was adopted, no criminal has suffered the death penalty even if he killed a policeman or prison guard on duty.

That is to say, the (1967) law has made absolutely no change in the situation that has existed, since 1959, because no criminal has been hanged in that period.

Society has the right to adequate protection against criminals, and it does not have that protection now. We are not necessarily in favor of capital punishment. But we ardently wish that the unbalanced people who hold others' lives cheaply would be put away for the rest of their days, or at least until they are completely rehabilitated. . . . Capital punishment does not, killers of any stripe should be isolated from society forever.

Old Wrecks Discovered

TRENTON (Staff) — Five amateur historians arrived back at CFB Trenton last night with news of discovery of an 18th century shipwreck at Marble Island in Hudson Bay.

Reporting the finding of one of them, the frigate Albany, Fred Fleischer of Toronto says "everything is there". He said the remains of the frigate were found lodged in a layer of silt 27 feet below the surface of an inlet on the 10-square-mile island.

Another member of the party, Torontonian Ralph Smith, mentioned that the cold sub-Arctic site had "acted as a deep freeze to slow deterioration of the hull."

"Time stands still up there," he said.

Scant remains of a stone house on shore adjacent to the wreck sight were found by the group in 1970; here survivors are believed to have lived until disease and starvation wiped them out.

Dr. Walter Zacharchuk of the Department of Indian Affairs and Northern Resources travelled with the expedition this year and has returned to Ottawa with bits of wood and brick, clay pipes and bottle fragments from ruins of this habitation.

Blow the Kids Down

"All together now, blow," orders "Black Drew" Murphie as shipmate "Steve the Scourge" Clayton and counsellor Nancy Guild prepare to get the S.S. Guppy under way. Counselor Ken Marland hastily battens down the hatch by securing his hat. More than a thousand handicapped youngsters will enjoy similar fun during their two-week holiday at one of five summer camps owned and operated by the Ontario Society for Crippled Children. By the time summer ends, there will be lots of new friends to write to and many happy experiences to relive during the long winter months, thanks to Easter Seals. Sunday, August 1st, is Open House Day at all five camps in the London, Port Colborne, Smiths Falls, Collingwood and Kirkland Lake areas.

Quinte Exhibition Plans Well Advanced

Quinte Exhibition this year is celebrating its 150th anniversary and fair officials are going all out to make the five - day August 17-21 show both historic and memorable events.

There will be demonstrations on how things were done on the rural scene in the "good old days"; the fair's livestock show is being revamped, while the grandstand show will offer a wide variety of entertainment.

Even Conklin's midway will get into the anniversary act and will try to bring in some of the old - time midway shows and rides.

Exhibition manager Everett Gowsell says entries are coming in well and one of the biggest shows in the history of the 150-year-old fair is assured.

One of the biggest changes for the livestock show will be moving of the sheep and swine exhibit from its former no man's land location in the extreme northwest corner, down closer to where the action is.

"No one went up in that area of the grounds anyway," says the fair manager.

To provide pen facilities for the sheep and swine a 60-foot addition to the east - west cattle barn near the bowling green is being erected.

There will be changes this year also in the cattle show with entries confined to the four Quinte area counties of Hastings, Prince Edward, Lennox and Addington and Northumberland.

As part of the change, all cattle breeds will remain for the full five days at the fair instead of being taken home following judging as has been the former policy.

Reflecting rural pioneer days will be shingle making demonstrations threshing by steam and gasoline power, lumber sawing and milking by hand. Participation square dancing will be in vogue all five days of the fair.

The formerly drab women's building has been completely revamped for the fair with old shelving scrapped and replaced by new panelling decorated in pastel shades.

A special attraction for the small fry will be a Kiddie Mini-Land being set in the open beef cattle shed at the east end of the racetrack. The new attraction will be a dressed up version of Old Mac Donald's Farm.

The official fair opening will be Tuesday afternoon, the opening day of the fair. Opening day will also be children's day and will feature an evening parade through the downtown area to the fairgrounds.

One of the special opening day attractions will be a professional rodeo and greyhound racing on the half mile track.

Wednesday's special attraction will be a Paul Riddell presentation of sky diving, professional auto driving and swamper soccer, with a fireworks display to end the day's performance.

Grandstand performance will feature three daily performances — one a matinee and the other two in the evening.

Thursday and Friday will feature the Giraldos on the Hi Wheels, with their high wire act on wheels, the Gatlis family, billed as Europe's greatest jungle fantasy and the Chinese Youngs with a whole bagful of illusionary tricks.

Other attractions for the two days will be the Leon and Luba novelty juggling act, a Calgary troupe of western acrobats, and an educated dog show.

Saturday, the closing day of the fair will feature the Quinte Greenleaf Memorial Stake race with a full slate of 32 entries, and a visit by the Upper Canada Classic Car Club.

Air Force Woman Says No Need for Liberation

Her first posting after attending officers' training school in London was to Clinton, 30 miles away.

But Maj. Vallance now has several Canadian assignments and two European postings behind her and has moved up to personnel officer of Canadian Forces Base Toronto in Downsview.

In August she attains the highest rank ever reached by a Canadian woman in peacetime — that of lieutenant-colonel — and moves to Ottawa. She will share that distinction with two other women now active.

Her new job will be to advise the forces' personnel chief on policies for the 1,100 women in the Canadian Forces.

Maj. Vallance reminisced about her 17 years in uniform in her Downsview office, decorated with mementoes of her travels and bright curtains which are definitely not service issue.

Besides Clinton and London, she has worked in Regina, Winnipeg, Ottawa and Camp Borden. Ont. She spent "three lovely years" in Zweibrucken, Germany, before spending two years in Paris. She left early in 1960s. She returned to Germany in 1967 for 18 months.

"I had wanted to go in during the war to join my two brothers who were in the air force, but I was too young to join," she says. One of her brothers, George, was killed in action in Europe.

She became bored with her post-war jobs in London, first as a secretary, later a business-school teacher, and headed for Vancouver where she signed up.

When she arrived at Clinton as a young pilot officer she found the base had not been informed she was a woman; with the result she was quartered with the male officers.

During her career she has never been treated as an upstart woman or a token female in a man's world, she says.

Commenting on the new womens' liberation movement, Maj. Vallance says although the movement has accomplished "some good things, they've also done a lot of harm by offending men."

She says she won't want to leave the service when she reaches compulsory retirement age in 1975.

"I'll certainly miss the association with the service, and all the friends I've made.

"No matter what happens to you there's always someone who will look after you."

When her service career ends, she would like to attend university for one year to study humanities, then perhaps get a job in personnel management.

World Is Made for Slim People

TORONTO (CP) — The world is made for thin people.

When weight losers of 100 pounds or more talk about what they've gained as they've lost, they talk about things most people take for granted.

They can sit in theatre seats, fit comfortably behind the wheel of a car, climb into a boat as anyone else.

Anne Lorefice and Rose Dodge have lost 128 and 100 pounds respectively and both say it's a new world, free of constant embarrassments and worries. They've lost their pounds working with Weight Watchers, a commercial dieters group.

Clothes have become a pleasure for them both.

Mrs. Joseph Lorefice says: "When you're heavy, your dresses are so plain, just two pieces of material with two darts in it and a hem.

"Now I'll have buttons and pockets and I'll wear belts, which I love. I couldn't even find my waistline before.

"I had a fur coat and never wanted to wear it. If we went to a theatre, I could hardly get into the seat, and with the fur coat, it was impossible."

She has given away the fur coat and thrown away a lot of shoes. She had her old dresses taken in over and over until she could begin to buy more interesting clothes.

She says she has a bathing suit now and is thinking of learning to swim.

"I'd be so warm in the summer I didn't want to go anywhere. It hurt to walk.

"You don't tell people these things. People ridicule you."

Both women say their biggest problem now is that they still like to cook for the family and still like food, but their cooking habits have improved.

Mrs. Lorefice says: "When I used to put the chicken in the oven, I used to get the gallon of oil and go over it like it was going to go swimming. Now I put it on the rack."

Mrs. Charles Dodge says she has bought three pant-suits and now wears panty hose.

"I used to have to wear stockings and roll them at the knee because, I couldn't get them big enough to pull up.

"I used an awful lot of tent dresses. I wore my hair straight, I didn't wear makeup. It's a wonder my husband didn't throw me out. I didn't care what I looked like.

"The director at my office says I'm not the same girl. He said I do my work much quicker.

"My housework gets done now, I take pride in my home. Before, to get the vacuum out, to bend over to get the work done—well, I always had a headache.

"I have more friends now. No one wants to be friends if you look a mess all the time."

Mrs. Dodge took part in a record walk for charity, a thing she would never have considered before. She walked the whole 20 miles, and at the last-way mark, her husband took her lunch to her. It was a salad.

Engagement Notice

Mr. and Mrs. J. Lester Stevens of RR 5 Belleville announce the engagement of their youngest daughter, Sherry Doreen, to David Leslie, eldest son of Dr. and Mrs. Howard L. House of Corbyville. The marriage will take place August 28, 12 noon, at Westminster United Church.

WEDDING

FORT — LOTT

Rose Dianne Lott, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Lott became the bride of Robert George Fort, son of Mr. and Mrs. Douglas Fort at a ceremony held in the Free Methodist Church, Avondale Road on July 10. Rev. Edith Mainprize officiated while Miss Evelyn Caswell played organ music. The soloist was Miss Dawne Brown.

The bride chose a white Victorian style gown of polyester cashmere with an empire waist, high ruffled collar and long puffed sleeves of sheer polyester gathered to tight cuffs and trimmed with a ruffle. A floor length, lace edged mantilla flowed from her hair. Her bouquet was composed of yellow roses, white baby's breath and white, blue and purple daisies.

The matron of honor Mrs. Ruth Sager of Shannonville wore an organza gown with a yellow print on a white background fashioned similarly to the bride's. It featured a stand-up collar and a yellow velvet bow at the empire waistline. Miss Dawne Brown was maid of honor and was dressed identically to the matron of honor. Each carried a single yellow 'mum with leaves.

The two flower girls Janice and Joanne Lott the bride's cousins wore long gowns of white polyester with sleeves that matched the material of the bridesmaid's gown. They carried baskets of white daisies.

The best man was Neil Duffy while the ushers were David Henderson and Charles (Ted) Fort the bridegroom's brother.

The reception was held at the church parsonage. The bride's mother was in a mint green dress and coat ensemble. The dress was sheer and the lace coat featured a stand-up collar and puffed sleeves gathered at the cuffs. White accessories and a pink rose corsage completed her outfit.

The bridegroom's mother was in a lilac dress and coat ensemble with a matching hat and a white gardenia corsage.

For the wedding trip to Algonquin Park the bride donned an off white pant suit with brown accessories. Upon return the couple took up residence in Kingston.

Unmarried Mothers Can Get Help

By DORIS CLARK

Question: What happens when a pregnant unmarried girl comes to the child care agency?

Answer: She is helped to decide what to do.

Question: What are the choices?

Answer: There are several. Some may want to keep the baby themselves. Although many now stay with their families, abortion is a fact of life and this possibility might be discussed. Of course, the decision would rest with the social worker, working in co-operation with a physician.

Question: What about the girl who decides to keep her baby? Has she still stigma? Aren't there problems re finances and the one-parent situation?

Answer: We won't know for five or six years just what happens with the children who are now staying with their mothers. It is not easy to help the mothers in such situations to make good social adjustments, while raising their fatherless children.

Several from the panel discussion with child care workers.

Dear Doris: What is your solution to a child's demand for toys that subsequently sit on the shelf and are never thought of again?

We adopted our little girl when she was just five, after a series of foster homies. Then we had a little baby boy of our own, who is now three. The girl sets her heart on some expensive toy and coaxes for it for a birthday or Christmas. All have been used once or twice, then forgotten.

We do want to build up her security but we cannot continue to buy expensive toys. I admire your attitude toward life, as displayed in the column, and this is why I am asking for your comments. — Puzzled.

Dear Puzzled: Imagine the insecurity that was built up in this little girl as she moved from one foster home to another. Those expensive gifts with which she craves reprisent her deep desire for proof of your love.

I might add that many seemingly normal adults have substituted a collection of things for what all humans need more — the human love well be the person who feels unloved who sustains possessions.

The new baby was probably a threat, too. It may be that you will find ways to give yourself to her more convincingly. Play her games with her, encourage her to share her toys with playmates invited in. She will come to accept the more reliable security of your love.

* * *

Confidential to Betrayed: No point in phoning the woman who uses your husband's "crying shoulder". She would doubtless deny any ulterior motives.

No sense in asking his boss to have him transferred. If you were to give the boss your reasons it would put your husband in a very poor light. A welfare worker should know better than to compromise himself like hat.

The idea of consulting your minister is the best one. Your husband is playing with fire. One of these days it may dawn on him what he is missing at home.

Midwife Is Essential

OTTAWA (CP) — Hypocritical attitudes and biased opinions hinder the useful development of midwifery in Canada, suggests a nurse and university lecturer in advanced practical obstetrics.

Pat Hayes, a lecturer at the University of Alberta School of Nursing in Edmonton, says in an article in The Canadian Nurse that there is a place in Canadian health systems for midwives, not as poorly-qualified substitute doctors but as highly-qualified nurses.

But too many people picture the midwife as an ill-prepared technician who is a potential hazard.

Although it is said that there now are no midwives in Canada, a nurse usually is required to have experience in midwifery to practise in the North.

"Are we being honest?" Miss Hayes asks.

"We do not employ midwives as such, but our northern district hospitals and many obstetrical units are staffed with midwives who obtained their education in Great Britain, Australia or New Zealand.

"We say we have no midwives in Canada because we have no midwifery schools. But if we call them pregnant in advanced practical obstetrics or outpost nursing, they are acceptable.

"How hypocritical can we be?"

Until midwives are accepted in all areas of the country, there would be increasing resistance from native peoples in using their services.

POINTS FOR PARENTS

BY MARY BRYSON

Shoes should be long enough and wide enough so little toes will grow straight, but how to tell if a shoe fits? The shoe should be long enough so the child's big toe is a thumb's width from the tip, and wide enough so the leather is loose enough at the widest part of the foot so you can pinch a little between your thumb and finger. Check the shoe when the child is standing.

OTTAWA (CP) — A slim young woman in a long blue caftan and sandals dashes to a meeting in the National Art Gallery across the street from her small office, bedecked with pictures, buttons, postcards and posters.

Danielle Corbeil, new head of the gallery's extension services, outwardly appears as much a reflection of her times as the contemporary Canadian art she enthusiastically boosts.

Unpretentious and looking younger than her 30 years, she has both a degree from the University of Montreal and a masters degree in art history from the Courtauld Institute at the University of London, England.

A native of Montreal where she had worked as an education officer at the Museum of Contemporary Art, Miss Corbeil joined the extension services in 1969 as assistant director.

She says her job has enabled her really to discover Canada, including the diversity of art from coast to coast.

"I think contemporary Canadian art is tremendous," she said in an interview.

"It has freshness of approach, conviction and originality." Nor had it been snowed under by the influence of modern art trends in the United States.

"We have our own style, our own way of expressing our reality. Perhaps it's because we're not so organized here in terms of the art market. But we're very young and it has its limitations. . . ."

Miss Corbeil's job is to see that interested Canadians have a chance to learn more about their country's visual art. She has visited galleries and studios and met artists in all of the provinces to get a comprehensive picture of it.

With a small staff, she must organize about 30 art exhibitions a year, with help from National Gallery curators, art experts in various regions and the extension services' liaison officers in Montreal and Vancouver.

While the extension service deals mainly with Canadian art, it also helps co-ordinate exhibitions from abroad as well as exhibitions of famous international artists from the National Gallery collection.

Exhibitions of particular interest to scholars are prepared for the incresting number of university art galleries. Sometimes students of fine arts are involved in preparing background information for displays focused on the work of a single artist.

Some of the exhibitions are complemented by films or lectures and Miss Corbeil says that since more and more artists are working with videotapes, she would like to see some experimental films circulated.

"We exist, I think, because Canadian galleries are just developing right now," she says of the extension services. Gallery staffs were generally too limited to prepare extensive exhibitions.

"I don't think people look at us as a big established institution. They see the point that we're only a channel to be used to show their works."

Kitchen Tested Recipes

Chicken Goes Sweet and Sour

By MARY MOORE

Up until yesterday chicken did not seem to be a meat that was adaptable to the sweet and sour treatment. I think of it as too delicate for the robust sauce. When I received a letter from a reader asking for my sweet 'n sour chicken recipe I sent a mild one I had worked on years ago and then tested a little heartier version and to my surprise liked it a lot. So did my guests. They licked the casserole clean.

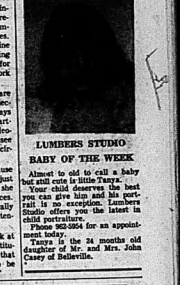
SWEET 'N SOUR CHICKEN
(serves 4)

2½ cups cooked chicken packed, cut coarsely (see below)

Sweet and Sour Sauce:
¾ cup (4 tbsp plus 2 tbsps) white vinegar
2 tbsps. light brown sugar
¼ to ½ cup catsup
¼ cup water
1 tbsp. corn starch
½ cup crushed pineapple drained
½ tsp. salt

NOTE, To get your 2½ cups cooked chicken meat simmer a three-pound chicken in water in a heavy cover, until meat nearly falls from bones, turning chicken once. Cool in the stiffy way and remove meat from bones and skin. Cut meat into double-bite-size pieces.



To make Sweet and Sour Sauce combine all sauce ingredients in a small pot until blended and cook stirring until thick. Arrange a thick layer of chicken pieces in medium casserole and pour sauce over being sure it flows to bottom. Bake uncovered until hot or, foil, at 325 deg. Fahr. 1½ hours.

NOTES: 1) This may be made in advance and chilled until time to bake. I hope you try it for it is a good change from your customary methods of preparing chicken. 2) Please notice that this dish contains no fat.

Ann Landers

Mother Regrets Being Unfair to Children

DEAR ANN LANDERS: This morning, burdened with too much work to do and too many tired from the day before, I took out my frustration on my children. This evening I picked up a magazine and saw this Mother's Prayer, by Margaret Holmes. I hope you will print it. Thank you in advance. — ALPENA, MICHIGAN MOTHER.

"Oh God, I was so cross to the children today! Forgive me. I was discouraged and tired — and I took it out on them. Forgive my bad temper, my impatience, and most of all, my yelling. I am ashamed as I think of it. I want to kneel down by each of their beds, wake them up and ask them to forgive me. But I can't. They wouldn't understand. I must go on living with the memory of this awful day, my unjust tirades. Hours later, I can still see the fear in their eyes as they scurried around, trying to appease me — thinking my nasty and unnatural raving was their fault.

ANN LANDERS

Oh God, the pathetic helplessness of children! Their innocence before the awful monster — the enraged adult. And how forgiving they are — hugging me so fervently at bedtime, kissing me good night. All I can do is straighten a cover, touch a small head burrowed in a pillow and hope with all my heart that they will forgive me.

Lord, in failing these little ones whom you have put in my keeping, I am failing you. Please let your infinite patience and goodness replenish me for tomorrow."

* * *

DEAR ALPENA MOTHER: What a beautiful prayer! Every mother who reads it will see herself. In behalf of the millions of mothers who love their children but are, alas, less than perfect, I thank you.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Your column is a haven for those of us who need answers to questions we cannot take to our clergymen, doctors, friends or relatives. Please, will you help me, a grown woman, with some social amenities which I have never been able to resolve or feel comfortable about?

I know it is proper for a woman to shake hands with a man. Is it ever proper for a woman to shake hands with another woman? When is it proper for a woman to greet another woman with a kiss? If so, on which cheek? Is it ever proper to greet a man with a kiss? If you kiss a man at a party, should you do the same for his wife? Please answer in all Connecticut papers because I travel around the state a good bit. Thank you. — AN ADMIRER.

* * *

DEAR ADMIRER: Whether to shake hands or to greet a friend with a kiss, is, by and large, a matter of how you feel about the person. No one can advise you on this. You must let your emotions guide you. With acquaintances, a handshake is enough. With close friends a handshake is too formal. If you kiss either cheek is all right. In Europe, it's both cheeks — first one, then the other. If you greet a man with a kiss, you'd better do the same for his wife—especially in Connecticut.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I am not sticking up for the pothead whose letter you published, with all the errors intact, but I just finished reading the front page of my newspaper and found five typographical mistakes. I wonder if the typesetters are also stoned on pot. Can you elucidate? — CONSTANT WEEDER.

DEAR CON: I doubt that the typesetters are stoned on pot. Typographical errors have been a thorn in the side of writers and editors since Gutenberg. I wonder, however, if the boys in the composing room sometimes play around with certain words for the fun of it. Here's'ahn example that appeared in an eastern paper under Personals: "Mary, please forgive me and come home. It was just a passing fanny. I love you. Jim".

Taiwan's Detention Of Pair Protested

TORONTO (CP) — The detention of two Chinese journalists in Taiwan by the Chinese Nationalist government has been described by the Canadian National Committee of the International Press Institute as a flagrant violation of the freedom of the press and of the United Nations declaration of human rights.

The statement is in a communication sent to the IPI national committee in Taiwan (Formosa) over the signature of Peter M. Preston of Brantford Expositor, chairman of the Canadian committee.

The Chinese journalists are Kenneth Yuyhung, 54, publisher of the Chinese Commercial News at Manila, and his brother, Rizal, 40, editor of the newspaper.

They were arrested March 23, 1970, on charges of favoring the Communist cause and being involved in black-marketing currency and were deported to Formosa, where the charges were still under consideration.

The Canadian IPI committee says that last Aug. 14 the brothers were brought before a form of military tribunal at a hearing attended by IPI observers, charged with "printing propaganda for the benefit of rebels through the use of words, pictures, books and speeches."

The committee says the Yuyhung newspaper published no editorials and confined its activities to printing the internationally distributed and respected dispatches of The Associated Press, Reuters and Agence France-Presse.

"Such dispatches cannot properly be considered unpublishable in any country claiming the distinction of honoring press freedom," the Canadian committee adds.

The committee says the accused were given no time to prepare an adequate defence to confer with their Philippine counsel except in the presence of the prosecutors and could not communicate with their counsel during the proceedings.

"No cross-examination by defence counsel was permitted; not sufficient time was taken to permit consideration of a defence memorandum."

The Yuyhungs were committed to "reformatory detention."

Lunar Lander Crash Noted At 3 Points

HOUSTON (AP) — Detection of the deliberate crash of Apollo 15's lunar lander by moonquake meters at three widely-separated points on the moon is frosting on the cake for lunar scientists.

The lunar lander Falcon's violent death late Monday was detected 30 miles away at the seismometer which David R. Scott and James B. Irwin left at the base of the Apennine Mountains where they landed earlier in Falcon. The crash also registered 700 miles to the south on the Apollo 12 seismometer left in the Ocean of Storms in November, 1969, and on the Apollo 14 seismometer left in the lunar highlands at Fra Mauro last February.

The response of the three instruments excited scientists waiting to see if it would happen.

It was the latest achievement for Apollo 15—a mission lunar experts say may bring more fundamental knowledge about the moon than all past moon landings combined.

The achievements include:

—Discovery of probable layering in the sides of Hadley Rille, a 1,200-foot-deep moon canyon Scott and Irwin visited.

Scientists are trying to determine how the moon was formed as a way of finding the origin of the solar system.

"That's exciting: that's just very nice," Dr. D. W. Strangway, a geophysicist at the Manned Spacecraft Centre, said when the Apollo 12 and 14 instruments began recording seismic waves generated by the moon's crash, which equalled an explosion of more than two tons of TNT. The waves had reached the closer Apollo 15 seismometer several minutes earlier.

"It suggests you can see impacts on the moon from very, very far away," he said. "This has been a subject of considerable controversy."

The principal scientist working with the seismometers, Dr. Gary Latham of Columbia University's Lamont-Doherty Geological Laboratory, was studying the data late Monday and was unavailable for comment.

But before the crash he said detection by the Apollo 12 and 14 instruments would be strong evidence that present theories about the interior of the moon are correct.

"We will record it at Apollo 12 and 14 sites if our present model for propagation in deep material is correct," He said. "If it's not correct, we will not see it at those stations.

"So that observation—do we see it or do we not see it—is very, very important."

These theories are that the moon's interior is a broken, crumbled material that scatters the waves intensely and the material becomes more dense with increasing depth.

Crashes of previous lunar landers and spent S-4B booster rockets have been only short distances from seismometers.

Trudeaus Sail Toward French Isles in Gulf

ABOARD THE SIR WILLIAM ALEXANDER (CP) — Prime Minister Trudeau and his wife Margaret sailed toward the French island of St. Pierre off Newfoundland early today. It is the next stop, and the only foreign territory, on their current trip through Atlantic coastal waters.

After leaving Louisbourg, N.S., in warm sunshine Monday afternoon the Alexander ran into thick fog that persisted through the night.

The ship that is home for the Trudeaus on their cruise around Atlantic Canada moves with the methodical assurance of the experienced worker she is.

Canadian coast guard ship Sir William Alexander has none of the moneyed aleekness of the cruisers favored by Mediterranean millionaires, but there is a workaday dignity about her.

The prime minister and his wife clearly are enjoying the relaxed, unfussy atmosphere aboard ship, between the brief official visits to towns ashore and the private calls on friends sing around them."

There were no navy men around to answer that accusation, but it is true that special arrangements by the Ottawa newspapers have been carried out without any flagrant changes in routine.

There are no dock chairs, for example, no shuffleboard or deck-tennis nets on the 272-foot ship.

There are experienced divers in the crew and extra diving equipment in anticipation of the prime minister perhaps doing some skin-diving en route.

When the prime minister and his wife take one of their frequent strolls outside their cabin, they wend their way between stanchions and winches, coiled ropes and hatch covers of a ship whose normal duties are to replace and repair balky buoys, supply lighthouses, break ice in the winter and help ships in trouble along the Nova Scotia coast.

It is Mrs. Trudeau's first sea voyage as well as her first experience of Atlantic Canada. There was some apprehension that the prime minister's wife, expecting a baby in December, might encounter the miseries of seasickness. But the sea was kind in the first few days.

The Trudeau quarters aboard ship consist of the two biggest of five passenger cabins, linked by a lounge-dining room at the forward end of the boat deck underneath the bridge. Each has shower and toilet.

Each room is about 12 feet square. The starboard cabin is used as an office where the prime minister works on government papers. The port cabin is their bedroom. They have their meals—generally alone—in the lounge.

That room normally serves as mess for Captain Earl Jennez and Chief Engineer Ed Weldon, both of Dartmouth, N.S., where the ship is based. They now eat with their fellow officers.

Tenants Present Proposals

TORONTO (CP) — Paul Goyette, managing director of the Ontario Housing Corp., has promised to consider recommendations on public housing drawn up at a weekend conference of the Ontario Public Housing Tenants Association.

During a three-hour session Saturday attended by Mr. Goyette and about 50 association members, the OHC chief said he would be "glad to look at any proposals."

In a resolution meeting Sunday, the association drew up a list of recommendations, chief among which was a proposal to change the system of gearing rents to the gross income of tenants.

Delegates earlier had told Mr. Goyette that the present OHC policy of raising rents whenever tenants get overtime or bonus money is preventing people from getting out of the poverty rut.

The group approved a resolution calling for rents to be based on a maximum 25 per cent of salaries after deductions and without considering overtime. The percentage could be less, depending on the size of salaries and families.

Brill Bend Magic

By BRUCE LEVETT
Canadian Press Sports Editor

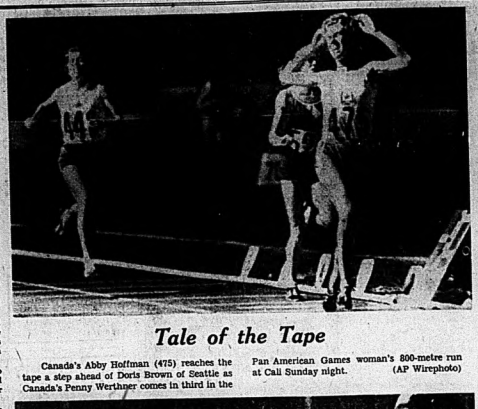
CALI, Colombia (CP) — Debbie Brill's magic number is a metric one that has stood on the books for a decade. The Haney, B.C., girl proved she is close to reaching it while winning a gold medal in the women's high jump at the Pan-American Games Monday night.

Records did fall but not the world one as the 18-year-old science and arts student showed the improvement in her technique that has made her one of the best.

In the world of high jumpers everything is in metres, and the one record she wants most is the world one set in 1961 by a Romanian.

"I was so darn mad—I was so close to making it," Debbie said after she twice failed to clear the bar at 1.90 metres.

Since there are 39.37 inches to the metre, that comes to 6 feet 2¾ inches, just a tiptoe away from the world mark.



Beaming happily, Miss Brill said she went for 1.90 because she was sure she could do it. She had cleared 1.85 metres, or 6-0¾, in winning the gold. The magnificent leap set a Games as well as a Canadian open and native record.

Lionel Pugh of Vancouver, head coach of the Canadian track and field team, said that if Debbie could have reached 1.90, she no doubt would have gone for the world mark of 1.91, or 6-3¼, held by Iolanda Balas of Romania.

Debbie's gold was the fourth won by the women's team and the fifth over-all. The over-all squad won four medals Monday to give Canada a total of 16 for the first three days of the Games.

Bronze medals were won by women gymnasts in the team competition, the University of British Columbia crew in the eights and Mike Mercer of Toronto in the men's shot put.

After 41 events, the United States was far ahead in the standing with 33 medals including 13 gold. Cuba follows with 28 including six gold, and Canada is third.

Abby Moved Too Early, But Coach Glad She Did

CALI, Colombia (CP) — Abby Hoffman of Toronto admitted she moved too early on her way to a gold medal in the women's 800 metres at the Pan-American Games Sunday night but her track coach was glad she did.

Stephanie Berto of Vancouver wondered if her legs would hold up, but they did and she won another gold in the 200 metres.

Then Brenda Eisler of Vancouver wound up the evening of fireworks with a record leap to win the long jump.

The three gold medals in track and field made a strong case for the coaches who right along have been saying the Canadian women will be tough to beat here.

In just two days of competition, the women have accounted for six of the nine medals won by the Canadian track and field team.

The two-week Games got into full swing Sunday with 17 finals, nine of them in track and field. The United States won five gold in track and field, Canada three and Jamaica one.

The over-all Canadian team was a strong third with a total of 12 medals, four of them gold.

Chun Hon Chan, a Chinese weightlifter from Montreal, won gold, silver and bronze in the flyweight class Saturday. Will Wedmann of Vancouver grabbed a silver in the men's high jump with a leap of six feet 10¼ inches and Carol Martin of Thornhill, Ont., snatched a bronze in the women's discus.

The first day on the fields and in the gymnasiums of Cali brought the Canadian team five medals Saturday.

As the venue spread Sunday with more finals contested, the Canadian team won seven more —three gold, one silver and three bronze.

Miss Hoffman's win in the 800 metres was a bit of revenge for her in that she beat the girl who finished two places ahead of her in the 1968 Olympics.

She finished two full strides ahead of Doris Brown of the United States with a clocking of 2:05.5.

Until Sunday night, Miss Hoffman had never beaten Miss Brown and she thought she had made a novice's mistake when she made her move in the stretch yards earlier than she normally would.

But track coach Lionel Pugh of Vancouver was happy that she did.

"I'm glad you did," Pugh told Abby. "She (Miss Brown) wasn't ready for the move at that point. She couldn't seem to believe it when you went by her."

Miss Berto credited an excellent start for her winning performance. Running in the outside lane, she was timed in 22.5 seconds after battling Fulgencio Romay of Cuba in a stirring duel. The clocking equalled the Games record Miss Berto set in an earlier heat.

In the men's 1,500 metres, Bill Smart of Vancouver won a silver with a surprising burst of speed in the final stretch. Marty Liquori and Jim Crawford of the U.S. appeared to have the first two places clinched in the final 50 yards but Smart's sudden move split the two Americans and the Canadian miler took second by an easy five strides.

Saskatchewan's Skrien Far from Delighted with CFL Schedule

MONTREAL (CP) — Dave Skrien, head coach of Saskatchewan Roughriders is not overly pleased with the way his club has been treated by the Canadian Football League schedule maker this season.

Saskatchewan plays only third game in eight days Labor Day when they meet Montreal Alouettes in the Als' first game of the season. The game will be nationally televised on the CTV network starting at 8:00 p.m. EDT.

Following their game against Montreal, the Saskatchewan club moves on to Toronto to play the Argonauts Friday night.

"Four games in 11 days—the game was not made to play that way," Skrien told a news conference. "We're playing all these games now and we only have three games in September.

The Riders, who finished in top spot in the Western Football Conference and then lost to Calgary in the WFC final last season, won their opening game of the 1971 campaign dumping B.C. Lions 14-10.

Last Friday, they lost their home opener to Calgary by a 21-0 count, absorbing a physical beating in the process. Three Saskatchewan players were sent to the sidelines and one—defensive halfback Bobby Pearce—has been placed on the 30-day injury reserve list with separated ribs.

Horner Cavitte, sold last week by the Roughriders to Hamilton and then cut by the Ti-Cats Friday, will take Pearce's halfback slot.

Tackle Don Rahniuk, injured against B.C. last week, will be back in the lineup after missing the game last week against the Stamps.

Skrien said he does not know quite what to expect from the Als tonight, but added:

"We know they will be better than they were during the exhibition season."

The Alouettes were 1-4 during the pre-season games, including a 30-13 loss to the CFL all-stars.

Ala coach Sam Etcheverry has already indicated that Jim Chasey, the rookie from Dartmouth College, will get the start at quarterback tonight.

"Chasey has natural leadership tendencies," said Etcheverry.

"I mean you can tell the other fellows work extra hard for him. That can be very important in this game."

The Als will also have import defensive end, Bill Whisler, and Canadian defensive tackle Walt Balasiuk will be in the lineup tonight. Canadian defensive half Bob Storey was placed on the 30-day disabled list and American running back Bill Massey was suspended by the club for failing to report a chronic pinched nerve in his neck.

Shades of '70 For Winnipeg

WINNIPEG (CP) — It was shades of 1970 for Winnipeg Blue Bombers and 21,851 fans Monday night as the Western Football Conference club opened its 1971 home season with a 28-22 loss to Ottawa Rough Riders.

The Bombers won only two games in 1969, but gave signs of coming back with three exhibition wins and a 21-20 loss in Toronto to the Argonauts last week in their league opener.

Quarterback Don Jonas, going mainly to the air, had the Bombers ahead 15-10 at half time. But, as they did in many of their losses last year, the Bombers failed to muster a consistent offensive attack in the second half.

Head coach Jim Spavital said the loss was a result of too many mistakes, but one in particular. Trailing 10-8 early in the second quarter the Bombers marched from their own 27-yard line to the Ottawa 23 before Jim Thorpe took a pass from Jonas to the Ottawa two. An illegal procedure penalty nullified the play, moved the ball back to the 28-yard line and a 35-yard field goal attempt by Jonas went wide.

"It was something that shouldn't have happened," Spavital said, "one of the many mistakes we made that we shouldn't have."

Jonas hit split end Bob Larose for a 70-yard touchdown and flipped a two-yarder to little Mack Herron for the other. He converted Larose's score and added a single on a missed field goal.

Fleet-footed Hugh Oldham got the Ottawa ball on the scoreboard, hauling in a Gary Wood pass at the Winnipeg 35 and blasting a ball to the end zone. Gerry Organ added the convert and a 26-yard field goal.

Both defences came out tough in the second half and it was the scrambling of Ottawa quarterback Wood that eventually got the Rough Riders untracked. Wood carried the ball 10 times for 90 yards and one touchdown to send the Riders into a 20-15 lead.

Twenty-seven seconds later Barry Ardern picked off an errant Jonas pass on the Winnipeg 32-yard line and outdistanced the Bomber quarterback to the end zone.

"It was just a poorly-thrown pass," Spavital said.

The Bombers did come back to narrow the count to 28-22 with Jim Thorpe's touchdown with 10 seconds remaining.

While Winnipeg failed to generate any rushing offence throughout the game—they finished with 45 yards—Wood directed Dennis Duncan for 108 of their total 230 yards. Al but 55 of Ottawa's total came in the second half.

Ottawa picked up 23 first downs to 16 for Winnipeg and a net offence of 423 yards compared to 325 yards. Charlie Bryant caught four passes for 113 yards for Winnipeg while Oldham hauled in five for 105 yards for Ottawa.

Red Sox Prove They Belong in Pennant Race

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Boston Red Sox showed Monday night that it takes more than one inning to put them out of a possible race with Baltimore Orioles of the American League's East Division pennant.

The Sox were down 4-0 and ripe for the kill in the first inning. But they slipped off the hook as Reggie Smith and Carl Yastrzemski greased the escape route with home runs that produced a 7-4 Boston victory.

The Orioles, who still lead the East Division by a comfortable 4½ games, hopped on Boston starter Luis Tiant for four runs in the first on a solo homer by Boog Powell and a three-run shot by Dave Johnson.

The early assault was a mistake for the Orioles because Boston brought Bill Lee in to relieve and he did almost as much damage with his bat as he did with his arm.

Lee, 9-2, beat out three infield hits and drove in Boston's first run with a squeeze bunt single after Bob Montgomery had tripled in the second inning. He also relieved 14 straight batters over one stretch and allowed only two hits in 8 1-3 innings of relief.

Ron Hunt Most Hit

MONTREAL (CP) — Second baseman Ron Hunt of Montreal Expos tied a modern major league record when he was hit by a pitch this year, tying the mark set by Louis Richard Steve Evans of St. Louis Cardinals in 1910.

Dodgers Starting Month with Bang

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

After a mediocre month during which they lost ground to San Francisco Giants in the National League West Division, Los Angeles Dodgers are starting out explosively in August.

They opened with a 5-4 triumph over Cincinnati Reds Sunday, then blasted three homers for a comeback 5-4 success over the Giants Monday night.

The Giants, who had taken advantage of the Dodgers' 13-16 woe-lost record in July so build a nine-game lead by Aug. 1, dropped their cushion to eight as a result of the loss.

In the other National League games, Houston Astros slipped Chicago Cubs 2-1; Cincinnati stopped New York Mets 4-2; Philadelphia Phillies turned back Atlanta Braves 4-0 and St. Louis Cardinals whipped San Diego Padres 3-1.

Leading by two runs in the ninth, San Francisco manager Charlie Fox lifted Jerry Johnson with two out and a man on first and brought in the second reliever of the inning, southpaw Steve Hamilton, to pitch to left-handed Willie Crawford.

Crawford singled, then Garvey clinched it with a two-out, three-run homer.

"I would have liked to face one more man, but I'm not the manager," said a perturbed Johnson, who was possibly deprived of his 14th save.

Don Wilson outdueled Chatham, Ont.-born Ferguson Jenkins with a two-hitter as Houston beat Chicago. Wilson allowed a single by Paul Popovich in the second inning and lost his shutout on Jim Hickman's two-out home run in the ninth.

Johnny Bench knocked in three runs with a double and single and Lee May snapped a tie with a leadoff homer in the ninth, pacing Cincinnati over New York.

Deron Johnson and Roger Freed blasted consecutive home runs in three-run fourth and Rick Wise spaced 11 hits in the Philadelphia success.

The shutout was Wise's fourth of the season.

Steve Carlton outpitched Dave Roberts in a duel of top southpaws in the St. Louis victory. Carlton fired a five-hitter and shut out Padres after Clarence Gaston's first-inning homer.

Stewart Shoo-in?

ADENAU, West Germany (AP) — Jackie Stewart, the flying Scot, all but clinched the world driving championship Sunday by easily winning the West German Grand Prix in record time.

Stewart, who won the Formula One in 1969, raised his point total to 51, far ahead of Jackie Ickx of Belgium, who has 19 for second place.

Saturday a full double draw of 64 pairs started festivities and Sunday 128 of Ontario's Premier Bowlers competed in the fours competition for the Corbin Gold Trophy and other trophies. Monday 74 rinks played for prizes in the weekend windup of festivities.

In Saturday's tenth Annual Watkin Memorial Tournament, which perpetuates George Watkin, many years president of the Belleville club, the winner was Bill Duncan Jr. of Kingston and Nancy Watkin of Ottawa, the granddaughter of Mr. Watkin. Second three-game winner was Percy Graham of the local club.

Third prize was won by Al and Ida Hall of Willowdale while fourth three - winner went to Toronto Cricket Club's Reg. and Dorothy Little.

Jack Avery and Mrs. Myrtle Smith of the local club placed fifth. In sixth place were host president Bruce and Jean Miller.

Todd Miller, former Toronto Argonaught football player, and Donalda Bishop of Balmy Beach took seventh place and the other three-win honors went to former Canadian doubles champion Wally Laverone and Norma Soble of the Belleville club.

Not to be outdone by his better half, Ken Soble with Marie Bell as lead won first two-win prize and John Sager, also a former Canadian doubles champion with Mrs. Vi Mathews of Kingston won second two-high. Jr. and Mrs. Don Anstey of West Toronto picked up the one high prize.

Sunday the 28th annual Corbin Gold Trophy was completed. Chairman Bill Van Tassel opened the tournament with Alderman Ben Corbin representing the city. The draw was run by Bruce Miller and Austin Watkin.

The Corbin Gold Trophy went to George Dickie and his rink from Toronto Cricket Club. The Belle Cleaners Trophy was captured by Ray Edwards' rink from Brampton. Third place was won by George Kodatsky of the Port Colborne Club who had Pete Larsen from St. Petersburg, Florida, Al Barber from Preston and Sid VanderVoort from the local club as a team.

Jim Bagley's Balmy Beach team won the Gordon Watkin Memorial Gold trophy and fifth three-game winner was Bill Kimberley of Cobourn Park in Toronto.

Former city mayor Jerry Hyde Sr. from London's Elmwood Club captured first two-game high and Jim Black of New Toronto got second two-win high.

The top one-high prize went to Earl Judge of Whitby and the final prize to Mel Caverley of Madoc.

Monday the prize winners were, in the Ladies' Division, Jean Miller and Norma Soble; second high, Edie Elliott and Mrs. Pete Larsen from St. Petersburg, Florida, while one-game high went to Mrs. Bill Stonehouse of Willowdale.

In the Men's Division, Jack Avery and Bill Fuller were first. Second three-win went to Wally Laverge and Bill VanHola. High two - game prize went to Jack Pearson of Cornwall who had Peter Shinfield as his partner. Peter is visiting Canada from England with other Rotary Club members. "A. B. Wonnacott and Herb McIntyre won one high.

Burlington Bowler Wins

WOODSTOCK (CP) — John Kaggo of Burlington won the singles title Saturday in the Ontario lawn bowling championships.

Kaggo won three straight games beating Hugh Cuming of London Fairmont, runner-up Gord Hall of Oshawa, and Berry McFadden of Port Credit.

All in the Family

It's only a once-a-year experience as far as Nancy Watkin and Bill Duncan Jr. are concerned but it's once too many for the other entrants in the annual George Watkin Memorial Trophy competition at the Belleville Lawn Bowling Club. It was the first time the pair have won the event in five years of trying but it was a popular one for Nancy who is the daughter of the late George Watkin. Nancy and Bill bowl once a year together but got it all together for Saturday's competition, winning with a score of 56 plus 2.

Cementmen Capitalize to Draw First Playoff Blood

Point Anne made the most of some costly Rollins mistakes; Don Holoway made life miserable for opposing batsmen and the Cementmen dapped first blood in their OASA Intermediate "A" series opener Saturday night.

Holoway struck out nine batters and walked three in the nine inning contest.

Reid took the loss despite a five - hit, 15 - strikeout effort allowing singles to Jim Gilchrist, Larry Mavety, Doug Olsen, Eric Maher and Rick Rosebush.

The second game of the series is slated for Saturday night at the Alemite beginning at 8 p.m.

Juniors Lose One-Hitter

KEMPTVILLE (Special) — The Ellis Juniors made a hit at the Kemptville Junior Softball Tournament Saturday, but unfortunately for the Bellville entry they couldn't manufacture any runs.

Ted Waite handcuffed Almonte on one hit in Ellis' opening game, but still lost a 1-0 decision. The game's only run came in the third inning on a pair of infield errors and a passed ball.

Carbide Keeps Rolling Along

It's dog - eat - dog for second place in the Industrial Softball League with seven teams all within easy reach of the runnerup position, but Union Carbide just keeps rolling along in first place.

The pennant-winning Carbide crew stopped the red-hot Firestone 4-3 in one of four games played Monday night. The rest of the action saw positions changing hands regularly as UIC whipped Deloro Steelite 7-3, CN Yardmen bombed V.L. Card 23-1, and Brooke Bond nipped Mead Johnson 11-10.

Junior Day hurled the win for Union Carbide, allowing six hits while fanning five, but he needed a seventh inning tally to stop the Firemen. Perry Soule took the loss giving up seven hits while striking out four. He also had two home runs in a losing cause.

The CN moved into sole possession of third place with their win over cellar-dwelling V. L. Card. Bellis started for the winners giving up one run on two hits and striking out five. Thumbe took over in the fifth and fired two-hit shutout for the next three innings. Schreider had a homer, two doubles and two singles. Thomas a homer and two doubles and Brenton a homer and single in the Yardmen's 18-hit attack.

The Unemployment Insurance Commission jumped into a three-way tie for fourth with their 7-3 verdict over Deloro Steelite. Bernie Coughlin hurled the win, allowing 13 hits while fanning four. Collins and Chase each had three singles for the winners.

Horwood punched two singles and Casselman a double and two singles for Delco.

Brooke Bond roared back from a 9-3 deficit to beat Mead and preserve second place. Bob Chambers picked up the win, allowing 11 hits and fanning three. Brian Baker had a triple and two doubles.

Denny Holoway was a one-man team for Mead Johnson, blasing third strikes past 13 batters, and connecting for two home runs, all in losing effort.

Burlington Bowler Wins

WOODSTOCK (CP) — John Kaggo of Burlington won the singles title Saturday in the Ontario lawn bowling championships.

Kaggo won three straight games beating Hugh Cuming of London Fairmont, runner-up Gord Hall of Oshawa, and Berry McFadden of Port Credit.

Home Brew Best

They say home brew is the best brew — and not only in smokables!

Dave Jones of the host Bay of Quinte Country Club withstood opposition from London to Montreal to win the annual men's event of the two-day Bay of Quinte Golf Festival.

Jones, a runner-up four times in the event, finally broke the jinx and came up with a four-over par 75 to win the competition.

Jones attributed the victory to the fact that he played his round without having to master a natural hazard which plagued the afternoon players.

"I was playing before the wind picked up and changed directions. It's not that a wind affects me that much anyways because I hit the ball low, but I'm sure that it bothered other scores.

"I was hitting the long ball good today; every one hit shot a ten. But I still can't see a 75 winning. I've shot 71 and 73 and never won.

Believe it or not, Jones did win the tournament with a 75 nipping four other golfers by one stroke. Defending champion Ron Craig recorded a 76 to gain a share of second, along with Jack Thomson of C.P.R., Trenton, Jeff Howard of Trenton and Arnie Mathus of CFB. Mathbus also canned a hole-in-one on the 120-yard sixth hole.

"B" flight low gross honors went to Trenton's J. Walsh of Belleville.

It remained a local possession in the B Flight as J. Walsh of Trenton beat the Quinte's and Lou Cunningham won the low net with 71.

Hawkins' win came courtesy a count of 94, the first time he had ever broken 100. He also had the distinction of being the oldest competitor on the course, admitting to 68 years.

Dave Jones had to pull some fancy shots out of his golf bag Saturday to emerge victorious in the Annual Bay of Quinte Festival Men's Event. A runner-up in the event four times, Jones finally took home first prize — a new bag — by shooting a 75 on the wind-blown Quinte course. Jones won by one stroke over four other players.

Two Heads Beat One

Two heads are better than one even if one is female and one male.

Sunday's mixed competition of the Bay of Quinte Golf Festival proved that man and woman could get along as over 110 couples were on hand for the best-ball play.

Betty and Dave Taylor of Westview in Toronto walked away with the low net honors, recording a 66½. Second place went to June and Bruce Norton of Georgetown with a 67 while the A. Gilchrists of Trenton took third place with a 70½.

A local team took low gross honors with Nellie Craig combining with son Ron for a 79. The team placed third in last year's tournament.

Nellie Skene and Dale Stringer of Westview took second low gross honors while Carol and Norm Wilson of the Bay of Quinte Club grabbed third.

U.S., Ending Opposition to China in UN, Wants Taiwan to Stay

WASHINGTON (Reuter) — The United States will consult other governments on tactics to block moves to expel Nationalist China from the United Nations.

State Secretary William P. Rogers, announcing Monday the abandonment of U.S. opposition to China's membership, said the administration will oppose any action to expel Taiwan or deprive it of UN representation.

An Albanian resolution to admit Peking has called for Taiwan's expulsion.

The Canadian position is to oppose any move that would delay the seating of Communist China. Such a move would automatically mean the ouster of Nationalist China, an external affairs department spokesman said. He said Canada will study the U.S. move.

Assuming Taiwan remains a member, the next question is which delegation will be permitted to fill China's permanent seat on the Security Council?

Both Peking and Taiwan claim to be sole representative of the Chinese people.

Rogers indicated that the United States will try to keep Taiwan on the Security Council but he provided for a possible face-saving by saying that the United States will go along if the majority of the General Assembly decided to substitute Peking.

U.S. officials said, however, that a General Assembly decision can only be a recommendation to the Security Council which will make the final decision.

Despite past hints that they might walk out if Peking is admitted, the reaction of the Nationalists to Rogers's announcement stressed their right to remain in the United Nations as the Republic of China and their determination to preserve the charter.

Since the charter specifically mentions the Republic of China as a permanent member of the Security Council, the government on Taiwan presumably could insist its seat could not be taken away except by amending the charter, diplomatic observers said here.

Rogers stressed that the admission of Peking to the United Nations need not prejudice the conflicting claims to be the sole government of China.

Reuter correspondent Jonathan Sharp in Hong Kong said observers there saw the U.S. decision to vote for China's admission as unlikely to draw any thanks from Peking.

The shift towards a two-China policy is just as unacceptable to Peking as a straight anti-China policy, they said.

China has repeatedly said it will not sit in the world body with the Nationalists present under any guise.

"The Chinese have said neutrality is a sham: you are either for them or against them," one experienced observer remarked.

There has been no sign that China is prepared to change its stand that the Nationalists occupy China's seat illegally.

Even with the announcement of President Nixon's visit to Peking, with its dramatic implications for Sino-U.S. relations, Chinese official statements have stuck adamantly to this line.

But official statements in recent months have shown that China is interested in joining the United Nations.

Many observers feel that Peking's vigorous foreign policy, which took shape about two years ago and reached a climax with the "ping pong" diplomacy earlier this year, was aimed partly at gaining admission to the UN.

But China is not so anxious that she is not prepared to wait another few years, if necessary, observers said.

Two-China Policy Unacceptable

CAMROSE, Alta. (CP) — Chester Ronning, the former Canadian diplomat, said Monday there is no way the People's Republic of China can accept the latest two-seat position by the United States on admission to the United Nations.

"Anyone who toys with any aspect of a two - China policy . . . might as well give up now," the China expert said in an interview.

Mr. Ronning said, however that the U.S. change of policy announced earlier Monday in Washington, will assure that Mainland China is offered a UN seat in the next voting.

The U.S. is apparently prepared to yield gracefully in favor of a majority vote in favor of admission, but the U.S. will insist on a two-thirds majority to oust the Nationalists from their seat in the general assembly.

Yahya Khan on TV

Pakistan and India Near War

TORONTO (CP) — President Yahya Khan of Pakistan says his country is "very close" to war with India, but he will not accept a United Nations peace force until such a war actually breaks out.

He says he is trying to avoid war with India, "by showing a lot of patience, but there's a limit to our patience, too."

President Khan made his remarks in an interview Friday in Karachi. The interview was broadcast Sunday night on the CBC network television program Weekend.

He says he can see "no reason why" Pakistan, divided regraphically by India, cannot function successfully.

President Khan also said bloodshed and killings in Pakistan resembles similar scenes of violence in Northern Ireland.

"I saw on my own TV ..... there was blood flowing in the streets of Ireland. I saw armed forces going for these civilians and I saw civilians going for the armed forces. And it made me wonder if I was watching a replay in Pakistan or somewhere else. I was assured it was in Ireland."

Robbers Make Manager Open Safe

SARNIA (CP) — Three armed men forced their way into the home of the manager of the Brigden Credit Union about 3 a.m. Saturday, tied up his wife and daughter and then made him drive to the office and open a safe.

Police said it was the second time in 14 months that thieves used the technique to rob the credit union office in this town 20 miles southeast of Sarnia.

Orest Hawrylak told police three men wearing ski masks kicked in the back door of his house. One was carrying a handgun and another had a knife.

CIA Tries to Halt Red Gains in Laos

WASHINGTON (AP) — A Senate foreign relations committee staff report said Monday the Central Intelligence Agency spent well over $100 million last year as part of a growing U.S. effort to halt North Vietnamese advances in Laos.

It listed $70 million in CIA backing for Laotian forces and indicated that close to that amount was paid in addition to support some 4,800 Thai irregulars fighting in Laos.

Despite growing U.S. aid, which totalled at least $350 million last year excluding perhaps five times that amount for bombing operations, the report said most observers feel "the situation there is growing steadily worse and the initiative seems clearly to be in the hands of the enemy."

The censored report, which came out of a 12-day visit to Laos in late April and early May by James G. Lowenstein and Richard M. Moose, revealed a number of hitherto secret details about U.S. operations in Laos.

The 23-page report was presented to the foreign relations committee in May and to a secret session of the Senate June 7. A declassified transcript will be printed in Wednesday's Congressional Record.

The report lists some items directly, such as the fact of a CIA role in Laos, figures on U.S. bombing sorties and North Vietnamese troop strength and details of Thai Chinese involvement in northern Laos, including the stationing of troop partisans along a road from China to Thailand.

Theft Unstoppable

DETROIT (AP) — Michael Murphy, former New York City police commissioner, says the expert car thief is almost impossible to stop.

Murphy told delegates to the International Association of Auto Theft Investigators that a locked car can be opened in 14 seconds, a locked steering column in 90 seconds.

But Murphy said 70 to 75 per cent of each year's thefts are still joy rides by youths attracted by the sight of an unlocked car with the keys left in the ignition.

Hitchhikers Attacked

BRANTFORD (CP) — Robert William Joseph Powless, 21, and his brother, Harley James, 19, have been charged in connection with the beating last Thursday of two teen-age Waterford, Ont. brothers, police said Monday.

Provincial police at Brantford said James Douglas Myers, 16, and his brother, Paul Henry, 15, were attacked by five persons who gave them a ride while they were hitchhiking.

Sturgeon Falls Group Asks for French School

NORTH BAY (CP) — Premier William Davis said Monday night he will discuss the question of a French-language high school for Sturgeon Falls, about 22 miles west of here, with Education Minister Robert Welch.

The premier, in North Bay on one of his "meet-the-people" trips, had a closed meeting with a delegation representing about 350 students, teachers and parents from Sturgeon Falls.

Later, he told reporters the delegation wanted the Nipissing board of education to consider two schools for the community —one teaching in the French language, and the other in English—and sharing commercial and technical facilities.

Mr. Davis said the department of education would contact the Nipissing board in an attempt to resolve the problem.

Jean St. Louis, 17, a Grade 13 student and president of the student council of Sturgeon Falls high school, said after the meeting that the French-language school supporters will wait until September "and if nothing is done, we will go out and we will not return until we have our school."

There were several organized walkouts at the school last term. Students said they were not setting a September deadline for a new school, b for two administrative years in it within the existing school, including a French-language system.

Students said there are between 1,700 and 1,800 pupils at the school, of which between 1,200 and 1,300 are French-speaking.

The school is recognized by the department of edcation as an English-language institution, administered by a 17-member board of education, of whom three are French-speaking.

South Africa Trying Anti-apartheid Dean

PRETORIA (Reuter) — The trial of the Anglican dean of Johannesburg opened Monday with the dean pleading not guilty to charges of plotting the violent overthrow of the South African government, followed by testimony from a member of his congregation who was also working for the security police.

The prosecutor read out the 10 main charges brought under the Terrorism Act, including plotting to overthrow the white-minority government and handling funds for organizations and people outlawed or under restrictions by the government.

Under the provisions of the act, the 59-year-old dean, is guilty until he proves himself innocent. He faces a minimum of five years in prison if convicted.

The state's first witness was Lesli Henry Jordaan who said he had known the dean since 1698 and had become friendly with him and earned his confidence. But he said he had begun reporting on his activities to the security police in 1969 because he was alarmed by the dean's anti-government views.

Jordaan, a member of the congregation of St. Mary's Cathedral where the dean officiated, read the court copies of the reports he made regularly to police.

In the reports he alleged that the dean had told him he wanted Jordaan to infiltrate the security police so he could become a source of information for the dean's organization—but he did not specify what that organization was.

Jordaan also gave detailed accounts of conversations with the dean in which he said the dean advocated violence as the only means of overthrowing the government and revealed that he received and distributed money for the African National Congress, a black organization banned by the government.

Pact Ratified

MONTREAL (CP) — The International Association of Machinists and Aerospace Workers has ratified contract agreement worked out July 22 between the union and Air Canada, a union spokesman said Monday.

Legislature Attendance Good

TORONTO (CP) — A Mc-Master University professor who gave poor marks for attendance to members of Parliament, says he is "quite impressed" by the results of his study of attendance in the Ontario legislature.

Dr. Roman March, a professor of political science, drew fire from Prime Minister Trudeau and other MPs after he released the results of a study showing an average attendance record of 62 per cent in the Commons.

Prof. March released Saturday the results of a similar study of attendance in the Ontario legislature, showing an attendance rate of an average 79 per cent.

The provincial study was done of the basis of 55 recorded votes up to July 24, the record of the last two days before the house recessed will not be available until later this week, but Prof. March says they should not significantly alter the over-all results.

Jules Morin, Progressive Conservative member of the legislature for Ottawa East, had the worst attendance record, having been in the house for only 31 per cent of the recorded votes, Prof. March said.

Former transport minister Irwin Haskett, the Tory member for Ottawa South, had the best attendance record with 96 per cent.

Of the three party leaders, Premier William Davis had the lowest record at 68 per cent, New Democratic Party Leader Stephen Lewis was in the hose for 79 per cent of the recorded votes and Liberal Leader Robert Nixon for 90 per cent.

Squirts Boil Series Down

The Belleville SACO squirts entire OASA playdown future has boiled down to just one game as they meet Cobourg in the third and deciding game Thursday night of first-round Zone 4 action.

Belleville and Cobourg split the first two games of the series, each winning at home. The locals took the opening game Saturday 5-3 on a sixth inning two run homer by Tim Soule, to break a 3-3 tie.

Soule also fired seven-hit ball for Belleville, blazing third strikes past 13 Cobourg batters while walking only one. Bob Hodge and Doug Campbell each had a double for the winners.

Brian Dolly hurled in defeat for Cobourg giving up five hits and fanning 11. He had tied the game in the top of the fifth with a two run shot.

Cobourg's home field advantage proved to be too much for SACO in Sunday's second game as they dropped a 10-3 decision.

Danny Vance started on the Belleville mound before Tim Soule was again called on to relieve. The duo gave up 11 hits while Soule picked up eight strikeouts. Andy Rossit and Darrel Coltman had a home run each for Belleville.

Deciding game of the series will be played in Cobourg Thursday evening at 6.30 p.m. The winner will meet either Lindsay or Campbellford in the next playoff round.

Peewees Swamp Peterborough For Further Playoff Ticket

The Belleville Conductors and Brakemen peewees were on the right track in their Eastern Ontario Baseball Association playoff series with Peterborough Saturday.

The Belleville representatives swamped Peterborough 12-3 in the opening match and then came back with an 11-1 victory in the second bout. The wins meant that they have earned the right to meet Kingston to decide which team will enter the OBA playdowns and also that they can compete against Oshawa, Whitby and Cobourg for the EOBA championship trophy.

Billy Whelan spun a four-hitter in the opening game win, getting down 13 batters on strikes. Simon Bennett and Howie Coons, a .375 hitter during the regular season, each had three hits for Belleville. In the second game Peter Hall mastered Peterborough with a two-hit pitching performance. Paul Weeks and Clyde Rostley had three hits apiece while Hall, who led the team with a .409 average in regular - season play, added a double and single.

The Lion's midgets weren't able to master the same degree of successin their weekend encounters as they dropped a 10-0 decision to Welland at the Leaside Midget Tournament.

Belleville starter Dale Bamber had to be relieved in the fourth inning despite allowing only two hits, when he came up with a sore arm. Danny Lupentelle and Ron McTaggart were the top batsmen for the Lions collecting two singles each.

In a Bay of Quinte doubleheader Monday, the Belleville midgets gained a split with Deseronto bouncing back with a 5-4 win in the second game after dropping a 4-2 opening decision.

Bamber hurled a four-hitter in the second contest to give his team the win. Lupentelle belted a homer and single for the Lions with John Masterson adding a second circuit clout.

Stanfield Says Chinese People Well Disposed Toward Canada

OTTAWA (CP) — Conservative Leader Robert Stanfield, back from a trip to the People's Republic of China that nearly didn't take place, said Sunday China and its people are well disposed to Canada.

Mr. Stanfield, who visited the Chinese cities of Canton, Shanghai and Peking following a trip to Japan and Hong Kong, washed almost seven weeks prior to his departure for the Far East for a response to his application for a Visa to enter China.

On his return to Vancouver and later in Ottawa Sunday, Mr. Stanfield said he had gained valuable impressions of China's economy and the life of the people.

The highlight of his tour, he said, was the insight obtained into the Chinese government's attitude towards relations with the United States, Japan and matters affecting Canada.

He did not go into detail during brief talks with reporters at airports in Vancouver and Ottawa but is planning to hold a comprehensive news conference later this week.

He said, however, that it is "very clear in the view of the government of China that it has no political dispute with Canada."

He reiterated statements he made after leaving China that the U.S. would have to make important concessions if relations between those two countries are to improve.

"It is not my position to interpret what position the U.S. has to adopt in order o make progress with China. I simply say the Chinese leaders that spoke with me indicated that the U.S. would have to change its position very substantially if progress is to be made."

Mr. Stanfield said he did not know why Chinese leaders went to such great length" to make their position towards the U.S. known to him.

"But they probably had some purpose in mind." He spoke with Kuo Mo-jo, vice-chairman of the National People's Congress, and Chi Peng-fei, acting foreign minister.

"They stated their position in very firm and very categorical terms."

STOP KILLING YOURSELF

By Peter J. Steincrohn, M.D., F.A.C.P.
Author of "The Doctor Looks At Life"

Angina Patient's Cardiogram Clear

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: How is it possible that my electrocardiograms are negative and yet I still experience attacks of angina? These attacks usually occur during extreme heat or cold, when I overexert, or when I am tense.

Four years ago I had an attack of coronary thrombosis. More recently, electrocardiograms were perfect. I have a high cholesterol reading. How shall I protect myself from further problems? I am 51 and feel better when I rest, but one of the consultants advises that I exercise more. The other says take it easy if it makes you more comfortable. As you can see I'm in a dilemma. — Miss C.

* * *

COMMENT: Patients with angina pectoris, following a history of a heart attack, usually have electrocardiograms which indicate some trouble in the coronary circulation. Especially, in borderline cases, when the doctor has to take a special EKG after the patient has been put through the Master's "two-step" test.

Nevertheless, I have seen many angina patients who had normal heart tracings. Diagnosis was made, and later confirmed, on symptoms alone (similar to yours, Miss C.): chest pains brought on by exertion and under tension. You didn't mention it, but chances are you also complained more if you had to exert right after eating.

I can't give you any specific instructions, but I incline to side with the consultant who does not insist that you take exercise. I know that many believe exercise increases the collateral circulation (blood vessel supply area) in the heart, but I'd be afraid of forcing you to exercise when it seems to disagree with you.

No doubt your doctors have put you on a low saturated fat diet to help control your blood cholesterol. Cutting down on saturated fats not only accomplishes this, but decreases unnecessary extra poundage which is a strain on the heart.

No cigarettes, of course, Liquor? I'm in favor of one or two ounces daily in divided doses for angina patients who want it. Often it cuts down on the need for many nitroglycerine tablets. I hope what I have said helps lead you out of your dilemma. Miss C.

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: For the past two weeks my left knee has been sore. It swells, is red and I feel feverish. I am 29 and have a 7 - month old baby. I haven't been able to go to our doctor because he's sick. Shall I see another doctor? Or do you think I sprained my knee picking up the baby who is quite heavy. Mrs. T.

COMMENT: Your doctor would want you to get the opinion of another doctor — and not wait indefinitely. Of course, injury is possible, but my guess is that it is not the likely cause.

It may be due to a localized form of arthritis or to something else. Gout? Your sex and age are against it, but it is possible. Is it rheumatoid arthritis, bursitis, a knee sprain, etc.? You see, there are questions that need answering.

* * *

The following note indicates it is quite clear there are some people who are willing to smoke themselves to death:

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: Perhaps many people don't realize that when the emphysema patient suffers another episode in his mouth just after coughing, it is not because he is stubborn or stupid. He just can't stop.

There are many patients like that. Take me. Even if I had an operation to remove cancer of the throat, I would continue to smoke through the hole in my throat.

Quitting, for some of us, is like trying to scale a 50-foot wall. It's impossible, not just a matter of will power. - Mr. C.

New Law Relaxes Rules Of Domicile in Divorce

Last week's column discussed the many additional grounds for divorce that have been available in Canada since 1968.

The Divorce Act of 1968, however, not only broadened the grounds for divorce, but also the jurisdiction of the courts in a number of respects.

Before the new act, divorce proceedings could only be taken in the province where the parties were domiciled. "Domicile" is too complex a concept to be fully explained here beyond saying that a person is domiciled in the province or country in which he has his permanent home.

The problem before 1968 was that a woman was deemed to be domiciled in the province in which her husband permanently lived. This meant that a woman petitioning for divorce had to do so in the province of her husband's domicile regardless of the fact that she might never even have lived there and regardless of where she lived at the time of presenting the petition.

Under the new divorce act, a person can petition for divorce in the province in which he or she has lived for 12 months previous, regardless of where the other party is living.

For instance, a woman living in Ontario leaves her husband because of his persistent cruelty and goes back to her parents in Alberta. She can petition for a divorce in Ontario immediately if she wishes to or else she can wait a year and then petition in either Ontario or Alberta.

Divorce petitions may also request corollary relief such as alimony, maintenance, custody etc. The court has a wide discretion in deciding on such matters and must look at each case individually rather than relying on any hard and fixed rules.

In the case of alimony or maintenance, the conduct and financial position of both parties must be looked at. In the case of custody of the children, the welfare of the offspring is the paramount consideration.

That's the law!

Sydney J. Harris Says

Agent Provocateur Deplored

The agent provocateur does not merely become a member of some dissident organization and pass back information to his employers; he becomes the most violent, extreme and revolutionary member of the organization, and tries to involve it in incendiary plots which will enable the officials to crack down on the group.

This has long been a favorite trick of Hitler, Stalin, and other such despots — using their own man as a Judas-goat to lead opponents to slaughter. The famous Reichstag Fire, which gave Hitler his rationale for seizing power, was set by a Nazi agent purporting to be working for "the Communists."

There should be no place in the U.S. for such nefarious activity. Surveillance of extremist groups is one thing — and even here, we need the most scrupulous definition of such groups — and incited groups to criminal action is another. Such incitement should itself be liable to criminal prosecution.

Most dissident groups are by their very nature unstable, ill-organized, susceptible to emotional appeals, because their members feel so deeply on the political and moral issues involved. One firebrand can steer the organization into a violent action it might not take if calmer heads prevailed. When officials provide such a firebrand, are they not engaging in a conspiracy to break the law themselves?

One obvious reason they do this is to persuade the citizenry that security forces are truly dangerous, to point up the "need" for increased appropriations, and more authority to obtain more funds and support from a frightened public and a concerned legislature. It is like putting aquanture in an automobile tire to convince the mindless he needs to buy a better set of tires.

The agent provocateur runs against the grain of the whole American tradition; it is an importation of the worst of European totalitarianism. To use it to "combat" extremist groups is to fall victim to their own repulsive practices and to become the mirror-image of our enemies.

Jeane Dixon's Horoscope

For August 4

Your birthday today: Success comes with imaginative foresight, economy of time and energy as well as material resources. Your search for more effective work methods brings excellent results, increased earning capacity. Today's natives are generally lucky in partnership, often stimulate mates to high achievements.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Seeing loved ones and good friends thru rose-colored glasses may be euphoric for the moment but does not work well at long range. Find a middle ground.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Easy does it: there is time and space ahead for your hopes.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): The pressure and nature of your work forces your life into a relatively narrow channel this week. You have little scope for choice as to what to do.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Take long range action now. The short term situation is indefinite while you recover resources devoted to future strength.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Delay is the normal order of the day, but most of it serves to pull you out of the line of fire, so to speak, and is helpful.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 - Oct. 22): You don't really have to do anything yet to bring equilibrium in your environment. Stay out of it.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Get thru a slow morning with as much patience as you can muster. Take a break in the afternoon and evening gain momentum quite well.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Where you have an original answer, fine, but let's not try battling needlessly today.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 - Jan. 19): Much of what you now undertake is in the nature of another version of your own earlier views. Find a middle course.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Now everybody says he has to make up his own mind. You're lucky to get your information heard to begin with.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): The one temptation today is to squabble with partner, close associates, mainly because you provide an emotional subject for their contradictory feelings.

Astronauts Prepare To Start for Home

Cao Ky Lacks Votes

SAIGON (CP) — Vice President Nguyen Cao Ky petitioned the Supreme Court today for a place on the Oct. 3 presidential ballot, but his petition lacked 38 of the 100 necessary certified endorsements by provincial councilmen.

"I have not given up," Ky told a news conference. "I am still fighting."

If the court rejects his petitions, Ky said, "then we will see what happens."

Ky accused President Nguyen Van Thieu of trying to block his candidacy and called this "an obvious and undeniable travesty of the democratic process."

He conceded that his petition was partly an appeal to public opinion, and his aides acknowledged that they do not expect the court to accept his candidacy. His application was temporarily accepted by the court pending a final decision.

Ky circulated a list of 102 councilmen he said had signed for him, but he said 40 of them had been forced to endorse Thieu earlier. He asked the court to award these to him. He charges that Thieu used pressure to collect signatures which he did not need and at the same time prevent province chiefs and mayors from certifying endorsements given to Ky.

Satellite to Remain To Report on Moon

HOUSTON (AP) — The Apollo 15 astronauts wind up six days of moon exploration today, firing out of lunar orbit for the trip home and man's farthest out space walk.

Before they leave, they'll add another dimension to one of history's greatest scientific expeditions. They'll eject into orbit a small satellite to seek additional moon secrets.

David R. Scott, James B. Irwin and Alfred M. Worden will complete the experiments in their flying science laboratory when they kick the satellite loose at 4:10 p.m. EDT.

At 5:20 p.m. they plan to start the engine of their spaceship Endeavour to break away from the grasp of lunar gravity and start the three-day trip back to earth.

Worden will take the space walk Thursday—about 196,000 miles from earth and more than 40,000 miles from the moon—to retrieve film canisters from an equipment bay at the rear of the Endeavour.

Because the hatch will be opened, all three men will be exposed to the vacuum of space and will wear pressurized suits.

Mission Control, aware that the astronauts could be tired Thursday after 10 days in space, advised them to "continue eating and drinking well because of the EVA (extra-vehicular activity) yet to come."

"I think we've consumed every meal as planned and we've made a pretty good cut into the pantry," Scott reported. "We've been eating and drinking a lot up here."

Astronauts traditionally have been reluctant to take medicine on space flights and Scott replied a bit testily: "No, there's been no medication taken by anybody on the flight."

Parker: "OK. However, we down here would like to recommend for all three of you to take one tonight just to make sure we get another good night's sleep."

Scott: "I think that's unnecessary."

Parker: "Well, that's our recommendation anyway."

Since Scott and Irwin completed man's most productive exploration on the surface of the moon Monday, the three astronauts have been in moon orbit operating a $17-million array of cameras and scientific instruments, chemically and photographically charting nearly 20 per cent of the lunar surface.

The satellite is in the same equipment bay with the experiments. Rolled out on rails, it will be released by spring ejection into an orbit about 70 miles above the moon. It is 21 inches long and weighs 78.5 pounds.

Ground trackers hope to receive data from the payload for a year or more on the precise shape of the moon and on gravity, magnetic and electric fields.

Already relaying data is a 125-million nuclear-powered science station which Scott and Irwin deployed at Hadley Base near the moon's Apennine Mountains. Scientists reported they are receiving excellent signals on such phenomena as the lunar atmosphere, subsurface disturbances, radiation and the solar wind.

Heart-lung Graft Repaired

CAPE TOWN (Reuter) — The world's longest survivor of a heart-lung transplant, Adrian Kantaert, has undergone a three-hour operation to repair a graft of one of the transplanted organs, said reports from South Africa's Groote Schuur Hospital today.

Hospital sources said today doctors discovered Tuesday that a rupture in the joint of the 49 year-old dental mechanic's windpipe was allowing air into the chest cavity, which could be fatal.

An operation was decided on later to repair the rupture and was carried out by one of the hospital's senior surgeons in the absence of Dr. Christiaan Barnard and surgeons of the heart team which performed the transplant.

Herbert was reported to be weak but in a satisfactory condition after the operation.

One Way Road

This quiet country lane will be put to the test this weekend as thousands of cars and dusty feet move up it to the Quinlin farm (10 miles north of Madoc) to witness the Rock Acres Peace Festival. The single-lane route became impassable twice while The Intelligencer made the one-mile trip up the road. The Quinlins assure patrons of the festival that there is another route for emergencies.

Racing with the Wind

For a boy fishing alone off the end of the government dock in the city yesterday, the demonstration of a catamaran speedster for junior sailors of the Bay of Quinte Yacht Club was an unexpected thrill. Young Cameron Orr, 13, dropped his pole to watch the special waterfront show. Named "Tornado Cat", the twin-hulled boat is a new class sailing hot-rod developed for thrills. It retails in the $2,000 range.

Premiers of Provinces To Confer on Economy

VICTORIA (CP) — In honor of British Columbia's centennial year of entry into Confederation, Canada's first provincial first ministers will meet here Thursday and Friday to discuss, among other things, the state of the Canadian economy.

Ruled out as a possible topic by Premier W. A. C. Bennett, host and conference chairman, is the Victoria charter on the constitution.

The conference, the 12th annual meeting of the premiers, will deal with problems common to provincial governments across Canada, such as fiscal matters and environmental control, he said.

Premier Robert Bourassa of Quebec agreed that discussion of economic matters would be uppermost on the conference agenda but he indicated he may take the opportunity to have private talks with some premiers on the constitution.

Of the 10 Canadian premiers, the only one not putting in an appearance will be Joseph Smallwood of Newfoundland who hasn't attended a premiers' conference for the past 10 years.

One of the new faces will be Premier Allan Blakeney, who recently led his New Democratic Party to victory in Saskatchewan. An adjournment tonight of a special session of the provincial legislature will allow him to attend.

Mr. Blakeney, who will be accompanied by Attorney-General Roy Romanow, said he hopes the conference agenda will include discussion of the problems of controlling health costs and increased provincial co-operation on agricultural matters.

One of the major issues to be pursued by Premier Ed Schreyer of Manitoba will be the implications of the proposed federal withdrawal from the estate tax field.

Unless there is some uniformity in the provinces' reaction to such federal measures, Ottawa's decision on estate taxes "will compound the tax jungle," he said.

The Manitoba premier, who will be accompanied by Finance Minister Saul Cherniack and Mines Minister Sidney Green, agreed with Mr. Blakeney that rising costs of medical care as well as hospital insurance programs should be discussed.

Further objections to the federal tax structure are also expected to be raised by Ontario Premier William Davis. Ontario estimates, for example, that Ottawa's abandonment of death duties will cost the province $28 to $30 million a year and that it will be several years before a capital gains tax compensates for the loss.

Premier Harry Strom will attend the conference despite the pressures of his election campaign. The Alberta general election is Aug. 30.

No special points for discussion have been raised by the Maritime premiers—Richard Hatfield of New Brunswick, Gerald Regan of Nova Scotia and Alex Campbell of Prince Edward Island.

Trudeau Will Confer With Joey Smallwood

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld. (CP) — High winds today spoiled Prime Minister Trudeau's chance to see the St. John's regatta, believed to be the oldest organized sporting event in North America.

The regatta committee announced postponement of the event after a morning conference with the weather office, which forecast winds with gusts to 35 would continue all day.

Mr. Trudeau was to arrive here around 12:30 p.m. NDT and had been scheduled to spend a couple of hours at the regatta on Quidi Vidi Lake in the city's east end after a news conference and a private luncheon with Premier Joseph Smallwood.

The prime minister and his wife Margaret spent the night in a log cabin on Transport Minister Don Jamieson's summer estate at Swift Current, 100 miles west of here, after a day of touring Newfoundland's Burin Peninsula and the French-owned island of St. Pierre.

Rock Festival Fans Start Arriving

By COLIN BRUCE
Staff Reporter

Still two days in advance of the official opening of the Rock Acres Peace Festival, to be held at the Quinlin farm this coming weekend, already youths from across the country and the United States have made the trek to the farm, north of Madoc, to partake in the festivities of the music - filled weekend.

Madoc Township made a last futile bid to ban the festival in the past week on the grounds that irreparable damage would result from the "happening".

With a County Court dismissal of the case, youths were given the assurance to make the trip.

Already approximately 100 such people have converged on the farm and have set up tents in prime locations, to sit in anticipation of the experience.

Vehicles of all descriptions are parked throughout the grounds sporting licence plates from as far off points as British Columbia and California.

As well as the handful of tents brought by the youthful adventurers, are the tents placed by the Ontario Department of Health Services and the Children of God.

These two organizations are hopeful that they will be able to handle problems that might arise during the festival.

As one spokesman put it, we'll put a bandage on a cut or on a mind," referring to the likelihood of bad "trips" through the use of drugs.

Bancroft Rockhound's Gemboree Is Growing

The eighth annual Bancroft Rockhound Gemboree got off to an encouraging start Tuesday with the largest opening day attendance ever recorded for the event.

Mineral Society president Carl Boslak said the opening day gemboree attendance was 50 per cent higher than last year.

The Gemboree continues today, which has been designated as Family Day, and continues through until Saturday evening. Thursday is Children's Day, while Friday and Saturday are dubbed Funarama Days featuring the Cross Country Jamboree in the evening.

Rock hunting field trips leave the grounds each morning at nine, while rock swapping tables are in action from 10 a.m. until dark. The midway moves into the grounds Thursday for the last three days of the Gemboree.

Gemboree Secretary Harold E. Petch reports that the exhibitors' tents are full, with a number of the exhibitors from the United States. Arts and crafts and other booths boost the number of exhibitors to nearly 50.

Rock swapping tables were completely filled all day Tuesday and dealers were happy with sales.

Tonight the Madoc Merry Mixers will give a square dance demonstration and later spectators will be invited to join in the fun.

Fox Casualties Said Normal

AMELIASBURG (Staff) — The killing of two young red foxes on different days on the Redneersville Road last week is not considered an unusual occurrence by wildlife officers with Lands and Forests. "It's a sign the new crop of pups is leaving dens to roam the countryside for food and become traffic casualties in the process," explained a spokesman for the government agency.

The appearance of red foxes so close to the populated area in the township does not mean that numbers of the elusive little animals are sick and wandering about in a rabid condition, the official pointed out. Nor does it imply the fox population in the municipality is on the increase.

Crash Kills Picton Man

PICTON (Staff) — A Picton motorist died early Sunday morning when his car struck a tree near Talbot Street on county road four.

Dead is 25-year-old Eugene Arnold Deline, Lake Street, Picton. His companion, 21-year-old Elizabeth Katherine Fraser, Erinsville, remains in serious condition in Kingston General Hospital with a fractured skull, a fractured pelvis and a broken arm and leg.

A spokesman for the Picton detachment of the Ontario provincial police said Belleville coroner Dr. W. Bates pronounced Eugene Deline dead at the accident scene.

Elizabeth Fraser was taken to Prince Edward County Memorial Hospital and later transferred to Kingston General Hospital.

The Deline vehicle was bound toward Picton when the accident occurred at approximately 1 a.m. Sunday.

Privy and Sound Stage Stand in Readiness

The privy (foreground marked ladies) and the sound stage (top of hill) and a handful of youths are waiting on the Quinlin farm for the opening of the Rock Acres Peace Festival. Scheduled to begin this Friday, already 100 or so people have made the trek and are camped in prime locations throughout the farm pastures. It is expected that there will be in excess of 20,000 people visiting the festival.

Already Quinlin's Have Guests

cilities to be provided, the Children of God (American religious sect) will be providing food for the needy. "Food for eating and food for the mind," said Elam, a member of the group.

At the present time, these are the only two groups to be handle problem situations but other groups are expected within the next day involving a Kingston - based organization called Odyssey.

Also expected at the festival is a contingent of doctors and medical teams from the Addiction Research Foundation from Toronto.

"If any of those intending to go to the festival intend on having any privacy while performing human duties once or twice a day, they had better take their own "john", said one amused southern visitor after visiting he privy.

Somewhat resembling kleenex tissue boxes turned on their sides, the privies are about 30 feet long and eight feet wide. This box affair is divided down the middle by a wall and again divided into two sections. Within each compartment four holes are cut in a rough hewn, wooden bench affair.

"It might get kind of uncomfortable, but at least you'll get to talk to somebody while you're there," said the same young lady.

These plywood facsimiles of portable johns are situated throughout the farm and are capable of housing about 40 people at a time.

The Quinlins had previously stated that an Ottawa firm had been contracted to supply 400 "johns".

Although the water trucks have not yet appeared on the site, it is felt by many of the people already at the farm, that the trucks will not be able to handle the need.

Many are building reservoirs of water in the event that both the well on the farm and the tankers go dry.

Security has been a well-talked - over issue as many of the people staying off the farm feel that it will be a relatively simple matter to scale the wire fence surrounding the property.

There have been rumors of dogs being used to police the frontier of the festival site as well as area youths and security guards.

If you are planning to make the journey to the rock festival, another thing to be taken into consideration is the access route.

While much of the road leading to the festival site is a well-paved, double lane highway, the last mile of road is a single lane bordered by trees.

Twice, while making the trip to the Quinlin property, the car used by The Intelligencer was forced to stop and wait for service trucks to back up and allow passage.

Two cars were involved on a normal Tuesday. No one can predict what the situation will be like as the traffic flow increases to steady lines of cars coming in opposite directions.

Reportedly, an emergency road was built into the property to relieve the problem but after two futile attempts made by the press vehicle to find such a route, the vehicle was forced to retreat to the normal road.

The people still wait, the tents keep going up and the stage stands in readiness.

Shutdown Averted

Announcement has been made that Bethlehem Steel and a group of nine other major U.S. steel firms will not be walking off their jobs.

The point was of key interest to the residents of the Marmora area. Marmora houses Eastern Ontario's only iron ore open pit mine. This mine, employing many in the town, is a supplier to Bethlehem Steel and in the event of a strike would have to have closed down.

Ore is taken from Marmora by rail to docks in Picton where it is transported across the lake to be refined.

This would have been the first strike in a dozen years for the company. With the settlement comes a hefty pay increase for members of the U.S. union which will be spread over a three-year period.

Wild Boar Hunts Near Here Soon

If everything goes as expected, Quinte district sportsmen will be able to go wild boar hunting in the fall of 1972 — right in their own area.

The hunting locale will be on Canada's first wild boar hunting preserve to be opened in Seymour township about eight miles north of Campbellford.

Paul Rapai of Rapai Game Farms, Delhi, Ont., has set up a game farm of 400 acres and about 35 of the animals are now roaming the area which is protected by a high chain-link fence extending two feet underground.

The fence is to assure the wild boars do not root their way to freedom.

The wild boars are of two species, the Hungarian grey and the Mexican razorback. Mr. Rapai also plans to introduce roebuck, a small type of European deer, to the game preserve. The roebuck deer and the wild boar are said to get along well together.

The meat is considered a delicacy and can be ordered in some exclusive restaurants. Br. Rapai raises his animals for market at Delhi, but the Campbellford operation will be strictly for hunters.

Sidney Permits Near $2 Million

George Caves, building and plumbing inspector for Sidney Township, Tuesday night reported almost $2 million in building permits had been issued in the month of July.

The $2 million mark would have been topped if Mr. Caves had been able to issue several outstanding permits. However, these will now come under the August listings.

Topping the list was a $1.5 million permit taken out by Leasehold Construction Corporation of Montreal, the firm which will construct the new Wallbridge Plaza at the junction of Wallbridge - Loyalist Road and Highway 2.

Agents for Leasehold expressed amazement that their permit fee was only $20. The fee for a single family dwelling is $10.

A total of $415 in permit fees was raised in the month of July, with an additional revenue of $353 realized for 31 plumbing permits also issued.

It was quite a weekend for the pipe band as they left Friday evening for Maxville, Ont. where the International North American Highland Games Championships were being held on Saturday. There were about 25,000 spectators on hand to watch 40 bands compete. The Duke of Edinburgh Unit Pipe Band competed against 28 bands in their class and came in tenth in the standings, being nudged out of 9th place by their arch rivals, the Rob Roys. They picked up a lot of useful experience and the next day found them in Brockville for another international competition. There were 12,000 watching 30 bands. In this one The Unit Pipe band got a sweet revenge as they conned out the Rob Roys for 7th place. The Pipe Major was fairly well pleased with the band's showing in their first big competitions since reorganization. Except for some nasty weather on Friday it was an enjoyable long weekend and the band is looking forward to bigger and better things in the future and figure the experience and lessons learned will be valuable.

Mary St. School Future Undecided

PICTON (Staff) — The former Mary Street school, proposed by a citizens' committee for renovation as a lockup and town offices, won a temporary reprieve from demolition last night when council agreed to a special meeting August 9 to re-examine a committee report approving plans for a new building.

The decision to withhold a vote on the report of a meeting between the public works committee and William Lane, chairman of the planning and development committee, ordering construction of new town offices, police offices and a lockup at an estimated cost of $68,680, followed ratepayer Colin Carter's assurance cells at the former Camp Picton can be rented by the town.

Chairman of the citizens' committee, Mr. Carter told council he has a written statement lockup facilities reported by owned by Loch Sloy Holdings could become available for use. He said he had spoken with George Pitt, Picton's chief of police and was informed prisoners could be taken to these cells with no difficulty.

Council opened five tenders for the demolition of Mary Street school but deferred any decision until further details concerning rental of cells at the former army base have been established.

Mayor Margaret Ackerman observed long-term availability of cells would make plans for renovation or new construction unnecessary. She was surprised to learn lockup facilities at Loch Sloy Holdings have become available and said she has information that although sale of the property is in progress, it remains zoned by survey completions.

Councillors William Lane favored an agreement with Loch Sloy Holdings for cell rental and said it would mean council could forget renovation of construction plans if the facilities were available for some time to come.

He declared renovation of Mary Street school would be "false economy" to be regretted by council in ten years time. He said the building could never look "right" and needed facilities would eventually be lacking.

Colin Carter again addressed council urging it to reconsider placing Mary Street school "under the sledge hammer". He reported he has collected $3,000 in pledges toward construction of a new front for the building. It would be dedicated to veterans of World War II and the Korean War.

Mr. Carter informed council he requested an independent engineer to have the school surveyed recently and to suggest its potential.

He was told the building would readily lend itself to renovation since a main corridor makes expansion possible on all sides. An approximate saving of $35,000 was suggested should the building be renovated to avoid new construction.

Council agreed to contact the Ontario Police Commission to learn if it considers lockup facilities at the former Camp Picton adequate for town use.

If the cells meet with the commission's specifications, Mr. Carter will obtain cost figures for rental of the lockup facilities and establish how long they will remain available.

The discussion concerning renovation of Mary Street school was reopened last night when Picton reeve Albert Pirath demanded to know council's plans for financing the proposed $68,680 new building. He asked if the money could be obtained in this year's budget or in the 1972 budget and questioned demolition costs for Mary Street school.

He suggested the approval of the Ontario Municipal Board might be needed before council could authorize demolition of a building when no funds have been allocated in the budget.

Reeve Pirath said he had been advised "on very good legal authority" council would be remiss in demolishing one building without funds to erect another.

Bessie Ward, chairman of the finance committee, noted the new building would be paid for over a ten-year debenture period.

Town solicitor Jack Ward added he had no comprehensive opinion on the spur of the moment" in the matter of OMB approval. He did note the parking metre reserve fund, according to one section of the Municipal Act, allows improvement of parking lots. Demolition of Mary Street school would improve the parking lot behind it.

Councillor Lane said there was no question that the Ontario Municipal Board would censure council for demolition of the old school. He remarked the town faced the necessity of providing certain facilities and added it has been "foisted on us" by the provincial government. "It's not our decision and if I had my way we wouldn't build a thing. It's beyond us now," he claimed.

His opinion was echoed by councillor Harold McLoughlin who said, "A lockup is the whole deal as far as I'm concerned. This has been foisted on us. If adequate accommodations can be obtained at Lock Sloy Holdings, we may be ahead of the game."

Picton deputy-reeve Bird commented, "Council has been pushed to build or renovate since there is no longer a jail. Now certain things are established and we have a new factor. We must discover if the cells are available for the former Camp Picton and if they can be rented for five or ten years."

Councillor Lane emphasized a need for prompt action and suggested a time limit of one week should be placed on the investigation of lockup facilities. He said he doubted the wooden building once used at Camp Picton could meet the requirements set by the Ontario Police Commission.

McFarland Road Claim Is Rejected by Council

PICTON (Staff) — Town council has rejected a compensation claim for an unspecified amount from McFarland Construction Company, Picton for construction of a roadway leading to the Proctor-Lewyt plant.

A decision was carried last night in a motion supported by all but two councillors. Only Picton Reeve Albert Pirath and councillor Harry Braraham refused to vote to reject the claim made to council this spring.

Councillor William Lane stressed the issue "has been kicking around since the first of April" and added the town is under no legal liability to buy the road. He reminded fellow councillors a legal opinion was obtained earlier from town solicitor Jack Ward.

Picton Reeve Albert Pirath who opposed council's stand, remarked that the town's solicitor has said no legal liability exists but suggested assumption of responsibility for the road would be in the best interests of all concerned.

"How many councillors are aware of the taxes received from Proctor-Lewyt?" demanded Reeve Pirath. He said figures in the town clerk's office show taxes from the assessment year 1962 to the tax year of 1970, are recorded in the sum of $73,358 realty tax and business tax in the amount of $43,000.

The total taxable assessment for 1971 was $1,091,300 and the total taxes levied in 1971 were $35,794.

Reeve Pirath said there was a possibility 50 per cent of the claim could be recovered from the government in Toronto.

The reeve said today minutes of earlier council meetings show the exact sum of the claim is $20,750.

"Why rush in to reject something that has been so good to the town financially?" the reeve asked councillors, last night.

He observed this morning that council agenda included a request by McFarland Construction Company for a building permit for a $50,000 addition to the Proctor - Lewyt Company.

Bogus Bills In Quinte

Ontario Provincial Police have issued a warning that counterfeit U.S. currency is being distributed throughout Ontario in four different denominations.

Counterfeit $10, $20, $50 and $100 greenbacks have been discovered, the most frequent of these being the $10 Alexander Hamilton note.

These $10 notes have been described as "poor facsimiles" and are easy to detect because of the poor printing on the face of the note, police say.

The five most common serial numbers that have appeared in the $10 denomination are:

The sentence for passing a counterfeit bill is up to 14 years in prison.

Smithy Carries His Own Forge

By MARGARET HAYLOCK
Staff Reporter

PICTON — Casey Jones, colorful hero of the iron horse, has swapped his caboose for a truck to travel the Quinte area.

Belleville blacksmith Case Ubbenstein, familiar to district horsemen as "Casey Jones" is an itinerant farrier who finds a specialized nurse is almost every town and village in the surrounding area.

The blacksmith shops nostalgically recalled by poets have disappeared today and horse owners now rely on travelling farriers whose trucks contain the tools of a dying trade.

A stable - to - stable blacksmith, Casey's work day begind at 7 a.m. and usually does not end until 9 p.m.

Frequently he shoes ten or more horses and ponies a day as he drives from one equine customer to the next. He personally pedicures a great many of the show and pleasure horses in the Quinte area and shoes hackney ponies on occasion.

A graduate of a two - week farrier course at Penn State College, Pennsylvania, the 30 - year - old blacksmith keeps a list of regular customers whom he visits every six weeks.

A second advocate of proper hoof care, Casey has specialized in corrective shoeing and can capably advise horse owners of necessary foot care.

As horsemen make preparations for this season's summer and fall fairs, Casey is launched in his busiest season. Requests for new shoe patterns and resets will continue from July through November when the pace slackens somewhat with cooler weather.

The farrier's truck is equipped with a mini-forge, an anvil, a cutting torch and hoses and pony shoes of every size and description. Since the hooves of all horses vary in size and shape and each animal travels differently, Casey must offer individual attention to each animal he shoes. He explains, "A bit of corrective shoeing is done, since perfect hooves are very very hard to find."

The blacksmith notes this is primarily due to neglect of the horse's feet and to environmental changes including gravel and paved roads. He feels constant trimming is essential and observes many foot problems originate in the winter months when horse owners sometimes fail to clean each animal's hooves regularly or to keep them properly trimmed.

When spring weather turns the horsemen's fancy to riding, he is likely to discover his horses' hooves are two to three inches too long unless he has cared for them regularly in the winter season.

While yesterday's smithy forged his shoes from bars of metal, today's farrier buys ready - made plates. These shoes are sized by number and can be heated and hammered to the required length and width if the fit is incorrect.

The farrier's forge remains a basic tool although it has been modified to size to fit readily in the rear of a small truck. A cutting torch, described by Casey as an important time saver is a new twist unknown to the blacksmith fifty years ago.

New materials such as aluminum are used today for shoes and special types of equine footgear have been introduced. The western games horse can be advantageously shod with a plate designed for the swift motion and surefootedness his job demands.

A keen horseman, he is an expert western games competitor and enjoys chariot racing as well. Both in the show ring and on the job, Case Ubbenyere is recognized as Casey Jones, a new farrier with a portable chestnut-tree.

It's On!

So the big blast up in Madoc township will go ahead as arranged. The courts have spoken and permission for the rock festival has been given.

Democracy and the rights of the individual have been served. So too has the concept of private enterprise. That the festival will not be everyone's cup of tea (or should we say joint of grass?) is beside the point. Rather, it is a question of principle.

The outcome of the festival nevertheless will be watched closely. If it proves to be an outlet for degeneracy among youthful fans, as well as an excessive burden on public services and, in general, an event of dubious value to the community in which it is being held, then there may have to be still further thinking on this type of entertainment.

The organizers have had sufficient time and warning however that they are doubtless taking every step to ensure that the event itself is properly conducted and that the necessary facilities are available.

Our idea of a well-run event was the recent Antique Air Show at Mountain View. So too was the 1000 Islands International Highland gathering at the Speedway site north of Brockville Sunday. Facilities at the latter however were somewhat lacking — it should not be necessary at such an event to have people queuing up — and litter receptacles appeared to be nonexistent with the result that field and track represented an untidy spectacle at the end of the day.

We need not be surprised if there is drug abuse up in Madoc township this coming weekend. After all there were "highs" of varying intensity in and out of the beer tent at Brockville Sunday.

Down Colombia Way

Is it our North American affluence or what, but we did find it incredible to read that some of our athletes at the Pan-American Games in Colombia were bored while waiting for things to get under way. Admittedly their quarters do not sound any great shakes, with 14 Canadian girl athletes having to share a cramped room in one of the Games' village's eight dormitories. A few got with it and took afternoon bus trips into downtown Cali, about 20 minutes away. Some were bothered by their lack of Spanish but one young woman, a psychology student at the University of Alberta, said she was having a delightful time and her knowledge of French was serving her in good stead. It is not every one who gets a free trip to South America and our Pan-American Games team should make the most of whatever free time they have while there.

Moon Talk

That was a marvellous three days the Apollo 15 crew spent on the moon. The pictures this time were superb, the astronauts cheerful and communicative, and there was that bonus picture of them lifting off the lunar surface. They are not home yet, but it is inconceivable that such a venture — from all appearances thus far the best yet — should not be brought to a successful conclusion. That is what we anticipate Friday — splashdown north of Hawaii and a fascinating period in the offing for the geologists who will study the more than 200 pounds of rock being brought back from this flight. From this may emerge further clues to the origin of the solar system.

Bikes Useful

Eight American teenagers, five boys and three girls, passed through Brockville recently en route from Syracuse to Montreal and Man and His World, then on to Ottawa. They came to Canada by way of Cape Vincent and the Wolfe Island ferry. It was a nice change, as one onlooker put it, to see kids making an effort to get some place on their own rather than hitchhiking. The hitchhikers who earn least respect, incidentally, are those who stand on the verge of town, waiting to get a ride over a distance they could easily manage themselves on their own two feet.

Sudan Purge of Reds Is Setback for Soviets

By PETER BUCKLEY

WASHINGTON (CP) — The United States Government has been maintaining a scrupulous silence about the simmering dispute between the Sudan and the Soviet Union, whatever private satisfaction the quarrel may give officials in Washington.

There have been none of the calculated "leaks" of U.S. government opinion about the dispute, none of the background briefings by high-level administration experts, nor even any of the "shirt-sleeve" statements which so often accompany dramatic events in other corners of the globe.

Silence has been the rule and the silence is revealing in itself.

However confidential American officials may be to see the Soviet Union getting some knocks, there is little obvious profit for the U.S. in publicly gloating at a time when general relations with the Soviets — not to mention specific negotiations on disarmament and Berlin — are in delicate transition.

The silence bespeaks a determined unwillingness on the administration's part to aggravate relations with the Soviet Union so soon after those relations were jostled by the announced visit of President Nixon's proposed trip to China.

And not least, the silence reflects the uncertain state of the United States' own relations with the Sudan and, in fact, with most of the Sudan's Middle Eastern neighbors.

Even with the announced expulsion of the Soviet ambassador from Khartoum, the U.S.S.R. is superficially in no worse straits there than the U.S. American relations with the Sudan and most Arab nations have been officially severed since the 1967 Israeli invasion of Egypt although substantial American staffs remain in many Arab capitals, working under the diplomatic fiction of "U.S. interest sections" of other nations' embassies.

From Washington, the Soviet troubles in the Sudan are seen as part of a recurring problem vexing the Communist bloc's Soviet policy in the Middle East.

On the one hand, the U.S.S.R. provides vast aid and almost unqualified backing to the Arab governments. It also lauds faithful Arab Communist parties and leaders as the "vanguard of the Arab masses and working people."

But those same Arab Communists are officially under the ban in virtually every Middle Eastern country. Some have been jailed, others are forced into political inactivity or exile, and a few are incorporated into the ruling Socialist nationalist and Socialist cubers.

The execution of two leading Communist party figures in the Sudan and the government-inspired manhunt for other members of the party there are not novel for the Middle East. Gamal Abdel Nasser, the late Egyptian president, was described as a "black Fascist dictator" by Lebanese Communists after a purge of Egyptian Communists in the early 1960s.

Syria, too, has gone on anti-Communist crusades and its Communist party leader, Khalid Bakdash, has floated into and out of favor many times in his 40-year career.

One of the most thorough purges of Communists came in Iraq when the ultra-nationalist Baathists overthrew the Communist-influenced government of Gen. Abdul Kassem in 1963.

The Sudanese, backed notably by Libya, Egypt and Syria, are again reminding the United Union that its influence on Middle Eastern affairs is by no means to be sharply limited despite Arab dependence on Soviet arms and technicians.

The reminder is one the U.S. seldom needs any more. Washington has had enough similar lessons.

TODAY IN HISTORY

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Aug. 4, 1971 . . .

Peter Zenger, the New York printer, was tried for libel 236 years ago today—in 1735—after publishing scathing attacks on the colony governor in his weekly paper. Following the law of the period, the judge ordered the jury merely to establish whether Zenger printed the statements. But Andrew Hamilton, defence counsel, urged the jury to take on as well the task of deciding whether the statements were libellous or not. Zenger was acquitted. Though the legal point was not accepted as a precedent for some years, it was an important blow for the freedom of the press.

1930—The Commons unanimously passed the Bill of Rights.

1932 — Fire swept the old Parliamentary at Ottawa.

1953—A uranium rush began in Saskatchewan when Uranium City was opened to prospectors.

1916—The United States purchased the Danish West Indies.

1914—Britain declared war on Germany.

1853—Britain withdrew the newspaper advertisement tax.

1578—Sebastian of Portugal was killed in battle.

Air Fare Anomalies

Ottawa Journal

Another example of the chaotic state of trans - Atlantic airfares is provided by a Winnipeg father who had to pay adult fare to send his 12-year-old daughter to England.

If she had been a year younger she would have qualified for half-fare as a child. If she had been three years older she'd have got it half fare as a student

He says he discovered too late that she could have gone from Winnipeg to Paris and then back to London, changing planes a couple of times en route, for $120 less than the direct Winnipeg - London fare.

Speculators Force Housing Costs Upward

Kingston Whig - Standard

Housing problems in Canada have not recently been receiving quite the amount of publicity that was common during the past winter. But, although building rates have been brisk all across the country, the basic problem — that of creating living space at prices people can afford — is still very much with us.

It was announced recently by the office of the Minister of Urban Affairs in Ottawa, through Dr. Harvey Lithwick, an adviser to the Minister, Robert Andras, that Canada has no real housing problem.

Dr. Lithwick suggested that the real trouble is that middle - class house - buyers, or prospective house - buyers, expect to get their homes at unrealistic prices. But this seems a roundabout and not very realistic way of saying that housing has become so expensive that it has priced itself out of the medium - cost market.

The fact is that house prices have gone up by 60 per cent, buying a new home. Even people with above - average incomes are finding it very difficult to buy houses because of the high prices and the expense of borrowing mortgage money.

One of the main factors in driving the price of new housing so high is the exploitation which is being indulged in by land speculators. The Ontario Government has candidly admitted this fact more than once during the past few years and has done something to bring this situation under control. Adding to the difficulties are obsolete building codes which will not permit certain economies of size and material to be taken advantage of.

There is a very long way to go in the supplying of reasonable housing to Canadians and there is no room for complacency.

Cities' Taxation Burden

Calgary Herald

Urban government today has taken on immense responsibilities in fields of taxation and spending for local services. The chief taxing powers and tax sources still lie within federal and provincial jurisdiction, and the cities tend to find themselves increasingly strapped for funds to meet the direct needs of the large populations they serve. Capital investment in new schools, streets, water and sewer services, and other amenities involves disbursements of enormous amounts of money. Yet the cities remain low man on the totem pole as far as finance is concerned. The fact that they lack even a voice in the top councils of government, only adds to the difficulty,

Children of God Group Separates Families Say Parents of Girl

Editor,
The Intelligencer.

After reading the letter by Mrs. Nadine Wilson, published in The Intelligencer on July 29th, 1971, I feel that I must also write, I do not agree with her by any means. The Children of God Group came to Belleville, one of them entering Canada illegally and with a false birth certificate. One could never get a straight answer out of any of them as to what they believed. Everything they did was correct by "their" standards. They do not believe in working. Each person going away with them has to put all their money, etc. into the "Pot". The Bible says if we do not work, we should not eat. Jesus worked as a carpenter and I am sure His disciples did. Our daughter went with them and drew out her savings from the bank for them.

In order that we as parents, along with other parents, could talk to our children, we had to have the police stop them at Madoc as the group would not let the parents talk to their children alone. There was always one of the group there to hear the conversation. They must have been afraid we would take our children home, away from the group.

It is true the Bible says we are to forsake all and follow Him; but it also says to honor thy father and mother. This we are sure they are not doing. If we were not born again Christians before we met them, we are sure by their actions we would not want anything to do with Christianity.

Our daughter came home for about a week. One day while I was kept busy working in our store, one of the group came to the side door of the house and gave a note to our daughter, stating I was time to go. One of our neighbors came and told me they saw her getting into a car with her suitcase.

There is one true God and we are sure He is not pleased with the actions of these so called "Children of God". Personally, we would not have any one of them in our home. Jesus did not come to this Earth to bring chaos and break families like this group has done. He came that we might have life and have it more abundantly and in its fullness. This group has given parents nothing but heartache.

There is nothing would please us more than to see our daughter out witnessing for Christ anywhere in this world with a church organization at the Bible says Christ went into the synagogue which was His custom.

When a group of people tell their children to leave their parents and the church, it is high time something was done. I believe God will do something to bring our children back to us. The Bible says that in the last days, even the Elect will be deceived.

Quebec's Inland Waterways Plagued by Hotrodders

Montreal Gazette

Courtesy afloat, sailors have learned over the centuries, is synonymous with safety. The obligation not only to respect the rules of the sea, but to behave at all times with the fullest consideration for others, weighs equally on the captain of the ocean giant and the skipper of the tiny pleasure craft.

For the weekend mariner who sets sail with this precept in mind, navigation on Quebec's inland waterways can prove a shattering experience. Far too many of those at the wheel of small power boats seem smitten with the same plague which has the drivers of motorised sleds roaring across our winter countryside endangering property and person with raucous indifference to the rights of others.

In built-up, confined and consequently potentially hazardous areas such as harbor approaches, the object of the exercise often appears to be to impress the spectator on shore. This is a question that all must try to see clearly. For, as President Nixon rightly said, the danger is the danger of a super-power clash is real. Until about three years ago the odds favored Israel's side. If Russia and Egypt insisted on an arms race, Israel could be relied upon to keep the modest deliveries from the United States and by her own technological and martial superiority. Eventually the notorious "A" divisiveness, together with economic and social problems, would break the encirclement. This trend has been halted and reversed. It would be in the process of being reversed, by a Russian strategic and political investment in Egypt on a scale and of a boldness that had not been foreseen. . . Mrs. Meir is saying that the stronger and bolder the Russians and Egyptians are allowed to become, the less is she prepared to have her arm twisted to make risky concessions. . . Elsewhere, the greater the imbalance the greater the danger.

A Tense Situation

The Daily Telegraph

On whose side is time now in the Middle East? As the hiatus continues, as the end of June approaches its anniversary, but as hopes of an interim Suez Canal settlement dwindle, this is the question that all must try to see clearly. For, as President Nixon rightly said, the danger is the danger of a super-power clash is real. Until about three years ago the odds favored Israel's side. If Russia and Egypt insisted on an arms race, Israel could be relied upon to keep the modest deliveries from the United States and by her own technological and martial superiority. Don't Forget Japan Says Stanfield

OTTAWA (CP) — Conservative Leader Robert Stanfield held a news conference Tuesday to talk about Japan, but spent an hour answering questions about China and explaining how he frowns the entry of the Peking regime into the United Nations.

He also said he would support the maintenance of Chinese Nationalist membership—as the government of Taiwan.

Mr. Stanfield, who returned Sunday from an Asian tour—including six days in China, said Communist leaders were emphatic in saying they regard Taiwan as a province of China.

Stanfield to See Kissinger

OTTAWA (CP) — Conservative Leader Robert Stanfield will have talks in Washington Wednesday with Henry Kissinger, special advisor to President Nixon, just three days after returning from a visit to China.

Mr. Stanfield is going to Washington to address an evening meeting of the National Press Club. His office announced Tuesday that he has accepted an invitation to have talks with Mr. Kissinger, presumably about his trip to China and his talks with Communist leaders there.

This was clearly the most important question to be faced by U.S. President Nixon when he visits that country.

Mr. Stanfield opened his conference with a statement about the importance of "paying adequate attention to Japan." With all the current emphasis on China, he said, it is important that Japan not get the impression it is wilfilst friends.

He didn't foresee any sensational breakthrough in Canadian exports to China. But there was room for Canadian industrial and business consultation in helping to modernize China's technology.

The people and government of China seem to trust Canada, he said.

LA JOLLA, Calif., (AP) — Just around the corner now looms a fabulous new once-a-month birth control pill.

It would act upon the pituitary gland in the brain, preventing it from releasing hormones necessary for conception to occur, and for pregnancy to be maintained.

It would thus act like a rifle bullet, preventing conception without producing any other effects on the body.

The current pill is more like a shotgun. While it prevents conception, the female hormone-type chemicals in the pill affect other cells and systems of the body as well.

The new pill now promised involves a fantastic chemical, called Gonadotropin Releasing Factor—produced in the hypothalamus area of the brain. The GRF tells the nearby pituitary gland when to release the hormones responsible for a woman's releasing an egg, and for pregnancy to continue.

Now, two teams of scientists have synthesized this releasing factor, a chemical so powerful that a few thousandths of one millionth of a gram—one gram is 1-28th of an ounce—is enough to start the chain of hormone release.

This feat has just been achieved by Dr. Andrew V. Schalley and associates of the Veterans Administration Hospital and Tulane University Medical Center, New Orleans, and by Dr. Roger Guillemin and his collaborators at the Salk Institute here.

A next step is to make a phone-GRF, one that would be fooled by the pituitary gland, but which would block that gland from releasing its hormones.

Such analogous, as they are called, have already been prepared by the scientific teams, and they might be fully tested for safety and effectiveness within two or three years. The day of the rifle-bullet contraceptive would be here.

The GRF is only one prospect in intensified research to find new contraceptives beyond the present pill, which came under a cloud of public worry during congressional hearings early last year. Pill use was associated with some increased risk of blood clots and other harmful effects.

Those alarums—unjustified, in the opinion of some leading experts—prompted hundreds of thousands of women to turn from the pill, but a majority may have resumed its use.

Pill sales went down initially, but recovered as women resumed its use, or other women took it up. Statistics in some major American cities showed a slight increase in birth rate a year after the hearings, but officials are loathe to attribute this simply to abandonment of the pill.

The majority of physicians and experts on birth control consider the pill as remarkably safer—other than childbirth for example—and totally effective if taken regularly.

But the pill is not perfection, not the ultimate, hence the quest for even better methods, including a variety of methods that could suit everyone desirous of limiting family size.

Researchers are working upon implants of hormone injections or implants that might be good for a year, pills that would induce abortion if a woman had conceived but didn't yet realize it, and pills for men.

Animal experiments have turned up at least three chemicals that can suppress sperm production, but they may be too toxic for human use.

Low doses of progesterone, one of the female hormones, can interfere with sperm maturation and mobility, but again there are questions of safety and practical application.

Some research is concerned with the capacilation factor—a chemical agent in the female reproductive tract that somehow alters sperm so they become able to penetrate the egg. A chemical that neutralized the capacilation factor might be an effective and simple contraceptive.

The president pill prevents ovulation by blocking the releasing factors in the hypothalamus. But the hormones in the pill affect other systems, too, and have been compared to "killing a mosquito with a sledgehammer."

British Fishermen Afraid of Invasion

LONDON (CP) — Around Britain's ragged coast, the fishermen are up in arms over fears that they are going to get a poor deal in the final settlement for British entry into the European Common Market.

The inshore commercial fishermen, who scratch a living in small boats close to the shoreline, are afraid that their livelihood will be threatened by an invasion from the continent.

It's all right for the government to think big about expanding markets for industrial products and jacking up the standard of living here, they say, but what about the little fellow who might have an armada of foreign boats scooping up shellfish and groundfish right up to high water mark on our shores.

The so called inshore fishermen affected are those who use vessels of 80 foot length or less. There are about 5,200 of these boats and 20,000 crew members manning them.

What the inshore fishers gripe about is the way — they think — that the British government has not been firm enough in resisting the continental idea that all Common Market countries should have common access to the fishing grounds of every other country.

The British boatmen say such a policy would leave them holding the bag, with nothing to gain and everything to lose.

Chief British negotiator Geoffrey Rippon told the Commons recently he is hopeful of getting a six mile limit. Many figure this is not feasible, especially as continental countries would like to get free access to British waters.

In return for this, the British would have the same access to continental waters, which interests no one in the commercial fishery here.

British coastal waters are rich in fish compared with those across the Channel and North Sea.

Deterrent Fees End

REGINA (CP) — The Saskatchewan legislature Tuesday gave approval in principle to a bill which will remove medical care deterrent fees.

The bill also will eliminate medical care premiums for persons 65 years of age and over. The premiums are $36 a year for a single person and $72 a year for families.

The deterrent fees were introduced by the former Liberal government in 1968. A person in hospital must pay a utilization fee of $2.50 a day for the first 30 days and $1.50 a day for each day after that to a total of 90 days.

Removal of the fees was an election promise of the New Democratic Party and the special session of the legislature was called to fulfill that and other promises.

New Morality Is Not Same as Promiscuity

By DORIS CLAF

Recently I sat in on a discussion which turned to the new morality. One youth present explained that with this brand of morality, each person makes the decision which is right for him, having in mind the responsibility he then undertakes.

It is not promiscuity. But it is a serious, caring relationship. Most of the teens, we were told, would be ashamed to admit virginity, but on the other hand they are turned off by the idea of "sex for sex' sake".

And one of them added that physical expression is "better than climbing the walls".

What does this say to parents? Doesn't it say that if parents want to be in on the discussion at all they cannot turn thumbs down on the whole idea? At least they must listen and recognize that their own young people have an element of choice.

Then our youth need to be helped to a new kind of integrity; an integrity in which they retain self - respect and match their present behavior with what they plan to make of their lives.

Dear Doris: At a party my husband ducked out with one girl whose husband was not with her. They were gone for two hours. What's more, he said that if he had the chance he would do it again. I told him if he ever had a thing to do with her again I'd leave. I faced him with it and he finally admitted it.

Really, Doris, I don't know what I'll do. I can't trust him ever again. Every time he goes to the store I wonder if that's really the place he is going. I am on the edge of a nervous breakdown.

Dear Suspicious: I gather you were married quite young - to a man who is now showing just how immature he is.

There are times when it takes more than being married to a man to possess his whole devotion. Your husband does not have the discipline to control that wandering eye. Yet if you were to suggest that your marriage was over, he would be the first to protest.

Don't just wait for that nervous breakdown to happen. Yours is the kind of marriage which may well be held together with some sound professional help. Seek it at your Family and Children's Services of Hastings County, 311 Front Street, Belleville.

Dear Doris: What time should I go to bed? I'm 13. How many hours' sleep do I need?

Am I too young to wear heels about one inch to two inches? — Growing Up.

Dear Growing Up: Some people get along on very little sleep, but most people of 13 need eight or nine hours. I'd suggest you do a little research on yourself.

For a week, go to bed early enough that you can get the full nine hours. The next week make sure of eight hours of sleep. Notice how you feel the next day, in each schedule and keep track. If you get up and drag around all day feeling tired, then you are definitely going to bed too late at night.

Heels of one inch or very slightly higher are all right when you are dressed up. But it isn't good sense for a girl of 13 to wear two - inch heels. And low heels are "in", aren't they?

Has Doris helped you with a problem? Write and tell her so!

A Classic Favorite

In blueberry country natives are picking them in the blazing sun for you and me. Canadian firms are canning and freezing them for us come winter. Mary Moore gives you a wonderful new blueberry pie recipe with a melt-in-your-mouth crust.

Follow Rules for Baby's Safety

The Council on Family Health in Canada warns mothers never to leave a newborn infant alone in the house or out of sight outdoors.

He should be checked occasionally to be sure nothing is covering his face to interfere with his breathing. He does not need a pillow, which could smother him. He should have a firm mattress, a strong crib with bars he cannot get his head through.

Keep cribs and carriages free of potentially dangerous things such as filmy plastics, coins, pins, plastic bags.

Hold a baby in your arms to feed him. He could choke trying to use a propped bottle.

Be sure bath water is the right temperature and never leave a baby alone in the bath for any reason. The council says about 25 infants drown in baths in Canada every year.

If you have a mobile for your baby, be sure it is firmly attached. His other toys should be sturdy, non-inflammable, too big to swallow, too tough to break and have no sharp edges or points.

At whatever age, when you are busy, put your child in a safe place where you can see him. A playpen with slats or mesh he cannot get caught in can be moved around with you.

Crust Is Highlight of This Pie

By MARY MOORE

This column's purpose is gentle (and delicious) persuasion.

Blueberries are high in minerals, especially iron, and also in Vitamin A. This luscious fruit is being frozen and packaged by Canadian firms and is available throughout the land. But use fresh blueberries where they are available, also. To make a super crust use oil in your pastry. Borrowing from the French the baked crust is spread with a white cheese and pineapple mixture.

BLUEBERRY PLUS PIE (one 9")

PASTRY:
1 ½ cups sifted all-purpose flour
½ tsp. salt
⅓ cup corn oil OR safflower OR other oil
2 tbsps. cold water

FILLING:
1 8-oz. package white cream cheese (room temperature)
2 tbsps. sugar
½ tsp. vanilla
1 8¾ oz. can crushed pineapple drained — reserve syrup
2 tsps. gelatine
¼ cup sugar (second amount)
3 tbsps. corn starch
¼ tsp. salt water (see below)
2 cups fresh blueberries (OR 1 11-oz. package frozen Canadian blueberries)

To make Pastry mix flour and salt. Blend in oil with a fork. (Do not worry — it turns out fine.) Sprinkle water over top and mix in well. This step firms up the dough. Place sheet of wax paper on polished counter. Put ball of pastry in centre. Flatten with palms. Cover with second sheet of wax paper and roll into circle between wax paper sheets. Peel off top paper; lift pastry over pie plate, paper side up, and peel off paper. Fit pastry loosely in pie plate and flute high like edges. Prick pastry with fork. Chill. Bake at 450 deg. Fahr. right in 10 minutes or until tinged with gold. Watch it!

Next step is Cheese Layer: In beater bowl put cheese, 2 tbsps. sugar, vanilla and 2 tbsps. pineapple syrup and beat until smooth. Stir in drained crushed pineapple. Scrape down bowl and CHILL.

To make Blueberry Filling in medium pot, combine well the gelatine, sugar (second amount), corn starch. To any remaining pineapple syrup add water to measure 1¼ cups and add. Cook stirring until thick. Stir in blueberries over low heat two minutes. Cool. Spread chilled cheese mixture over entire surface of cooled pastry shell, bringing it up high fluted edge so it will show a white inner border. Fill centre with cooled blueberry filling. Chill.

This pie should be made at least four hours before you plan to serve it to be sure filling is set.

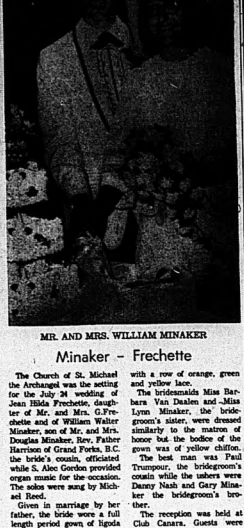
MR. AND MRS. BERNARD ROBAR

Robar – Woodcox

A ceremony held in St. Paul's United Church, Stirling on July 24 united in marriage Doris Diane Woodcox, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. L. Woodcox and Bernard Francis Robar, son of Mrs. M. Robar and the late Mr. Robar. Rev. A. Pooker officiated while Kathy Woodcox the bride's cousin played organ music.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a floor-length gown of embroidered sheer over peau-de-soie featuring long full sleeves and a chapel train. A three tiered veil was caught up by satin petals accented with pearls and lily of the valley. She carried pink roses arranged in the shape of a cross.



The matron of honor Mrs. Gary Woodcox (Cathy) the bride's sister-in-law wore a full-length princess style dress of pink lace over taffeta with short puffed sleeves. She carried a nosegay of daisy mums centred with pink roses.

The best man was David Ruston while the ushers were Lawrence Woodcox the bride's brother and Eddie Barnett.

The reception was held at the OOF Temple, Stirling. The bride's mother wore a deep orchid crimplene dress with daisy trim and white accessories. The master of ceremonies was Gary Woodcox of Toronto.

Chef in Canada Looking for Ideas

LONDON (CP) — Silvino Trompetto, master of the Savoy Hotel kitchens, is off to Canada in August hoping he can bring back a typical Canadian dish for the gourmets of London's top-ranking hotel.

"Maybe it will have something to do with maple syrup," said the starched-white maitre chef des cuisiers in all innocence as he swirled over his first venture into Canadian gastronomy.

The London - born Trompetto, whose ancestors dominated the kitchens of Italy, hopes to do a little lecturing and broadcasting in Montreal, Ottawa and Toronto, disclosing some of his own magic while picking up Canadian secrets.

Trompetto is not too sure what he will find. He figures that because of Quebec and the French influence, the standards of Canadian dining halls must have a strong Norman influence.

"Perhaps dishes will have garnishes of apple and cream and the food may be on the heavy side," he offered, none too sure of his ground.

His own leanings are towards the classics, the traditional recipes of Europe which have spread mainly from France which Trompetto, married to a Frenchwoman, maintains is still the true seat of food culture.

And then when he gets through a long day, he may slip off home to prepare a meal for his wife and 26-year-old son.

"I enjoy cooking," said the well-built chef with a characteristic face made more individualistic by a slightly misshapen nose.

As a child on London streets, he bashed his nose. But the skill of a surgeon restored the contours with almost the same mastery as Trompetto's own ability in the kitchen.

All the Savoy chefs are men. "Women," said Trompetto, "are good cooks but men are better in organization and stamina."

Every year hundreds of youngsters besiege him for a chance to learn in the Savoy kitchens. He picks those he considers the best, teaching and supervises.

"Here at the Savoy we do not bother with pastes and mixes," he said. "We bring in our meat from Aberdeen and our vegetables from France. I do not believe iii frozen food."

His own preference is for caviar and fish but he tries to design his dishes to fit the personalities of the guests. He tastes everything that is served in the kitchens and eats one complete meal a day, in a little office off the main restaurant kitchen.

There a table may be set with linen and crystal, a waiter in full morning coat and white tie standing by. Salmon trout with a delicious sauce may be washed down with a good French white wine. Champagne may accompany chicken with a slice of artichoke and asparagus tips and a little concoction of berries may follow to satisfy the sensitive taste buds.

Reunion

SOMARIE — Mr. and Mrs. Burton Norton's daughters were host and hostess on Sunday, July 25 to as many of the descendants of the late O. W. Foster and his his wife Sarah Elizabeth (Sills) Foster as could be present.

Being a beautiful day many tables were set under the trees on the spacious lawn where 31 enjoyed a bountiful picnic dinner. Due to illness a number could not be present.

Because it was Burton Norton's birthday and Ross Foster's the following day, Mrs. Burton Norton provided a beautifully decorated cake and everyone sang the birthday song. It was also Mr. and Mrs. Hupert Doherty's first wedding anniversary so an identical cake made and decorated by Mrs. Blaine Foster was served and everyone sang happy anniversary to Duke and Darlene.

Mrs. Burton Norton (nee Norma Foster) brought the O. W. Foster family history up to date and had copies for everyone. A roast was planned on Norma and everyone sang "For She's a Jolly Good Fellow".

Mrs. Norman Kerr brought prizes which were awarded to the winners of various contests.

The afternoon was spent catching up on family relations and it was to be hoped more could be present if the reunion is held earlier next year.

A barbecued supper was held for all who could stay and all thanked Mr. and Mrs. Burton Norton for all their work and hospitality for the first Foster family picnic.

Engagement Notice

Mr. and Mrs. Basil H. St. Pierre announce the engagement of their eldest daughter, Brenda Lee, to Thomas William, son of Mr. and Mrs. Gerald C. Smith of RR 5 Belleville. The wedding will take place on August 28 at 7:30 p.m. at St. Paul's United Church, Stirling.

Many Communities Have Special Services for Senior Citizens

TORONTO (CP) — Across Canada, there are a great many services, large and small, available for people beyond the age of 65. They range from reduced theatre prices to social clubs to foster home care and pension supplements.

People don't always know the services exist, or if they do know, don't know where to find them. They may be offered by the federal, provincial or municipal government or by a volunteer group, a local business or a professional organization.

And they don't all exist everywhere. Some areas are served better than others.

Locating services can be a matter of perseverance and of luck even for someone who knows a good deal about community agencies.

One place to start is with your community information centre, if your town has one. They are not all called Information centres, so you may have to ask telephone information, the municipal office, social planning council or your newspaper if there is an information centre and how to reach it.

If there is not, any of those sources should be able to help you find services in your community.

Mary Dominico of the Toronto centre says they list small services as well as large because people ask about them.

For instance, most movie chains offer special rates to people 65 and over. Write or call your nearest theatre, and be prepared to offer proof of age.

She notes that every community has events to which admission is free, no matter what your age is.

Most public transportation systems have special fares or no fares for older people, at least during part of the day. Their offices can tell you how to apply.

Air Canada and CP Air have cut rate fares on a stand-by basis for destinations within Canada. You pay three dollars for an identification card. Some airlines now have special international fares.

An information centre can probably tell you about social clubs and centres, meals-on-wheels, whether there is a telephone chain or a friendly visiting service, as well as about government services.

The public health nurses can steer you to health services.

The public library should know if there is a mobile library service.

Professional associations may be able to tell you if special help is available for people who need things like foot care, dentures, eye glasses or hearing aids.

Recreation centres may be located through the municipality, the provincial recreation office, a home for the aged.

Churches, the Red Cross, the Ys, service clubs usually know where services are, often run some of them.

Government departments may have literature providing background information that sometimes tells people they are entitled to benefits they didn't know about.

The department of national health and welfare has booklets on the Canada Pension Plan, disability benefits, survivors' benefits, the guaranteed income supplement, registered pensions and health and welfare services in Canada.

Provincial welfare departments often have pamphlets describing services plus some of advice and information such as Ontario's consumer guide for senior citizens.

Department names change from province to province, such as are social and family services, social development, health and welfare. The provincial information number can start you on your search.

The Ontario Welfare Council section on aging has a guide to services for older people. It also recommends that information and services be offered through multi-purpose senior citizens centres.

Most provinces have additional financial help available on a needs-test basis.

A War Veterans Allowance district authority can tell you if you are eligible under a means test to their allowance.

For emergency help, apply to your local welfare office or regional office of the provincial welfare department.

Many communities have low-rent housing projects for older people. They can be found through the local council, housing authority or provincial housing authority.

In some cases, elderly people whose incomes are low can have all or part of their health insurance paid for. Check with your provincial health insurance office to be sure you have both health and hospital coverage that is most suitable for you.

A local board of health can tell you if an organized home care program is available in your community. It provides services to allow patients to leave a hospital early or to avoid entering it.

Mental health services can be located through the provincial department of health.

There are a number of voluntary organizations that can help with special problems, such as: Canadian Mental Health, Canadian Arthritis and Rheumatism Society, Canadian Hearing Society, Canadian National Institute for the Blind, Canadian Cancer Society.

If you want to volunteer your help in the community many of these sources can put you to work.

Man's Bad Grammar Worries His Girlfriend

ANN LANDERS

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I have been dating a young man for several years. Dan is everything a girl could want. Well, almost. He is kind, nice looking, considerate, fun to be with, and he makes good money. The only drawback is Dan's grammar. For example, he says, "I seen", "youse" and "have went."

I bite my tongue when he makes these awful mistakes, especially in the presence of my friends. I don't want to be ashamed of him, Ann, and I don't want to embarrass him either, but I'm afraid one day I might.

Is there a chance that we can have a good marriage in spite of this? I am 26 and a college graduate. Dan is 27 and attended trade school. I do love him, but I fear I'll be a nagging wife — or worse yet, a silent wife who is ashamed of her husband's grammar.

Please hurry your answer. He is waiting for mine — YORK, PENNA.

DEAR YORK: Dan sounds too good to discard. Ask him if he wants to be corrected — when the two of you are alone, of course.

Incidentally, you misspelled the word grammar throughout your letter. It is AR, dear. Perhaps you and Dan are not so far apart as you think.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I've been enjoying the snoring letters immensely because this subject is very close to my heart. I used to snore, but I don't any more. The solution was suggested by my friendly druggist. I'd like to share it with you.

Everyone knows that snoring occurs only when the mouth is open — the trick is to keep it shut. Just take a piece of adhesive tape and place it over the snorer's mouth. Try it, Ann. It really works. — DES MOINES READER .

DEAR D. M.: Thanks but I don't have to try it. I don't snore.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Not long ago you had a letter from a reader who wanted to know if it is possible for a woman to be pregnant for nine months and not know it. The writer told about a lady who had given birth in a parking lot — and until the last minute she denied she was pregnant.

A few days after I read that column the same thing happened in Grand Forks, North Dakota. This young couple (married for five years) had been told that they would never have a child and adoption was recommended. Shortly after, the young wife was stricken with back pains. She called the doctor because she was sure she was having a kidney attack. He rushed her to the hospital and her baby boy was born a few hours later.

The woman had been taking Alka Seltzer and Sal Hepatica for six months to relieve her "indigestion." She had also been dieting to lose weight. Her doctor told her she had a nervous stomach and not to worry. I've heard many people say you make up letters because some of the things that appear in your column are too far out to be true. Here is a good example that truth is stranger than fiction. — N. D. READER.

DEAR READER: Right you are. Truth IS STRANGER —in fact, that's the title of my last book, a collection of the best letters over the past 15 years. Thanks for giving me the opportunity to plug it.

THE PSYCHOLOGY OF SLEEP — David Foulkes

The Psychology of Sleep, written for both the layman and the psychology student, summarizes accurately modern scientific knowledge of the mind's activities during sleep. David Foulkes, a psychologist, describes and interprets the findings of brain-wave and eye-movement studies of mental activity during sleep. This survey also considers such lucid, detailed and cohesive questions as why do we dream, why must, we sleep, how do our personalities affect the frequency and type of dreaming, and what happens when we are prevented from dreaming.

The new State of Israel is always confronted with the challenge of living in a desert environment. In this illustrated book, three of the experimenters describe the challenge of the Negev desert, particularly the low annual rainfall. This is overcome successfully to produce excellent crops. CAMPING IN COMFORT — Norman and Lil Strung

This complete and illustrated guide tells how to go about camping with a minimum of comfort and equipment. Both for beginner and veteran, the authors give tips on eating, drinking, cooking, sleeping, bathing, travelling, motor homes, campsites, planning a trip, choosing and packing gear, buying or renting equipment and handling a trailer. PRISON JOURNALS OF A PRIEST REVOLUTIONARY — Philip Berrigan

Prison Journals of a Priest Revolutionary is a record of this Catholic priest's second imprisonment after he participated in the napalming of draft files in Maryland in May 1968. Given the present climate of America, civil disobedience is for him a Christian duty, and he believes that priests, ministers and rabbis should bear witness to the necessity of non-violent revolution. The book is more than a moral political argument, however, drawing much of its strength from pungent observations of prison life, character sketches of guards and fellow inmates and a shrewd analysis of the prison community.

Questions And Answers

By The Ontario Motor League

QUESTION: Please tell me where I can go to escape the ragweed season in August. I intend to take my holidays and spend them someplace where I can get relief.

ANSWER: Ragweed victims should go north for relief in Ontario. Life gets more bearable from Parry Sound northward. For long - distance travellers, British Columbia is an ideal retreat, as are Banff Jasper and Prince Edward Island. Actually, the Maritimes in general offer a haven to ragweed victims.

You may not know it but you have a clock inside you that runs on a 24 hour cycle and tells you when to eat, rest, play and work. When you take a jet flight to other time zones, your internal clock becomes offset. For instance, many people travelling to London - which is five hours ahead of our time - report feeling great fatigue and a desire to sleep when they arrive. Here are a few suggestions to help alleviate these symptoms. To begin with, avoid any last - minute rush before going on your trip. Make sure you get your regular sleep and eat foods you are used to.

When travelling to England you usually fly at night and arrive around eight in the morning. On the trip get maximum rest and take minimum food and drink - try to match your eating times with your normal meals at home. When you get to your destination, take it easy but don't try to catch up on lost sleep. Relax, eat sensibly and let your internal clock catch up. In other words, if you land at London in the morning, as most people do, don't sleep for several hours or you'll find yourself up all that night and you will never get your life in balance with the British. Instead, have a relaxed day and sleep that night. That way, say the experts, you and your clock soon will be merrily ticking along in time.

QUESTION: We would like to visit Manitoulin Island and would like to know something about the Island and best route from Belleville?

ANSWER: Half the fun of Manitoulin Island is getting there. Sprawled across the northern waters of Lake Huron, Manitoulin Island is 10 miles long and from 3 to 30 miles wide. Linking it to the mainland is a three - hour ocean - like cruise aboard one of two big ferry boats which sail between Tobermory on the Bruce Peninsula and the Island harbor of South Baymouth. The beauty of this unusual vacation treat is that you can bring your car along. The S. S. "Norisle", larger of the two vessels can handle 50 cars. Her sister ship, the M. S. "Norgoma", stows 35 in her hold.

Manitoulin Island has a multitude of bays and about two dozen lakes scattered across it, offering a haven for sportsmen or for people who just want to relax. Its woods abound in deer, and you can catch lake, rainbow trout and black bass in its lakes. It is also very popular for yachting. Many of the island's visitors sail one way and return via the mainland highways through Espanola and Sudbury, then south on highway 69 along the shoreline of Georgian Bay. One - way passenger fares on the ferries are $2.15 for adults and $1.45 for children. The car fee is $6.30.

If you wish to avoid Toronto, you can take No. 401 to Whitby, 12 to Orillia, 11, 26, 21 and 6 to Tobermory, where you get the ferry. The mileage from Belleville is 290 miles. Lodges and motels range in price from $15 double to $37 a night.

Thief Choosey

Although the method of entry into the main building has not been determined, the lower portion of a door leading into the Butterfly Boutique was smashed. However, nothing was taken from the store.

Mrs. Chevrier, who shops for a family of seven, has been shopping Loblaws regularly for the past six months. Says Mrs. Chevrier, "I come here because I find it's cheaper. I'm a comparative food shopper because I have to be—we buy a lot of groceries—so I've tried all the food stores and I find Loblaws are four or five cents lower on some items. Mainly I buy brand names and they're the same quality in any store so if I can get them a few cents cheaper at Loblaws I'll continue coming here. And, we like Loblaws store—it's clean and friendly and pleasant to shop"

MPP Declares System Stinks

TORONTO (CP) — New Democrat John Brown is concise and explicit when describing the system of electoral politics operating in Ontario.

"It stinks."

They are words that reflect four years of disappointment in both the system and the party he has represented in the provincial legislature.

The member for Toronto Beaches Woodbine quit the legislature when it recessed last month to return to working full time with emotionally disturbed children, a field in which he achieved prominence as executive director of the Warrendale treatment centre prior to entering politics.

Party regulars in the riding association "own" their member, he says, and "what they want from the ownership is very meagre."

"And very degrading in a sense.

"They want your attention. They want you to come by. They want to seen saying hello to you."

THE BETTER HALF By Bob Barnes

Davis Picnics With Fighters Of Pollution

TORONTO (CP) — Premier William Davis and a dozen members of Pollution Probe shared a picnic lunch in the shade of an ash tree at Queen's Park Tuesday, and between bites discussed noise, mercury, sulphur dioxide and sludge worms.

Pollution Probe, a group at the University of Toronto concerned about the ecology, wanted to meet him informally to exchange ideas.

Before the picnic, four members met Mr. Davis in his office to discuss some of their concerns, including the new Act to Protect the Natural Environment.

Executive Director Peter Middleton told reporters the act, given royal assent last Wednesday, has great potential, "but it's what's missing that's important."

"The big thing that's missing is recourse for the individual. The law as it's set up now treats a corporation as a person and it's up to the individual to prove the corporation is doing something wrong, whereas we feel the onus should be on the corporation or business to prove they are not polluting and their products are not harmful."

Mr. Davis suggested the group put its views into a brief and present it this month if possible, before the first regulations under the act are made public.

Mr. Davis was asked why the government does not pay companies at Sudbury to make sulphuric acid out of the sulphur dioxide that now goes into the air.

The premier said it probably is not economical but said he would like to hear more about the idea from scientists.

Sydney J. Harris Says

Body Tires Before Mind

When Igor Stravinsky died early this spring, at the age of 88, he was a body worn out before his mind and spirit were ready to leave. Except at his terminal illness, his sense of creativity never left him.

Creative people not only tend to live longer than others, they also produce to a later age. Mozart and Schubert are the exceptions, not the rule; they fell victim to diseases induced by poverty and overwork.

At the age of 74, Kant wrote his "Anthropology," "Metaphysics of Ethics," and "Strife of the Faculties." Tintoretto, at the same age, painted his tremendous "Paradise," a canvas 75 feet by 30.

Verdi, when nearly 75, composed his most profound opera, "Otello" — and 11 years later wrote "Ave Maria." At 78, Lamarck completed his classic work in zoology, "The Natural History of the Invertebrates," and Oliver Wendell Holmes wrote his "Over the Teacups" when he was 79.

Richard Strauss lived, and composed, until 85; Sibelius until 90, while Titian, at a glorious 98, painted his historical "Battle of Lepanto." Goethe completed his monumental "Faust," at 83, and it was not published until after his death.

Yet the great bulk of non-creative men retire at 65, and putter around uselessly from then until death takes them.

My own view is that — constitutional differences apart — the productive faculties of men by no means drop off at 65 or thereabouts; but the difference lies in the area of interest. In the arts, the area of interest is always expanding; in non-creative fields, the area of interest begins to contract at a certain age.

Stravinsky, again offers a remarkable example of this. He was an experimenter in music in 1910, and he remained so in 1970. He was never wedded to one form, one mode of expression, but was constantly inventive, forever pushing against the frontier of his own previous work. There was always more to learn, more to try, more to expand.

Few non - creative men understand the therapeutic and life-giving quality of creative expression. Winston Churchill was one of these; his painting was not a "hobby," but a serious and dedicated avocation, which helped keep him going until 90. He once told an interviewer that painting a thoroughly satisfactory picture is harder than running a country — and, he might have added, more gratifying.

Our population is aging, both absolutely and in percentage. Industry will have little room for older men. Retirement will become increasingly dull and stultifying, unless these men find the creative element (which everyone possesses) and use it to forestall empty death.

More Vacationers on Water Enjoying Trent Canal System

By TROM REYNOLDS
Staff Reporter

"The number of boats has been increasing from year to year," stated S. K. Towes, Lockmaster at lock seven at Glen Ross in the Trent Canal System. Mr. Towes has been with the department of transport, working on the locks since 1949. He is lockmaster at the Glen Ross lock with Gordon Woodcock as canal man. Mr. Woodcock has been with the department since 1967.

The Trent Canal System is made up of approximately 45 locks which run from the Murray Canal lock at Trenton to Georgian Bay. The boating season opens on May 15 and runs until October 15. The trip from lock one to the Georgian Bay locks is about a 240 mile voyage.

Mr. Towes said that traffic on the canal system has been increasing over the years as people have purchased boats and as more people are making a sport out of boating trips. He said that the traffic this year, in comparison to last, is going to wind up about even. He said that over 1,200 boats went through last year and that he thought about the same number would go through this year. Nine-hundred boats had already gone through the locks when Mr. Towes made the comparison.

Mr. Towes also said he had a lot of boats from New York State going through the locks this year and he said he even had a sail boat from England which had made the trip across the Alantic and a boat from the Bahamas.

Mr. Towes and Mr. Woodcock's day begins around 8 a.m. when they place fire extinguishers on each side of the lock and rescue preservers and raise the flag. They open the washrooms which are a special feature added to lock seven as the office was formerly Mr. Towes' home. Lock seven is one of the few locks that have washrooms for the boating visitors. Mr. Towes had the office as a home for quite a few years and lately it was turned into an office and was provided with washrooms.

An average week of boat traffic through lock seven runs around 176 boats with an average of 30 to 35 boats on a single day. This year it reached a high for a day of traffic with 44 boats through lock seven on a Sunday this past month. Mr. Towes said that sail boats and house boats were leading the charts in types of boats passing along the canal system.

He also said that a large number of cottagers were having trouble with the bigger cruisers passing along the river, as they make waves which overturn boats of smaller size on the river or in dock. He said that there was also problems with boats going over the 6 m.p.h. speed limit inside the enclosed waters of the lock area.

The locks are open from 8.30 in the morning until 9.30 in the evening with the last boat going through at 8.10 in the evening. On the past long weekend the first boat through on Sunday was at 8.45 a.m.

Lock one of the Trent Canal system recently reported that 745 boats had gone through that lock. This compared with 810 boats at the same time a year ago. On the weekend of July 24, 25, and 26 there were 27 boats through the lock on Friday, 22 on Saturday, and 33 boats on Sunday. They reported that the number was down but that the pace was quickening in the past weeks as more people are going on their holidays.

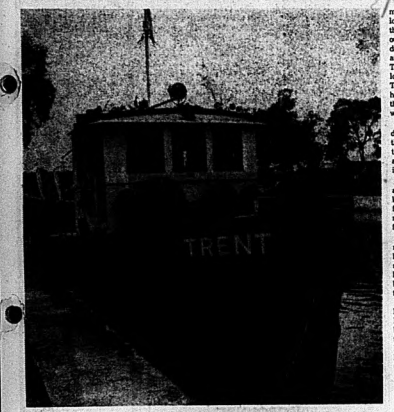
In the summer, the lockmaster and the lock canal man look after operating the locks for the boat traffic and look after water controls. Water control must be watched closely in times of heavy rains as water levels can affect cottagers along the river.

In the winter the department of transport workers look after water current at the system's dams and carry out the dropping of logs in the dams. The dam at lock seven at Glen Ross has 92 logs in it. The logs measure 27 feet long, 12 by 14 inches. Mr. Towes stated that the canals had a lot of chip icing during the winter and that a careful watch had to be maintained.

Mr. Towes noted that if the dams were not maintained, the river would dry up during the summer in many areas allowing people to walk across in places.

Each lock is equipped with an office for the purpose of keeping records and a place for the lockmaster and canal man to stay while waiting for boats to go through.

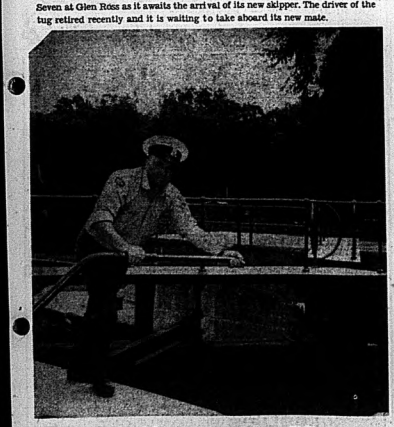
This past weekend the lockmasters and canal men were kept busy with the great volume of traffic from the civic holiday weekend. "They have been going from one end to the other," stated Mr. Towes.



This summer will see the last swings of the Frankford Bridge above lock six. A new bridge will go under construction likely this spring stated Reeve William Rose. Plans have to be drawn up and the Glen Miller span finished before construction begins.

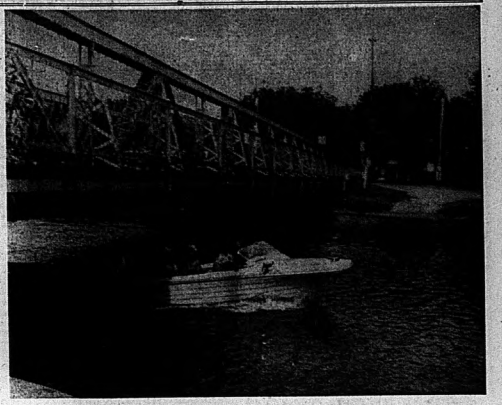
The bridgemaster, Clayton Stapley, has been on the bridge for the past 11 years and has seen many changes in the volume of boats over those years. He said that the volume has increased over the years with people taking a greater interest in the pastime in recent years.

The bridge has a clearance of 44½ ft. A normal weekend, Saturday and Sunday, sees the bridge make 20 to 30 swings and a normal day, it makes 11 to 15 swings. On each of these swings as many as five boats go through the canal at a time. Mr. Stapley said that the bridge completed 192 swings from July 16 to July 31 of this year.



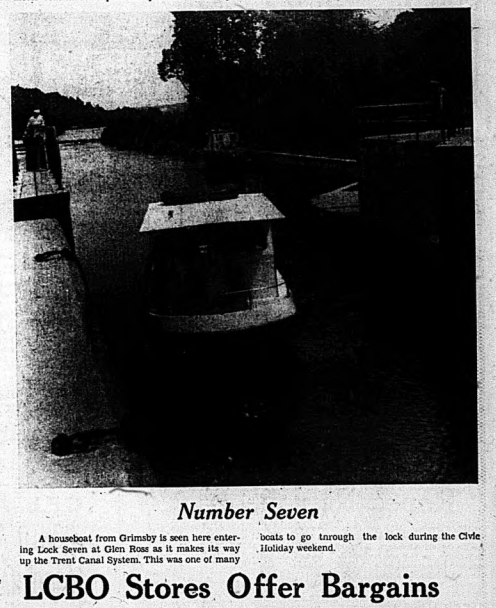
The new bridge will be a high rise eliminating the need for a bridgemaster, and the bridge on the span of the river will be a double lane bridge.

The bridge will save time for the boating enthusiast and will speed up traffic along Highway 33 at Frankford. The Frankford Bridge was one of a few swinging bridges remaining on the Trent System.



The Mighty Trent

Government Tug, Trent, stands idle in the enclosed water area of Lock Seven at Glen Ross as it awaits the arrival of its new skipper. The driver of the tug retired recently and it is waiting to take aboard its new mate.



Lock Master at the Wheel

It's Going to Be This Way

By next summer all boats should be able to go under the bridge at Frankford on their journey through the Trent Canal System. This small motor boat made it quite easily under the swinging bridge on Sunday but after construction of a new overhead bridge is completed, all boats will be able to go through the lock at Frankford with this ease.

Number Seven

Accountants Elect Officers

F. R. (Robbie) Clarke, general accountant and office manager of International Harbourage Company of Canada Limited was elected chairman of the Belleville Kingston Chapter of the Certified General Accountants Association of Ontario at a dinner meeting held recently at the Four Seasons Motel. The other officers and directors from Belleville are: Russ Knapman, secretary; Tom Stephenson, treasurer; Bob Owen, Glen Thomas and Stewart Hoard and from Kingston: Dennis Rayner, past chairman; Charles Jeffs, vice - chairman and Ron Brown.

Scout Help Scout

A two - week holiday almost ended for 21 scouts and leaders from the 8th Fort Erie scout troop yesterday afternoon when they lost use of the transmission in their bus on the outskirts of Belleville.

However, while their bus is being repaired at Elliott Motors, they have the use of a bus while they camp at Camp Sagonaska.

The Belleville District Council of Boy Scouts made their camp facilities available for the Fort Erie troop and the boys and their leaders have been housed in cabins at the site near Tweed.

LCBO Stores Offer Bargains

A mass exodus, to Liquor Control Board of Ontario outlets across the province is expected today following yesterday's announcement of a summer sale in discontinued liquors.

Wines, rums and brandies which will no longer be stocked, are being sold off at bargain prices.

At Belleville's Station Street outlet, Spanish Golden Brown Wine, a 26-ounce bottle previously listing at $2.45, is now on sale at $1.50 per bottle. At the same store, a 25-ounce bottle of Bounty Rum, regular price $5.80, will be sold for $4.35.

However Bellevillans will still have their spirits raised to learn that the Belleville Plaza LCBO outlet has a total of 24 bottles of discounted beverages.

A 25-ounce bottle of Coruba Jamaica Rum, which, until the sale sold at $6.20, can now be purchased for $4.65. Wiser's Vodka-Martini in the 25-ounce bottle, was $5.05 and now sells for $3.80. In larger quantities, Cockburn's imported port, a 26 2-3 ounce bottle, was $4 and is not $2.40.

The Trenton store also reports a small stock of the Spanish wine and a limited quantity of Rumona Rum Liquer, a 25-ounce bottle previously listed at $6.55, being discontinued at $4.90.

A Liquor Control Board spokesman said these brands had been regular items on the shelves but with a decision to discontinue the lines, the few remaining stocks were discounted for quick sale.

The wide range of brands is not carried by all stores.

Lights Requested

Sidney Township Council Tuesday night received an application from Arthur Goodwin for street lighting on an extension of Dorothy Drive, east of the Ghent subdivision on Highway 2.

The submission also bore additional signatures supporting the application.

Council agreed to consult Ontario Hydro for a feasability study. If approval is given by council, the lights would be installed on a rental basis; the ratepayers would assume this cost in their annual taxes.

Women's Track Contingent Pride of Canadian Camp

CALI, Colombia (CP) — Canada's track and field team went from one disappointment to another at the Pan-American Games Tuesday night, until gold-medal winner Stephanie Berto of Vancouver burst through for a silver in the women's 100 metres.

"Oh, I'm so happy," she said in between gasps for air after the race in which Iris Davis of the United States won the gold medal with a Games-equaling run of 11.3 seconds.

Stephanie's time was 11.4 seconds, the same clocking as the bronze winner, Silvia Chibas of Cuba. In fact, four women were clocked in 11.4.

"I'm happier with this one than when I won the 200," she said, referring to her gold medal win Sunday in the 200 metres.

"I felt really good and I just wanted to run as well as I could.

"And I got off to a great start. It was my best start ever in the 100."

Track coach John Freeman of Vancouver was especially pleased that Stephanie had come so close behind Miss Davis, who equalled her own record set in the heats. Barbara Farrell of the U.S. was the previous Games mark of 11.3 at Winnipeg four years ago.

"Miss Davis is just about the best there is in the 100," Freeman said.

The women's track and field team is the pride of the Canadian camp with four gold medals while the men have only silver and bronze to show for their efforts in four days of competition.

Miss Berto's silver was the eighth medal for the women's team. The combined team has accounted for 13 medals in track and field competition. Over-all, Canada has 19 medals —five gold, four silver and 10 bronze.

Mike Mason of Burnaby, B.C., added to the Canadian medal collection Tuesday with a bronze in the men's long jump, leaping 25 feet 1¼ inches.

"I'll have to do better than that next year at Munich," he said, referring to the 1972 Olympic Games.

Earlier, Charles Francis and Craig Blackman, a pair of Toronto sprinters, failed to qualify for the men's 200-metre final; Brenda Walsh of Edmonton was fifth and Joyce Sadowick of Burnaby, B.C., sixth in the women's 400-metre final. Bill Smart of Vancouver was sixth in the 800 final, and Rick Dowswell of Sarnia, Ont., was seventh in the men's javelin with a toss of 221 feet.

Eight of the 13 events on the women's track program have been recorded, leaving the pentathlon the main chance for a Canadian gold medal.

"With the exception of Debbie Van Kiekebelt, we'll just pin our hopes on the long shots," team manager George said.

The tall 17-year-old girl from Mississauga, Ont., who set a North American record of 4,965 points in the pentathlon last May, starts her two-day competition today.

"We don't see how anyone else can beat her," said Arnold.

The rivalry between the United States and Cuba burst out in the gymnasium Tuesday when Cuba swept both golds in the men's all-around exercises, sending a long period of U.S. domination in the competition.

The Canadian team salvaged a bronze in the competition, the same placing as the women's team on Monday.

The Cubans already have far surpassed their showing at Winnipeg in 1967, when they won only eight gold medals. The Americans, meanwhile, are far off their pace of four years ago.

In the gold column, the U.S. leads with 20, Cuba has 11, Canada five and Brazil and Argentina four each after completion of 57 events.

The U.S. team won six of the eight track and field gold medals awarded Tuesday night and took another gold in weightlifting. The Cubans won two gold in gymnastics, two in weightlifting and one in shooting. Jamaica won a pair of golds in the track sprints, Guatemala snared a shooting gold and Colombia added a weightlifting gold.

Don Quarrie of Jamaica was the first double winner of the Games, completing a sweep of the two men's sprints when he ran away with the 200 metres in 19.18 seconds.

Another Jamaican, tall Marilyn Neufville, won the women's 400 metres in 51.3 seconds. The event is new to the program.

Games records were broken or equalled in six track and field events. Exceptions were the 50-kilometre walk and the women's 400, run in the Games for the first time.

Of the 24 championships decided in track and field to date, the U.S. has won 15, Canada four, Jamaica three and Cuba one. A total of 27 are listed on the program.

Among the weightlifters, Pierre Charbonneau of Brossard, Que., placed ninth in the lightweight class with a three-lift total of 853½ pounds. Pascual Rodriguez of Cuba won the total-lift gold, hoisting 853½ pounds. Jose Martinez of Colombia was the winner in the press lifting and James Benjamin of the U.S. in the clean and jerk.

In basketball, the men's team lost 69-68 to Panama and bowed out of the preliminary round-robin tournament. The defeat was Canada's second in three starts and left the team without a chance to qualify for the semi-finals.

The Canadians led 34-28 at halftime and were on top until the last nine minutes of play. Centre Tim Tollestrup of Raymond, Alta., was Canada's top scorer with 18 points.

But the field hockey team from British Columbia made it three straight with an easy victory over the United States 5-1 and took over the lead in the eight-country tournament. The Canadians are unbeaten. Glen Talling of Vancouver scored two goals to pace the attack.

In baseball, Canada evened its won-lost record at 2-2 and moved into a fifth-place tie with Puerto Rico in the nine-country tournament. Canada shut out Venezuela 1-0.

The Cuban team, meanwhile, continued to sweep everything in sight. It defeated the U.S., defending champions, 4-3 for its fourth win without a loss.

The Canadian boxing team was assured of at least a bronze medal when light heavyweight Bill Tilley of Winter Lawn, Alta., advanced to the semi-finals with a decision over Allen Lambertis of the Virgin Islands.

The South Americans, who swept all seven rowing gold medals, were off to a roaring start in the yachting championships at Cartagena.

Cuban Fencers Defect

Zolema Bregado and Jose J. Diaz were said to be under police protection, according to the report, but it was not known if they had sought for asylum in Colombia.

Colombian fencers said members of the Cuban team acknowledged the two had been in love for some time and that Diaz had feigned illness and missed training after the delegation arrived in Cali.

Top Tourney Seeds Bow Out Early

WINNIPEG (CP) — Two top-seeded players Dale Power of Toronto and Rob'n [illegible] of Vancouver, were toppled Tuesday in the men's singles in the first day of competition in the Canadian tennis championships.

Pierre Lamarche of Montreal warmed up with a convincing 6-1, 6-2 victory over Gary Hockey of Ottawa in a first-round match, then handed Power, number two seed in the tournament, a 6-3, 6-2 setback.

In the other upset, Josh Usaca of Toronto defeated Elliott 4-6, 6-4, 6-4. Elliott was seeded sixth.

Lamarche, a coach at Mississippi State University, stymied Power with adept forehand volleys and a heavy service. Later in an interview, he criticized Canada's development programs for young players.

With the exception of Ontario and British Columbia little is done by provincial tennis associations to promote the development of players under 21 years, Lamarche said. In his own case, he lost "six years of tournament play because nobody cared" to encourage his development as a player after he won the Canadian junior title in 1965.

Ropes Replace Bars

Who would imagine the fighter is a convict, serving a 16-year sentence for manslaughter and the man at the ringside is a cop technically bern in he doesn't run away.

"It's more like father and son although their skins are a different color," says the United States boxing team manager James McCarron.

Bobby Lee was just 17, a wild kid on the streets of Charleston, S.C., four years ago when one night he got into a shoving match with an older man in a neighborhood store. A girl was involved.

Before it was over the other man was dead and Bobby Lee, although his defenders argued aggravated assault, was in the Carolina Correctional Institute on a 16-year sentence.

He started going to tournaments and winning them. He won the 1971 National AAU flyweight class. This qualified him for the Pan-Am Trials. He won there, too.

"It put us in a rather uncomfortable situation," said Clifford Buck, president of the U.S. Olympic Committee. "We debated a long time whether we should permit him to represent us. We were worried about our international image.

Another complication arose. Bobby Lee is a prisoner. Should he be let out, alone? It was decided a corrections officer should go along.

So the venture began—back on July 9. It ends Aug. 14 when Bobby Lee and Satterfield are to return to Colombia.

Ling's Late Three-bagger Insures Share of Pennant

Rollins Construction staged a two-run rally in the eighth inning to assure themselves of at least a tie for the Committee Softball League pennant Tuesday. The outburst gave them a 3-2 win over the Ellis Juniors, while their nearest competitors, Point Anne, were dropping a 3-1 verdict to Howard and Robert.

A triple by Steve Ling and a throwing error accounted for two Rollins runs after it appeared the Juniors would pull an upset. The losers had scored in the first extra frame on Danny Lupenette's double and a single by John Sutherland.

Ted Wattie lost a pitching duel to Wayne McCord as he conceded his tenth win of the season against no losses. Each batter allowed only four hits with Wattie fanning 13 batters and walking one and McConnell netting down nine men, while not walking a man.

Ling had a triple and single for the winners with Dale Akey and Cliff Scott notching the other safeties. For the Juniors it was Glen Castle's on with a triple, Wattie and Lupenette with doubles and Sutherland adding a single.

Jim Horwood proved to be the only stumbling block for Bob Ebbler as the Howard and Robert lefthander tossed a two-hit effort at Point Anne. The Cementmen's first baseman lined a first-inning homer and added a double in the seventh frame for the only safeties off Ebbler.

The Printers staged a winning rally in the fourth inning with the score knotted at 1-1. A double by Don Gardiner, Pug Kellar's single and a three-base hit by Rusty Garvin plated two runs for Howard and Robert.

Ebbler set down 11 batters while walking only one man. For Point Anne Jamie Hunter allowed six hits and one walk while fanning three.

Garvin connected for a triple and single while Kellar had two singles and Gardiner and Hunter the other hits.

Murphy Needs Your Help

by

Maurice Switzer

Sports Editor

This city's senior hockey "fans", and we use the term loosely, are being asked to put up or shut up.

It took an outsider — Quinte Hotel operator Ken Murphy — to take the ball by the horns when Mo-Hawk owner Robert Temple gave up the senior hockey ghost two weeks ago.

Now Mr. Murphy, who has only been a city resident a little over a year, is looking for a hundred-or-so locals as interested in keeping senior hockey alive in Belleville as he is.

His first crack at revitalizing a booster organization, albeit planned over the holiday weekend, was a numerical disaster. Mr. Murphy proposes another 8 p.m. meeting next Monday evening in the Prince Edward Suite of his Pinnacle St. establishment.

"A booster club would be the lifeline of our hockey club," says the go-getting Murphy, who has been doing a lot of behind-the-scenes homework to make up for his inexperience in the hockey world.

Some of Murphy's lessons have come at the hands of Galt tutors, who run about as successful a senior hockey operation as there ever was.

"Galt have sold out their 2,500 season's tickets and all program advertising space already," Murphy revealed. "We think with a good booster club, we could sell 1,000 before this winter."

Tougher Than Beer

The straight-shooting hotelman is not naive. He is well aware that selling hockey tickets is not as simple as pushing draught beer. Two of his personal brainchildren to help boost the attraction of being a season's subscriber are a reduced rate ($20) for the second season's ticket-holder in one family and a draw for an all-expense-paid Caribbean vacation for two, for which only season's subscribers will be eligible.

Of course there are obvious differences between Belleville and Galt as senior hockey entries, two Allan Cups in the past three years to name but a pair. But Mr. Murphy is keen enough to grasp something which has apparently gone over the heads of most Bellevillians since 1959.

He recognizes that sound promotion and good organization usually attract good hockey players. Good hockey players win their share of games. And spectators enjoy watching their team win.

The more people that come out to watch their team win, the more money there is to spend on promotion, and so the circle goes. It all looks so superficially simple, but then, so does breaking 90.

Sympathy from the Ontario Hockey Association and cooperation from the city's recreation-arena commission have given Murphy's hockey team one victory before the season starts. The "Quisles" will be playing their 20 home dates on Fridays and Saturdays, split evenly.

In their five years of operation, the Mo-Hawks often found themselves skating out onto the Memorial Arena ice surface for Sunday afternoon games wondering if there were any people hiding behind those abominable posts.

Gone also will be those Tuesday night home games with Kingston. The arch-rivals will still meet ten times in their 40-game schedules, but now only twice monthly over the course of the five-month season.

Shopping List Lacking

Everything augurs well for the Murphy camp, but two big items remain unchecked on the shopping list — coach and players. An announcement about a non-playing coach is expected at a later date.

As for players, those guys on skates whom everyone pays the price of admission to jeer, there is some cause for concern. Apparent drop-outs are defenseman Lou Kazowski and rugged winger Les Colligan, who reportedly is going on a European hockey safari. Several others are past their prime.

Goaltending, one of the Belleville entry's strong points in the five Mo-Hawk years, is touch-and-go. Steve Rexe makes no secret of the fact he does not approve of Murphy's vow to stick to a share-the-wealth system, whereby each player gets a per-game stipend then a split of any post-expense profits. Tampering or not, he has an offer from another league entry.

And Bob Moon, as good a backup man as there was in the eight-team league, has moved to Ottawa.

Murphy remains undaunted. "I think we can ice a contending team in this league. We'll have a working agreement with the junior B's and we'll be scouring area intermediate teams.

"Any player thinking about moving better show me what we're going to get in return. And I don't mean money, I mean players. You know, they're still our property until the end of the year."

Mr. Murphy must be doing his hockey homework via a speed-reading course. For a novice to the sport, he gets the gist quite quickly.

Peewees Lose on Two Fronts

The peewees played at opposite ends of the scale in Tuesday night's two Belleville Minor Baseball contests but either way the Belleville teams struck a sour note.

The Legion 99 peewees were mowed down by a two-hitter from Brian Masterson and Handy Adams en route to a 3-1 loss at the hands of Foster's Thurlow peewees. Masterson blazed strikes past 17 while walking only two. He also added a double and single at the plate for the winners.

Bill Whalan was the only Legion lad to reach as Masterson and Adams as he connected for a home run and triple. Whalan also combined with Chris Masterson on the Legion mound. The Turcotte Heating applied the heat to Lucas Spar in a junior Girls Softball League playoff match last night by coming up with a 22-14 victory. In the other junior bout Red Barn took a 21-8 decision from Dairy Queen.

Turcotte Girls Turn on Heat

Mel Barrage seniors took the measure of AVCO Finance by a 26-13 count, while Yardmen's Benefit defeated a 9-0 contest to Ellis Sweethearts.

Industrial Teams Make Headaches

Three more days and the Industrial Softball League regular season is over; which provides three more days for league executives to pull hair and bite nails as they fruitlessly attempt to set up the league play-offs.

The two games played Tuesday night did nothing to enhance the executive's job as victories by Meed Johnson and The Intelligencer furthur jammed up the standings.

Meed Johnson moved into sole possession of third place by stopping Morch Mariners 6-1.

Sonny Holoway picked up the win allowing 10 hits a n d striking out eight. He also added a homer and double to help his own cause. Ken Lesek smashed a home run and Reg Bennett two singles.

Wilson Bulpit took the loss for Morch's, giving up eight hits while fanning 12. Turner had a triple, double and single for the losers while Bulpit and Reynolds each added two singles.

In the only other game The Intelligencer sprang into a tie with the CN for fourth spot by virtue of a 12-4 victory over the Post Office.

Dave Feeney fired the win for the Intell blazing third strikes past two and issuing only one free pass. Emerson and Hiddleston led the winners 14-hit attack pounding out a homer and triple and homer and double respectively. Lee added two singles and a double and Hoard three singles.

John Bohan was the big gun in the losers' 11-hit surge smashing a triple, double and single.

Larks' Cool Rookie Picks Roughies Apart

MONTREAL (CP) — The running power of Moses Denson and the precision passing of rookie Jim Chasey gave Montreal Alouettes a victorious start to their Canadian Football League season Tuesday night as the Als dumped Saskatchewan Roughriders 29-16.

Chasey completed 13 of 25 passes for 162 yards as the defending Grey Cup champions rolled up a 22-4 halftime lead and held on to stall the Roughriders in the final two quarters.

The first-year quarterback played the entire game for the Als except the final few minutes when Sonny Wade came in to call the signals.

"He played a hell of a game and the line did a hell of a blocking job," Montreal coach Sam Etcheverry said after the game.

"He has an awful lot of poise for such a young player; he's a real student of the game."

Etcheverry said a good example of Chasey's ability to read defences came on his second-quarter pass to Jim Foley, who broke into the clear and scampered into the end zone for a 26-yard touchdown.

"He read the blitz real well on that one."

Despite the Dartmouth College graduate's performance, Etcheverry said Wade also was impressive during his stint calling the signals and could easily win back the starting quarterback position.

"Sonny had more authority than I've ever seen him with when he came into the game. I think he's on the right track and in the long run I think Sonny will be there."

Saskatchewan drew first blood in the game when Jack Abendschan's 25-yard field goal attempt went for a single. Montreal then moved the ball from their own 25 to the Saskatchewan three, where George Springate evened the score with a single on a field goal attempt from a sharp angle.

Denson, who picked up 140 yards on 23 carries, gave the Alouettes a seven-point lead at the end of the quarter when he plunged into the Saskatchewan end zone on a one-yard run.

The Als struck again in the second quarter on Foley's touchdown at the 4:10 mark before the Roughriders narrowed the gap with Abendschan's 29-yard field goal at 10:55.

Chasey then directed the Alouettes from their own 35 to the Saskatchewan six in 10 plays before tossing a touchdown pass to Bruce Van Ness to complete the first-half scoring.

Montreal went into the dressing room at the half with a 29-80 edge in yards gained.

The Roughriders struck early in the third quarter when quarterback Ron Lancaster connected with Bobby Thompson for a 44-yard touchdown pass.

They picked up another two points at the 12:08 mark when Wade gave up a safety touch in a punting situation which placed him five yards inside his end zone facing a stiff wind.

At 2:52 of the final quarter Abendschan kicked a 15-yard field goal to narrow the score to 22-16 and Lancaster moved the Roughriders into scoring position at the Montreal 29.

Faced with second down and 10 yards to go, the Saskatchewan quarterback attempted a pass which was picked off by Larry Fairholm who, escorted by a phalanx of Montreal blockers, ran the ball 86 yards for the touchdown which clinched the game.

Etcheverry said he did not consider Fairholm's touchdown a turning point "because we were ahead at the time."

The Montreal coach said it was the first game he has coached in which his team did not give up the ball on fumbles or interceptions.

For the Roughriders, the game was their third in eight days and they face a Friday-night contest against the Argos in Toronto before returning to the West. It was their second loss in three starts.

The Als chalked up 25 first downs to Saskatchewan's 17 and ran up a net offence of 397 yards compared to 284 for the visitors.

Chasey and Wade together connected on 18 of 34 passes for 235 yards while Lancaster was good on 14 of 30 for 208 yards in the air.

The Als rushed for 174 yards while Saskatchewan was able to churn out only 86 yards on the ground.

Wilson Can't Have Tougher Games

Mike Wilson won a fight for life four years ago and now he wants to help British Columbia Lions win a few games in the Western Football Conference.

Wilson suffered a crushed larynx and a collapsed lung in the first game of his senior year at Western Illinois University when he was caught by an opposition flanker's elbow.

"A lot of people didn't expect me to live that night," he said. "I had to wait four hours for medical attention and almost suffocated before the doctors arrived.

"But the thought of getting hurt again doesn't bother me. Football is a game of contact and the only way to leave it in one piece is to sit on the bench. I want to play."

Coach Ray Jauch hopes the Eskimos will snap out of the doldrums that led to two defeats in an interlocking swing through the Eastern Conference last week.

Arlin Gets Rare Help From San Diego Bats

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Steve Arlin hurled a four-hitter Tuesday night and got some unusually lusty hitting from San Diego Padres to beat St. Louis Cardinals 6-1.

"It relieves the pressure," said the young right-hander, reciting a pitching axiom, "when you have some runs."

Elsewhere, in the NL, Pittsburgh Pirates ripped Montreal Expos 10-6, Chicago Cubs shut out Houston Astros 5-0, Philadelphia Phillies edged Atlanta Braves 3-2, Los Angeles Dodgers blazed San Francisco Giants 9-1 and Cincinnati Reds split a doubleheader in New York, winning 5-3 before losing to the Mets 9-4.

Arlin's sharp performance against the Cardinals was the 10th complete game in the last 16 starts for the Padres' staff. But San Diego has won only six of those games.

In 69 games since May 23, the San Diego pitching staff has a 2.97 earned-run average. Yet the club's won-lost mark was 27-42 over that span.

However, the Padres managed 13 hits Tuesday night and gave Arlin four runs in the first four innings as he lifted his record to 6-13 and needed just five pitches to do the job.

Gene Alley hammered a pair of home runs and Pittsburgh bunched six runs in the eighth inning to beat Montreal, Alley's second homer knocked off the big inning and Manny Sanguillen ripped a bases-loaded triple. Then Vic Davalillo climaxed the rally with a two-run double.

Rookie John Vukovich, who carried a .157 batting average into the game, drove home two Philadelphia runs, including the winner, with a single and a double as the Phillies knocked off Atlanta. Hank Aaron hit his 31st homer of the season and 623rd of his career.

Bill Hands tossed a five-hitter and Ron Santo hammered his 17th home run, helping the Cubs past Houston. Santo's homer was the game's only run until the ninth when Chicago ganged up on reliever Fred Gladding for four more.

Doyle Alexander burled a six-hitter and the Dodgers exploded for four runs in the first inning and whipped San Francisco.

Steve Gerver, whose three-run homer beat the Giants in the ninth inning the night before, singled in two of the Dodgers' early runs as LA. trimmed San Francisco's National League West lead to seven games.

Tony Perez hammered a three-run homer, climaxing a four-run Cincinnati rally in the sixth inning as the Reds knocked off the Mets in the first game of the doubleheader.

VIDA BLUE

Camps Cut?

CHICAGO (AP) — The National and American Leagues, in two days of meetings which began Tuesday, are considering a proposal to shorten the baseball spring training schedule.

The leagues, after meeting separately Tuesday, held a joint meeting in which a variety of topics was discussed including promotions, films, drug education, broadcasting, the performance bonus rule and cutting down on spring training.

Commissioner Bowie Kuhn told reporters after the joint meeting: "The only matter on which action is expected is the shortening of spring training."

Blue Can't Win Number 20

Blue, the young left-hander of Oakland Athletics, failed for the second straight time to win his 20th game and absorbed one of his worst beatings of the season before the Athletics rallied for a 7-5 victory over Kansas City Royals Tuesday night.

Elsewhere in the American League, Washington Senators beat Detroit Tigers 4-2, Minnesota Twins edged Chicago White Sox 4-3 in 10 innings, Milwaukee Brewers blanked California Angels 2-0, New York Yankees blasted Cleveland Indians 8-1, and Boston Red Sox at Baltimore Orioles was rained out and will be played as a double header tonight.

Blue, the winningest pitcher in the majors with a 19-4 record, was cuffed for five runs and nine hits in five innings by the slumping Royals, who suffered their eighth straight setback.

"I was almost crazy from the pressure of this game," said the usually relaxed southpaw.

"This was the toughest game of all. Everyone wants to know when I'm going to win 20 games. That's where all the pressure is coming from."

One of the hits off him was a three-run homer over the left centre field fence by Bob Oliver in the fourth inning, giving the Royals a 3-2 lead.

Oak two-bagger came when the Royals scored twice in the fifth, Blue's last inning.

Only some erratic baserunning by Lou Piniella saved Blue from a possible defeat. After Piniella led off the fourth with a double, he was tagged out when he took a big turn round second.

After singling in the second run in the fifth and going to second on the throw home, he tried to score on Chuck Harrison's single, but was cut down at the plate. And in the eighth, Piniella smacked his second double, but was out trying for a triple.

Rick Monday's two-run homer in the seventh started Oakland's comeback. In the ninth, Monday followed with a double, driving in the winning runs.

Denny McLain, who had been on the 21-day disabled list because of an inflammation of his right arm, gained credit for his sixth victory—and first since June 30—when Washington overcame a 2-1 lead held by McLain's former team-mates with three runs in the ninth inning.

Roach Leads Parade Of Donkey Duffers

It might have started when some jackass forgot his clubs and had to borrow one but it was a golfing delight! It escape from the routine of golf.

The Belleville Golf and Country Club held a nine-hole Donkey Golf Tournament in which each golfer may use only one club plus putter for the entire round.

Club manager Brian Roach pushed his two iron to a 39 low gross to lead the field of entries. Dave Galloway had a 41 with a 7-iron and Bill Stewart a 42 with a two iron.

Low net honors went to club champion Harold Werkhoven who blasted his eight iron to a 77 Earl Johnson used a wood to card a 79 while Doug Denike had an 80 with an eight iron.

Marilyn Bennett took her two - iron to a 50 and low gross women's honors. Thelma Fitzgibbon and Gail Payette were close on her heels with 51 and 52 respectively. Both ladies used nine irons.

Low net honors went to June Ritchie and Rita Holland who tied with 82. Seven irons were those ladies' choice of clubs.

Weslock Checked

O'Donnell was one-under-par at 143 for the 36 hole event with rounds of 72 and 71. Weslock, after opening with a 75, shot a final 69 to finish one shot back at 144.

Balancing Act

Paul Barrett of the Station Square Canucks isn't really balancing the ball on his head but rather is directing it to another teammate. The action took place before a scheduled mosquito soccer game with Jims Pizzeria. The Canucks came on with a strong all-out effort to win the contest 6-2.

Kinsmen Lead with Ace

The Belleville Kinsmen Juniors will be leading with their ace tonight when they meet Kingston in the opening game of their best-of-three EOBA playoff series.

Garnie Adams, who compiled a 7-3 record with the Kinsmen in Lakeshore Intermediate action this season will take the mound for the first time against Kingston.

The fireballing righthander will be looking for support from shortstop Rick Meagher and third baseman Brian Cousins who waged a battle for the team batting championship during the regular season. Meagher finished with a .324 average two points higher than Cousins.

The teams split a pair of games so far this season with Belleville winning 7-1 in the first game and Kingston taking a 4-2 verdict on their home diamond.

Game time tonight will be 8 p.m. at the Belleville Fairgrounds.

'For He's A Jolly...'

The mosquitos might not have the finesse or the legs but they know that the purpose of the game is to score goals which they did in abundance in Tuesday night's Belleville Minor Soccer action.

In a game played at Centennial Secondary School, Lino's Pizzeria whipped Dusek Bros. 9-2. Robbie Goodfellow tallied four times to lead the winners and Gary Fredericks added two.

In another game the Station Square Canucks stopped Jim's Pizzeria 6-2.

Question of Ownership of Cable for Cable T V Is Undecided

OTTAWA (CP) — A cable television problem which could have a significant impact on the future of telecommunications in Canada still seems far from settlement.

The issue—ownership of coaxial cable used for cable TV —received only a few vague paragraphs in a recent Canadian Radio-Television Commission statement on cable policy.

The remarks do not clearly resolve the issue and the CRTC is expected to say more within the next few months.

The telephone companies and cable television operators are watching developments closely because both have an interest in using coaxial cable for many new services from computer data transmission to instant polling.

The telephone companies want to hang on to complete control over the coaxial cables used by the TV cable companies, merely renting space on the wire for the cable men to use in his TV operations.

With this kind of control, the telephone company could limit the ability of the cable operator to move into other services such as computer data transmission.

But cable operators argue that this doesn't even leave them with an assurance that wire space will be available for their operations in future. The telephone company could decline to renew a rental contract, they say, and they would be out of business.

A mixed system currently exists across the country. In many cases, telephone companies own and control the cable used by the cable TV systems. In other cases, cable TV companies have partial ownership of this hardware and, in relatively few cases—usually systems set up before cable TV was widespread, the TV operator owns his own coaxial cable.

The significance of the current struggle is that the telephone companies and other common carriers could face keen competition from the cable companies in providing certain services.

At the moment, many contracts between cable TV companies and telephone firms for use of telephone company equipment or rights-of-way, prevent cable operators from providing services other than broadcasting.

But some cable operators are building their own systems and this may allow them to get around the prohibition.

The CRTC recently approved an application to set up a cable TV system in New Glasgow, N.S., in which the operator has been ordered to own his entire system.

CRTC officials say this is not a policy established by the commission. It was simply approving an application in which the applicant stated he would own the system.

The telephone companies argue that cable services should be handled as a normal part of their business.

Duplication of services could be eliminated, they say. One cable could carry all services.

A federal communications department study group, the telecommission, said recently that there may be good economic reasons for allowing greater competition for the telephone companies and other common carriers. But these should be weighed against possible damage to the quality and service cost of existing systems.

The CRTC statement on cable policy said only that the commission does not intend to license cable companies to operate outside the Broadcasting Act. But this would not appear to leave the Act open for carrying on to prevent them from operating other activities at will.

The CRTC has made it clear that it does not intend to license telephone companies or other common carriers as broadcasters. Bell Canada, it is also prohibited by law from providing the message as well as the medium.

But the commission still has to lay down a definite policy on whether cable operators should rent their cable from the telephone companies or own it outright.

If the current mixed approach is adopted as commission policy, the telephone companies will have lost their case—at least, in part. But the debate isn't over and the commission is expected to have more to say.

Foreign Exchange Reserves at Peak

OTTAWA (CP) — Canada's foreign exchange reserves rose to a record $4,823.8 million at the end of July, from $4,651.8 million a month earlier, the finance department reported today.

The increase was principally due to an increase in U.S. dollar holdings by the Bank of Canada, the receiver-general, and the exchange fund account. They increased to a record $3,364.4 million from $3,185.7 million.

The increase in U.S. dollar holdings would result from selling Canadian dollars in exchange for U.S. dollars in an effort to bring down the high international exchange value of Canada's currency.

During July, Canada reduced its holdings of other foreign currencies to $12.1 million from $17.1 million.

STOP KILLING YOURSELF

By Peter J. Steincrohn, M.D., F.A.C.P.
Author of "The Doctor Looks At Life"

Heart Attack Cure Is in Two Phases

Like a two-lap race, adjustment in a heart attack comes in two phases. One, is treatment in the hospital to save the heart. Two, is a way of life after the attack to keep it beating for years. Once the emergency is past, much depends upon the other members of the family. They make an important contribution to the patient's health.

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: I have a family of nine in an eight-bedroom house. A year and a half ago my husband had a heart attack and was not expected to live. By some miracle he did.

The first months were trying. It was hard keeping a formerly busy executive down. Every time I thought I had him safely resting in bed I found him padding after me like a little puppy. I had all I could do to get him to relax. I got absolutely nothing else done. The older children took over the care of the younger ones.

At last he was allowed to take phone calls and have a few visitors. Seeing our whole household adjust and pull together has been a wonderful experience. We had much consideration and kindness to show, and we did.

He is more active now. As he is an intelligent man, I do not keep after him to slow down. He has learned how to relax more. I realize that each one of us has the right to live his own life. It must be a personal decision.

But the most important part is to bring peace and quiet to the stricken one. How our large household was able to do it — and still is — becomes a greater mystery when you consider that kids are kids.

We are a happy family, husband included. It's worth the sacrifice when we hear him say how much he appreciates our co-operation.

We all take one day at a time, do the best we can, and put the rest in God's hands. In our case, at least a heart attack has cemented the family rather than broken it up. — Mrs. R.

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: My mother has suffered from stomach pain and backache for a long time. She is on a bland diet. If she eats anything else, her pain is unbearable. Her doctor says it's all due to nerves and there is no need to spend money on X rays.

He said the best thing is to do nothing, and not to forget that she is getting older (she is 61). Please tell me how I can help my mother. Shall I take her to a specialist? — Mrs. F.

COMMENT: Doctors have a right to disagree. One phrase I dislike hearing a doctor use is: "What do you expect at your age? You're getting older." Age itself (and 61 surely is not old) should never be used as a reason for discontinuing intensive examination of any patient.

Your suggestion for having a specialist see your mother is a good one. I think you — and she — will feel better knowing the cause of her discomforts. Complete laboratory

Jeane Dixon's Horoscope

For August 5

Your birthday today: Superficial day - to - day turmoil conceals drastic inner changes. You wake daily to being a little different. Today's natives enjoy some selective artistic endowments, are well intentioned, generally restless in nature.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Aside from letting somebody else make some of the decisions, you need to be free of extra, unnecessary personal responsibility.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Use every connection you can to put your program over. Bring your friends and relatives closer together for more meaningful projects.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): You're not the only convincing talker around today. Stick to the things you really know — be a skeptic until you can verify tall stories and their origin.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Select your goals, verify your appointments, then stay on schedule despite tempting distractions.

LEO (July 23 - Aug. 22): Make good your promise, finish what you have started, somehow or other. As the day wears on you are more and more satisfied with yourself and your achievements.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Just about everything stirs your feelings. Be pragmatic, concentrate on here and now, and the things that work.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 - Oct. 22): Widen your range of observation: things a little farther away have a bearing on your projects. Fresh contacts bring interesting prospects.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Temporary plans laid out now provide a framework for future progress.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Your morale tips the balance — also never married before. At our ages, we do not wish to risk parenthood. Is there anything either of us can do to prevent childbirth? — Mr. P.

COMMENT: Congratulations on your marriage. Relax and be happy. No treatment necessary. You are not risking parenthood.

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: I travel to and from school for an hour and a half every day. Is it bad for the eyes to read in the bus? — Miss W.

COMMENT: Not unless they seem to get tired, or bother you. If possible to study, it's a good way to take a big bite out of your homework. Just sitting there looking out of a window is a waste of time.

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: I am 67 years old and I just recently ventured into wedlock. Prior to this I have been a bachelor all my life. My wife is 55 — also never married before. At our ages, we do not wish to risk parenthood. Is there anything either of us can do to prevent childbirth? — Mr. P.

COMMENT: Congratulations on your marriage. Relax and be happy. No treatment necessary. You are not risking parenthood.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 - Jan. 19): In the clash between your memories and others you come now to a moment of test. Be free to revise to cope with changing situations.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Find any excuse for a laugh See the humor in whatever is going on, while you strive to improve your share.

Private Moon Voyage Planned

HOUSTON (Reuter) — A return trip to the moon's Hadley Rille—using surplus Apollo a p a c e c r a ft and financed by public subscription —is the ambitious aim of a wealthy group of private citizen calling itself the Committee for the Future.

The cost would be recovered by selling moon rocks and television, film, photographic and literary rights, and by charging for scientific experiments conducted.

The committee says that the U.S. government would provide it free of charge with rockets and spacecraft made redundant by cancellation of three proposed Apollo flights.

"Operational costs, based on NASA information, are estimated at approximately $150 million," the committee said in announcing its aims this week.

Citizens who bought shares in the project, called Harvest Moon," would be repaid out of the approximately $400 million that the committee hopes to gather by commercializing the mission.

"The Harvest Moon expedition would be scheduled following the final Apollo flight (late next year) and would be under the complete operational control of NASA," the committee said in a statement.

The committee said it proposed Harvest Moon because it seemed incredible to invest $25 billion and 10 years to reach the moon and then "stop without purposefully looking at the moon's value to man and his future."

Even before Harvest Moon was announced, NASA officials said privately the plan stood little chance of approval as it stands. They said there would be objections to turning a major public program like Apollo into a commercial type of operation.

'Born Free' Lion Kills Servant

NAIROBI (Reuter) — One of the lions used in the movie Born Free has been killed after it mauled a man to death.

George Adamson, husband of Joy Adamson who wrote the book Born Free, shot the lion named Boy after it mauled his servant, known only as Stanley.

Adamson told of the incident in a report to the Kenya game department released Tuesday.

Stanley was seized by the lion after disregarding a warning not to walk alone outside a wire compound adjoining Adamson's camp in an uninhabited area, the report said.

Adamson has for years been trying to take pet lions and return them to the wild after their owners, who had adopted them as pets when they were no-phazed as cubs found they became too big and dangerous as they grew up.

Adamson said in the report that he had just returned to camp after taking five lions and lionesses for a walk to a hill a mile from the compound when the tragedy occurred.

Adamson said that over the 15 years he has been closely associated with 24 different lions, lionesses and cubs.

"Boy is the only one out of the lot who has; so to speak, let the side down," he said.

Big Hashish Haul Made At Camp

TORONTO (CP) — Police said Tuesday that 350 pounds of hashish, the largest haul of the drug ever found in Canada, have been discovered on the grounds of a boys' camp 10 miles north of here.

Insp. Wallace Harkness of the York regional police said the hashish would be worth about $3.5 million if sold on the streets by the ounce.

He said the hashish was dug up Monday night by an elderly couple who lease the camp after they became suspicious when they saw some men digging in the camp grounds.

Five Armed Men Rob CN Passenger Train

Plan to Free POW Denied

STOCKHOLM (AP) — The Scandinavian airline SAS said today a report that United States military officials had asked the airline to fly 187 U.S. prisoners of war from Laos to Europe was incorrect.

The airline said today its office in West Germany was approached in mid-July by a "private individual" who wanted to arrange a charter flight from Laos to Rome "for 187 passengers."

"It was never mentioned that the category of passengers was military personnel," SAS said in a statement released today.

The airline said it made preliminary arrangements and was ready to sign a contract, but this "has been called off by the private contact of SAS in Germany."

The "private individual" was not identified by name or nationality.

The report of a prospective PoW flight was first published Wednesday night in Sweden's biggest newspaper, Dagens Nyheter, which said the flight would be on Aug. 12.

This was followed by an announcement from an SAS spokesman that U.S. military authorities in West Germany had asked to charter a DC-8 to airlift 187 PoWs from Vientiane, the Laotian capital, to Rome by way of Bangkok, Thailand.

Dagens Nyheter charged SAS with "giving way to political pressure to cut global the whole thing."

Editor-in-Chief Boerje Dahlqvist maintained the newspaper's report, attributed to "sources," was "totally correct as it stand," but refused to identify his sources. He did not specify what "political pressure" he said had been applied.

"When we deliberated about the publication of this report, everything seemed in order and there was no reason to hold it back," he said. "I'm not prepared to guess as to what will happen now."

Mailbags Yield Little of Value

MONTREAL (CP) — Five armed men held up CN's Montreal to Toronto train 51 Wednesday morning but after slashing open mailbags they left with three "valueless" packages.

A CN spokesman said the rifled mail car contained some 137 sacks of mail and other items. The only thing of value was a $1,000 bond and post office officials said the three stolen parcels contained little of value.

CN 51 or the Lakeshore was stopped for a red block signal near west-end Lachine shortly before 10 a.m. Wednesday when a revolver-waving gunman jumped on the side of the diesel locomotive and ordered the engineer and fireman to "get out and do as you're told and you won't get hurt."

One of the gunmen, armed with a sub machine gun, guarded the train crew as the others ripped open mail bags in the baggage car opened with a crowbar.

Finding nothing after yelling "Where is the money," they ran across a field with the three packages to a waiting car hidden in a clump of trees.

The engineer returned to his diesel cab and radioed Dorval station. The train was delayed about 90 minutes while an investigation was conducted.

None of the 119 passengers on board the train were disturbed.

Post office officials said the mail sacks were checked in Cornwall where the train makes a scheduled stop. They said no registered mail was missing.

The bandits apparently adjusted a switch to flash a red light, causing the train to stop, conductor H. E. Downey said.

"I assume they threw a switch which caused a red light to go on," he said in an interview. "It wasn't supposed to be an and we had to stop."

Passengers aboard apparently did not know the train was being robbed while it was stopped.

"They did a nice, quiet job and went on about their business," said Mr. Downey, of London, Ont.

"They didn't go back and bother the passengers at all and, frankly, that's what I was glad of. I didn't want the people getting hysterical."

Mr. Downey said some passengers apparently guessed what had happened while the train was still stopped, but not until the robbers had fled.

One young man from Quebec said police could be seen alongside the train carrying machine-guns.

Ky's Bid To Run Denied

SAIGON (Reuter) — The South Vietnamese Supreme Court today rejected the application of Vice-President Nguyen Cao Ky to run for the presidency Oct. 3.

The list of candidates issued by the court contained only the names of President Nguyen Van Thieu and former head of state Duong Van Minh.

Ky will have 15 days to appeal against today's decision by the court.

Stanfield Tells U.S. About Trip

WASHINGTON (CP) — Conservative leader Robert Stanfield of Canada flew in to Washington Wednesday to brief top United States government officials on his recent trip to China and told reporters he was puzzled why Chinese officials had chosen to emphasize to him what he took to be a "hard" line on the U.S.

"It may be that I'm serving the purpose in coming to Washington and passing on their views, Stanfield said.

The Canadian Opposition leader met with presidential adviser Henry Kissinger, who went to Peking recently to arrange President Nixon's proposed visit, and was to see State Secretary William Rogers today before returning to Ottawa.

He was the guest Wednesday night at a hastily-arranged dinner given by Canadian Chargé d'Affaires Peter Towe, for which the guest list included Philip H. Trezise, assistant secretary of state for economic affairs, former U.S. roving ambassador W. Averell Harriman, and Senators Hubert Humphrey of Minnesota, Frank Church of Idaho and George Aiken of Vermont, all foreign affairs specialists and knowledgeable on Canadian relations.

Homebound Astronaut 'Walks' Deep in Space

HOUSTON (AP) — Astronaut Alfred M. Worden stepped out of the streaking Apollo 15 spacecraft nearly 200,000 miles from earth today to take man's first walk in deep space.

Bundled in a stiff pressure suit and attached to a 25-foot lifeline, Worden eased out of the open hatch of the command ship Endeavor for a hand-over-hand trip about 15 feet to an equipment bay at the rear of the spacecraft to retrieve two film canisters.

The canisters contain nearly two miles of high-resolution film covering nearly 20 per cent of the lunar surface, including what are expected to be the best pictures yet of the hidden back of the moon.

With the hatch open, David R. Scott and James B. Irwin also were pressure suits as protection against the vacuum of space. Irwin was to emerge partially from the spacecraft to assist Worden.

Earlier, the astronauts cancelled a course change manoeuvre because Apollo 15 was on an accurate course as it sped back toward the earth.

Mission Control calculated Endeavour's course and told the astronauts when they awakened at 5:20 a.m. that they did not need to make the engine-firing course change. They were heading home after six days of moon exploration.

"You're so close to course we're going to give you the Vasco da Gama navigation award," capsule communicator Joe Allen said.

Da Gama, a late 15th-century Portuguese navigator, was the first European to sail to India by sea.

At 7:49 a.m., they sped through a "twilight zone" where they escaped the influence of lunar gravity and fell into the sphere of earth gravity. They were 204,138 miles from earth and 36,418 miles from the moon and began picking up speed.

A television camera is mounted outside to relay pictures to earth as Worden moves into a silent, weightless world which has been braved previously by only nine men—six Americans and three Russians. All were in earth orbit.

In addition, eight Americans now have walked on the moon, which has a gravity field one-sixth that of earth's.

Worden's stroll is necessary because the bay is jettisoned before re-entry and does not return to earth with the astronauts.

The spacemen concluded man's greatest lunar expedition late Wednesday when they fired the Endeavour out of moon orbit on a near-perfect course that will carry them to a splashdown in the Pacific Ocean 283 miles north of Hawaii at 4:46 p.m. Saturday.

Before heading for home, Apollo 15 ejected into lunar orbit a 78.5-pound science satellite intended to send back data for at least a year on the precise shape of the moon.

Journey's End: Festival Fans Head Toward the Quinlin Homestead

Festival Freeloaders Pile Over Back Fences

By LENNY WILLIAMSON
Staff Reporter

Belleville's youth hostel, operating this summer at about 40 per cent capacity, was filled last night with young people on their way to Rock Acres Peace Festival 40 miles north of here in Madoc township.

About 50 fans stopped over at the hostel last night, before heading up Highway 62 to the remote farm where hundreds are already camping.

Most festival fans were streaming into the Quinlin family's 200-acre farm over back fences, unhindered by the group of local youths hired by the organizers to handle ticket sales at the gate.

Many young people on the road had roughly - sketched maps of rear approaches to the farm, where thousands could swarm over the bush-covered snake fences to avoid the $10 admission fee.

Word of the primitive privy situation had already spread along the road as far as 30 miles away, where young people quizzed motorists on the reported absence of facilities.

The Quinlin family has put together about four plywood privies, one room, unpartitioned structures with a communal 15 holes each. One, a Madoc township first, is a monumental 40-holer, divided by partial partitions into four-hole sections.

No water pipes have yet been connected to the farm well and an acute shortage of water threatens to become a major problem by nightfall.

"The water situation is terrible, but we're doing he best we can to help the kids out," said Dr. N. H. McNally, head of the Emergency Health Services Division of the Ontario Hospital Services Commission.

Dr. McNally arrived last night to take charge of the field hospital on the site, geared to service a population of 50,000. It has an operating room, with two tables equipped to handle major surgery. An ambulance helicopter will arrive this afternoon, and stand by to airlift patients to Belleville General Hospital if necessary.

Officials are concerned that the narrow, one-lane township road leading to the site may become jammed with traffic. An emergency exit eastward over the Quinlin's pasture land, got a few loads of gravel from the township yesterday and is now passable for the four ambulances stationed in the field hospital compound.

A communication trailer is set up for the hospital's use, and four army water trailers will arrive this afternoon to serve the 60 or more people expected to operate within the hospital compound.

In addition to the nurses and two or three doctors expected to work in the hospital on a shift system, the Addiction Research Foundation will send in workers and the Quinte branch of the St. John Ambulance Brigade will have a post set up to cope with minor injuries.

Madoc township inhabitants, still stunned over last week's court decision that gave the festival the go-ahead, have decided to roll with the punch.

"Nobody wanted it, you know," said a Madoc township woman. "Now we're just going along with it and enjoy meeting the people."

A woman on a farm near the Quinlin acres said she expected no problem, just the nuisance of too much traffic on the roads.

"When they first talked about the festival, they said those kids would burn our houses down, destroy our barns and threaten, even harm us. But now we know there won't be anything like that."

Chief concern of the farmers in the township is that urban youths will take shelter in barns and outbuildings and start fires.

Township workers were on the roads yesterday spreading gravel over the recently cleared road allowance leading south from the Quinlin farm to highway 7, and touching up the dead end barricade in Queensboro with white paint.

Road workers were filling their empty trucks with hikers and giving them lifts to the site after they had delivered their gravel loads.

Ontario Provincial Police are setting up a command post at the abandoned Hart's schoolhouse, two miles south of the festival site. They will maintain check posts on the approach road in an effort to keep traffic flowing the one way in a north-to-south direction past the Quinlin farm.

Early Weekend Shoppers

Anticipating a shortage of food, two festival-goers planned ahead and made provision for the weekend. Clayton McMurray, proprietor of one of the two general stores in Queensboro, assures The Intelligencer that allowances have been made for the increase in business during the coming weekend when thousands of young people (patrons of the Rock Acres Peace Festival) will be buying foodstuffs for the three-day event.

Phoney Solicitors

The Belleville Branch of the Canadian Red Cross has issued a warning that a young man and young woman are working a bunko canvass in the city.

G. R. Cameron, past president of the society, this morning stated "we haven't had a direct canvass in the past six or seven years." The Red Cross Society is a member of the United Community Services and as such, participate in their annual campaign.

Apparently the pair have been soliciting funds, stating they are representatives of the society.

Deputy Police Chief Harold Reid this morning warned residents to "make sure, before giving funds, that identification is checked.

"If they do come to the door of any home, give us a call," he advised.

J. C. Pat Houston, manager of the Belleville Chamber of Commerce, advises that "this sort of solicitation is registered here." Anyone questioning the right of canvassers, can contact the Chamber of Commerce as well as the police department.

Medical Services Go In

Eric Knights, organizer of the Ontario government's field hospital on the site of Rock Acres Peace Festival, confers with John Hodgson, who heads up the local St. John Ambulance Brigade at the festival. The hospital can serve a population of 50,000 and is fully equipped for all emergencies.

Neighbors Aid Fire Victims With Cash and Donations

CHERRY VALLEY—A good neighbor policy endorsed by Athol township residents climaxed last night at a community rally in Cherry Valley Hall.

Friends and neighbors of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Wiggins

Roundup Time On Freeway

Provincial police this morning dispatched their special roundup squad to a point on Highway 401, five miles east of Belleville.

Without a care in the world, five cows found their way onto the highway, resulting in a dodge 'n' duck program for drivers.

It has not been reported whether the officers will attempt a roundup or whether he will simply base the animals back to their pasture, but according to a police spokesman, the constable is we'l equipped for the job.

and their 16-year-old son, John, who lost their home and belongings in a fire last month, gathered to present the family with cash donations totalling more than $700.

Gifts of various household items were presented to the Wiggins family by a number of individuals and community organizations.

Co-workers of Mr. Wiggins, who is employed by the Prince Edward County roads department also forwarded a donation.

Mrs. James Whiteford, president of the Cherry Valley Women's Institute, sponsor of the shower, recalled the Wiggins' family's community spirit and suggested the donations were appreciative tokens.

More Tapes Lost to Thieves

T. W. Davis, of 193 Benjamin Street reported a tape player and four stereo tapes were stolen from his unlocked car, parked at the rear of his apartment building.

Down the street, at 45 Benjamin Street, Michael Cloutier reported theft of his player and four tapes. His car was locked.

Total loss was estimated at $220.

No Rush for Permits Under Building Bylaw

Passage two weeks ago of the city's new building bylaw hasn't resulted in a rush to city hall for building permits.

This was revealed today by assistant building inspector Bill Hoard, who said that since his office received a final copy of the new bylaw on July 26, only a dozen permits had been issued.

Another 12 permit applications are pending awaiting the applicants to come in and fill out the necessary forms. Of the dozen permits pending, about one-half were filed before the new building bylaw was passed by council.

The application by William Spinelli for an injunction to block the construction of a large 75-unit apartment building at 217 Bridge Street East prompted the passing of the new building bylaw.

Mr. Justice Patrick Galligan, at a Supreme Court hearing in Toronto, granted Mr. Spinelli's application for the injunction, ruling that the city's 16-year-old building bylaw was defective.

City Solicitor John C. Miller hurriedly drafted a new building bylaw and after two marathon sessions of city council it was approved at a special meeting on July 21. Permit applications received at city hall following the Supreme Court ruling were held up until passage of the new bylaw.

In the meantime no permit for the proposed Bridge Street apartment has been issued.

A permit application for the apartment has been made to city hall, but it cannot be issued until sewer service requirements have been met.

The apartment developers have applied for a street occupation permit to construct the sewer but this will not be dealt with by city council until its meeting later this month.

Vandals Damage Fishnets

Now the authorities have waterborne vandals to contend with.

Unknown persons using boats for transportation continue to harrass the Lands and Forests study of fish migration in the Bay of Quinte, a spokesman for the fish management branch reported.

Damage to nets set at different locations to trap species tagged earlier in the Spring is a common finding.

It revealed. "We are puzzled and believe they (the perpetrators) would not interfere if they knew the success of the project depends on retrieving information from cards caught by the traps."

Getting Into the Swim of Things

Head over heels, this youngster takes a running dive into the Kinsmen pool on Dundas Street East last night, following presentation of awards for swimming progress. More than 200 young swimmers crowded into the pool yard to receive awards from their instructors. Of a starting class of 275, 248 were scheduled to receive badges and pins.

More than 200 Belleville youngsters received awards and badges at the Kinsmen Pool on Dundas Street East last night. The July swimming program has been completed, and youngsters received awards in beginner's, junior, Red Cross, intermediate and senior classes. As the youngsters lined the edge of the pool, awards were distributed by Lynne-Anne Muldoon, pool manageress, Paul Thompson, assistant manager, and instructors Jane Ashley, Barry McGugan, and Stephen Burtch. A second term of instruction swimming will be held this month.

Kinsmen Pool Graduation Scene

More than 200 laughing, smiling youngsters lined the edges of the Kinsmen Pool on Dundas Street last night to receive progressive swimming awards from their instructors of the past month.

Of a total enrollment of 275, 248 were scheduled to receive awards. This number would have been higher, pool committee chairman Robert Thomas said, but holidays and cottaging held some of the young swimmers back.

For all beginners, in the tadpole, intermediate, beginner and advanced beginner classes, the pool facilities were available at no expense. For those in the Junior Red Cross intermediate and senior classes, a charge of $5 per month was charged.

So that large families wouldn't be restricted from taking the course, a maximum of $10 per family was established.

On Tuesday night, 75 graduates in the rural Kinsmen swimming program received their badges and certificates in a ceremony held in Frankford. Most of the students were from Frankford and Plainfield.

Following the awards ceremony, members of the Kinettes distributed refreshments after which the youngsters were allowed to take to the pool for a free swim period.

Free swimming is available from 9 to 11 p.m., Tuesdays and Thursdays, instructional swims booked for every half hour between 8 a.m. and 8 p.m. weekdays and special public swims, 25 cents children, 50 cents adults and students, between 1.30 and 4.30 p.m., 7 and 9 p.m.

A second month of instructional and improvement swimming will be held in August, and Kinsmen predict when the pool closes for the season, more than 35,000 youngsters will have passed through its gates.

Napanee Constable Was Ninth on List

NAPANEE (Staff) — Napanee has lost its ninth policeman within the past few months and town council is split on the skid.

Constable David Markle was given notice of dismissal July 16 by Police Chief J. J. Paquette, one day after an accident which damaged the force's new cruiser to the amount of $1,200. However, in the police report, read to town council this week by Deputy Reeve Ernest Marshall, the reason dismissal was executed was given "because he was not suited to be a policeman."

When Mr. Markle was fired, he had one more day to serve as a probationary constable before he was eligible for a promotion. No injuries resulted and no charges were laid.

Councillor Neal Storring took first exception to what he called a "skimpy report", without adequate information concerning the reason the officer was fired.

Deputy Reeve Marshall replied, stating Mr. Markle's progress had not been up to towns standards and he emphatically denied that he was released as a result of the accident. The issue of his dismissal appears to have been clouded over, with some councillors believing him to have been fired, others were informed that he had quit.

Councillor Clarence Milligan a member of the police committee, said council stipulated Mr. Markle was not fired because of the accident, "but had something to do with it because he was fired the next day."

He said the constable has the right to a hearing to defend himself.

"I had no information whatsoever that his work was unsatisfactory and that he would be dismissed when his probation period was up," he added.

Reeve Glenn Herrington questioned the police chief's authority to fire anyone on the force without first bringing the matter to the attention of the police committee.

Mr. Markle, present at the council meeting, stated he had not been given a reason for his dismissal. An unsuccessful attempt to hold a police association meeting was made, but a full complement of members could not be reached. The ex - officer felt the negotiating body may have been denied access to any report from the committee.

It was Councillor Reginald Vick who first brought to council's attention the fact that Constable Markle "is number nine to go."

The constable's dismissal was thereupon deleted from the report. A meeting between the police commite and association could be possible.

Moira Cottagers Planning Meeting

Plans are under way for a public meeting in Madoc to discuss steps necessary to press for decisive action for the control of arsenic seepage from the abandoned smelter site at Deloro into the Moira River.

Executive members of the Moira Cottagers Association for Clean Water met last week at the Deloro smelter site and report evidence of continuing seepage of arsenic directly into the river.

It was noted that a good deal of work has been done in recent weeks to cover some sources of the arsenic contamination with land fill.

Despite this, however, it was stated seepage continued through porous slag in backfilled areas and from arsenic tailings directly behind a retaining wall.

Planning Staff May Be Decided

The problem of acquiring a staff for the Quinte Area Planning Board may be resolved at the 8 p.m. Thursday meeting with tabling of recommendations from the personnel committee.

Board chairman Jack M. Bain today stated the personnel committee, which completed its recommendations for the position of Planning Director, with selection of Bert Kenny as the board's choice, will table suggestions for hiring of two or three professional planners, one or two planning technicians, a draftsman, a planning administrator to serve as secretary treasurer, a secretary or chief stenographer and one or two stenographers or clerk-typists.

At the same time, selection of a home for the planning board could be decided with recommendations to be received from the policy committee.

Indian Dancers To Perform Friday

Belleville will have an opportunity to see the Mohawk Indian dancers from Tyendinaga Reserve this Friday night in Centennial Secondary School auditorium.

They will be performing in a variety show in benefit of the Council House Fund. The fund is now $8,891 along the way towards its objective of $50,000 to rebuild the Council House destroyed by fire last month.

About 20 acts, most of them local, will be featured in the variety show. In addition to the Indian dancers, who will present authentic traditional dances and music of the Iroquois Nation and other North American tribes, Miss Eveleen Hill will dance. Other performers are Al Baldwin, Linda Loft, Freddy Stone, violinist and Lorne Simpson from Aldervills as master of ceremonies.

The show starts at 8 p.m. Friday night and tickets are available at McKnight's Variety Store on Front St. at 12. Tickets are also available at V and Z Market, Deseronto.

US Explains

A recent article on this page in which Henry Gablinger, described as an advisor on resources to President Nixon, was quoted as saying in effect that a resources-hungry United States was reaching the point it might have to annex Canada, by force if necessary, has prompted an answer from the United States Information Service in Ottawa.

The article, said to have been first published in "The Examiner, an American journal," came to our attention in The Kingston Whig-Standard. Reprinted on The Intelligencer's editorial page, the article created some stir locally — and evidently farther afield — as might be expected of inferences that Canada's indebtedness to the U.S. was such that it should stand aside and permit a U.S. takeover.

If it seemed a little radical, even preposterous, we had no reason to suppose that the article, its author and the publication were phoney. It appears, however, that this may have been the case, and we are publishing the USIS information in order to correct any misunderstanding or false impression created by the article.

USIS Press Attache Elinor Green advises us that a search through three of the most complete and authoritative guides to American periodicals reveals no publication called "The Examiner, an American journal." Furthermore, "Henry Gablinger" is unknown at the White House, no one of that name being employed as an advisor or otherwise on the President's staff.

The statements attributed to "Mr. Gablinger," the U.S. official concludes, "do not represent my Government's policies or attitudes toward Canada. The United States continues to be dedicated to maintaining the close and friendly relations that have long existed between the peoples and Governments of our two sovereign nations."

We are happy to concur with the above sentiments, while regretting that we evidently were taken for a ride by the article on "Mr. Gablinger," whoever he may be.

City Progresses

The opening of the Quinte Mall shopping complex later this month will be the beginning of another chapter in the economic life of Belleville. It will mean competition for the other plazas, supermarkets and downtown area and this should be to the advantage of all.

It is with some concern however that we witness the apparent demise of one or two businesses on the fringe of the downtown shopping area, — a gas station on Dundas Street between Pinnacle and Front, and a tire business across the street from it. The move to the Quinte Mall will also leave vacant premises on Front Street. At the same time they represent opportunities for others.

Now could be the time to give the downtown area a fresh boost with new enterprises. It could be a restaurant, a coffee bar, a boutique or whatever. What opportunities there might be here for the youthful initiative has been behind many such an establishment in Britain and Europe. Why not here? True there was a boutique on Bridge Street but we see it has closed down. A good location, capital, atmosphere, and of course public support are essential ingredients of such enterprises. Not to mention a degree of color and design and friendliness. A welcoming atmosphere has much to do with the success of any new venture.

Belleville is now broadening its field of opportunity in this regard. As the city grows it must pay more attention to qualities such as we have mentioned. It needs to show a still greater welcoming spirit than before. We need more of an aura of glamor as we begin to shed the small town image. It is one thing to grow, to have more facilities, new industries, homes and all the rest of it. It is another to match these with a commensurate degree of sophistication.

Sick ... Sick

Society unhappily has its varying degrees of sick behavior, and by sick of course we mean the psychological variety. Ever heard for instance of the types who give their dogs marijuana and LSD? There are such and they were mentioned on a New York-based television program the other day by a woman who trains dogs. Dogs on pot, LSD or whatever, she will not accept, for they react the same way as humans do who are so afflicted. It seems the ones on pot get high from breathing the smoke of people having their joints.

Opposition Leader Has Gag Man On Staff

Humor Is Robert Stanfield's New Weapon

By RICHARD JACKSON
OTTAWA — So Conservative Leader Robert Stanfield is starting to come through as a very funny character.

Not sexy, exactly.

For he always did have a quiet sense of humor.

Trouble is that he has been just a bit shy in letting it show.

But what may be news is that the Conservative Leader has a gag-writer, former radio comedian and hot-mike man now devoting his considerable talents to dreaming up Stanfield punch-lines.

The Tory gag-man, who specialises in what he calls "one-liner befos," is William Grogan a moon-faced professional comic who has made a career of taking a serious — and socko — approach to humor.

The way Willy Grogan sizes up his subject is that at heart Robert Stanfield is a fun-guy, but lets the good, grey, sober, sides and usually dreadfully boring traditional image of the professional politician get in the way.

"Canadians and Canadian politicians," he says, "always have taken their politics too seriously."

His rushes on to explain that he does not mean politics — taxes is another word for it — is not a serious business.

What he does mean is that there still has to be room for laughter with politicians laughing at themselves and with others — "If the taxpayers are going to stand for all the political nonsense that goes on at their expense.

He compares Finance Minister and his attempts to heal the wounds and cure the ills of the Canadian economy to an eccentric doctor examining a patient.

"Old Doc Benson," says Stanfield, poker-faced, but dropping that trick eyelid, "looks over the patient and asks 'have you ever had this before?'

"The patient replies 'yes, back in the years of the Great Depression, and Doc, does it ever hurt.'

Like any good stand-up comedian, Robert Stanfield uses a story — about Benson, or maybe it is about State Secretary Pelletier and those wildly peculiar youth "programs" or could be Agriculture Minister Bud Olson and how he is afraid to venture west of the Lakehead except in disguise — to warm up his audience.

Or maybe "Mitchell Sharp is supposed to have resigned with other Cabinet dropouts, trouble is, though they could not figure out what he was up to."

Or could be "We should have known all along that the Prime Minister would never marry Barbra Streisand because he had telling it would be a big no place in the bedrooms of the nation."

Or how about "Toronto didn't really mind Margaret Trudeau going on that Montreal shopping spree, since they know that the rest of the country's money was all being spent there anyway."

Best of all, Robert Stanfield has the great and unusual gift of being able to laugh at himself, and there are precious few politicians who can bring themselves to hold their self-esteemed dignity in anything this side of awe.

"The group in the New Democratic party which is always raising cain with the NDP establishment and getting lost out in far left field is known as the Waffle.

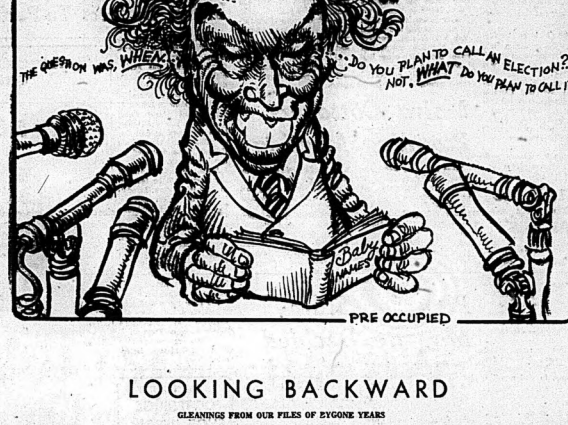
"Here in the Progressive Conservative party the people who are clobbering their leaders each other are known as those who do not fall into line with a hundred different opinions and positions on every issue."

Corny? Well, sometimes, and who is not?

But funny.

And through laughter not able only to warm up the audience, but even in an indirect way, with a skilfully human touch, stir sympathy, and best of all, arouse support.



Nobody else in Parliament can compete.

David Lewis is a lot of things, but amusing is not one of them.

Pierre Trudeau?

Ever hear him laugh?

Is This Trip Necessary?

Ottawa Journal

Northern Affairs Minister Chretien announces with all trumpets sounding a trip to the Soviet Union; maybe sometime, we are told, because of Prime Minister Trudeau's visit this spring. How naive does he take Canadians to be?

As Minister of Northern Affairs, Chester Lang travelled the Russian North, yes, even into Norilsk and into Siberia before Trudeau went there. Lang felt no restrictions because the Prime Minister had not signed that over - blown "protocol." The Russians will allow Chretien to see what they want him to see, probably not.

But why this trip? How many must see the Russian north for themselves? There is not that much left to know about Soviet Northern development to justify his visit. The mystery is out.

It doesn't require a trip to Russia to learn how the Soviet Union takes care of its native people, especially since Chretien is not even sure whether he will see any Eskimos! If there is still some technical information Canadians would like to have, officials should go. They are much more competent to receive and evaluate it than Chretien. Air Canada flies to Moscow every week.

But no, we are to have another grand ministerial tour, the taxpayer's expense bucket. Chretien has a yen to see it all for himself. He should be spending his travelling time in the Canadian North looking at the results of his own department's policies.

Court Sentences Under Fire

You Can Get More for Speeding Than for Assaulting Someone

Editor,
The Intelligencer.

Having read your editorial comment of July 31 regarding the beating of a Belleville restaurateur, I feel compelled to comment.

As I recall the reporting of the incident in your paper at the time, some men went to a Belleville restaurant and found it closed. The door was then smashed and the restaurateur was viciously beaten.

If I understand your editorial correctly, a man with a past record of violence was found guilty of the assault and was fined $20. I find this penalty to be so reprehensible as to deserve the wrath of the community, (A business associate of mine was fined in excess of $80 for driving 50 MPH in a 30 MPH zone. Is that a more serious offence than beating another human for no reason?)

At a time when respect for the law is dwindling, I should think an effort would be made to hand out penalties that would serve as a deterrent to those who would intimidate others and resort to violence without reason.

I readily admit that I do not know the facts of this incident in their entirety. I would therefore, welcome an explanation in the press by those responsible for the administration of justice as to the leniency in this incident. It is my opinion and the opinion of many others that the public deserves an explanation.

Disgusted.

Editors Note: There was no mention in our July 21 court account of any door being smashed. However the proprietor's glasses were broken. One youth testified that proprietor Sendy Jung admitted several people to the restaurant who were attending a private party at 1 a.m., but swung the door shut on him and his friends. The assault in which the proprietor's glasses were broken followed this encounter.

It comes as a shock to learn from the Canadian Appliance Manufacturers' Association that abandoned or disused refrigerators, freezers and the like bears continue to take a toll of children's lives.

For a number of years, all Canadian-built refrigerators and freezers have been equipped with a safety door that can be pressure released from the inside. In addition, most of 625,000 units sold this year bear this warning: "Protect your children. When discarding or storing your old refrigerator or freezer remove the door."

If removing the door is not feasible, householders are urged to block the door open permanently or chain it shut.

Merchants Balk at Parking Body Job

PICTON (Staff) — Picton merchants remain reluctant to serve on a recently proposed parking commission until specific information is provided governing its operations.

Ronald Scott, a Main Street businessman, attended Tuesday's session of town council to deny a Picton press report stating merchants were "dragging their heels".

Mr. Scott said he was a representative of Picton merchants and has spoken with many of them recently concerning the parking commission discussed at a general meeting last month. Most are unwilling to serve until they gain specific details involving their rights in alteration of present parking schemes and in the control of meter funds.

Picton merchants also are asking what remunerations they can expect to receive for serving on the commission.

Mr. Scott said the businessmen did not feel all required information was contained in a bylaw for establishment of a parking authority placed before council Tuesday night.

Councillor William Lane who reported on a special meeting between merchants and members of the planning and development committee July 14, said he was "a little disappointed" interest has been expressed in compensation.

"If they go into it with the attitude it's a money-making scheme they might as well forget it. It's to assist them and the town and it's an opportunity for them to render a public service."

Council agreed to defer reading the bylaw for establishment of the parking authority until interested merchants have obtained additional information.

A special meeting between council and merchant representatives will be scheduled before the next regular session of council and will be followed by a general meeting of merchants and professional persons on Aug. 5.

At the latter meeting, duties of the parking commission will be described and a list of volunteers will be requested.

Mr. Scott said today that a list of approximately 10 names will be presented to council at its September session. Councillors will select three volunteers from the list to serve on the new parking authority.

People. A guaranteed investment.

The history of Canada was written by generations of tough, self-reliant people who came here with the same determination to build something worthwhile.

Think of the incredible difficulties that faced the immigrants who first settled here. Read about the Canadians who literally forged this country together a hundred years ago, in mile after impossible mile of railroad track. And remember the challenge of Expo '67. How many people even dreamed that Canadians could put on the greatest show the world has ever seen?

People like that are still the most important resource we have. Unemployment is a waste of that resource — a waste that affects every one of us, at every income level. If we can find enough confidence in ourselves to grow the jobs we need, we'll all be better off for it. As a nation, we'll be producing more and selling more. As individuals, we'll be earning more and buying more.

Something else. When we give people a chance to build — a chance to fulfil themselves — we also give them pride and a sense of achievement. And those are gifts too valuable to be measured in dollars and cents.

Government policies and programmes can create a climate for growth. But Governments can't legislate public confidence. Nor can they control the private initiative and enterprise which will finally determine how far and how fast Canada grows. That's up to individual Canadians.

What are our chances?

Most economists agree that Canada is beginning a new period of growth. In the past year, we've contained inflation more successfully than any other country with a free economy.

Things are moving. Companies are expanding. Opportunities are opening up.

But we can still do much better. How much better depends on all of us; on how much we want to succeed.

We have the people. We have the skills. Now we'll find out if we also have what it takes to make use of them.

What Canada Manpower Centres can do.

Canada Manpower is the operating arm of the Department of Manpower and Immigration, responsible for the development and utilization of our human resources.

In other words, their business is matching people with job opportunities. Last year, for example, they helped more than 700,000 Canadians find work.

There are 390 Canada Manpower Centres across the country, all linked by Telex so that they work together as one cohesive force.

They can arrange the training and retraining of workers and help them relocate in opportunity areas. They also have access to the researchers, the economists and the statisticians needed by business and industry to take full advantage of existing opportunities and to create new ones.

Canada Manpower Centres are there to help every way they can.

What Canadian businessmen can do.

Our economy depends on the enterprise and energy of the private sector to create new wealth and employment. There has rarely been a better time (or a more urgent need) to translate that fact into meaningful action.

Now — when thousands of skilled people are ready and anxious to go to work.

Now — when there are Government programmes available to help with all kinds of business expansion plans.

Canada's economic future is very much in your hands. The real stimulus for growth must come from your initiative and your confidence in the future of this country.

What Canadian workers can do.

A Canada Manpower Centre is also the place to go if you're underemployed. If you're interested in learning a new trade or up-grading your present skills — the counsellors there can tell you all about Government sponsored retraining programmes. (In these days of constant technological change, they can make all the difference in the world to your future).

And if you want to find out about employment opportunities in other parts of the country — Canada Manpower is the place to get answers.

If you fit any of these categories, and haven't already registered with a Canada Manpower Centre, then do so now.

What the Canadian people can do.

Right now, personal savings are at a ten-year high. Which simply means that people have been careful about spending — as people always are when times are difficult.

There's much less reason for that caution today. What's needed now is the kind of confidence that will persuade people to make those expenditures they've been postponing. Because when people start spending, manufacturers will be encouraged to expand into new markets and new product areas.

That's what keeps the economy moving. And that's what grows jobs.

Have we got what it takes to grow the jobs we need?

THE LITTLE WOMAN

Trudeau Takes Stand

Canada Will Not Back U.S. Two-China Policy

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld. (CP) — Prime Minister Trudeau said in St. John's today Canada will not support a United States proposal for a two-China policy in the United Nations.

Mr. Trudeau made the statement Wednesday in reply to questions at a news conference during a stopover with Mrs. Trudeau in St. John's on an Atlantic provinces tour.

The prime minister and his wife Margaret left here shortly after 2 p.m. NDT aboard the coast guard ship Sir William Alexander for a 24-hour voyage to St. Anthony near Newfoundland's northern tip.

Mr. Trudeau said Canada had told the U.S. "we would in no way support any resolution that could be considered a two-China policy."

Asked about the U.S. plan to oppose any move to oust Nationalist China from the UN, he said the matter would be decided by bargaining.

Canada had adopted a one-China policy when it recognized the Peking government.

The U.S. announced Monday it would support the seating of mainland China in the UN but would ask the General Assembly this fall to allow Nationalist China to retain its seat.

Eighteen countries supporting Peking have submitted a resolution that would expel representatives of Chiang Kai-Shek's Nationalist government on Formosa from the UN.

The resolution would have the General Assembly recognize the People's Republic of China as the only legitimate representative of the country.

Mr. Trudeau also said he may take a day out to visit President Tito when he visits Yugoslavia on vacation later this month.

Turkey Recognizes Communist China

ANKARA (AP) — Turkey recognized Communist China today and simultaneously cut off relations with the Nationalist government on Taiwan.

"The Turkish government recognizes that the government of the People's Republic of China is the sole legal government of China," the foreign ministry said in a statement.

The foreign ministry said Turkey will vote for admission of Communist China to the United Nations but will oppose expulsion of the Nationalists.

Mr. Trudeau said there also was a possibility he would go to Britain for discussions with Prime Minister Edward Heath, but no firm arrangements for a speech had been worked out.

Mrs. Margaret Trudeau was more than an hour behind schedule when they reached St. John's after a Canadian Forces Transport Military Dan Jamieson.

A planned flight to St. John's by helicopter was cancelled by fog in the Swift Current area.

Late today the party scheduled to visit the International Peace Garden, a floral display on the Saskatchewan-North Dakota border. Mrs. Trudeau also was scheduled to visit the Assiniboine Park Zoo in Winnipeg.

A helicopter visit to Elbow Lake, Sask., near the province's southern boundary of Northern Lake, also was scheduled.

They are to arrive in Corner Brook Friday aboard the ship and later fly to Port aux Basques, doubling back to Stephenville late in the day to rejoin the Sir William Alexander and head for Charlottetown.

Navy Gives Answer To Guard

SIR WILLIAM ALEXANDER (CP) — A needling remark about the navy by a mischievous Coast Guard man has touched off a light-hearted war of words between the two marine services.

The Canadian Coast Guard icebreaker Sir William Alexander is carrying Prime Minister Trudeau and his wife on a tour of Atlantic Canada.

Captain Earl Jenner of Dartmouth, N.S., and his crew are clearly proud that their normally unsung service was selected for the prime ministerial tour.

A few days ago one Coast Guard officer ribbed that if Mrs. Trudeau had gone with the Canadian navy on the Atlantic tour, "there would have been six ratings standing at attention in their quarters night and day and a half-dozen officers fussing around them."

"But think of the service," the navy shot back in signal code to Captain Jenner Wednesday after publication of the Coast Guard man's remarks.

The signal was fired from the navy destroyer Margaree. Although the exchange was light-hearted, Captain Jenner and others were worried that the navy might be taking it seriously.

"After all we all go down to the sea in ships together," said Captain Fergus Mills of the transport department's marine operations branch in Ottawa, who is staff officer on board for the Trudeau voyage. "We have more in common with the navy than we have differences."

Council Is Sued Over Arena

PORT STANLEY, Ont. (CP) — Residents have launched legal action against village council, demanding that $20,000 for construction of a community centre be returned to the public.

Harold Rayner, a 65-year-old retired labor leader now living here and chairman of a ratepayers' committee, said Wednesday that summonses have been handed to the reeve, members of council and the village clerk-treasurer.

These demand they appear in court within 10 days to answer a statement of claim that they acted beyond their legal powers in steps taken late last year and earlier this year in planning for the proposed construction of the $200,000 centre.

Reeve Speers said Wednesday night: "There won't be anything settled out of court. I can assure you. We were elected to make decisions, we made them and we're going to stick by them.

"We're quite convinced of the stand taken and we're prepared to back it up even if it takes six months of litigation to do it."

Of the 900 ratepayers, 450 have signed a petition against the use of public funds.

In the statement of claim the ratepayers allege council's action in setting up a committee to study the feasibility of building an arena and subsequent steps taken to hire an architect and transfer $20,000 surplus municipal funds to the arena building fund was done without passage of proper bylaws.

Bus Windows Broken

BRANTFORD (CP) — Several windows of a school bus containing about 30 persons were smashed Wednesday when it crossed picket lines to leave the strikebound Texpack Ltd. plant.

Kent Rowley, national president of the Canadian Textile and Chemical Union representing 180 workers who walked out July 15, said the bus carried strikebreakers hired in Hamilton.

A provincial police car followed the bus out of the city towards Hamilton. Several car loads of striking workers also followed.

The union met in Toronto Tuesday with company representatives for the first time since the strike began.

Kep Dafoe, general manager of Texpack, said he called the meeting to find out why the strikers "are so anti-American."

Cabinet Flees Ottawa During Summer Recess

OTTAWA (CP) — Every weekday this month Environment Minister Charlie Mayer steps into a roadside phone booth, straddles the door, inserts a dime and calls his Ottawa office over the roar of passing lumber trucks.

The telephone is a few miles from his ranch—which has no phone—deep in the British Columbia interior, where he is spending his vacation.

Mr. Davis, his cabinet colleagues and a good part of the senior public service stay away from Ottawa in droves in August, leaving the city to the tourists.

The cabinet wound up its summer business at 5 p.m. last Friday, after a marathon month of committee meetings and full-dress cabinet sessions.

Next day, they began to scatter across the country and overseas on summer vacations.

They will convene again just before the Commons resumes Tuesday, Sept. 7, after a two-month summer recess.

Most leave strict instructions with their staff not to disclose their destinations.

External Affairs Minister Mitchell Sharp's aides, for example, will only say that he is off for two weeks on a trip that will include stops in Israel.

Justice Minister John Turner will spend some time at his summer home near St. Andrews, N.B., but will also travel outside the country.

Consumer Affairs Minister Ron Basford is somewhere in northern British Columbia, and Energy Minister J. J. Greene is at a Rocky Mountains resort.

Transport Minister Don Jamieson's office says he will visit his Burin-Burgeo riding in Newfoundland after accompanying the Trudeaus on their Atlantic tour. Between then and September they "can't say."

Prime Minister and Mrs. Trudeau will tour Europe for about two weeks. But apart from a visit to Yugoslavia, where Mr. Trudeau will meet Marshal Tito, his office is keeping the itinerary private.

Other ministers are not as secretive about their vacation plans.

Horses Are Princesse's First Love

LONDON (AP) — For the moment, it looks as if horses are more important than men in Princess Anne's life.

She will be 21 Aug. 15, and is sometimes called the world's most eligible blonde. But her main aim right now is to ride in the Olympics next year.

Anne began riding at three and has loved horses ever since. For three years she has been training intensely in jumping.

Allison Oliver, her coach, comments: "Even if her name was Anne Bloggs, I would say that she is good enough to ride for Britain in top international events."

Anne lives in the goldfish bowl. British publications record her merest frown or gaffe.

The treatment can upset boyfriends. The princess went to see the musical Hair with London sugar broker Sandy Harper, 22. She made headlines by jumping on-stage to dance with the cast.

Harper later dropped out of view because, friends said, of the strain of squiring a princess who is constantly under reporters eyes.

Anne once said that she "might just fall in love at first sight."

Her aunt, Princess Margaret, wed photographer Tony Armstrong Jones—now Lord Snowdon—at the idea of marrying someone not of royal blood is no novelty.

Ann Landers

Bad Writing Cause Of Many Problems

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Since you see more crazy handwriting, fuzzy spelling, undecipherable signatures and convoluted sentence structure than anyone in the world, you should be especially sympathetic to my problem.

I work for a direct mailing company. Every day we receive hundreds of mail order requests for gifts and articles. If we can't read an address we guess. If the writing is so bad that we can't even guess, we must throw away the letter. Within a week (the time allowed for delivery), we usually receive a nasty blast accusing us of being crooks, threatening us with the law, etc. Here is a sample:

ANN LANDERS

Dear Sir: Where is my catalog? What kind of a racket are you running anyway? If I don't get the catalog or my money back within a week I am going to the law. And hurry up because we are moving.

The signature looks like T. Myntzkitz. It might also be B. Hamlehy). There is no address, no zip code, nothing to help us.

Also a word to the postmen: Please, when there is a change of address, don't obliterate the old address. We need it so we can erase it from our computer tape. Also, Mr. Postman, please print the new address so everyone can read it — not just you. Thanks a heap. — KEYED UP KEY-PUNCHER.

DEAR KEYED: I know exactly what you are up against. Every now and then some irate reader accuses me of absconding to Mexico with the IRS and your book-lists. I hope a million folks out there get the message. Thanks for writing — in penmanship I could read.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Five years ago our third child died of pneumonia when I was pregnant with the fourth. The anxiety and shock caused me to have a miscarriage. Eighteen months later I had a fifth child. Then when I attend P.T.A. or civic functions and someone asks how many children we have and what their ages, I say 15, 13 and 3. Invariably someone will laugh and make a crude remark such as, "Wow ten years apart! Ho. Ho. Ho. Never say die, eh!"

I would never embarrass anyone by setting him straight but perhaps if you print this letter it will educate people to be more careful about their cute remarks. — MRS. S. KEARNY, N.Y.

DEAR MRS. S.: Sorry, in my opinion you are letting the clods off too easily. I think you ought to say, "We lost two before our youngest was born," and watch them stumble all over themselves apologizing.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Our daughter received, as a graduation gift, a box of homemade candy dusting powder. The woman who sent it is a close friend of mine. The powder was obviously something she had received during a recent illness. I was hurt. I was also ashamed of myself for having put a dollar value on our friendship. Suddenly it occurred to me what really bothered me was her lack of thought. I hope you will tell your readers that those who don't care for good much can select some useful but inexpensive items. What counts is that some effort goes into the gift selection. For the bride: linen guest-gents, gaily colored paper plates, dish towels. For the graduate:

In time I will forgive my friend but my feelings for her will never be the same. I hate the fact that I shall never forget this petty incident. It makes me petty too. Thanks for letting me express my bitterness. — ONLY HUMAN.

DEAR HUMAN: Some people have a cheap streak when it comes to gifts. Your friend is obviously one of these people. I can say nothing to improve the situation so I will simply say I'm glad I served a useful purpose.

". . . Serious adverse reactions from use of marijuana (apprehension, panic-stricken states, toxic psychosis, thought disorganization, hallucinations lasting for days or weeks) occur with greater frequency and several consequences than suggested in the LeDain Interim Report . . . To legalize marijuana now could be disastrous in our present state of knowledge . . ." — Dr. F. W. Lindell, Assoc. Professor of Psychiatry, McGill University.

Marijuana and the traffic dangers are connected inescapably. A student smoked 2½ joints of marijuana and then drove a car, with reactions recorded on a tape recorder. Pissed himself wearing the car back and forth, having difficulty in braking, in being aware when the red light changed to green; then felt he was driving on his head. He became greatly alarmed and frightened.

With the help of his companion he was able to drive to the side of the road and stop the car. When a traffic officer came along the two merely explained they were changing drivers and the officer was unable to detect the fact that the driver was delighted.

Intoxication on an alcoholic beverage would never have gone unobserved, yet the marijuana "high" was the more dangerous.

Dear Doris: My daughter of 20 has part time work, has borrowed money from her father, drinks, smokes, stays out all hours of the night. She pays no board, does nothing at home except grudgingly and is not even pleasant with her brothers and sisters. Surely her family should expect the courtesy that one would show to strangers.

How can we approach the matter so that at least we can begin to communicate?

— At Odds.

Dear At Odds: Time you laid down the law. Since you need the money — and she needs to pay it — simply let her know that either find a full - time job and start paying board or move out.

Demand courtesy, too, and some willingness to keep things pleasant. Also insist that she account for herself when she goes out. When she sees that you really mean it she may go flop out" she may be lured into mending her ways. Complete indepen dence away from home would be much harder on her.

Firm discipline is a part of security. Don't let your daughter remain at loose ends at this crucial point in her life.

Dear Doris: I am trying to find a humorous reading about someone's first ball game. I find it hard to find humorous readings and I do think it would be good for people if they could laugh more. Dear Ballgame:

Dear Ball Game: If it is the one where the man shouts, "He caught a fly!" And the wife retorts that she would think he had more to do out there than swat flies. I've heard and enjoyed it too.

But my research department could not turn it up without more detail re author or title. Readers, can you come to the rescue?

Confidential to Worried Mother: Never scold your little boy for getting the hole in Emerald pants hereditary; and seven out of 10 bedwetters are boys. Probably other boys in your husband's family used to wet their beds.

Pissing diapers in the Dionne-year-old would do no harm, and it would cut down on the laundry. If you use those plastic pants with the diapers. Sometimes the problem clears up overnight for no apparent reason. I'm sending you my 18-cent leaflet on Bedwetting Dilemma.

Leaflets mentioned by Doris are available to readers for 10 cents and a large seven-envelope, unless otherwise cent-stamped, self - addressed specified.

Introduce Cleopatra to Caesar at Your Party!

By MARY MOORE

With flair and showmanship the waiter wheeled his hostess trolley up to our table and before our eyes made a Caesar Salad for which the restaurant is famous. I enjoyed his flourishes and panache and the resultant salad. So once I was home I made it too but I had to add Cleopatra to the scene for one of my guests sitting in the kitchen watching me said "There's a lot of rabbit food in that." So in went a tomato and some other embellishments. I served it in individual salad bowls and we all ate ours before we ate our hot main course waiting (and getting cool) on our dinner plates.

CAESAR AND CLEOPATRA SALAD (serves 5)

1¼ cups diced (¼") whole wheat bread
¼ cup oil (I used safflower because it has no flavor)
¼ tsp. garlic salt
3 cups shredded lettuce or romaine
4 medium radishes thinly sliced
1 small green onion finely sliced
½ cup chopped pared cucumber
1 tomato chopped
1 medium egg, raw
¼ cup grated Parmesan cheese

Into a medium frypan measure the oil, bread dice and garlic salt and cook stirring until bread cubes absorb oil and begin to brown. Remove from heat.

In large bowl combine all remaining ingredients and add sauteed bread cubes plus any surplus oil. With two large forks toss salad ingredients being sure egg is thoroughly distributed. Wipe down sides of bowl and serve by portion evenly into five wooden salad bowls.

NOTES: 1) This salad does not require any additional dressing. 2) Caesar and Cleopatra Salad should be served and eaten promptly otherwise the bread cubes which should be crisp become soggy. 3) If you prefer omit all vegetable salad ingredients except lettuce or cucumber and substitute one whole garlic clove, chopped, for the garlic salt in the oil in the frypan.

POINTS FOR PARENTS

BY MARY BRYSON

Someone once made a survey as to what item of furniture a child wants most. A desk of his own was the most asked for item on the list — preferably a desk with drawers where the small owner could lock his treasures away. The desire for a private spot of his own seems to be almost inborn in the human race.

Two-China Policy Hit

OTTAWA (CP) — The leader of the New Democratic Party Wednesday called on the Canadian government to "firmly reject the two-China policy now being proposed by the United States administration" in relation to United Nations membership.

David Lewis said it would be "unthinkable" to have the Communist representatives from Peking and Chiang Kai-shek's nationalist representatives from Taiwan both claiming to speak for the people of China. "Just nonsense."

The logical result from the admission of the Peking government to the UN "would be that Chiang-Kai-shek's government would no longer be there."

B.C. Town Residents Flee Fire

GOLDEN, B.C. (CP) — Most of the 150 residents of Donald fled their homes Wednesday night when a raging 26,000-acre forest fire roared to within 2½ miles of the small lumbering community 15 miles north of Golden.

"Family after family are loading up their pickup trucks and getting out as fast as they can," said Helen Drage, who lives on a small farm about a mile out of town.

"It was a terrible fight earlier in the day, but the wind is going down now and I think everything will be all right."

Forestry officials had warned of a possible evacuation, but most of the residents left on their own. The Drages and their daughter, however, decided to stick it out, at least until today.

"I'm not worried, but there isn't much else we can do," said Mrs. Drage. "We can't go off and leave our chickens and pigs."

Yugoslav Railway Mishap Kills 40

BELGRADE (CP) — At least 40 persons were reported killed and about 100 injured Wednesday night when a passenger train and a freight collided head-on in a curve southeast of this Yugoslav capital.

The casualties were all aboard the passenger train, a diesel short-haul motor train known as a rail bus.

The collision occurred less than 40 miles from Belgrade but in a remote area accessible to vehicular traffic only by rail. A crane was sent to the scene and brought casualties to the nearest station, where ambulances collected them. But the first group of injured did not reach hospitals until nearly five hours after the crash.

She served both in Korea and in Japan for 18 months as a special representative of the Canadian Red Cross.

Britain May Try Voluntary Restraints on Prices and Wages

LONDON (CP) — The shadowy outlines of possible voluntary restraints on price and wage increases may be emerging in inflation-weary Britain after several months of cautious reappraisal by all sectors of the economy.

But commentators today, although expressing usual optimism, repeated warnings that it will be at least several months before any firm evaluation of such a policy can be made.

Their remarks were prompted by the setting up of a committee composed of labor, government and management representatives to study inflation, unemployment and slow economic growth.

The committee, thought to be the first of its kind here, will make a full report in October. It was established by the National Economic Development Council, roughly similar to the Economic Council of Canada.

The move follows a recent decision by the powerful Confederation of British Industries to ask the country's 200 largest firms to limit voluntarily all price increases to a maximum of five per cent for a year.

The committee represents one of the first concrete steps taken by unions, management and government to co-operate in discussing major economic problems and possible solutions.

Many observers had predicted that labor would refuse to follow the Industries' initiative in much the same way that Canadian unions refused to formally commit themselves to a restraint formula outlined by the federal prices and incomes Commission.

But leaders of the 10-million member Trades Union Congress indicated Wednesday they will closely watch any slowdown in price increases and formulate future policy in light of the results.

The latest moves grow out of a series of recent events which have both increased public confidence and created a new soberness among many who had earlier shrugged off the need for restraint.

The government announced last month fairly wide reductions in consumer taxes, removal of controls on installment buying and new tax incentives for expanding industries. National industries have pledged to keep price increases to five per cent or less.

This, coupled with the possibility of restrictions on price increases, led to a degree of public optimism. Added to these measures is the government's assurances that entry into the European Common Market would spur industrial expansion and raise standards of living.

But countering these encouraging moves for British taxpayers, is a 2.4-per-cent seasonally-adjusted unemployment rate in July, considered an exceptionally high level in Britain.

Prices have increased as well by about 10 per cent over the last year, compounding the difficulties from unemployment.

Schreyer Expects Fiscal Questions To Take Third of Parley's Time

VICTORIA (CP) — Premier Ed Schreyer of Manitoba says fiscal questions will probably occupy one-third of the premiers' conference which opened here today.

During an impromptu news conference in a hotel lobby, Mr. Schreyer said Wednesday night he intends to talk about the impact of the new federal budget and Ottawa's decision to withdraw from estate tax.

He's also concerned about federal government plans to curtail spending on shared-cost programs in health care and education, a move which would leave the provinces with a greater share of the bill.

Asked what the first topic of discussion would be when the two-day conference opens at 10 a.m. PDT (1 p.m. EDT), Premier Allan Blakeney of Saskatchewan said he didn't know.

"But I understand that Mr. Strom (Alberta Premier Harry Strom) will be here for only one day and that efforts will be made to accommodate him."

Alberta is in the midst of an election campaign, with the Social Credit government seeking to remain in power Aug. 30.

Mr. Blakeney said one issue he will raise is the provision of education services to Indians.

He said Indians in Saskatchewan would like to take advantage of provincial education facilities, but are afraid that their treaty rights will be eroded if Ottawa surrenders jurisdiction over Indian education to the provinces.

Premier Gerald Regan of Nova Scotia said pollution is on the conference agenda.

"I wish there would be an agreement by the provinces on pollution, so that no province would be soft on pollution, and so that no province would be a pollution haven," Mr. Regan said.

He said he is concerned that a province might reduce its standards of pollution control in an attempt to attract industry.

Asked about the charter on the constitution worked out here in June and later rejected by Quebec, Mr. Regan said: "We all recognized that there was a possibility of rejection although we thought that we had a formula that was susceptible to agreement."

Kindly Mrs. Frith Has Right Idea

by

Maurice Switzer

Sports Editor

When Inger Frith, a fifty-ish, white-haired little old lady from England says something about sport, the whole world should sit up and listen.

Mrs. Frith is one of those nice old ladies car salesmen are always trying to tell you owned the used lemon you are about to buy. But she rules the Federation of International Target Archers with a goodly iron fist.

Belleville's Carol Armstrong was one of the 117 competitors at last week's World Archery Championships who perked up their ears at Mrs. Frith's closing remarks.

"When you finish one-hundredth here, it doesn't mean you're the one-hundredth worst archer ... it means you're the hundredth best in the whole world," Mrs. Frith told the assembly. Considering the waves of elimination tests world-calibre competitors must pass, there is more than a morsel of truth in Mrs. Frith's words.

Pep talks like that help people like Carol Armstrong remain optimistic. Instead of telling herself she and the other members of the Canadian women's team had fallen from second to eighth place since the last world shoot in 1969, the RR 5 Belleville housewife could console herself in the knowledge that, in the four world archery meets to which Canada has sent teams, the women's teams (three of which she has been a member), have never been out of the top five.

Little lectures like those by Mrs. Frith would undoubtedly help local fans keep a grip on all of the "amateur" athletes so deplorably ignored by many countries, but none so significantly as Canada.

Mrs. Armstrong was discouraged enough from lack of financial encouragement from any quarter that a year and a half ago she up and quit the sport in which she won two national titles.

Husband Floyd talked her out of retirement and she finished a nifty second at last month's Canadian championships in British Columbia after a scant few weeks' practice.

Some Practice, Others Preach

But the spirit of Mrs. Frith — the spirit which the Avery Brundages and Bunny Ahearnes of the world preach but very seldom practice — has helped a once dejected Illusioned Carol Armstrong draw a very determined bow towards the 1972 Munich Olympics.

Carol will not return to work but instead resume her four-hour daily practice sessions. "Floyd has agreed to let me spend from now until next July trying to make the Olympic team," she says.

At meets between now and then, including a three-day Belleville Labor Day shoot, Carol must register four rounds of 1,050 of the maximum 1,440 in the 144-arrow FITA round to qualify for Canada's Olympic team. The world-recognized round involves women's distances of 70, 60, 50, and 30 metres at four-foot targets with four-inch "bulls'-eyes."

She missed by a scant five points at last month's Canadian championships, and by 23 and 32 points in her two world shoot rounds, although she has shot 1,122 and 1,080 previously.

Not an excuse-maker by nature, Carol thinks she might have done better in her two rounds in England last week had it not been for the archer's nemesis — weather. "The temperature never went above about 68, and it rained so hard Saturday we could hardly see the targets. In the closing ceremony, we marched through mud up to our ankles."

No Cold Pants Here

Spectators were wearing parkas and ski jackets. The women competitors wanted to don slacks, but kindly old Mrs. Frith laid down the law. "It wasn't lady-like, she said," Carol mused. "Actually, our slacks were pretty dressy, but the Mongolian girls had pants that looked like track suits and Mrs. Frith wouldn't have disallowed theirs and nobody else's."

In addition to the two pieces of Wedgewood china she earned for ranking 35th among the world's 61 best women archers, Carol Armstrong brought home memories to add to those she can summon up by a glance at the seven-foot-tall trophy case in her living room.

"We were so proud of the Canadian men (they finished third, their best-ever showing), and everybody seemed so polite to the Canadians."

Then more optimism. "We're not really doing too badly. We've only had women's teams in the world championships since 1965 and never finished lower than eighth. And now there are a lot more countries than ever before (46).

Carol Armstrong also brought home a rumor that she hopes is false. "We heard that archery is being dropped from the '76 Olympics in Montreal because it isn't considered a priority sport in Canada. They're just putting it in next year at Munich for the first time since the Thirties.

"It'd be a shame if they took it out at Montreal. We've been doing so well — and Canadians don't win that many medals in any sport."

Tough Feet Help

By ERIC EMERSON
Sports Staff

What are the requirements to conduct a province - wide water skiing clinic? Well, as Harold Townsend can tell you, besides the knowledge of skiing and the ability to convey this knowledge to others there are a few more prerequisites — like tough feet.

The former Quinte Secondary School student, currently attending Guelph University, has been employed by the Canadian Water Skiing Association this summer to conduct a number of clinics throughout Ontario.

His orthopedic workout begins before he even reaches the site of the clinic, working the gas and brake pedals of the car provided by the skiing association. Because of insurance requirements, assistant Gary Sugden who is under 21 cannot share in the driving responsibilities. Townsend has put in thousands of miles at the steering wheel this summer as the pair have criss - crossed the province from Ottawa area to Sault Ste. Marie.

Once the pair reach their destination they are on skis for the greater part of the day giving lessons to beginners, improving the technique of accomplished skiers and putting on displays of trick and barefoot skiing.

Besides the regular wear and tear that the underpinnings are subjected to, the job also has occupational hazards like broken glass. Townsend was victimized by such a hazard in his home town yesterday incurring a deep cut while conducting a clinic at Zwick's Island. Despite the mishap he was able to put on a demonstration which included trick and barefoot skiing, while Sugden demonstrated the proper slalom technique.

A rather disappointing turnout of 11 pupils were on hand for the lessons, about one-half the number the clinic can accommodate.

While both instructors enjoy their work, there are drawbacks such as a tiring travel schedule and, suprisingly enough, little time for practice for competitions.

"You don't have a chance to practice that much," notes Harold, "because it's pretty tiring to ski all day, so the last thing you want to do when you finish the clinic is to water ski."

Despite the lack of concentrated practice the Belleville athlete has managed to win one of the three competitions that he has entered this season.

The twosome will continue to conduct clinics until Aug. 17. Sugden, a former Canadian Junior trick skiing champion will then compete in the national title events at Halifax.

Townsend passed up a chance to coach the Ontario team to take part in a water skiing show at the Canadian National Exhibition. The 23-year-old athlete will be competing in the Ontario championships Sunday, but even the chance for a provincial won't carry the significance that it ordinarily would, because of another major appointment that Harold has booked this weekend. He will be married Saturday afternoon.

Putting His Foot in It

While many people have their problems remaining upright while using both hands and feet, Harold Townsend shows how a little bit of practice can help you gain a toe-hold on water skiing. The former Belleville high school athletic standout is touring the province this summer under the banner of the Canadian Water Skiing Association, conducting clinics and demonstrations.

Kinsmen Fast Getting Out of Blocks

A quick start isn't only important in track as the Belleville Kinsmen Juniors proved in Wednesday night's opening OBA Junior A play-off game 7-4 win over Kingston.

The Juniors tallied all their runs within the first four innings and then sat back and held on. Four runs in the first inning on only one hit started the ball rolling for the Kinsmen. Two errors and two walks helped the Belleville spree.

Garnie Adams showed little effects of pitching his second game in as many nights as he picked up 18 strikeouts. He allowed eight hits and walked only one. Steve Bedard had a double and single and Glenn Carleton two singles to pace Belleville's eight-hit attack. The Kinsmen left 15 men stranded on base including three sets of loaded bases.

Lefty Rick Lone went the distance for Kingston, allowing eight hits and fanning eight. Seven Kingston errors ruined any hopes of victory. Jim Scullen and Jim Gidden had two singles apiece for the visitors.

Next-game in the best two of three series will be tonight in Kingston, with a return game next Sunday at the Fairgrounds if necessary.

Bond Secures Second Spot

Brooke Bond and The Intelligencer fish closed their seasons on a winning note last night placing them near the top of the congested Industrial Softball League standings.

Brooke Bond maintained their grip on second place with an 8-1 win over AOCO as Bob Chambers span a five-hitter against the Opticals. His teammates combed loser Dennis Genereaux for a dozen safeties to provide a comfortable winning margin.

Al Colden paced the winners with three singles, while Jack Wilson and Ken Tracz had two hits each. Alex Belch clubbed a triple and single for AOCO with teammate Doug Boomhower adding a pair of safeties.

The Intell overcame a 3-1 deficit to edge Morch Marine 6-4 and move into third place. Ron Colloden won the pitching decision over Wilson Bulph by firing seven - hit ball. Bulph allowed nine safeties, while striking out 10 batters.

Terry Hiddleston slammed two doubles and a triple for the winners while Bill Bulph connected for a triple and single and Bob Brooks blasted a double.

Larry Ell cracked three singles for the Mariners with Glen Reynolds powering a three-run homer to drive in all the losers' runs.

Cosy Girls Crowned

Dairy Queen gave the royal treatment to Cosy Grill by taking a 9-2 Women's Softball League decision last night.

Marianne Sills went the route for the winners while Sandy Claus and Sue Fobert were on the mound for Cosy.

Verna Hill crashed the only homer of the game for the losing team.

In another game, league-leading Weese's Flowers downed the Yardmen's Benefit Fund 21-12.

Nora and Donna Barberstock shared the pitching duties for the winners, who got three doubles from Irma Barberstock and Leah Harper's four singles.

Ellis Aces Too Much

It was a full house on Wednesday night's Belleville Minor Baseball schedule but a pair of aces were high in five of the six games.

James Forrester and Jonathon Dent were the aces in Richard Ellis' 12-3 win over Wannamaker's Esso in a tadpole game combining for a five-hitter and 18 strikeouts. The pair also had the big bats as Dent pounded out three homers and a single and Forrester a homer, double and single.

Lyle Kelleher and Jim McMullen fanned 21 and allowed only eight hits on the losers' mound.

The CN Yardmen rode the strong pitching of Henderson and Dent to a 19-6 tyke win over Hopkins Wreckers. The duo allowed just six hits and fanned ten. Lindsay Bradley had a triple and two singles and Henderson a triple and double for the winners.

Deserotto found their home field a friendly one as they stopped Farrell Motors 7-2 in one of two pewee games. Dan Punchard and Kevin Baker hurled the win giving up six hits and fanning nine. Wannamaker had a triple and single for Deserotto's big hits.

The hitters took over the limelight in the second pewee game of the night as the Golden Mile Restaurant bulldozed Fitzgibbon Construction 26-8. Paul Wood led the winners' 21-hit parade with two homers and three singles.

In a bantam game, Mel Barriages and Trenton batted to a 8-6 tie. Mike McClelland threw for Belleville, giving up only three hits and fanning 13. His triple was the only extra base hit for Barriages, who broke a streak of sorts when Real Murphy had his first hit of the season — a single.

Eskies, Stamps Win

Western Teams Get Kicks Late

By GERRY SUTTON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Edmonton Eskimos and Calgary Stampeders got their last-minute kicks Wednesday night for victories in two Canadian Football League games.

For the Eskimos, winning their first game in three starts, it was Dave Cutler's 39-yard field goal with 35 seconds remaining which gave Edmonton a 20-19 win over British Columbia Lions.

Bill Van Burkleo was the hero for the Stampeders with a 37-yard single at 14:11 of the fourth quarter, giving Calgary a 8-8 decision over Ottawa Rough Riders in an interlocking game before 22,351 fans.

Frank Andruski's interception on his own 52 and return to the Ottawa 23 which set up the winning point, brought an angry outburst from Frank Clair, general manager of the Rough Riders.

Clair said Andruski interfered with Hugh Oldham, attempting to catch the ball on a pass from quarterback Rick Casatia, and should have been called for defensive interference.

The Calgary game was highlighted by outstanding defensive play and fine kicking performances from punters Marcel de Leeuw and Van Burkleo.

DeLeeuw, traded to Ottawa earlier this year for Van Burkleo, punted 11 times for a 51.8 average and ignited Ottawa for the game's only touchdown when he recovered his own punt after Al Rankin fumbled on the Calgary 26.

Van Burkleo, who punted 10 times for a 46.2 average, also made a key first down when he picked up a loose ball on another punt attempt and scampered 33 yards. He also booted a 47-yard single in the second quarter.

Calgary picked up 20 first downs to Ottawa's 14, and had total yardage of 358 to the Roughies' 222.

In Edmonton before 19,816 fans, a rugged Eskimo defence set up the winning kick by holding B.C. on a third-down gamble on its own 35 with less than a yard to go.

Hits Highest Note

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Al Fitzmorris, Kansas City's singing pitcher, hit the high note of his baseball career with a 3-0 waltz Wednesday over the hokey hitting Minesota Twins after the Royals won the opener of a twi-night doubleheader, 2-1.

"This is the best game of my career — by far, the best," said Fitzmorris, who has done considerable song writing and singing for several years during the off season.

Fitzmorris was flirting with a no-hitter when Harmon Killebrew singled to lead off the seventh inning.

"That Harmon Killebrew kills me," said Fitzmorris. "Killebrew always causes me trouble . . ."

Fitzmorris hasn't had too much experience with victories in his three year major league career. Used primarily as a relief pitcher, his triumph Wednesday night was only the 12th in three seasons.

Until his two hitter Wednesday, Fitzmorris hadn't had that much success against Minnesota.

He started the Royals' winning rally with a single and came around on Joe Keough's triple to break a scoreless tie. Gail Hopkins then doubled home two more runs following a walk to Amos Otis.

In the opener, Dick Drago outlasted Bert Blyleven in a tough pitchers' duel. Hopkins knocked in the winning run to climax a two run first inning for Kansas City.

Dodgers Forgot Forsch, He Remembers Them

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Los Angeles Dodgers forgot Ken Forsch once before, but they remember him now.

Forsch, a rookie right-hander, hurled a four-hitter for Houston Astros Wednesday night, shutting out the Dodgers 2-0 and ending a five-game LA winning streak with his first major league shutout.

Elsewhere in the NL Wednesday, Cincinnati Reds shut out New York Mets 1-0, Atlanta Braves trimmed Philadelphia Phillies 5-3, Montreal Expos nipped Pittsburgh Pirates 4-3 in 11 innings, St. Louis Cardinals downed San Francisco Giants 7-2 and Chicago Cubs won two from San Diego Padres 6-4 in the completion of a suspended game and then 3-0 in the regularly-scheduled contest.

"The night before the draft, I got a phone call from somebody with the Dodgers," Forsch said. "They asked if I was interested and I said yes. That's the last I heard from them. Just one phone call, that's all."

The next day, the Astros chose him as their No. 18 selection in the regular phase of the draft and Wednesday night, the Dodgers remembered him.

The fall rookie was locked in a scoreless duel with veteran Al Downing until the sixth inning when the Astros struck for both their runs, ending a 31-inning scoreless streak.

The loss cost the Dodgers a chance to pick up ground on San Francisco, the NL's West-Division leaders. The Giants fell victim to Bob Gibson's 200th career victory, bowing on a seven-hitter.

Ted Hubiak slugged a three-run homer for the Cardinals as Gibson beat San Francisco for the 10th consecutive time. Only two other active pitchers, Juan Marichal of the Giants and Philadelphia's Jim Bunning, have passed the 200-victory plateau.

Gary Sutherland drilled an 11th-inning pinch single to move Montreal past Pittsburgh's East-Division leaders. Boots Day and Ron Brand had singled in front of Sutherland's deciding hit.

Bob Bailey drove in the Expos' first three runs with a sacrifice fly in the third inning and a bases-loaded single in the fifth. Manny Sanguillen homered for the Pirates.

Mike Lum's two-out, two-run single in the ninth inning gave Atlanta its victory over Philadelphia.

Humor Always Helps

By BRUCE LEVETT
Canadian Press Sports Editor

CALI, Colombia (CP) — A sense of humor is a necessity in covering an international games in a foreign tongue.

The Canadian reporters here for the Pan-American Games have had little exposure to Spanish—and that's the only language used for programs, results and news releases.

On the other hand, Cali has never played host to a major sports event on this scale and it's that city's first encounter with English-speaking journalists.

Consequently, in some situations, if you couldn't laugh you would just bust out crying.

Take the case of the chicken weightlifters.

A Canadian reporter, trying to make sense of a Spanish results sheet, called an interpreter.

"What's this word 'gallo'?," he asked.

"Means chicken," the interpreter explained.

"But there's no chicken—I mean chicken — class in weightlifting."

"Possibly a little chicken!"

And that, dear readers, is how you were able to learn the results of the bantamweight weightlifting competition.

Speaking of chickens, there was a chief caterer that used to welcome the tropic dawn stridently near the quarters of Canada's rifle team. Bruce Wilkins of Ancaster, Ont., was heard attempting to requisition a "box of wig-bangs" the day before the rooster fell silent forever.

Our Pentathlon Hopes Pack One-two Punch

By BRUCE LEVETT
Canadian Press Sports Editor

CALI, Colombia (CP) — Debbie Van Kickebelt and Penny May, packing a one-two punch they uncorked early in the pentathlon, assumed the favorite's role for a gold and silver medal today as the track and field competition finishes at the Pan-American Games.

Debbie and Penny, comparative newcomers in the gruelling five-event pentathlon, shot into the lead after the first three events Wednesday. First Penny was in front and then Debbie pulled away with a brilliant five-foot 6¼-inch effort in the high jump.

Miss Van Kickebelt, a 17-year-old Grade 12 student from Mississauga, Ont., held a 160-point lead over Miss May, a Victoria girl who is two years older than Debbie.

With the long jump and 200-metre dash still to come, Miss Van Kickebelt earned 2,316 points for her showing in the 100-metre hurdles, shot put and high jump.

Miss May scored 2,200 points for second place, losing the lead she held after the first two events when a 6-11 effort in the high jump cost her precious points.

The Americans already have clinched the over-all track and field title in the men's competition while the Canadian team still has the most gold in the women's competition—four. The U.S. women have three, and with just four of the 13 women's events left on the program, the windup could be close.

The United States just about mopped up everything in sight Wednesday, winning 36 of the 17 gold medals at stake in a variety of sports. In all, the Americans have taken 36 of 71 championships.

The Canadian team won one silver and six bronze medals Wednesday, coming close to a gold in the small-bore prone rifle competition. Gilmour Boa of St. Catharines, Ont., shot the same score as the U.S. winner, Vic Auer, in the prone rifle but the American had a perfect bull's-eye shot string to give him the gold.

Alf Mayer, the Kitchener, Ont., master mechanic, was the gold medal winner in the event four years ago in Winnipeg. Wednesday he could only manage a bronze, Boa and Auer scored 595 of a possible 600, Mayer reached 592. The Canadian team won another bronze.

While the U.S. gold total grew to 36, Cuba was able to win only one gold Wednesday for a total of 12 after five days of competition.

The Canadian team, in third place, had 36 medals—five gold, five silver and 16 bronze. The Americans topped the listing with a total of 79 and Cuba followed with 31.

Bruce Simpson of Point Claire, Que., got the pole vault bronze with a height of 16 feet one inch; gymnasts Jennifer Jackson of Toronto and Lise Arsenault of Hudson, Que., shared bronze medals in the women's floor exercises; and middleweight weightlifter Keith Adams of Surrey, B.C., was the bronze winner in the press. Adams hoisted a total of 369 pounds to finish fourth over-all.

Field coach Gabor Simonyi of North Battleford, Sask., said that Simpson tired himself out by starting too early.

"He started warming up too soon and he started vaulting too soon," said Simonyi. "He started at about 4.30 metres or 4.60 metres while the two Americans waited until the bar went to 4.80 before they started.

"He just didn't wait long enough and he wore himself out before the bar went to five metres."

Jan Johnson, a University of Alabama student, gave the crowd of 40,000 a jolt while clearing 17-9¾ and fellow American Dave Roberts reached 17-9¾.

Joan Pavelich of Vancouver, 18-year-old daughter of a former Canadian shot put and discus champion, placed seventh in the women's shot put with a toss of 43-8¾. The winner, 230-pound Californian Lynn Graham, did 51-4½ and erased the Games record—50-3—set in 1967 by Nancy McCredie of Brampton, Ont.

Domed Stadium Rumored in Montreal

MONTREAL (CP) — The Gazette says a huge sports stadium similar to the Houston Astrodome will be built in Montreal in time for the 1976 Olympic Games.

The newspaper quotes a "high ranking official" of the city's Olympic committee as saying the stadium will seat 50,000 persons, in accordance with Olympic specifications.

The report said the stadium would be ready by July 1975, the middle of the major league baseball season and that a dome would be added at a later date.

The Olympic committee official is quoted as saying the City of Montreal would put up only about $25 million towards construction of the sports centre, estimated to be less than one half or one-third the amount needed to erect such a structure.

West Steals Softball Show

Go west young man — because that's where the squirt Belleville Minor Softball playoff action was Wednesday night as four West Hill teams opened the three of five semi-final series.

Ernie Tuck Appliance had to work for their 4-1 victory over O'Neil Stationery while Doug Jones Jewellers came by their one-game lead in a different manner picking up a 9-0 default win over Canadian Tire.

Tim Soule fired the win for Ernie Tuck blazing third strikes past 15 batters and not walking a batter. He allowed seven hits, all singles. Soule also provided all the runs he needed with a first-inning two-run homer. Clinton Deli had a homer and single while Kevin Farrel pounded out a double.

Ward Morrison scored the only run for O'Neil's in the sixth on two singles and an error. Mike O'Shaugnessy was a vacuum cleaner at second base sweeping up any hit ball near him.

Second games of the series will depend on the outcome of tonight's all-star game with Cobourg. A loss by the SACO Squirts and the play-offs will continue next week but a win will force changes in the schedule.

No Lacrosse Doubts

There was little doubt as to who deserved the victories in Wednesday night's Belleville Minor Lacrosse Bantam action as the winning teams racked up 22 goals to their opponents 2.

Towers blasted Bob's Sports 8-1 behind the five-goal output of Gordon Male. Crawford, Lowe and Murphy scored the other Towers goals while Hamilton replied for Bobs.

Bod Gifts Appliances defeated the 707 Jets 5-1 in the second game of the night as Rob Richardson and Mike Hall tallied two goals each. Bob Belay fired the other goal for Bod's while James Ogden answered for the Jets.

Hillier Lead Rubbed Out

Mountain View pushed three runs across the plate in the bottom of the sixth to erase a 3-2 Hillier lead and hold on for a 5-3 Prince Edward North Shore Softball League victory.

Gerry Eardly hurled the win for Mountain View allowing just two hits while fanning four and walking two. Ed Calow, Elgin Wyatt, Brian Way, Lyle Johnston and Eardly all had safeties for the winners.

Jim Bell was tagged with the loss giving up five hits and striking out four. Steve Carrol and Ron Lickers had the Hillier hits.

Bayview Orchards just keep rolling along as they stopped Belleville 9-2, in another game played at Amelianburg. The Orchards, who have clinched the league pennant, have yet to know who their playoff opponents will be as three teams battle it out for final positions.

Don Bonter scattered six hits for the winners while picking up seven killings. Randy Dempsey had a perfect four for four night at the bat with Mike Reddick adding two more safeties.

Jim McKay took the loss for fifth place Belleville, giving up ten hits while fanning two.

Not just another beautiful body, but a car with brains.

Behold the beautiful 1971 Volkswagen Type 3.

With a shapelier new shape, optional automatic transmission and its very own computer.

Which automatically boosts performance and cuts down on fuel waste.

It also eliminates carburetor problems, because it eliminates the carburetor.

What's more, free with every Type 3 comes the new VW Diagnosis and Maintenance System. It makes Volkswagens last even longer.)

So depending on how you look at it, it's a toss up whether the real beauty of the 1971 Type 3 is on the outside—or on the inside.

Population Pressure Brings Burst of Birth Control Research

Worry about the long-term safety of the pill has spurred scientists in their search for a risk-free contraceptive. On the horizon are injectables, implantable pills, and operations to reverse sterilization. This report, the cutting of two sacred cows details these new developments.

By ALTON BLAKESLEE
Associated Press Science Editor

BETHESDA, Md. (AP) — Population pressure is igniting an explosion of research—fuelled by imagination and dollars—to develop new and completely safe and effective methods of birth control.

It promises new pills beyond the present pill, and improved devices, and it is prompting a volunteer army of men to undergo sterilization, with future promise of sterilization techniques, for men and women, that could be reversed.

And totally unexpected discoveries may turn up.

"The research people are quite imaginative these days," says Dr. Philip A. Corfman, director of the Center for Population Planning at the National Institute of Child Health and Human Development here.

The centre spent $28.1 million this fiscal year to support population research.

Some spur to expanded research already is worry about long-term safety of the pill, with authorities disagreeing whether the increased risk associated, for example, with blood clotting warrants giving it up.

Last year, funds were doubled for research in evaluating the effect of oral contraceptives, to $3.5 million, in a program directed by Dr. John Schrogie, a clinical pharmacologist. This year, the program will spend about $4.3 million, mostly for research on the pill.

The three main avenues of research into new methods of birth control involve drugs, sterilization and devices.

On new drugs: One is the minipill, containing only a small amount of the female hormone, progesterone, and free of the oestrogen which is blamed for causing the clotting tendency in the bloodstream. The experiments include putting a year's supply of progesterone in a bistable capsule, which is implanted under the skin, there to release a tiny amount of hormone daily.

Another is the morning-after pill, a large dose of oestrogen, or progestin which apparently acts to prevent a fertilized egg from becoming implanted in the wall of the uterus or womb. It's been called effective even if taken a few days after insemination has occurred. Undesired side effects are a hurdle in its general use.

Other researches: The high promise from injections of hormones once every three or six months.

Sterilization: Last year, 750,000 men underwent a vasectomy sterilization by vasectomy, the severing of tubes through which sperm travel. About 75 per cent of people volunteering for surgical sterilization now are men, says the Association for Voluntary Sterilization.

A simplified operation for women, with instruments inserted through two tiny incisions in the abdomen, instead of the fallopian tubes—pathways of eggs coming from the ovaries—and involving only a few hours' time in a hospital.

Intrauterine devices: IUDs have been declining in public popularity, and improvements in design, with one major development the discovery by Dr. Jaime Zipper of the University of Chile that the element copper exerts an anti-fertility effect.

Swimmers Make Shambles

Belleville's contingent to the Eastern Ontario Recreation Association swim meet in Napanee yesterday brought up the question of whether the city playgrounds are for dabbling or for porpoises.

Seven local swimmers and three coaches teams made shambles of their opposition in the five swimming events.

Ann Dichter led the parade in the 12 and under free style, butterfly and backstroke while Jocelyn Swatman in the breast stroke. Karen Dolan kept the family winning streak going with wins in the butterfly and breast stroke in the under ten age group. Jocelyn Swatman swam to victories in the under 10 free style and back stroke.

The boys got into the swim of things also with Steven Frederick winning the 12 and under free style and John Scobel taking the 12 and under back stroke.

The mixed relay of Ann and Karen Dolan, Steve Frederick and John Scobel walked away with the five style competition. The girls' relay team came in second in the 12 and under free style. The team was made up of the Dodson sisters, Jocelyn Swatman and Noreen Bradshaw.

Read Early Birds

Read got the job done early, scoring four times in the first frame en route to a 6-3 win over Latta in their South Hastings Baseball League semi-final opener.

Frank Farwell won the distance for Read, giving up five hits. For Latta Doug Green took the loss before giving way to Bob Smith in the fifth frame. Between them they allowed a total of nine safeties.

Pat O'Connor led the Read batters with three hits while Harold Pearce had a pair and Carm Milligan, Larry Colfer, Ed Hunt and Farrell one each.

Bob Smith, Doug Green, Dave Chapman, Damon Richardson and Mike Muncker notched the Latta hits.

Canucks Getting Homesick

CALI, Colombia (CP) — The theme song for a growing number of Canadians in the Pan-American Games visiting is Short Me the Way to Go Home.

Many of the athletes who have completed their events are looking for ways to escape the boredom of life in the isolated quarters on the outskirts of town before the Games end Aug. 13.

"There is a growing need for news of the plausibility of an early return to Canada. Would headquarters use their best endeavors to provide social or recreational activities after the competition is finished . . . ."

The track and field events wind up today.

Few of the athletes seem interested in spending their time touring the surrounding area, although this may be due to previous warnings of the danger of hijackings.

"That not a thing to do around here," said hurdler Brock Apsey of Kelowna, B.C., who visited the beach quarters office looking for information on the chances of getting cooked ale fare for an early-return home.

"Some of the guys around here are taking it pretty hard. There's no place to go for a swim here or any kind of recreation."

The village is surrounded by seven-foot barbed wire fences with armed guards all around although Jenny Meldrum of Toronto, the veteran hurdler, said the athletes are allowed to go out at night.

"But there's nowhere to go," she said.

"It's so darned boring here and now I hear that the charter we were supposed to get in the eighth may be delayed."

Boyce Cools Off To Win Third Set

WINNIPEG (CP) — Jim Boyce of Toronto, a former junior tennis star, scored an upset Wednesday in men's singles at the Canadian national tennis championships when he beat third-seeded McCormick of Vancouver 6-4, 3-6, 6-1.

Boyce, 26, who won the Canadian junior crown in 1966 and 1969, won convincingly, placing accuracy in the third set after he had let his temper boil over during the second set.

Then he teamed up with Pierre Lamarche of Montreal and defending Richard Legendre and Regien Gennis of Quebec City 6-4, 4-6, 6-2 in the second round of men's doubles.

Meanwhile, 34-year-old Dave Brown of Fort Credit, Ont., and his 46-year-old mother, Louise, were taking on corners with ease as they moved to the quarter-finals in their event.

Brown, fourth-seeded in the tournament, sidelined Jean Pretorius of Johannesburg 6-4, 6-3 in men's singles while his mother, a former Canadian singles and doubles champion, took Jarrold-Ian Horsky of Calgary 6-3, 6-3 in women's singles.

In an all-Ontario women's singles action, Susan Butt of Vancouver defeated fifth-seeded Inge Weber of Toronto 6-3, 6-4, another match, Vicki Berner of Vancouver stopped Benita Sean of Toronto 6-4, 6-4.

Ken Rice of Toronto rallied from a 6-3 first-set deficit to take the next two sets 6-1, 6-4 and Bob Howes of Vancouver in men's singles.

Other favorites advanced to the eighths in both men's and women's singles.

Tournament favorite Peter Bevrath of Toronto defeated Dave Johnston of Vancouver 6-4, 6-1; Balder Kotz of Edmonton defeated Peter Pospisil of Toronto 3-6, 6-3, 6-3; Tony Bardaley of Vancouver defeated Mike Bolton-of Vancouver 6-1, 6-1 and Bill MacDonnell of Toronto defeated Jos Ouaks of Toronto 6-3, 6-4.

In women's singles, Jane O'Hara of Toronto defeated Della Lahm of Toronto 6-2, 6-1; Susan Stone of Vancouver defeated Betsy Squires of Montreal 6-4, 6-1; Andree Martin of Montreal defeated Dianne Gibeault of Granby, Que., 6-4, 6-4 and Barb Brankovsky of Toronto defeated Pat Kirkpatrick of Saskatoon 6-1, 6-3.

Rochelle Out Front At Open

VICTORIA (CP) — Louise La Rochelle may not have been a novice to make the Quebec junior women's golf team, but she's showing everyone how it's done at the Canadian championships.

The 18-year-old student from St. Foy, a Quebec City suburb, shot a seven-over-par 81 Wednesday to take a one-stroke lead into today's second round.

A disastrous 86 in the first round of the Quebec tournament prevented her from repeating as provincial champion and cost her a berth on the three-woman team.

But she didn't make too many mistakes Wednesday and stayed one shot ahead of Sharon Jansen of Prince George, B.C.

Dianne Mercure of Montreal and Debbie Savoy of LaPuge two-thirds of the Quebec team finished with 85s.

The British Columbia team, led by Miss Jansen's 82 and a pair of 87s from Carole Morrissey of Penticton and Valerie White of Vancouver, had a 1-169 total as it started defence of its title. Quebec was right behind at 170, 13 strokes in front of Ontario.

Miss La Rochelle's accurate drives were well suited to the narrow and demanding 6,119-yard Royal Colwood course and they were the best part of her game.

"I usually have hooking problems, but my drives were long and straight for a change," she said.

Cats Butted By Rams

TORONTO (CP) — Scarborough Rams opened the Ontario Junior Football Conference season Wednesday night, thrashing Peterborough Panthers 21-0.

Bill Reynolds, Larry Black and Rusty Rushton each scored touchdowns. Tony Dundas kicked two converts and Jerry Hutchinson booted a 35-yard single in the second quarter.

The two teams scheduled games are Friday when Etobicoke—Lakeshore plays host to Oakville and Sarnia visits Burlington.

Hamilton travels to Brantford Sunday.

Sports on All Fronts

MONTREAL (CP) — Quebec Superior Court has upheld a decision by the Quebec Amateur Hockey Association to suspend Drummondville Rangers coach Yvon Cloutier but reduced the period to five years from life.

The suspension came after a Quebec Senior A Hockey League playoff game between the Rangers and St. Jerome Alouettes in which Drummondville team was accused of deliberately trying to throw the game.

The league executive suspended the Drummondville team from further league competition and suspended the coach for life.

In a judgment released Tuesday, Judge Jean-Louis Marchand upheld the suspension, but limited it to a period of five years dating back to March 27, and ruled that the team would be free to suspend until the end of the 1970-71 season. The judge also rejected a $60,000 suit filed against the QAHA.

LONDON (AP) — British tennis officials banned the ban on contract professionals Wednesday by shutting them out of not only Wimbledon but all sponsored tournaments in this country. The British Lawn Tennis Association said the five leading commercial sponsors had agreed not to stage tournaments for the pros of the World Championship Tennis group. The ban is to begin Jan. 1.

EDMONTON (CP) — A researcher says he has discovered a notion among athletes that smoking marijuana improves physical performance.

In fact, says Dr. Mohan Singh, marijuana has an adverse effect on the heart beat, blood pressure and endurance.

Dr. Singh said many university athletes—perhaps even a majority—smoke marijuana before competition.

Dr. Singh, an associate professor of physical education at the University of Alberta, was supported by $3,000 federal grant in his study.

In a series of concentration and co-ordination tests on 18 athletes, the subjects who had smoked marijuana consistently failed the first attempt, then rallied and caught up through their successive attempts and reached the levels they had recorded when they did not smoke.

AKRON, Ohio (AP) — Ken Harrelson, the former baseball slugger who $210 with a five-over-par in his first pro golf tournament Wednesday. Herrelson, 28, who left Cleveland Indians after a six weeks ago, matched par in the final round of the $20,000 Little American Golf Classic for a 54-hole total of 221.

FRANKFURT, Germany (AP) — The West German Soccer Federation, rocked by a bribery scandal, said Wednesday it was investigating charges of still another attempt to bribe players before a crucial First Division game. The captain of the VFB Berger team, Hans Arnold, 29, was suspended and questioned about reports of a $1,120 payoff for a decisive match between Stuttgart and Arminia Bielefeld May 29.

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Sammy Davis Jr. might be interested in buying Cincinnati Royals' National Basketball Association franchise if there is a chance of bringing it to California, the entertainer's business partner said Wednesday. Jerry Marsh added, however, that only "some discussions" had been held and there was nothing solid about negotiations.

"They're two years old but haven't learned to swim yet—we've had such dry weather."

STOP KILLING YOURSELF

By Peter J. Steincrohn, M.D., F.A.C.P.
Author of "The Doctor Looks At Life"

Ulcerative Colitis Cause Is Unknown

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: Our 25 - year - old grandson suffers from ulcerative colitis. But what frustrates us is that neither he nor his wife will explain it to us. He is beginning to look so thin and frail. At times he is away from his job for weeks. Now there is even a question about operating to cure him.

I wish we could help, but he says there is nothing else to do. He is quite depressed. We will appreciate it as much if you will tell us something about colitis. — Mrs. A.

COMMENT: Frustrating it is, especially when you know more about ulcerative colitis. I can give you only a brief rundown about this stubborn condition.

First, we don't know exactly what causes it. Right there we have on strike against us. It is primarily an acute and chronic inflammatory-ulcerative disease of the colon (lower bowel) and rectum. It produces such trying symptoms as rectal bleeding, diarrhea; loss of appetite, fever, abdominal cramps, weight loss. You can understand why your grandson is depressed.

Ulcerative colitis can come on at any age. It is more common between 10 and 30. There are periods of freedom from symptoms, but it tends to recur.

You can understand why we do not have any specific treatment because its cause has been said to be due to bacterial infection, to viruses, to deficiencies in nutrition — or even to psychiatric problems.

Your grandson's doctors will have to make the decision about operation. About 20 per cent of ulcerative colitis patients come to surgery. But the other 80 per cent often do well on medical management: rest, sedatives, psychiatric treatment, sulfa drug, antibiotics, special diets, sedatives, antispasmodics, multivitamin preparations and corticosteroid drugs.

Whether some or all of such therapy will be used (or any other) will depend upon the judgement of your grandson's doctors. I can understand why he is at one of his low periods.

Although complete cure for ulcerative colitis is not invariably possible, it's good to know that many of the treatments I have suggested can bring sufficient comfort to patients to insure a normal way of life. When he improves, you will understand what I mean.

For Mrs. H.: I believe you have a personal responsibility as a cat lover not to alienate your friend. She is not being stubborn and unfriendly in refusing to go to your home.

Like many who suffer from a similar phobia, she is "deathly afraid" of cats. The sight of any or all of your four cats would throw her into panic. If you will be willing to understand her problem, you can still remain friends.

For Mr. B.: I do not go along with the accepted belief that it is all right for an emphysema patient who was a heavy cigarette smoker to turn to pipe or cigars. Whichever way you take it, tobacco is bad for you.

The usual excuse given is that pipe and cigar smokers do not inhale. The fact is that many do — consciously or unconsciously. When I smoked years ago, I inhaled pipe and cigar smoke. Perhaps doctors should add the word "POSITIVELY" to the NO SMOKING sign.

For August 6

Your birthday today: The temptation this year is to change just for the sake of innovation, so that some experiments in the art of living simply don't work and have to be revised. Today's natives attract public notice more readily than most.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): While going along with the schemes of others, bring in your own needs and welfare. Where you can't, mesh them smoothly, consider finding a spot more to your liking.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Surprises, fresh discussions enliven the day. Routines slide, perhaps never to be re-established exactly as they were.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): What you learned yesterday should be very helpful today. Proceed with good humor and confidence.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Career advancement progresses in accordance with past efforts coming to recognition. Make the most of what comes to hand.

LEO (July 23 - Aug. 22): Keep going with patience and determination. Answer critics in kind without diverting your main efforts into a debate or dispute.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): A time of strong feelings influences you to say things you are not prepared to sustain with action later, particularly in sentimental matters.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): All bright Librans should sit tight and avoid personal issues with anybody. Your effort to correct misinformation would muddle things further.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Reach out for emotional communion. Many people share your views and values.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): There is no quick formula for glory and success that really wins. You have excellent chances for contentment and reasonable success.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 - Jan. 19): Present your plans in clear terms, with sketches and examples. Include yourself in all estimates for a full share. Later hours favor careful study, detailed review.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20 - Feb. 19): Do what is expedient here and now to create a clearer and more personal involvement in your local environment.

Second Sable Isle Well Nears Finish

SABLE ISLAND, N.S. (CP) — Another chapter is nearing its end in the expanding search for oil and gas off Canada's East Coast.

Mobil Oil Canada, Ltd. will complete drilling of its second test well here "in the next few days," Merv Graham, the company's Atlantic Coast drilling superintendent, said Wednesday.

The well is the first Atlantic offshore effort to be classed as a "discovery". Mobil announced June 25 that gas and condensate flowed to the surface from the 5,905-foot level.

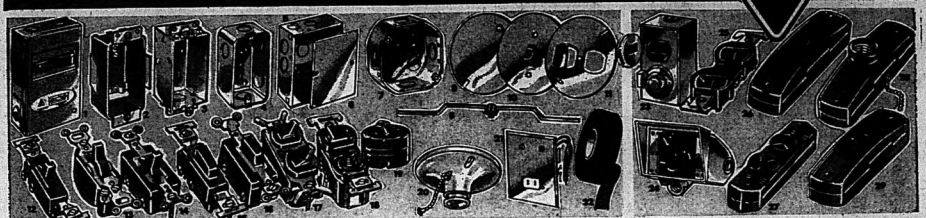
Mr. Graham said drilling had reached a depth of "just over 11,000 feet" Wednesday and would stop short of 12,000 feet.

The next step in the Sable island exploration program is not likely to be decided before the end of September, He said that decision will depend on results of tests on the completed well and on seismic tests being conducted elsewhere on the island.

Mr. Graham said more tests and more drilling are needed before anyone can estimate with any assurance the volume of gas and oil that may lie beneath the shifting sands of Sable.



The company says about 32 million has been spent on the current drilling, which started last May. Mobil's partner in financing the venture is Texas Eastern Transmission Co. of Houston, Tex.

The well, called Mobil Tetco E-48, is the second drilled by Mobil on Sable Island. The first, Sable No. 1, was abandoned in 1967 at 15,106 feet after the company reported encountering non-commercial amounts of gas and a trace of oil.

Chill Dawn Finds Camp Fires Glowing

First Arrivals Raid Fences

By LENNY WILLIAMSON
Staff Reporter

MADOC — Fence posts and cedar rails are disappearing fast on the Quinlin farm 10 miles from here, site of the peace festival starting today.

Snake fences, erected in the wilderness a hundred years ago provided the fuel for camp fires around which shivering young people huddled in today's 55-degree dawn.

Estimate of the number vary from 700 to 5,000. Most hitchhikers heard about the festival in Toronto or at transient youth hostels along the road. Young people with summer jobs are expected to start to arrive Friday evening, and it's anybody's guess how many will eventually show up at the backwoods farm 40 miles north of Belleville.

The scene was like a scraggly boy's camp. Tents lined the ridges. They ranged from the marquees of the concessionaires to pup tents hardly big enough for even the smallest of festival goers.

Privacy was of little concern. One tent owner carried it to extreme with a covering matching the mode of the day — see-through plastic.

So far, services and facilities have proved adequate. Water tank trucks from this village have filled tanks scattered around the farm. The inadequate privies have largely been neglected in favor of the well-wooded boundary fences. Traffic still flows freely along the one-lane dirt road leading to the site.

But by Friday night, with the expected swelling of crowds, the situation may be different. Both seasoned festival - goers, concession operators and officials of the Ontario Hospital Services Commission field hospital on the site predict a traffic jam on the road and a breakdown in water services.

"The helicopter will be our salvation," says OHSC director, Dr. N. H. McNally, of the ambulance chopper donated for the occasion by Bell Aircraft company.

Bands are scheduled to begin playing on the stage Friday at 1 p.m., but the Children of God, a fundamentalist religious group from Detroit, entertained the audience during the Thursday supper hour with rock music beamed across the pasture fields by a high powered amplifier they brought with them. After dark they held a rousing sing-song of gospel music.

The Children of God are scheduled by to take over the sound system in the event the Trainer Company amplifiers on the stage fail. The hydro line put into the Quinlin homestead for the event extends to the religious group's tent, but a rented generator powers the stage lights and equipment. It was rented by the promoters for $1,000.

The rickety homemade stage and sound gantries are holding firm against the assault of festival fans who swarmed over them last night, making moving silhouettes against the bright

Inquest Witness Is Shot

OWEN SOUND, Ont. (CP) — Rae Heighes Sr., key witness at a Toronto inquest into the death of his wife last year from strychine poisoning, was found dead of a gunshot wound in the bathroom of his home today.

Police said Mr. Heighes, 51, and two of his three sons had gone out to their car between 6 and 7 a.m. before they were to leave for Toronto to attend today's session of the inquest.

Mr. Heighes returned to the house and when he failed to reappear after a considerable time, his sons went to look for him. His body was found in the bathroom. He had been shot in the head.

A city police spokesman said detectives were still at the scene. He declined to say whether the death was being regarded as suicide.

Testimony at the inquest has shown that Mr. Heighes on at least two occasions in the early 1960s purchased amounts of strychnine from an Owen Sound pharmacy.

Festivals Routine For Health Service

By DONALD SOUTTER

MADOC — Rock Festivals are getting to be old hat for the emergency health services of the provincial government.

"We have got it down pretty good by now," said Dr. N. H. McNally, provincial director of the department of health's emergency services division.

What he was talking about was the 50-bed hospital set up on the site of the Rock Acres Peace Festival, 10 miles north of Madoc, on the 200-acre farm of James Quinlin.

Inside the immense tent erected for the purpose were two operating rooms, a pharmacy, a St. John Ambulance post, a reception area and various rooms, set aside by canvas partitions, which are likely to find full use by the time the festival ends Sunday night.

"You know, if there was any reason not to have these festivals, one of the primary reasons should be inadequacy of facilities," Dr. McNally said.

He was referring to efforts of Madoc Township and Hastings County to stop the festival — a first injunction which was upheld and a second injunction that was overruled.

Chief concern of Dr. McNally was access to the site — a narrow county road which at the best can handle traffic in a one-way direction.

"This is the worst we have experienced in our exposure to such events," said Dr. McNally. "Monpet was great compared to this." The Madoc festival is his fourth.

The difficulties of vehicular movement caused the emergency health unit to accept the offer of Bell Aircraft to supply a rescue helicopter for the festival.

"We are equipped to handle most things," said Dr. McNally, "but it is nice to know that if we get into serious trouble, we will have the helicopter to fly patients to Belleville, Peterborough or Kingston.

Premiers' Views Differ On Foreign Investment

VICTORIA (CP) — Foreign investment and ownership got a going over at the provincial premiers' conference Thursday, and there were a few differences of opinion behind closed doors as to its desirability.

Allan Blakeney of Saskatchewan said foreign investment is often a mixed blessing because foreign interests frequently exploit the resources, export the raw material and do little processing in the province concerned.

"We should do everything we can to have the processing done to the greatest possible extent in Canada."

Asked if the other eight premiers at the conference—missing is Joseph Smallwood of Newfoundland—had expressed positions counter to his, Mr. Blakeny said:

"Oh, yes, there were a few counter to mine . . . some very emphatically so."

Robert Bourassa said foreign capital "must come to Quebec" to create jobs for a growing population.

Mr. Bourassa will personally go after some of the capital Monday and Tuesday, when he visits San Francisco to talk with officials of the Bank of America and other financiers.

Gerald Regan of Nova Scotia said: "My feeling was that if there are opportunities to be developed we must accept capital from wherever it may come, and then try to operate it on our own terms."

Harry Strom said foreign investment has made Alberta one of the three "have" provinces and is welcome. Mr. Strom said Alberta still "owns the resources, the foreign companies operate on our terms and regulations, and it is up to the federal government to control marketing of the products."

But, he said: "We must do everything we can to ensure that Canadians be given the first opportunity to participate in resource development."

The premiers did agree to establish informal quotas on poultry products, which will bring an end to Canada's so-called chicken-and-egg war.

Mr. Strom, who will skip today's session to re-enter the campaign for the Aug. 30 Alberta election, said it was hoped to have the quota worked out by October and "I am happy."

The premiers also dealt with federal government proposals to change the formula for cost-sharing programs in hospital and medical care services, a move Mr. Blakeney said is "fraught with real danger for the provinces."

Cultural Guarantee Would End Separatism

VICTORIA (CP) — Premier Robert Bourassa says an assurance granted to French society that it would maintain within Confederation its distinct cultural identity could mean the end of separatism in Quebec as a political force.

"That is the reason," he said in an interview Thursday, "why I have been making all efforts towards implementing French as the working language in the province."

Mr. Bourassa said "... It is clear that Quebec is most interested in a revision of the constitution of the country as it is our province which initiated that revision four or five years ago.

"We want a new division of powers between the province and the federal state."

Mr. Bourassa said he has not lost hope that an agreement may be reached between governments in Canada on the modified constitutional charter vetoed by his government after the federal-provincial conference here in mid-June.

He said the premiers' conference here is an occasion for him to have private talks with other premiers on the Victoria constitutional charter.

Premier William Davis of Ontario said Thursday he expected to discuss the subject with Mr. Bourassa before they both leave the city today.

'Fantastic what man can do!'

Astronauts Will Be Only Men to See Eclipse of Sun Today

HOUSTON (AP) — The Apollo 15 moon explorers, streaking home for a spashdown Saturday in the Pacific Ocean, have ringside seats at a space spectacular today.

As the earth exerts more and more of a pull on their spaceship Endeavour, David R. Scott, James B. Irwin and Alfred M Worden will view and attempt to photograph a phenomenon which can be seen only by space crews: an eclipse of the sun by the earth.

Only twice before have spacemen been in a position to see the earth slide across the face of the sun. The Apollo 12 crew and an earlier Gemini flight were also in the right place at the right time.

The three astronauts also plan an hour-long news conference today with reporters covering the mission and another experiment seeking information on mysterious cosmic lights which all Apollo crews have reported.

The Apollo 15 crew will don blindfolds for an hour in the cosmic light experiment.

They performed a similar experiment on the way to the moon and Worden did tests while orbiting the moon alone while Scott and Irwin were on the lunar surface.

They reported numerous lights, mostly pinpoint specks, Scott and Irwin also reported the flashes while sleeping in their landing craft on the surface of the moon.

Space scientists want to determine the cause of the flashes of light, which have occurred mainly in darkness, because of the potentially harmful effect they might have on astronauts on long space flights.

During the hour-long news conference from deep space, the astronauts will give reporters personal observations about their 12-day flight, which ends Saturday with splashdown at 4:46 p.m. EDT north of Hawaii.

Mission Control will relay questions to the Apollo 15 crew.

The session will be televised to the Manned Spacecraft Centre, but will not be carried by the television networks.

Worden took man's first walk in deep space Thursday, floating effortlessly for 18 minutes nearly 200,000 miles from earth as he retrieved two film canisters from a science equipment bay at the rear of the spacecraft.

A television camera relayed his progress as he stepped from the open hatch into the weightless world and made his way on handrails about 15 feet to the bay. He was bundled in a pressure suit and attached to a 25-foot lifeline.

Scott and Irwin also were exposed to the vacuum of space and wore space suits for protection. Irwin thrust the upper part of his body outside the hatch to photograph Worden and to help him move the canisters into the cabin.

Worden made three trips to the bay, to extract the two film packs and, at the request of Mission Control, to inspect the $17-million array of scientific instruments which chemically and photographically charted nearly 20 per cent of the moon's surface.

Halifax to Vancouver By Bike Is Their Aim

By THOM REYNOLDS
Staff Reporter

It's a long way to Vancouver! This is what Vernon Parker and Ken Power of Halifax are going to discover when they complete their cycling hike out to the west coast. The two youths stopped by on Thursday at Belleville on their long journey which began on July 4 from Halifax, Nova Scotia.

The boys, Vernon, aged 22 and Ken, 21 are both students at the Nova Scotia College of Art and Design in Halifax. Both have completed three years at the college and have taken a year off to travel across Canada. They went to see the points of interest in their own country and to meet the people.

They started out in July, travelling through Nova Scotia, Prince Edward Island and on through New Brunswick, Quebec and Ontario. They have been staying in hotels in different centres and also have stayed in a tent they carry along with them. The youths said that most of the hotels were good and they saw a lot of translents taking advantage of them. Vernon noted that they were a fabulous thing for people travelling on the road as each served as a target for a day's travel. The youths also said that a few families had helped them such as Donalie Lalonde of Levis, Quebec who let them pitch the tent in the backyard of his home.

Ken had started out with $300 and Vernon with $300, which they thought would not last them until they reached Vancouver.

The transportation is cheap except for purchasing tires for the bicycles but supplying food is the only drawback the boys really have. "You need gas for a car and you need food for a bicycle," said Vernon.

The two travellers hope to reach Vancouver by mid-September and from there they will head for Australia. They will stay for our winter in Australia and then return to Canada via Asia and Europe.

The boys travel an average 70 miles a day with the miles ago varying on the conditions of the day. The boys are riding 10-speed English and Italian bikes and are carrying a small food supply, tent, and cameras.

One problem the boys have encountered that couldn't be avoided is tire breakdowns. Vernon has gone the distance to Belleville with only one tire change but Ken has run into bad luck. He has changed the tires twice and has had numerous flat tires. He had five flats in one day while going through the Ottawa area. The boys stated that a few on their bicycles should be good for 2,000 miles. Ken also had a rear wheel gear problem on the outskirts of Montreal which held them up for a few hours and cost $18 to replace the back wheel.

The worst problems the boys have had during their trip, cross-country ride are tires, headwinds, and traffic. Because now the boys are going east and to west they are facing the prevailing westerlies. The majority of cyclists travel from the west to east with the winds.

The major problem, though, is the traffic on the highways, especially the large trucks. The boys said that most drivers have no consideration for the hikers and on different occasions they have gone for a tumble because of them. One of the worst roads they had travelled was a 12-lane highway in Quebec. They said they had to continually concentrate and they had no time to look at the sights along the way.

Ken said that cycling is something that Canada and the United States have been heading for. Cycling was solving the problems of pollution, transients and helping with a program in physical fitness. Vernon stated that the travel was a time to meet people "and to see where things are at and what's happening in the country." He said in cycling you were able to see people from all walks and classes of life.

In their ride across the country so far they have noticed human nature. They have seen how indifferent some people can be and how they care very little for cycling youths. They noticed this through the problems they had with biking on roads, in being burned off to the shoulder of the road and almost run over.

The youths said they saw the need for a special lane to be built on highways, four or five feet wide for bicycles. They said they can see more youths buying the bicycle and that this would become a means of travelling for the young people of the country. Vernon Parker said that cyclists were still transients but that they were doing more during their travels than those hitch-hiking.

Vernon said that the cycling was continuity to their travels and enabled them to relate everything they saw. He said that cycling in general was growing and that it would bring a bigger boom next year among the South of Canada and the United States.

The two youths from Halifax spent Thursday afternoon at the ANAF rooms on Front Street as guests and planned to continue to Toronto today on Highway 2.

Security at Festival Is Pro-Am Combination

MADOC (Staff) — As crowds move in for Rock Acres Peace Festival, the Ontario Provincial Police, the Royal Canadian Mounted Police and the Quinte family are putting final touches on their respective security arrangements.

All leave and temporary absences have been cancelled for OPP staff in District Nine and Belleville-based provincial police have been joined by members of Madoc and Napanee detachments and reinforcements from both the Perth and Peterborough areas.

The co-ordinated OPP-RCMP force now numbers about 100 but may swell as need arises.

Commenting on the total police commitment, an OPP spokesman said today, "it will be flexible," indicating that its scope will be defined by the size of the turnout.

Police activities during the festival are being directed by Staff Superintendent N. K. McCoomb of Toronto OPP Headquarters. The staff superintendent has already established his command post at Hart's Public School, two miles south of the Quinlin farm.

As provincial police commitments stand the bulk of those involved are from out of the district — primarily from Perth and Peterborough.

Following the same precedure as at last year's Strawberry Field's Festival, dormitory facilities have been provided for the influx of police in the Centre. On a two-shift basis the OPP will be commuting to the festival site area from their south side barrack blocks at the armed forces base.

Central concern of the OPP will be to ensure smooth traffic flow along highways, county roads and the single-lane dirt road leading to Rock Acres.

RCMP officers do not conceal the fact they are concerned about the prospects of drug trafficking. However, they do not plan a conspicuous presence on the festival site area from their south side barrack blocks at the armed forces base.

sky illuminated by an almost full noon. But some people express doubt they will hold up for long under the weight of groups and equipment.

A few grumblings are beginning to be heard about the high price of food in the concessions, but most visitors are still well-satisfied with food they brought with them. The concession owners pay 10 per cent of their profits to the Quinlin family and are charging 50 cents for a slice of pizza and 25 cents for a slice of watermelon. Sweatshirts, leather accessories and hashish pipes are also for sale.

Drug peddlers are also into full operation, softly calling out "MDA" or "Grass" to people strolling along the rows of tents. A sign advertises beer at 50 cents and wine at $3.50, but so far drug dealers are running a low-keyed selling campaign.

The hospital on the site has already treated a half dozen drug cases and innumerable minor cuts and abrasions, including one man who was bitten by his three-month-old kitten.

Leon Quinlin, who with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. James Quinlin and his brother, James Jr., is running the family organized rockfest, has recruited local youths to help patrol the boundary fences with those already in attendance are believed to have scrambled over rail fences to avoid the $10 entrance fee.

Leon has allowed some in, in return for work, "but they work for about 10 minutes and then disappear," he says. He plans no reduced rates for those coming only for one day. "You can't trust anybody," chimed in one of his gate attendants.

The most striking impression at this early stage of the festival weekend is the contrast — between ancient cedar rail and stone fence now being lined with tents and camping equipment, between old rusting farm machinery and camping vans with licence plates from American states as far away as Virginia, and between an old stone house and its peace symbol decorations.

"Hi, we love you", says one sign painted on a piece of broken down machinery by the Quinlin boys. So far Rock Acres Peace Festival is living up to its name, but the situation could quickly change if more than the expected 20,000 fans flock in during the next two days.

Checking Vantage Points.

Early arrivals at the Rock Acres Peace Festival check out seat locations on towers near the sound stage. The festival got under way officially today with the first of three days of continuous music from 2 p.m. to 2 a.m. daily.

Health

On the site are four ambulance teams drawn from the province's ambulance service which is developing as one aspect of the province's health care.

The ambulances will serve as outposts throughout the grounds," said Dr. McNally, "and as treatable areas they will bring patients to the hospital."

After three festivals, things are organized.

Taking turns servicing the festival are three teams of 14 people with an additional team held in reserve.

Each team has two doctors, four nurses and eight paramedical personnel. Past experience has proven that the best approach has been to call upon the Addiction Research Foundation to provide the medical teams, which is being done at this festival.

"We provide the medical backup, the facilities and the mechanics," said Dr. McNally. "The Foundation provides the staff."

Twenty-four hours before the festival everything was under control.

The teams had handled:

One man who freaked out on drugs and did a Lady Godiva routine. He was sent back to find his clothes wrapped in a hospital sheet.

One festival participant whose cat bit bitter him and he wanted a tetanus shot.

And three people who wanted to know where the pay phones were located.

Most of the provincial government workers with the 50-bed tent hospital are ex-servicemen, who take to field manoeuvres like ducks to water. Many are festival enthusiasts. If they have any beefs at this point they receive no reports of festival activities.

At Mosport last summer, 2,000 Canadian troops sent across Canada about "35,000 drug-crazed kids".

We had 500 real drug cases out of the 50,000 people there," he said. "When I got home and read about what was supposed to have happened there, I wondered where I'd been."

"They're a peaceful bunch, not like a lot of boisterous drunks," said Eric Knights, the administrator who set up the field hospital. "If they were a drinking crowd we'd really be in trouble.

"They're all nice kids," he said. "A lot of college students spend their summer this way, in the open air, going from festival to festival. If the people around here knew the kind of kids they are they wouldn't be worried. But the kids' appearance frightens them."

At Mosport last year, one worker said, he had spoken to a number of the owners of small restaurants around the area, where many festival fans ate during the three-day event. The restaurateurs said the fans were quiet, polite and paid their bills.

"We're making a lot of money...we wouldn't mind having another festival anytime," the owners said.

Quinte-area Cheese and Milk Producers Have Tough Choice

By ROY PEACOCK
Staff Reporter

The biggest cheese factories in the Quinte district are but small operations compared with some co-operatively owned plants in the southeastern townships of neighboring Quebec province.

This was learned first-hand last week by members of a fact - finding committee representing milk committees of the three area counties, when they toured milk processing plants in Eastern Ontario and Quebec.

They came home with the realization that the dairy industry in the Quinte area in terms of total production was rather insignificant.

At the same time, Committee members felt if Quinte area milk producers and processors are willing to adapt to new principles and mass production methods there was still a good future.

But if they stand on glorious traditions of the past, simple economics could put them out of business.

But before any decisions are made on possible changes in the Quinte area dairy industry, the committee realizes there are a few questions that need answering.

Among them are whether present factories should amalgamate, whether a large processing plant was needed and whether there was sufficient milk in the area to justify a modern multi-product plant.

Also, there is the problem of factory waste disposal and whether Quinte - area processors are manufacturing the right dairy products.

According to Kenneth Wright, public relations officer for the Prince Edward Milk Committee, the biggest eye-opener of the trip was the mammoth operation of the Granby co-operative in Quebec, which last year showed a profit of $5 million after paying dividends. The co-operative has nine milk processing plants, manufactures dairy equipment and sells farm machinery and feed.

Starting in 1938 with 80 members in the farm feed business, the co-operative developed into a processing and today has 10,000 members, 8,300 of them milk shippers.

The co-operative has a new $5 million plant capable of processing up to 1.5 million pounds of milk per day.

The day before the Quinte visitors were at the plant, 1.4 million pounds of milk was processed into butter and skim milk powder, with a 1.1 million coming from a 30-mile radius.

The big co-operative is now building a continuous cheddar cheese processing plant to handle only bulk milk.

Mr. Wright reports that the tour party was surprised at the modern outlook of Quebec farmers.

"We were under the impression that Quebec was backward . . . but we went through some of the best farmland we have ever seen."

Corn and good hay was evident everywhere and well-painted buildings in good repair indicated the farmers were doing a good job.

Mr. Wright said the entire Prince Edward dairy milk production would not keep one of the Granby co-operative's plants going for two hours.

The party learned that good managerial capacity was a prerequisite for an operation such as Granby's. The whole co-operative principle is applied to give the farmer cheaper production costs and greater returns for his milk.

High milk volume in a relatively small area is essential and a plant is not operated unless it has a half million pounds of milk. Modernization and continuous use of equipment is important.

The newest Granby plant can process up to 1.5 million pounds of milk daily with a total labor force of 49 men on three shifts.

In addition to cheese, butter and milk powder, the Granby co-operative is interested in introducing new products and a year ago it started manufacturing and marketing yogurt in 20 flavors to supply an anticipated Eastern Canada market.

Today it has eight trucks delivering daily in Montreal.

The co-operative manager said they were not going to increase cheddar cheese production.

Rather, much of the milk now going into cheddar would be diverted to yogurt, special cheeses and butter, where the demand was greater and the prices more lucrative.

Other plants visited by the touring party were the large multi-product Labatt plant at Winchester and a small co-operatively-owned factory in the same area.

At the Winchester plant they saw that volume was the key to success and that full utilization was made of modern technology.

Whey is no problem at the Winchester plant as it is dried and sold commercially, but the plant manager said demand for dried whey was being met and there would be little likelihood of a plant specifically for drying whey being an economic success.

The small co - operatively owned factory visited had a whey problem—but of a different kind than is experienced in the Quinte area.

In this area of Eastern Ontario, whey is used as feed by commercial hog farmers and there were lineups of farmers waiting to truck the whey back to their farms.

The new milk - operative factory had 80 shippers, within a 10-mile radius and last year returned a pet dividend of $1.40.

Two kinds of cheese are produced at the plant, but here again full utilization of equipment was helping to cut down overhead.

Seven vats handle all the milk in a process whereby curds are placed in shallow vats after whey is run off, thus allowing the large vats to be used two or three times in the same day.

Planning Board Offices Selected

The Quinte Area Planning Board has its new home.

Last night, the board, in a close 10-9 vote, awarded a tender to Leasehold Construction Corporation of Montreal for office space above the new Wallbridge Plaza, to be erected on a site at the junction of Wallbridge - Loyalist Road and Highway 2.

By accepting the Leasehold tender, the board has virtually guaranteed construction of a second storey to the new plaza. A letter received from the Montreal firm advised 8,000 feet of office space in the shopping centre that would be provided only if the Quinte Area Planning Board rented 3,000 feet for its facilities.

At an annual rental fee of $9,750, the board will oversee construction of office space to their specifications, and will have water, parking, heat, air conditioning and washroom facilities at its disposal. Negotiations between the future landlord and tenant will be held to ensure electricity costs are included in rent. The board insisted it be assured of this service and a telephone; verbal verification was received.

With construction of the plaza to commence immediately, the new tenants expect to move to the site sometime in Feb., 1972.

In the interim, offices in the Belleville city hall now occupied by Belleville and Suburban Planning Board, have been accepted for staff use at a rate of $250 a month.

Representatives of the nine municipalities in the QAPB did not accept Leasehold's proposed 10-year lease with a sub-lease option of five years. They felt this to be too restrictive.

Chairman Jack M. Bush said negotiations for a shorter lease were "quite possible."

Rather than accept additional space in the offices considered, the planning board will hold regular monthly meetings in the basement of Sidney Township's municipal offices, approximately five miles north of the future offices. The rental for each meeting will be $25.

Mrs. Robin Jeffrey, chairman of policy committee, forwarded recommendations that a board room was an expense we do not have to incur.

Bert Kenny, newly appointed planning director, and Mr. Bush visited all sites being considered in Trenton.

ARDA Office Is Moved

The Hastings county ARDA office in Stirling will in the future be directed from regional headquarters in Peterborough rather than from Kingston.

The Agricultural and Regional Development branch of the Ontario Department of Agriculture and Food has appointed B. B. Hodgins as the Rural Development officer for the Peterborough Region to serve the five counties of Hastings, Northumberland, Haliburton, Victoria and Peterborough.

Previous to the opening of the Peterborough office, the Hastings area had been serviced by Rural Development Officer Robert McMahon of Kingston, and by Councillors Clayton Hall of Stirling and Wilfred Shier of Bancroft. The two Hastings councillors will now work under Mr. Hodgins, who has been transferred from the Georgian Bay region.

Love at First Sight

This tiny kitten, just old enough to have his eyes open, is a handful of happiness for his young owner. The wee feline gets an early preview of the world all about him of which he soon will become an active part.

Planning Board Staff Question Is Settled

Selection of a permanent staff presented few problems for the monthly meeting of the Quinte Area Planning Board last night.

No time was wasted by the board in acting on staff recommendations, tabled by E. A. Orr, chairman of the personnel committee.

Principal planners for the new board will be Frank Stakmans of Belleville and Suburban Planning Board, and Arie Hoornweg of the Trenton and Suburban Planning Board.

Richard Danziger, also from the Belleville board, will assume the position of Planner One.

Arthur Jones, as Planning Administration Officer, acting as secretary - treasurer of the board, a position he held in Belleville.

Belleville board draftsman Richard Phillips was the only one hired in this capacity at this time, but with the anticipated increase in the work load, a second employee may be hired in the future.

Mrs. Sharon Jones and Miss Fran Toole, both from the Belleville office, have been hired as stenographers.

Although further staff is anticipated as the QAPB becomes more established, those hired last night will form the nucleus of employees.

Following the appointment of Bert Kenny as planning director last month, the representatives from nine Quinte municipalities unanimously voted to maintain present salary levels for the employees, as well as a $50 per month car allowance for the planners.

Mr. Kenny expressed appreciation that the matter of hiring staff had "finally been settled". During early meetings of board, heated controversy arose over their decision to publicly advertise for all positions. Some members objected, expressing concern that present employees in the two boards would suffer from the dissolution of the old structure.

However, only existing staff was hired, even though a total of 74 applications for the positions were received.

During the Thursday night meeting, planning board also settled the matter of staff benefits.

Seniority in present positions will be carried over when the employees of the new board assume their duties in September. This decision came in the wake of Mr. Kenny's suggestion for acceptance of seniority, based on successful moves by such municipalities as Niagara Falls who faced similar problems with organization of their regional government.

County Road 12 Will Be Rebuilt

The eastern leg of Hastings county road 12 from Queensboro to Highway 7 near Actinolite has been approved by the Transportation and Communications Department for reconstruction as a development road project, according to Charles V. Rollins, MPP for Hastings.

The section of gravel country road to be rebuilt is about six miles long through Elzevir township.

County engineer Peter Anderson said today that design work for the new road is currently under way by consultant H. M. Kostuch of Brockville, and depending on completion of plans, property acquisition and other details construction tenders would be called this autumn.

"We hope that construction will get under way this fall," stated Mr. Anderson.

Under the development road policy, the province pays all actual construction costs while the county pays for property acquisition and design costs, receiving 50 per cent subsidy from the province.

Times Past

The demise of four boat traffic, moonlight cruises and passenger links by water up and down the Bay of Quinte is irrevocable. People have their own cruisers, as witness the summer traffic on Quinte waters and along the Trent and Rideau systems. Those of us without cruisers are taken up with other activities like camping and swimming and visits to the beach.

Times have changed and the tour boat trips of the thirties and earlier have gone out with the advent of this latter-day, frenetic, selfcentred era. Moonlight cruises today would be an anachronism in the age of space flights to that self-same lunar surface and of late-night movies on TV.

There is a nostalgia about those earlier times . . . picnics on some island . . . and all the time in the world Three Men in a Boat style.

There are still the tour boats which ply through the Thousand Islands, but they are not quite the same.

If there were to be any renewed demand for boat trips amid our own local waters or if some entrepreneur were inclined to create interest in them, the vessel would have to be of a kind that matches the seventies. A hydrofoil for instance; we have always wondered why nobody has put such a vessel into service. The Italians and Russians have them and there is one which is popular with the public on harbor cruises in Auckland, N.Z.

Lone Voyage

The latest solo voyage across the Atlantic has been remarkable for two reasons, the first being that it was accomplished by a young woman, Nicolette Milens-Walker 28-year-old psychologist, and secondly it was a voyage almost without incident. Aside from a couple of days of stormy weather it was plain sailing. The 3,500-mile journey from Dale in North Wales to Newport, Rhode Island took 45 days.

It was all a stark contrast to the experience of a German artist who on the To Tell the Truth program on television the other evening told of being stormbound on a voyage from Tahiti to Hawaii. As a result of his experience the artist, from cheerful representations of clowns, dancers and the like, now produces sinister, tortured-looking abstracts reflecting his terrifying experience at sea.

As a psychologist Miss Milens-Walker might have welcomed a little bit of adversity too en route to the United States, just to test her reactions and indulge in a little introspection. Next thing we may hear she is following in the wake of Sir Francis Chichester and Sir Alec Rose in sailing around the world alone.

Cows And Rock

We have heard that soft music has been beneficial in increasing milk yield. In other words the cows dig the strains of soothing music. But what of rock and its effect on the herd of cattle owned by the organizers of the Rock Acres peace festival? Now cows are not chickens, but they are gentle critters and we would hate to see them suffer the fate of 200 chickens in Granby, Italy, recently. The chicks died of suffocation when they crowded into a corner of their henhouse, apparently trying to escape the noise of a rock music festival which their owner, one Dario Roncalo, had helped organize in a nearby field. Cows prefer peace and quiet, but some up Queensboro way are not going to get it this weekend.

Game Needs Support

More people are using the tennis courts at Zwick's Island than in past years. From early morning to late at night under the lights the courts are in use. There is coaching there too, as well as at other locations. These activities belie Canada's traditionally indifferent image in the sphere of tennis. Montrealer Pierre Lamarche, a coach at Pennsylvania State University, says that with the exception of Ontario and British Columbia little is done by provincial tennis associations to promote young players under 21. In his own case he says he lost "six years of tournament play because nobody cared" to encourage his development after he won the Canadian junior title in 1965. Who knows, maybe the current enthusiasm for the game here, together with coaching, will produce players of international class.

New Location

In an editorial yesterday we noted that a boutique on Bridge Street East had closed. A note on the door, however, points out that it has moved to a new location on Front Street.

Students Thrive on Tough Program

Want to Know What A Real Education Is Like?

Ean Cherry in
The Globe and Mail

The toughest schools in North America are run by the Company of the Cross, an Anglican religious order of families and single people who live communally. They're not just for people to start both St. John's Cathedral Boys' School near Selkirk, Man., and a girls' school in Calgary, near Edmonton. They need teachers, writers, potters, maintenance men, farmers.

"Both Schools enroll 130 boys amicably who pay fees of $1,200 for board, room, tuition, sports and about $200 for incidentals and clothing. We provide most of the clothes they need.

"We need men of Christian commitment. They must have their professions and be prepared to teach them to boys. They must be ready to take part in the rigorous outdoor program, paddling up to 1,000 miles in summer, snowshoeing up to 50 miles in the winter.

"All this they must be willing to do for a salary of $1 a day plus food, housing and necessities for themselves and their families.

"It is a work for those of assured faith and of humility who can think logically, laugh easily, work willingly and pray.

"The $1 a day is not the real money'. Our other costs for a family of four for instance, would be roughly $2,000 a year.

"A clothing allowance of $10 per month per person (adult) is supplied. Families with children use Family Allowance funds for clothing their children. Ten dollars isn't much, but we dress fairly plainly - most of the time in work clothes. We do not lack for anything, really.

"Teacher training and experience is desirable but not the main consideration. This is for those who are interested in working with young people. it's an exciting and unique project."

Associate members of the Company represent several denominations - Roman Catholic, United, Baptist, Dutch Reformed Church. The students are also of various religions, including Jewish and Moslem.

The boys go to school seven days a week. They follow the official provincial course of studies supplemented by St. John's administrators believe an average boy can't handle about four times as much work as is requested in most public schools. At St. John's he gets it. When one Indian boy took a job is used in public schools, St. John's uses as many as 13.

From Friday evening until Sunday night there's an intensive program - of logic, Greek, Latin, conversational German, poetry, public speaking, written argument, government and religion. Brothers they have a physical schedule of sailing and rowing, and snowshoe trips in winter. One school supplies the choir for St. John's Cathedral in Winnipeg.

Mr. Wiens had 13 years experience as a teacher in public schools before he started St. John's back in 1962. He has art and education degrees from the University of Manitoba and he has 10 children of his own.

His words: "If you ask the impossible of a child you'll often get it. They're tougher than most of our educators think they are."

The boys get up at 7 a.m. and go to work projects. From around the dorms, feed chickens, help cook breakfast and after each meal the allotted number are scrubbed down. In all they put in three hours of chore duty every second day.

The students come from all over North America. They help run the school farm, the carpenter shop, process chickens, care their own barn and bacon.

Thirteen Saturdays at year they hit the streets of Winnipeg, 25 miles away, and sell their products door to door. They sell well over $100,000 worth every year.

Mr. Wiens again: "The public school system has been forced to water all down to the level of the common norm. And discipline, or lack of it is one of the big factors. Everybody is too soft today. There's no work for a youngster to do at home. He gets lazy and bored.

"We believe that any youngster that doesn't work, on occasion to the point of exhaustion is being sold short by his parents, his teachers and his country. Stressed stress supports stressed people.

"Yes, they're the toughest schools in North America if by tough you mean those that demanding of its pupils. We push them to death . . . grind them into the ground. We never really demand the impossible. What we do demand is a hell of a lot more than they ever thought was possible.

"It's a rough spartan atmosphere but the boys thrive on it.

"A youngster is happy when he has things going on that interest him. He will be happy only as long as he is thinking and concerned, about the things he is doing - not himself. As soon as he's looking at himself and asking, 'Am I happy?' — then he won't be happy."

Why Standing Room Only On Holiday Weekend Trains?

Editor,
The Intelligencer.

According to railroad spokesmen, the number of rail passengers is constantly declining, thus necessitating the cutting of passenger service. If Mondays experience was an example of what rail travel offers, I can readily understand the traveller's reluctance to go by train.

Friends from Niagara Falls returned by train on Monday afternoon. The loudspeaker first informed us of a six-minute delay in the arrival time at Belleville and also announced there was standing room only. When the train arrived, this proved to be the understatement of the year. A few passengers got off at Belleville and a multitude boarded the westbound train.

These passengers paid full fare for the opportunity of standing during the two-hour, 100-mile trip to Toronto. Only when were changing trains at Union Station were hoping to find seats for the remainder of their journey.

The situation provoked this thought — apparently the CN Kingston office telegraphed the delay in arrival and the information regarding standing room only. So, before the train arrived at Belleville, this was known. Why then, could not an extra coach have been ready when the train arrived to accommodate the large number of passengers waiting for this westbound train?

University students travelling on weekends often encounter such crowded coaches, standing in aisles, washrooms, diners and between coaches.

Is there any truth to the argument by railroads that passenger numbers are declining, thus necessitating cutting of rail service? Would the number decline if railroads provided expected accommodation for which customers pay when they buy their tickets?

Is there any justification in the common argument that the railroads are deliberately cutting services to discourage passengers in favor of freight? Was Monday an example supporting this argument?

K-W Area Welfare Costs Up

Kitchener - Waterloo Record

The welfare costs in any community serve as a useful indicator of economic strengths and weaknesses prevailing at any given time. The indicators in Kitchener and Waterloo have been rising for some time and, according to the latest reports, there is no sign that they are about to slacken. Quite the opposite, in fact.

The chill winds accompanying the loss of income for any family are difficult to accept, particularly for those who may be experiencing them for the first time. They are likely to be accompanied by a feeling of being left out of things, of being forced to stand aside while the rest of society goes unconcernedly about its business.

For a father with a family to support it can be a terrifying experience, heightened by the awful feeling that there is no place for him in a growing economy. The lack of income and something useful to do emphasizes in no other way the importance of money in an affluent society.

It there is a responsibility on the part of society to provide opportunity for its people, there is an equal responsibility on the part of that same society to provide assistance when opportunity is absent. That welfare departments exist is evidence that this responsibility is acknowledged.

However, it is the jaundiced eye with which some people, particularly municipal politicians, view growing welfare costs that is a matter of concern.

It is unfortunately only a short step from criticism of the unemployed generally to putting a label on them as being too lazy to work. And from there to demanding they work eight hours a day for whatever allowance they receive through welfare. It has already happened in New York City.

Governments Should Avoid Regimentation in Dealing With Medical Profession

Montreal Gazette

Medicare is here to stay. The corollary ought not to be forced regimentation of the medical profession. Politicians and civil servants who think the doctors need to be cut down to size are doing purely humexarable harm. It will be seen in the numbers of able men and women who will not enter the medical profession. Relatively few will embark upon the arduous program of studies if, at the end, they must go where they are told and will have the government constantly looking over their shoulders.

Society has valued and respected the medical profession because it values life itself. Indeed, it values the work of the medical profession more than it values any single other service to it. There has been some priority wild denunciation of the profession, particularly during the controversy over medicare, but only a fool would want to see society without the best doctors that it can possibly have.

Whether society obtains them depends, more than anything else, upon the prestige of the medical profession. As a result of the prestige that the profession has enjoyed up to now throughout Canada, it has been able to attract a considerable proportion of the most talented young people in each rising generation.

To have heard some government spokesmen during the last few years, one would think they were dedicated to the impression that all medical services while the medical profession sought only wealth and power. This would have strained public credulity but for the fact that there is such a widespread belief that any strong government is the answer to every problem.

Governments have a natural tendency to expand their powers wherever they can and, in the name of better services at least, it is currently being exercised at the expense of the medical profession. The public interest requires some equilibrium between governmental authority and the power of the medical profession. Instead of trying to find it, governments in Quebec, Ontario and British Columbia are moving, in an atmosphere of mistrust of the medical profession, to put the medical profession to the status of an arm of the public bureaucracy.

British Columbia has leapt ahead with a cabinet order, issued last week, that gives the minister of health powers to decide at which hospitals doctors may practice. The powers are unlimited, although a hospital board of management may appeal a ministerial decision to the provincial cabinet within 30 days. A doctor has no appeal.

It is one of the major sections of the St. Lawrence seaway which always shuts down to the interior of North America from the Atlantic.

1961—Russia's second cosmonaut, Gherman Titov, landed safely after 25 hours, 18 minutes in orbit. He had completed 17 circuits of the earth at a maximum altitude of 159 miles.

1954—Quintuplet Emilie Dionne, 20, died at St. Agathe des Monts, Que.

1919—The British dirigible R-34 crossed the Atlantic in 90 hours.

1893—The Corinth canal in Greece was opened.

1871—The SS Niagara began laying the eastern half of the transatlantic telegraph cable; it broke five miles out of Valentia Bay, Ireland.

1834—Anne Hathaway died.

How Much Is It Going To Cost?

I have been following with mixed feelings your coverage of the Rock Acres Peace Festival, but the end of the outcome is I think our township and county officials should be commended for their attempt to stop it.

Controlled Crash

Steel-post Barrier Minimizes Crash

OTTAWA (CP) — A lowly weed, thrusting through the cracked tarmac of old Rockcliffe airport here Thursday, foiled scientists trying to crash a car into a steel cable barrier.

The unwelcome plant tripped a device which shut off the car engine so that the National Research Council test vehicle hit the barrier at about half the expected speed.

The scientists ruefully cleared the path, repaired the damage and, at the second try, achieved a spectacular public demonstration of the ability of steel cable noticed post highway barriers to minimize the hazard of leaving the road.

At 44 miles an hour, the driverless, remote-controlled 1961 Pontiac stretched the steel cables taut, hung precariously over a seven-foot ditch built to simulate a cliff, then was yanked back onto the road and screeched along the cable to a stop.

"Just as predicted by the computer," remarked engineer G. F. W. McCaffrey who with colleagues in the structures and material laboratory has been crashing various makes of cars into similar barriers since 1968.

They are trying to find out what happens to the car and to the safety barrier under impact from different weights, car models, speeds and simulated road conditions.

Mr. McCaffrey and laboratory chief A. H. Hall are pleased with first reports of use of a similar safety barrier near Montreal.

A 1,100-foot barrier of steel cable — the kind that lines thousands of miles of highway now — and notched steel-posts was installed west of the Dorval interchange outside Montreal.

Even when a small car crashed into it at 50 miles an hour, to avoid colliding with another car, only minor damage resulted. At least two other cars have struck the barrier and driven off even before police could get there to record the details.

Mr. McCaffrey says an advantage of the steel post and cable barrier over conventional cable-and-wood is that the steel posts snap off at a known force so that the cable can be positioned and anchored to minimize expected types of crash.

"We now have a good idea of how cable barrier behaves in general and the Quebec results appear to confirm the efficiency shown in field tests of the notched post system."

Nevertheless he is not hopeful that provincial highway departments will rush into the new safety barriers. One reason is that contracts for cutting wood posts for conventional barriers are good sources of income for some woodlot owners and in places are regarded as important items of political patronage.

The costs initially of steel posts are slightly higher than for wood. But this is more than offset by the ease with which they can be replaced and the barrier returned to normal.

CMHC Forecloses on Rochdale

OTTAWA (CP) — Foreclosure action is being taken against Rochdale College in Toronto, Robert Andras, minister responsible for urban affairs, announced Thursday.

The announcement said that the college is delinquent by about $450,000 in mortgage payments to Central Mortgage and Housing Corp. and has met its full monthly payment only 11 times in 30 months.

CMHC provided a loan of $4,884,000 to Co-operative College Residences Inc., owners of the Toronto college building, five years ago. The writ of foreclosure will be sought by CMHC, Mr. Andras said in a news release.

The minister said the action is being taken for financial reasons only and should not be seen as any sort of judgment about the students at the college or their way of living.

Rochdale has been a target of criticism from some quarters because it allows mixing of the sexes in its living quarters.

"We are foreclosing on a financial basis. This action directly involves the owners, not the tenants. It is intended to make no statement and no judgment about young people and their lifestyles."

Mr. Andras said it could take as long as two years to complete the legal action, although CMHC hoped to be awarded financial and operating control of the college within a couple of months.

During the legal action period, tenants would be allowed to stay in Rochdale "as long as they pay rent and maintain other normal standards of occupancy," he said. There would be no mass evictions. All current leases would be honored.

Mr. Andras said his decision was based on economics. "There's one firm rule you have to pay your bills."

He said Rochdale suffered from "loose management" from the beginning. But he added that anyone who wrote off Rochdale as a failure might be making a serious mistake. He wasn't convinced that all the uncomplimentary reports about Rochdale were true, although it was not "lily white."

TORONTO (CP) — Mayor William Dennison indicated he was pleased at the foreclosure action against Rochdale College Thursday by the federal government, and that the move should result in the eviction of non-student residents.

He described Rochdale as a "sorry sight ..... which opened its doors to the every whim of the residents .... It was a college in name only."

Deputy Police Chief Jack Ackroyd said he would have no comment on the foreclosure action until he heard what it would mean to the administration and residents of the college.

Court Prosecutor Says His Office Was 'Bugged'

GENEVA PARK, Ont. (CP) — A special prosecutor with the Ontario attorney-general's department said Thursday he believes he has been spied upon with electronic devices while working on court cases.

Clayton Powell of Toronto, who told the annual conference of the Canadian Institute on Public Affairs he was frightened by the fact that there is more electronic bugging done by private individuals and private investigators than by police agencies, was asked if he knew of any instances of electronic surveillance of Crown offices.

Mr. Powell said he knew "of two instances where I have been told by individuals that it was done in relation to two cases in which I was involved. I couldn't put it any stronger than that."

Mr. Powell added, however, it was absolutely essential that police have the means available, including the use of all electronic devices, to track people where there are reasonable grounds to believe that those people are engaged in criminal activity.

Arthur Maloney, a Toronto criminal lawyer, disagreed, saying he has not yet heard of an argument convincing him of a need to give police power to tap telephone in order to collect information on criminal activity.

A proposed federal law, which has been given second reading —approval in principle—would make electronic bugging illegal to everyone but police when, except under emergency circumstances, permission has been granted by a Superior Court judge.

Edward Ryan, counsel to the Ontario Law Reform Commission, also was critical of the proposed federal law which, he said, gives the federal government overly-wide powers in the interception of communications.

Mr. Ryan, a former University of Western Ontario law professor and author of a study on invasion of privacy, said government ministers, rather than Superior Court judges, should be responsible for issuing warrants to police for wiretapping.

About 140 delegates are attending the conference at this community five miles north of Orillia.

Stanfield Expects China to Stand Firm

TORONTO (CP) — Opposition leader Robert Stanfield said Thursday recent United States' support of China's admission to the United Nations is a recognition by the U.S. "that it must change its policy . . . and establish normal relations with Peking."

He said, however, that the planned visit to China by U.S. President Richard Nixon is no indication of greatly improved U.S.-China relations.

Mr. Stanfield, speaking on a CTV network program taped Thursday and broadcast that night, recently returned from a tour of China and later discussions with U.S. leaders.

He said the Chinese made it clear to him that the U.S. will have to change its position, "especially in regard to Taiwan."

The U.S. does not favor expulsion of Taiwan from the UN as a consequence of Peking's entry, China has repeated, however, that there can only be one representative. Mr. Stanfield didn't think the Chinese will change their attitude. "They will continue to press for their objectives."

Mr. Stanfield, who met with Henry Kissinger, presidential adviser, and U.S. State Secretary Rogers, said he feels he was "serving a purpose" in the discussions. However, he said he anticipates no Canadian role in future U.S.-China relations.

Injunction Is Sought Against Egg Controls

MONTREAL (CP) — An Ontario egg producer applied Thursday for an injunction against the "trade limiting" section of Fedco, the Quebec egg marketing agency.

Lawyers Graham Nesbitt and Lawrence Poitras, representing Rudy Krall and Sons of Petrolia, Ont., said in a written brief to Superior Court Judge Anne Monet that Fedco's recent seizures of out-of-province eggs is a "blatant interference with, and an impediment to" interprovincial trade.

The judge indicated a decision would be forthcoming next week.

Fedco fixes prices and sets marketing quotas on eggs sold in Quebec and is empowered to seize out-of-province eggs that enter the province without the agency's approval.

Rudy Krall and Sons is one of several firms whose eggs have been confiscated by Fedco since last June, following seizures in Ontario of Quebec-produced broiler chickens.

Fires in B.C. and North Sweeping Million Acres

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Smoke haze was visible in Calgary, Red Deer and Edmonton late Thursday as fires, covering almost one million acres, raged out of control in British Columbia and the Northwest Territories.

Most of the forests burning consist of non-commercial timber but some prime commercial forests in British Columbia were affected.

Forestry service officials reported that 620,000 acres had been burned at various locations in the N.W.T., 250,000 acres in B.C. and thousands of acres more in Alberta. The total of nearly one million acres is slightly less than the size of Prince Edward Island, which is 1.3 million acres.

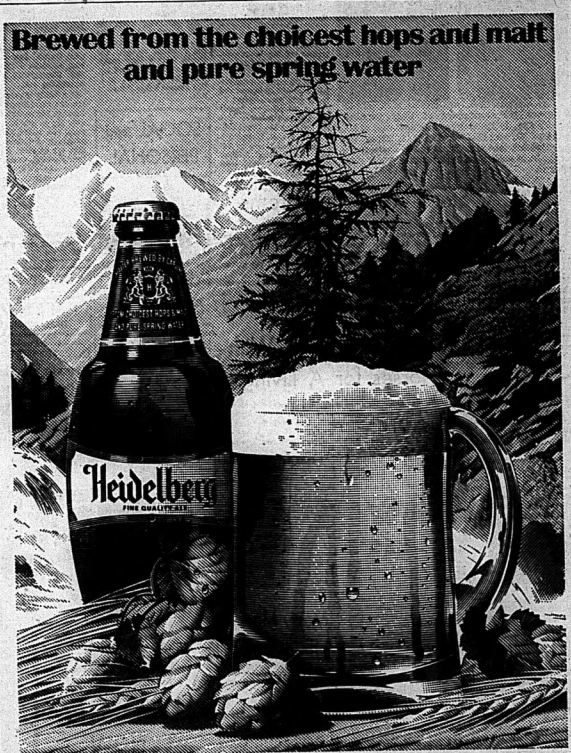
Firefighters in the north had given up hope of containing the fires, conceding the battle until nature and time put them out. But in the south the battle continued with hundreds of men and fleets of water bombers, helicopters and tracked vehicles working in the more accessible areas.

Fires in the N.W.T. cut power and telephone service and highway travel to several northern centres.

Residents of Donald Station, B.C., on the Trans-Canada Highway, had their bags packed as one of the province's largest fires burned on their doorstep.

Lack of rain and temperatures in the 80s and 90s were said to have been aiding the fires. Drought conditions have persisted for three years in the N.W.T.

The biggest fire in B.C. a 250,000-acre blaze 135 miles north of Fort Nelson in the northern part of the province, continued to spread through barren scrub land. Fire lines were under construction on its south and west sides to protect more valuable timber.



The fire threatening Donald Station, 550 miles south of Fort Nelson, covers 60,000 acres and has been burning out of control for more than two weeks.

Most of the fires in the N.W.T. were near Great Slave Lake, 500 miles north of Edmonton.

Telephone communications from Fort Smith, N.W.T., were cut by a 250,000-acre fire. Hydro lines from Snare River dam were out and the territorial capital of Yellowknife was using an emergency electrical system.

WEDDING

ROUSE — STEEVES

Chicoland Ste. Mary's Church, Saskatchewan was the scene of an afternoon wedding, June 26, when Father Van Daudeker of Nipawin, in a double ring ceremony, united in marriage Karen Jean, younger daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Weeden Steeves of Choiceland to Constable James John Rouse, son of Mr. and Mrs. Jack Rouse of Frankford, Ontario. Organist was Mrs. R. Fenrich.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride was in a white floor length gown of peau de soie, with a high neckline, trimmed with lace, leg-of-mutton sleeves, a short veil held in place with a tiara of lilies of the valley, overlapping her satin waist-sweeping train. She carried an arm bouquet of red roses.

The matron of honor, Mrs. Brian Clark, sister of the bride, and bridesmaids Rose Mary Kumair, and Judy Grabowski of Saskatoon were identical gowns of floor length white voile embossed with blue flowers, underlined with white satin, leg of mutton sleeves, white daisy headpieces. Each carried a blue and white carnation bouquet.

The bridegroom was attended by Robert Laport of North Battleford. Ushers were Ronald Morier of Rosthern and William Tridale of Prince Albert.

For the occasion, the bride's mother chose a pink satin ensemble, white accessories and with a white carnation corsage. The bridegroom's mother wore a mauve fortel dress, white accessories and wore a white rose corsage.

The reception was held after the ceremony in the Community Hall, where the guests were served by the United Church Women.

For her going away, the bride donned a beige satin suit, with bronze accessories and a bronze corsage. The couple, after a short honeymoon to Northern Lakes and Saskatoon will reside at 6, 203 Branion Drive, Prince Albert.

Couple Mark Fifty Years Of Marriage

Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Bateman, 113 St. Lawrence St. W., Madoc, celebrated their 50th wedding anniversary with an "at home" to relatives, friends and neighbors on Sunday, July 25.

They were married on July 27, 1921 at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Hyland, Napanee. RR 4 by Rev. H. J. Latimer, Methodist minister, Wilton.

Mr. Bateman is the youngest son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Major Bateman, Eldorado, while his bride was the former Flossie Hyland. She taught school near Tamworth, Camden East and near Marmora, where she met her future husband, who was a successful farmer. They lived on the Bateman homestead until March 1970 when they moved to their present home in Madoc. YWCA Starts Youth Programs

TORONTO (CP) — A YWCA in a residential area in Toronto has been running a program that reaches in several directions at once.

It started with a combination of requests from the community One came from teenagers who said they wanted some kind of involvement in their community, the other from people in a low-rent skyscraper apartment development who said their kids had nothing to do in the evening.

Now France McCabe is teaching teen-agers in a training course on how to work with children. They get practical experience running a program for children of Ontario Housing Commission tenants.

Mrs. McCabe says: "We try to tell the teen-agers what their responsibilities will be, what qualities a leader has, how this works in a group. Their main worry was discipline and control, and we do have adult leaders helping.

"We start with basic stuff in the beginning and try to scatter training through the year, working with their impressions of their kids and their experiences.

"The children are seven to 11 and 11 to 14 in a more advanced program. We have an hour with them each week, with five to eight kids in a group.

"For some of them its pure recreation, for some it's a break from home and a way to have a positive experience. Sometimes, because the groups are small, it helps a child make friends, which he hasn't done before We have also found kids opening up because there are adults they can talk to.

"The problem in OHC complexes is that there is no play area .There could be 200 kids in a building.

"Usually there's a waiting list for our program .It's too bad, but it's the only practical way to run it.

There is another fringe benefit in that the program helps mix the single family community and the low-rent OHC projects.a little .Most of the teen-agers are from middle income homes.

Brenda Sauro is a teen-ager who lives in an OHC building . She says she took the course for its training and the experience it offers and because of it she now thinks she might like to work with children when she graduates.

"I think the attention is good for them .They don't really get very much around here. We let them choose their own program, so they're really doing what they want to do, they're not being told what to do.

"We form a big family looking after little kids".

Brenda is working for the city parks and recreation department this summer.

Mrs. McCabe says a number of the teen agers do the course to get experience that might help them get summer jobs.

munity. One came from teenpeople .A few have been on drugs and had counselling and now are coming off. They want to be useful."

Grandma Works With Horses for A Living

SURREY, B.C. (CP) — Through broken ribs, a fractured arm, kicks and bites, Maude Naso has kept a lifelong love of horses.

Now 51, a grandmother of four, she works as a licensed exercise "boy" at Lansdowne track in nearby Richmond, exercising and grooming horses.

"I'm not afraid of the horses," she said in an interview, "but I do respect them.

"When you get on a horse you never know if you'll be getting off again in one piece."

Race horses are notoriously temperamental and high-strung, she said. Despite her injuries, she has been exercising horses professionally for eight years, concentrating mainly these days on her own race horse, Flow Chips.

Mrs. Naso's proudest possession is her licence from the British Columbia Racing Commission.

"I had to threaten to take them to court to get that licence.

"They weren't about to give it to someone my age.

"I'm the grandmother of four and proud of it. You're only as young as you feel and I feel like a girl."

RODE SIDE-SADDLE

Her horse is another proud possession.

"He's a three-year-old gelding and he's won three races already," she said.

"I broke him myself too."

Her husband, Samuel, is a trainer and her daughter Corinne is married to an exjockey.

Mrs. Naso began riding when she was six years old.

"In those days it was sidesaddle of course," she said. "That was quite proper in Quebec."

By the time she was 18, she was riding in Alberta rodeos.

"I rode everything, including wild horses and steers. They didn't have Brahma bulls then or I would have tried that."

Her ambition now is to ride in a race.

"I don't imagine I'll ever get it though. Who is going to want a grandmother out there riding their race horse?"

Looking 15 years her junior, she says every woman requires four things to keep a youthful appearance: a good doctor, a good dentist, a good car mechanic and a good beautician.

"With those things, you never grow old. And of course, I never eat sweets and don't smoke."

Many Mark Birthdays

STIRLING — On the occasion of her 80th birthday Mrs. H. C. David (nee Madge Williams) and family were guests at the village's Senior Citizen's club.

The party was arranged by Mrs. Ira David assisted by Mr. and Mrs. D. Smith of Ottawa and their daughter Susan from Pittsburgh.

At another luncheon at the club Robert Patterson, a well known business man retired received a birthday cake from his wife and granddaughters. The presentation was part of the celebration in observing his 80th birthday.

On the same occasion Mrs. Everett Cooke honored her husband with the gift of a lighted birthday cake,

Ann Landers

Girl Is Constant Source Of Worry to Father

ANN LANDERS

DEAR ANN LANDERS: That 11-year-old girl who was worried that her eight-year-old sister was ruining her parents' sex life because she kept wanting to sleep with them was mighty interesting. I lived through this same sad story and I know all the sick complications.

My own daughter was a little younger when she began to complain of stomach aches, headaches, nightmares — anything to get into our bed. I refused to allow it, but my husband was an easy-mark. He used to get out of bed and sit on the couch with Glenda until the wee hours of the morning.

Later we were divorced, Glenda chose to stay with her father rather than with me because she "liked him better." Today she is a teenager, and pulling the same stunts to punish him for remarrying — only on a grander scale. She has run away from home, become sexually promiscuous and attempted suicide.

Glenda and her father are now getting psychiatric help in an attempt to straighten out their relationship. It might be too late, but at least they are working at it. Please advise the parents of that eight-year-old to see that she gets psychiatric help NOW. — DAUGHTER'S RIVAL.

DEAR RIVAL: I have dealt with this problem in the column on numerous occasions — and have always suggested professional counseling. Thanks for the close-to-home testimony.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I have been married for 15 years. We have four children. I love my husband very much, so please don't tell me to leave him. I'd rather die. We never had a honeymoon. He has never bought me a birthday present or even an anniversary card. We have the same furniture we started with — even curtains, so you can imagine what our place looks like.

I have worked ever since we got married, taking time out only to have the kids. I turn every check over to my husband. He lets the bills go until we get notices from collection agencies. Then he writes checks for more money than we have in the bank, and I have to go to my boss for a loan. I can't ever afford to buy the medicine my doctor says I must have.

Last night I told my husband he was driving me nuts. He sat down with a pencil and paper and showed me that we would be out of hock in three months. I've heard this before. If he hasn't been able to manage it in 15 years, how can he do it in three months? What should I do? — TWO-THIRDS CRAZY IN LAFAYETTE.

DEAR LA: Only two-thirds? Your percentages are off. A woman who turns her paycheck over to a man who is such a lousy manager and not leave herself enough money to buy medicine, needs a lot more help than Ann Landers can give her. My advice is to get some counseling and find out what's the matter with you that you put up with such treatment.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I've got a word for the lady in Shaker Heights who became very upset because her friend kept bragging to everyone that her daughter Rosalie was engaged to a doctor. When the news got out that the doctor was "only a dentist' Shaker Heights popped a gusset.

Please tell Mrs. Shaker Heights that Rosalie's mother has nothing to worry about. I received my dentist's bill this morning and a living he'll make. — SUPERIOR, WISC.

* * *

DEAR SUPERIOR: And why shouldn't he? He's entitled.

Check-ups Every Five Years Might Improve Marriages

By DORIS CLARK

A social worker suggests that it might help marriages if there were some sort of a regular marital check - up - like a renewable marriage contract. This might be comparable to the regular physical check - up which is now being recommended by our medical profession.

Would this help? I'm inclined to think that if a young couple were to realize that after, say, five years of marriage they would be called to review their actions and progress, they might work a little harder at making marriage work, in order to pass the five - year examination.

If marriage were not such a decidedly permanent arrangement, it might mean - wonderful thought! - that the partners would never get to the point where they took each other for granted .They might even give serious thought to some positive approaches to staying in love .

I like the whole idea.

* * *

Dear Doris: My oldest daughter is getting married this summer. I have five other daughters having the following ages:—18, 17, 15, 10 and nine. I would like to include them all in the bridal party.

Which role could each one have, and particularly the nine and 10 - years olds? Would it be appropriate to have girls as ushers in the church and how should they be dressed? - All Girls.

Dear All Girls: If you can stand the expense of five lovely bridesmaid outfits, they could all get into the act. The oldest would be maid of honor, the next two, bridesmaids and the two youngest, junior bridesmaids.

That's as long as there is no close friend of the bride, who is going to feel slighted. Often a bride will choose her oldest sister for maid of honor and then have close friends or someone in the groom's family as her other attendants. With all those girls in your family they will have plenty of chances to share this honor.

Traditionally, the ushers are friends of the groom. He ought to have the choice of his own attendants.

* * *

Dear Doris: About two weeks ago I went out with a very immature guy (he's 16, I'm 17). He didn't respect me at all and tried to touch me before he even kissed me.

This turned me right off and I told him I didn't want to go with him any more. He said he was sorry and that he would never do it again. But every day in school he asks me out and I always refuse.

Now he has threatened to tell my father that I sneaked out twice and got drunk both times. My father would beat me if he ever found this out. He says he'll tell. If I don't go with him. — Threatened.

Dear Threatened: My guess is he would be scared skinny to talk to your father about anything. If your dad is the beating kind, what would he do to this boy? You might remind him of this.

Don't let any boy blackmail you into going out with him. Just stick to your guns. In the future don't do anything which you wouldn't want your father to know, because he will find out eventually if you keep on.

* * *

Then you'll have to face the music , won't you?

Every day Doris hears from readers who report success success after taking her' advice on a human dilemma. Let her help you with yours.

Picnics and Potato Salad Go Together

By MARY MOORE

QUESTION: I have been requested to take a potato salad to serve six people to a picnic later this month. Because my mother made potato salad from mashed potatoes I always do. But I notice on the delicatessen counters that the potatoes in it are always cut in pieces. Would you give me your best potato salad? We grow our own so I could use homegrown new potatoes. -- Annie G.

ANSWER: Newly dug potatoes are ideal for potato salad and it is only the chosen few who can use their own. You are lucky.

BEST POTATO SALAD
(serves 6)

3 cups cooked diced (1-3") new potatoes
1 cup slightly cooked green peas
2 finely chopped small green onions
1 cup chopped pared cucumber (OR ¼ cup EACH cucumber and inner celery)
6 thinly sliced medium radishes
1 hard-cooked egg chopped
2-3 cup genuine mayonnaise about ¼ to ½ tsp. salt
cupped lettuce leaves

Cook and cool potatoes and pare and dice them. Bring the shelled peas just to boiling point in minimum of water and drain and cool. In a large mixing bowl combine potatoes, peas, onion, cucumber (OR cucumber and celery), radishes and hard-cooked egg. Gently mix. Add mayonnaise and ¼ tsp. salt and carefully combine. Now taste it to see if it has enough salt to please you. If not add a little more. Cover and chill thoroughly.

Carry it to the picnic in insulated picnic hamper. Take along about six washed and dried cupped lettuce leaves in plastic bag. Take a wooden salad bowl along too. When serving time arrives line wooden bowl with lettuce leaves and pile cold potato salad at centre.

If desired you could prepare a second hard-cooked egg to use as a garnish, cutting it into wedges or slicing it in an egg-slicer and arrange it as a border.

I hope you and your friends and all of our readers like this for it is my current favorite.

NOTE: I may be giving here soon a cold-cooked jellied potato salad made with mashed potatoes.

Obscenity Jail Terms Bring Storm of Protest

LONDON (Reuter) — The jailing of three underground magazine editors on obscenity charges by a High Court judge has provoked a storm of reaction throughout Britain.

Politicians, pop stars, newspapers and civil liberties groups have protested against the sentences imposed Thursday on Australian Richard Neville, James Anderson, and Felix Dennis by Justice Michael Argyle.

Neville was jailed for 15 months and recommended for deportation, Anderson jailed for one year, and Dennis for nine months. All are appealing.

Hippies and supporters of the magazine Oz danced around an effigy of the judge, which was burned. Several were arrested in Scuffles with the police.

The Daily Mail says it believes the three got far more than they deserved from a British judge.

"The jail sentences for all three, ranging from six to 15 months," are excessive to the point of judicial brutality."

The Sun says that a gold-plated sledgehammer was used to crack a very squalid nut, and concludes: "The whole Oz affair has been blown up out of all proportion to its mean and nasty gutter origin. It is The Sun's view that the sentences have been similarly inflated."

As the row continues, the members of the new editorial board for Oz promised that the next issue will be a bombshell.

"This time they will need the sedition law, not just the obscenity laws, to bust us," said they.

Eleven members of Parliament, including three former Labor cabinet ministers, have introduced a Commons motion expressing shock at the severity of the sentences.

In the tumult, some voices agreed with the judge.

The Times, admitting the sentences were exceptional, says the judge had sufficient justification for being severe, as the morals and well-being of children were endangered.

The Daily Telegraph says: "The sentences were clearly intended by the judge to be of a deterrent nature—who can claim that deterrence is not needed in this field?"

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Dick Gregory, the black entertainer who says he has fasted since April 24 to protest the Vietnam war, trotted five miles in a demonstration of his health.

Gregory told reporters after the romp Thursday that he runs five miles daily. He said he has consumed only fruit juice and water during the fast and lost 54 pounds. He weighs 104 pounds compared with his normal weight of 160.

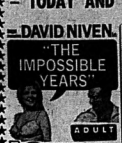
The comic said the fast is a testimonial for peace because he believes war doesn't prove anything.

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Actress Jane Fonda posted $50,000 bail for two Black Panther party members accused in a shootout with police, one of the men has testified.

Melvin C. Smith, granted immunity from prosecution in turn for his testimony in the case, said Thursday that after Miss Fonda posted the bail, party officials ordered the men to jump bail. They flew to Texas, he said.

Smith is the key witness in the conspiracy trial of 13 Black Panthers charged in connection with a police raid on the party in Los Angeles headquarters nearly two years ago.

Smith testified in the Superior Court trial that he and Loyd Mimms, who still is at large, were joined in Marshall, Tex., by Panthers from other areas who had jumped bail on other charges.



LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — Singer Perry Como, in hospital since Monday, has undergone what is described as a minor non-surgical procedure to relieve a kidney stone ailment, a spokesman for Sunrise Hospital said Wednesday. Como is in excellent condition and is expected to leave the hospital soon, the spokesman said.

Como, in his 50s, was taken to the hospital Monday shortly before he was to go on stage at a hotel. He was described as being in "considerable pain."

Everyone Aiming for Munich

Most of the world's sporting eyes are currently focused on the Pan-American Games in Cali, Colombia. However next year it will be Munich's turn, when that West German city plays host to the 1972 Olympic Games. Here, some basketballers cavort outside the 6,400-seat rotunda that is costing the West German government some $6 million to complete in time for the Olympiad.

Marathon Winner Waved Water Rule

CALI, Colombia (CP) — "It wasn't one of my best races so I don't know if it worked well or not," said Ron Wallingford of Sudbury, Ont., of his water-drinking experiment in the marathon at the Pan-American Games Thursday.

The 37-year-old runner finished sixth in the event in which he defied the old athletic rule that you should not consume too much liquid before undertaking prolonged exertion.

Wallingford's theory was that the perspiration which would come from drinking more fluids would act as a cooling system to combat the 83-degree heat which enveloped the 26-mile, 385-yard marathon course.

"I took about 35 or 40 ounces in all before and during the race," Wallingford said at the finish. "I think it helped a little to keep me cool but it's pretty hard to say.

"But these are the sort of things we have to keep experimenting with. We have to keep trying."

An associate professor in physical education, Wallingford is a lecturer at Laurentian University in Sudbury.

Last Saturday, he won the 10,000 metres. He led silver medal winner Gaspar Jose Garcia of Mexico by more than four minutes.

Before Shorter did it, no runner had ever won the two races in Games history.

Wallingford's time was 2:32:26.0. He said the race was a tough one for him.

Wallingford was met after the finish by his wife and five children who are spending their holidays here.

Canadian Divers Scrounge Cheap Suits

CALI, Colombia (CP) — Liz Carruthers of Edmonton was wearing a suit she picked up on sale during a European tour when she won the Pan-American Games gold medal in springboard diving Thursday.

Bev Boys of Pickering, Ont., won the third-place bronze medal in a suit she bought second-hand from a member of the United States team.

Although the speed and synchronized swimmers have their suits supplied by the Canadian team, the divers have to buy their own.

And they don't come cheap. Diving suits must be stronger and more form-fitting than swim suits and Liz said they cost between $20 and $30 apiece.

"We have to watch for sales."

CALI, Colombia (CP) — When Jocelyne (Jojo) Carrier of Quebec City went up to receive her silver medal in synchronized swimming at the Pan-American Games Thursday night she had to make a last-minute change. Her pants were on backwards.

The self-possessed 15-year-old school girl changed her sweat pants quickly and went back for the medal she won with a solid performance in the solo competition.

Wearing a white bead-dress made by her mother, Jojo performed to the music from the movie Gone With the Wind and won mostly 8½s and 9s for a total of 43.50 points in the freestyle. She scored 7.2's in the compulsory figures three days ago.

CALI, Colombia (AP) — Arthur Lenz, chairman of the United States Olympic Committee, is a seasoned international traveller who knows all about the danger of pickpockets.

"I always carry my money in my front pocket," he said. "My credit cards, identification cards and hotel key I put in my left hind pocket. I put a handkerchief on top of them for extra protection and then button the pocket."

None of which spared him from being one of the many visitors to the Pan-American Games who had his pocket picked.

"When I got back to my hotel, I reached into my pocket for the key. The key was there and so was the handkerchief. The credit cards and identification papers were gone."

Whip Ousts Rider

CALI, Colombia (CP) — Robin Hahn, 38, of Belle Plaine, Sask., was shaken Thursday night when told by a reporter that he had been thrown out of the Pan-American Games for life for "inhuman treatment of an animal."

Hahn won the Canadian Three-Day championship this year aboard The Nomad, the animal he is accused of mistreating.

"The Nomad hasn't been well," Hahn said shortly after the second day of the event Thursday.

"He got through the steeplechase, but he fell. From there on he wasn't able to gallop. He just gave up at the 12th fence. I tried hard to get him over, and I must admit I wasn't sparing the leather.

"The whips we use don't leave marks. They aren't to hurt the horse, just to scare him."

With Hahn off the team, Canada could still continue in the event because only three scores of the four-man team count.

Canada Can Boast Best Girl of Games

By BRUCE LEVETT
Canadian Press Sports Editor

CALI, Colombia (CP) — Debbie Van Kiekebelt of Mississauga, Ont., the best all-around women athlete of the Pan-American Games, says she was never sure until the end that she would win the gold medal in the pentathlon.

Although most of the Canadian coaches predicted she would win the five-sport event, the tall 17-year-old track star admitted she was on pins and needles until her time was posted Thursday night in the last event, the 800-metre dash.

"There was always the chance that I might miss a marker and be disqualified or fall and take an injury. So I was never sure of it until I crossed that last finish line."

Miss Van Kiekebelt is the first Canadian to win the pentathlon in a major international competition. It was introduced to the Pan-American Games in Winnipeg four years ago.

Debbie's winning total of 4,290 points, garnered over a two-day period in the 100-metre hurdles, shot put, high jump, long jump and 200 metres, was 178 points more than the team-mate she had battled all the way for the gold.

A disappointed Penny May of Victoria, B.C., got the runner-up silver medal with a total of 4,112.

"Naturally, I'm disappointed in losing the gold to Debbie, but I think it's just great that Canada has taken the gold and silver. This is the first time in the Pan-Ams that we've won both of them."

The women are the darlings of the Canadian team on the basis of their performance in track and field, easily Canada's best performance ever in the games.

In fact, it was Debbie's gold which gave the Canadian team a tie with the United States for the women's over-all track and field championship.

The six-day track and field meet ended with Canadian and American women each winning five gold medals. Cuba took two gold and Jamaica one.

Over-all, women have won six of Canada's seven gold medals. Elizabeth Carruthers of Edmonton, a 19-year-old drama student, won the women's springboard gold medal earlier Thursday with a brilliant come-from-behind performance.

A superb reverse somersault with a 1½ twist in her second-last dive picked up precious points and she finished with 433.24 points. Favored Micki King of Akron, Ohio, who led Wednesday after the first seven preliminary dives, was second and Bev Boys of Pickering, Ont., third. Miss King, a U.S. Air Force captain, scored 432.51 and Miss Boys 425.01.

The Canadian team won six medals Thursday—two gold, two silver and two bronze. In six days of competition the team has a total of 32 medals.

The U.S. team isn't piling up as wide a margin as it did in Winnipeg but still the Americans have a huge bag of gold with the Games approaching the halfway mark.

The U.S. won 14 of the 23 finals on the program Thursday, six of them in track and field. All told, the Americans have won 50 of the 97 gold medals contested. Cuba is second with 18 gold, followed by Canada with its seven and Jamaica, Argentina and Brazil, each with four.

Canadian women also accounted for one silver and three bronze in track and field overall while the men, up against a powerful U.S. team that won 20 of 24 gold, go home with two silver and four bronze.

In Winnipeg, the Canadian track men were the only ones to make a dent in the solid U.S. wall, winning two gold—the marathon and 100 metres.

In the 1971 Games, Jamaican men, led by double sprint winner Don Quarrie, won three gold, Cuba got a single gold—in the triple jump Thursday when Pedro Perez set the lone world record in track and field with an amazing leap of 57 feet 1 inch. The previous mark of 53-0¾ was done by Viktor Saneyev of Russia in the 1968 Olympics.

Other Canadian medal winners Thursday were Jocelyne (Jojo) Carrier, 15-year-old high school girl from Quebec City, awarded a silver in solo synchronized swimming and gymnast Andre Simard of Montreal, who nailed down a bronze in the rings.

The one-two Canadian wallop

DEBBIE VAN KIEKEBELT

in the pentathlon was a fitting climax for the women who exceeded their best previous performance in the Games—four gold—in 1955, 1963 and 1967.

Miss Van Kiekebelt and Miss May both clinched their medals by winning each of their heats of the 200-metre dash. Their identical clocking of 25.0 seconds tied them for second place in scoring the last competition, each with 846 points.

Alda dos Santos of Brazil, the bronze medallist, was just a bit faster in her heat with 24.8 and placed first in the 200 with 882 points.

In a way, Miss May said the outcome was a relief. "I'm just happy it's over and that I've won the silver. Without that I would have felt a letdown."

Miss Kiekebelt said she now is aiming for the Olympics next year in Munich, West Germany.

The North—and South—American champion said she is looking forward, too, to the 1976 Games in Montreal.

"But I want to do well next year, too," she said.

Debbie won her gold this way: Tied for fifth with a clocking of 14.5 seconds in the 100-metre hurdles; heaved the shot put 40-6¾ for second place; first in the high jump, clearing 5-8½; first in the long jump with a leap of 20-1¾, and tied for second in the 200 metres.

Miss May's performances were: Second in the hurdles in 14.6 seconds; first in the shot put with a toss of 41-7¾; tied for sixth in the high jump, clear 4-11; second in the long jump with a leap of 19 9½, and tied for second in the 200 metres. Her silver gives her four medals; the other one—a bronze—was won in the 110-metre hurdles earlier this week.

Canadian teams placed fourth in three of the four relay races that completed the track program.

The U.S. won gold in the men's and women's 1,600-metre relay races and in the women's 400 relay, Jamaica won gold in the men's 400 relay.

Rod Milburn of the U.S., world claimant in the 110-metre hurdles with a 13.0 clocking, won his specialty with a 13.4 performance. Tony Nelson of La Salle, Que., was sixth in 14.4.

Frank Shorter of the U.S. added the marathon gold medal to the one he won in the 10,000 metres. He outran a high-powered field in two hours 12 minutes 44 seconds. Ron Wallingford of Sudbury, Ont., was sixth.

Mike Manley led a one-two American finish in the 3,000-metre steeplechase. His time of 8:42.2 was less than five seconds better than the silver winner, Sid Sink. Raymond Varey of Hamilton, Ont., was fourth in 8:51.8 and Grant McLaren of Drumbo, Ont., sixth in 9:02.2.

A strapping Cuban, Tomasa Nunes, won the women's javelin throw with a toss of 177-3, a Games record.

Mike Karchut hoisted a total of 1,035¾ pounds to win the light heavyweight weightlifting gold. In all, he had three gold and a silver for the four classifications in the event.

Not Kicking So High

Marichal Hasn't Won for Six Weeks!

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

It has been six weeks between victories for Juan Marichal but if San Francisco's high-kicking right-hander is getting impatient, he shouldn't be. After all, Bill Singer waited eight weeks to win a game.

Marichal, winless since June 23, dropped a 3-2 decision to St. Louis Cardinals Thursday night as San Francisco Giants lost their fourth straight game. And Los Angeles Dodgers took advantage of the setback to chop a game off the Giants' West Division lead by blanking Houston Astros 3-0 for Singer's first victory since June 12.

Elsewhere in the National League on Thursday, Pittsburgh Pirates ripped Montreal Expos 7-2, Chicago Cubs blanked San Diego Padres 3-0 and Atlanta Braves nipped New York Mets 2-1 in 17 innings.

Marty Alou drove in two Cardinal runs and rookie Jose Cruz crashed a home run as Reggie Cleveland beat Marichal, now 10-8. Since June 23, Marichal has made eight starts, losing four and being involved in four no-decisions.

The Giants got him a quick run in the first inning when Tito Fuentes tripled and scored on Ken Henderson's sacrifice fly. Cruz' fourth homer tied it in the bottom half of the inning and then the Cards took the lead in the fourth with a throwing error by Marichal setting up the run.

Singer fired a six-hitter and struck out 10 Astros as the Dodgers trimmed San Francisco's division lead to six games by beating Houston. The victory ended a four-game losing streak for Singer.

The Dodgers scored twice in the fourth inning with Jim Lefebvre's single and Steve Garvey's sacrifice fly driving the runs home. LA added a final run on pinch hiter Wes Parker's single.

JUAN MARICHAL

Pittsburgh maintained its eight-game lead in the East Division, using a barrage of three homers by Willie Stargell, Jose Pagan and Al Oliver to wallop Montreal.

Stargell's 20th homer got the Pirates started and Gene Alley added a pair of triples to Pittsburgh's attack. Pagan suffered a broken left arm when he was struck by a pitch in the fifth inning after homering in the third.

When Pirate pitcher Bruce Kison brushed back Jim Fairey in the bottom half of the fifth; he was warned by umpire Lee Weyer. During an argument, Pittsburgh coach Bill Virdon was ejected from the game.

Juan Pizarro allowed just one hit, hurling the Cubs past San Diego. Pizarro, recalled recently from the minors, surrendered only a fifth-inning single to Ollie Brown after he had retired down the first 13 San Diego batters.

The Braves pushed across the deciding run against the Mets in the 17th inning on Darrell Evans' single. Sonny Jackson had singled and moved up on Felix Millan's sacrifice.

The Mets collected 15 hits and eight walks but hit into six double plays and left 18 men on base.

Lemon Likes Him

Otis Justifies Praise

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Bob Lemon, Kansas City Royals manager, believes Amos Otis is the best centre fielder in the American League.

"I can't think of anybody I'd put ahead of Otis," says Lemon.

Otis, now in only his second full season in the majors, justified his manager's praise of him Thursday night, slamming a three-run double during a four-run Kansas City rally in the seventh inning that carried the Royals to a 7-4 victory over the beleaguered Minnesota Twins.

In other AL games, New York Yankees blanked Baltimore Orioles 5-0; Boston Red Sox edged Detroit Tigers 5-4; Cleveland Indians trounced Washington Senators 7-1; Oakland Athletics nipped Milwaukee Brewers 2-1, and Chicago White Sox shaded California Angels 4-0.

You've got to rank Amos up there with the top-flight centre fielders of the last 15 or 20 years," said Lemon. "He doesn't have the power of a Mickey Mantle (former Yankee) but is even so he can hit the ball for distance. And don't forget, Amos was striking out 150 or 160 times a year at this stage of his career."

Otis' double was his 10th game-winning hit of the season, extending his club record, and giving him 61 runs batted in — one behind the Royals.

He also is batting .315, with 20 doubles, four triples, 11 homers and 35 stolen bases. This compares with his .284 average, 28 doubles, nine triples, 11 homers, 58 runs batted in and 33 steals in 159 games in 1970.

Not only has Otis been a standout hitter for the Royals, but he has been a sensational fielder. He played 112 major league games in the outfield before committing his first error on June 18, 1970. He committed three more errors, before finishing the season and was faultless in the first 81 in his first 93 games this year, stretching his streak to a record 165 games, before making his first error. It is his only error in 101 games.

New York's Mel Stottlemyre hurled a brilliant three-hitter against Baltimore and capped a five-run Yankee outburst in the seventh inning with a two-run single.

The loss reduced Baltimore's East Division lead over Boston to 4½ games.

The Red Sox also had a five-run inning in the eighth, in beating Detroit.

Willie Horton drove in all the Detroit runs with a single in the third, a homer in the eighth and a two-run single in the ninth.

Cleveland, which had lost six straight games after beating Oakland ace Vida Blue last Friday in manager Johnny Lipon's debut, ended its losing streak as Vince Colbert got his first major league victory as a starter against Washington.

VICTORIA (CP) — Quebec ended the Ontario British Columbia domination of the Canadian junior national golf championships Thursday by winning the interprovincial team title and Louise LaRochelle of the Quebec City suburb of Ste. Foy left everyone in her dust in the scramble for individual honors. Miss LaRochelle, following in the footsteps of former junior champ Jocelyn Bourassa, held a commanding six stroke lead going into today's final round. The 18 year old student, a four handicapper, carded six over 80 on the treacherous Royal Colwood course Thursday for a 36 hole total of 161. Her closest rival was Debbie Savoy of Latuque, Que., at 167. Miss Savoy and Diane Mercure of Montreal, at 168, enabled Quebec to overcome a one stroke deficit and crush defending champion B.C. by a whopping 11 shots for the team title.

TORONTO (CP) — It will be age old battle of the quarterbacks when Saskatchewan Roughriders tangle with Toronto Argonauts tonight in a Canadian Football League interlocking game at CNE stadium. But there could be a new slant to the fight — three quarterbacks may be calling the plays. An usual, veteran Ron Lancaster, the CFL's most valuable player last season, will lead the Roughriders. But Toronto coach Leo Cahill has hinted he may experiment with changing quarterbacks for each offensive series. And with probably the two most promising young quarterbacks in the league, Greg Barton and Joe Theismann, why not?

"If you have two good quarterbacks this is the only way, in my point of view, to use them," Cahill said this week. "They should have equal responsibility in every game."

MONTREAL (CP) — John Carlos, who gained notoriety for his Black Power salute during the playing of the U.S. national anthem at the Summer Olympics in 1968, may wind up playing football with Montreal Alouettes of the Eastern Football Conference. Carlos, who holds four world track records, said in an interview with The Gazette from his home in Cherry Hill, N.J., that the Alouettes had been in touch with him. "The Alouettes got in touch with me yesterday (Wednesday) and they were talking with my agent today," Carlos said Thursday night. "If things can be worked out I imagine we'll be up there in Montreal in the next few days to look the situation over." Since the 1968 Olympics, Carlos, who stands six feet, three inches and weighs 220 pounds, has been trying to make a career in pro football. Last weekend, he was cut by Philadelphia Eagles of the National Football League.

BANFF, Alta. (CP) — An experiment by the Canadian Figure Skating Association to improve the calibre of skaters at the national and international levels ends this weekend in this national parks' community. Fourteen skaters started the six week training camp which developed from a study conducted last year by a firm of public relations consultants. The association invited 30 skaters to attend the camp but failed to get the country's top competitors because they had made commitments for the summer.

TORONTO (CP) — Hockey Canada's board of directors is expected to meet within the next week to consider an unofficial invitation from the Japanese Olympic Committee to send a team to the 1972 Winter Olympics at Sapporo next February. Hockey Canada withdrew its sanction of Canadian teams going abroad after a dispute with the International Ice Hockey Federation two years ago over the makeup of Canada's National team. The IIHF first agreed to allow Canada to use nine professionals in world hockey competition, then withdrew its offer. The Nationals were disbanded and Canadian teams were barred from further international play. The rule was relaxed in recent months, especially when one Toronto minor hockey team decided to accept an invitation to play in Finland despite a threat to suspend players and team officials. It now applies only to world competitions.

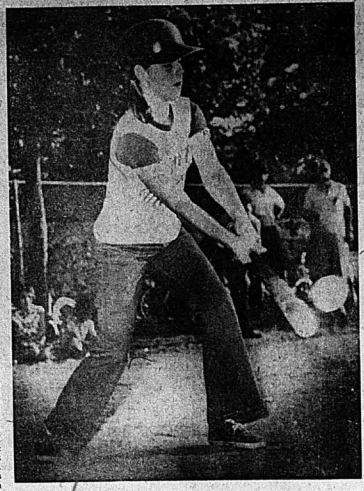
Home Safest Place

KINGSTON (Special) — There's no place like home, as the saying goes, and one goes the opening round of the Ontario Baseball Association Junior A series between Kingston and Belleville.

Kingston tied the best-of-three series at one game apiece Thursday night with an 8-3 home field win. The win offset the Kinsmen's 7-4 win Wednesday and sets the stage for Sunday evening's deciding game at the Belleville Fairgrounds. Game time is 6 p.m.



Kingston started quickly with a run in the first and two in the third but Belleville stayed close with single tallies in the second and fourth. The decisive blows came in the fifth inning when the host club scored five runs on three singles and two errors.

Ted Shaw started for the Kinsmen, slowing six hits and all eight Kingston runs. He struck out eight and walked only two. Terry McTaggart came on to relief in the sixth for Kingston the rest of the way. He gave up three hits and two walks while fanning four.

Again the Kinsmen's knack for leaving men stranded cost them a chance for more runs. The locals pounded out 10 hits but left 12 men on base. In Wednesday's win they stranded 15 base-runners.

Scott McLaren smashed two doubles and scored two runs for Belleville with Brian Cousins picking up an rbi on his double and triple. Steve Moore and Glenn Carleton each had two singles for Belleville while Paul Hall and Rick Meagher added a single each.

Ron Pratt went the distance for Kingston fanning seven and walking six. Jim Geddes punched a double and two singles to lead the winners at bat. Jim Scullion and Tom Goodale each had two singles.

Hanging Tough

Shannonville Rallies in Time

Shannonville rallied for three runs in their final at-bat to salvage a 9-9 tie with Plane's Concrete in the second game of their South Hastings Baseball League semi-final series last night.

Glen Barberstock looked after the mound duties for Shannonville allowing four hits and three walks while striking out nine men. Larry Lewis pitched for Plane's yielding nine safeties and one walk while whiffing eight.

Bill Barberstock wielded the big bat for Shannonville slamming a double, triple and home run. Jason Morris added two singles while Mike Morris had a double.

For Plane's it was Jim Golden with a double and John Tweed, Ron Urch and Warren Hay with singles. They maintained their 1-0 lead in the best - of - seven series.

O'Neill Looks After All Parsons' Scoring

It was John O'Neill night at Zwicks Island Wednesday during a Bay of Quinte Soccer match between Belleville Parsons and the Bata Braves.

O'Neill scored all the goals in the Parsons 3-1 victory. He picked up a pass from Peter Koutsbouis to drive the first goal of the game into the net after 25 minutes. A cross from Tony Donavan set O'Neill up for the second goal to round out the first half scoring.

Adam Tete cut the Parsons lead to one goal when he opened second half scoring with a penalty kick but O'Neill quickly got it back by picking up a pass from Bob Watson and booting in his own rebound for the final tally of the game.

The weekend will be a busy one for Parsons, who have arranged two exhibition games with out of town opponents, Saturday they will be host to a team from the Kingston District League at a 4:30 game while Sunday a top team from Toronto will be on hand for a 5 p.m. contest. Both games will be at Zwick's Island.

How Can Sweethearts Be Bad?

When you have a name like Sweetheart there's no way you can be bad.

The Ellis Sweethearts proved that Thursday night by bombing Mel Barrinage's 24-8 and clinching the Belleville Minor Girls' senior division softball crown.

The win left the girls with a perfect 5-0 record in the round - robin play-off system making them 1971 champions.

Meanwhile the junior girls remain at each other's throats as their play-offs continue. Quinte Food Market stopped Doug's Food Service 11-6 and Clayton's TV defeated the Dairy Queen 23-18 in Thursday night's action.

Industries Still Busy

It is supposed to be all over tonight but a quick glance at the league standings indicates there'll be a lot more action before this Industrial Softball League, regular schedule is complete.

Mead Johnson moved into sole possession of third place in Thursday night's action by virtue of a 17-0 creaming of last place VL Card. At the same time the CN Yardmen kept right on Mead's heels by moving into a tie with the Intelligencer for fourth spot by stopping the Firemen 13-7.

The CN's win forced a tie-breaking playoff game Sunday with the fourth spot being the prize.

Sonny Holoway, went the route for Mead's giving up only four hits while fanning eight. An eleven-run second inning was the crushing blow for Mead's. Reg Bennett smashed a homer and three doubles and Gerry Gesserous a homer and triple to lead the winners at the plate.

Paul Sharpe took the loss for VL Card allowing 16 hits. He fanned five. Bogle had two singles for the losers.

Quinte Club Opens Championship

It seems there's never a moments rest at the Bay of Quinte Country Club as far as golf tournaments are concerned.

Hot on the tail of last week's annual Festival, the Quinte Club is hitting the tournament scene again, this time the men's club championship.

So far, 65 competitors have signed up to play in the 72-hole event. First and second round action begins this Saturday and Sunday with tee-off times commencing about nine a.m.

The low 32 advance into the final 36 holes in two week's time with the best 16 playing for the club championships and the remaining 16 going for a consolation prize.

Orchards Sprout

Pennant-winning Bayview Orchards just got stronger as the game went on in Thursday's Prince Edward North Shore Softball contest with O'Briens Tree Service scoring six runs in tile last three innings en route to an 8-1 victory.

Martin fired the win for Bayview giving up only four hits and striking out an equal number. Rick Goulih took the loss allowing seven hits. He fanned seven and walked three.

Records 25 Strikeouts

Scotty Threw One Ball Too Fast

A strike in time might have done it in nine, but as it was Scott Reid had to hurl 15 innings of standout softball to allow Rollins Construction to clinch the Commercial League pennant with a 5-0 win.

Paul Goodfellow's triple and an RBI ground ball by Jerry Hill had given Rollins a 2-1 lead in the top of the ninth. Reid worked the count to 3-2 on Pint Anne lead-off batter Mike Cook in the bottom of the inning but as the Rollins' righthander began his windup, Cook stepped out of the box to call time out. Plate umpire Wayne "Weiner" Brown ruled the pitch ball four on a surprised Cook on first base from where he eventually scored the tying run.

Doug Olsen lined a single to centre later in the frame which could have given Point Anne the ball game, but a clothesline peg by centre-fielder Ralph Plane nailed Rick Rosebush at the plate and catcher Wes May trapped Larry Mavety in a run-down between second and third for an inning - ending double play.

The Constructionmen staged the winning rally in the 15th frame to finally pin the defeat on Don Holoway after the big Point Anne righthander had been locked in a tremendous pitching duel with Reid.

Steve Ling reached second on an error and then scored the winning run when Carl Boomhower's soft liner hit third base and rolled for a double. Paul Goodfellow followed with his fourth hit of the night and Jerry Hill drove in a pair of insurance markers when his line shot skipped off Holoway's glove and into centre field for a single.

Reid retired Point-Anne in the bottom of the inning to complete a six hit, 25-strike-out performance. Holoway scattered 13 hits throughout the opposing lineup, while fanning nine and walking two batters.

SCOTT REID

Point Anne catcher Larry Mavety accounted for his team's only run in the regulation seven innings when he crashed a homer over centre field fence. He added a single to the circuit blast, while Cook, Olsen and Larry Fraser picked up the other hits. Third baseman Gerry Maher provided the defensive highlight of the night by spearing a lined shot by Wayne McTaggart in the 13th inning.

For Rollins, Goodfellow fired three singles and a triple while Hill, Reid and Wes May each counted a triple among their two hits.

Howard and Robert got a six hit pitching effort from Larry Marshall to hang a 6-4 defeat on Quinte Hotel. Harold Werkheren absorbed the loss giving up 11 hits, and three walks while fanning six. Marshall recorded two strikeouts and issued the same number of free passes.

For Quinte it was Lyle Thompson with a double and single, Neil Campbell with two singles and Bob Parsons with a triple.

SACO First City Softballers To Win Initial Playoff Round

The SACO squirts have the distinction of being the first Belleville team to win their first round action of the Ontario Amateur Softball Association play-downs.

SACO nipped Cobourg 2-1 Thursday night in Cobourg to take that series 2-1 and now advance into the next round of the Zone 4 finals against either Lindsay or Campbellford.

Belleville pushed across two runs in the top of the fifth to erase a one run lead by Cobourg and then hung on to pick up the win. John Henry's clutch double drove in both runs for SACO.

Tim Soule fired the win for Belleville, allowing 11 hits and fanning seven. His line-drive snag with the bases loaded in the sixth ended Bruce Tree's game-ending double play shutoff any comeback hopes for Cobourg and preserved the win for Belleville. Henry had a double and single and Trice had two singles for the winners.

Brian Dolley took the loss for Cobourg giving up 11 hits and striking out three. Bob Oliver had a double and single and Ken Marsden two singles in a losing effort.

Honor Willie Can Trot Too!

Honor Willie will be one of the contenders in the claiming race for pacers on the Quinte Raceway's Saturday night card. Earlier in the year the same horse made an appearance on the Belleville track as a trotter.

This unusual happening could occur because Peterborough's Al Cassidy has both pacing and trotting papers for his harness racer.

A total of eight new horses will be making their appearance on the Quinte track this season, with only nine more meets remaining in the RENO schedule.

Thurlow Rookies Tough to Handle

Belleville's home grown ballplayers are finding the competition a bit too much to handle when it comes to playing the new entry Thurlow teams in Minor Baseball action.

Thursday night, in the only two games played, the CN Yardmen peewees dropped a 13-4 decision to Foster's Thurlow peewees and the CJBQ Expo bantams were edged 5-3 by Vader's Datsun.

Brian Masterson and Randy Adams picked up the win for Foster's hurling four-hit ball and fanning nine. Masterson also provided most of the hitting for the winners cranking a triple and double.

Peter Hall and Rob McBrien were tagged with the loss for CN giving up eight hits and striking out nine. Hall's double was the only extra base hit for the losers.

CJBQ could manage only one hit off Vader pitcher Ross Geen in their 5-3 loss. Geen fanned 11. McDonald with a triple and Arthurs with a double were the big hitters for the winners.

Lacrosse Law Laid Down

The strong arm of the law reached out and nabbed the only victory of the night in the Belleville Minor Lacrosse Association peewee schedule Thursday when they tripped the Y's Men's Club 3-2.

Randy Addinson, Wally Inwood and Robb Ashley scored for the police with Laurie Wilson and Dave McBride replying for the Men's Club.

In the only other game of the night the Dairy Queen and RCAF T-Birds battled to a 2-2 tie. Jeff Runciman and Derek Horne tallied for the Dairy Queen while James Kennedy and Ross Hand answered for the T-Birds.

STOP KILLING YOURSELF

By Peter J. Steincrohn, M.D., F.A.C.P.
Author of "The Doctor Looks At Life"

FAITH is a powerful antidote against illness. Keep repeating—and believing — "I WILL get well." If you BELIEVE, you help your doctor AND yourself.

• • •

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: I've just had an unusual experience. My first pregnancy was a tubal pregnancy. I didn't even know I was pregnant.

One night I had sudden pain in my stomach. At first appendicitis was the diagnosis. I was rushed to the hospital. The surgeons found that I had a ruptured tube.

Just what is tubal pregnancy? What causes it? What chances are there that I may have a normal pregnancy in the future? I know that tubal pregnancy is not common, but I think my experience may serve as a warning to young expectant mothers who don't know what it's all about. Mrs. G.

• • •

COMMENT: In an ectopic ("tubal") pregnancy, the egg which has been fertilized does not move down to the uterus. It's held up in the tube. As it does not have room to grow and develop normally - as it would in the uterus - the tube ruptures. What is important is early diagnosis when this complication presents itself.

Usually there is a history of missing one or two periods. Then may come the sudden abdominal pain which simulates acute appendicitis or some other trouble. Immediate operation usually results in complete cure - except that it terminates pregnancy.

Your questions: "What causes it and what chances are there for a future normal pregnancy?" can be answered simultaneously. If the reason for the inability of the ovum to pass down the tube into the uterus is some infection that narrows the tube the chances are that the tube on the other side is narrowed by scarring, too. That would lessen chances for future pregnancy.

But if improper passage was due to a kink in the tube, it's possible that the remaining tube is patent (open). Under such conditions pregnancy is possible later on.

Your own obstetrician or gynecologist will have to provide the specific answer in your case, Mrs. G. According to one set of statistics, a woman who has had an ectopic pregnancy has about one chance in two of conceiving and having a normal pregnancy later.

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: I am 68 and had a suprapubic prostatectomy over a year ago. But I'm having trouble again with my urination. The doctor says - after a cystoscopic examination - that there's a piece of prostate tissue left behind that is obstructing the flow. He suggests what is a more simple operation - removal of the tissue through the urethra. Is this possible? — Mr. T.

COMMENT: You can be confident that this is a common procedure. It is called "transurethral resection" (a T.U.R.).

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: I believe in taking vitamins. But I'm also very careful of my weight. Lately I've been gaining. Could it be the calories in the vitamins? — Mrs. F.

COMMENT: Better forget about the calorie content of vitamins (which is practically nil) and concentrate on how many extra calories you may be taking in the form of snacks or second helpings. a ruptured tube.

McKeough Assailed As Empire-builder

JORDAN HARBOUR, Ont. (CP) — Liberal Leader Robert Nixon attacked the Conservative government's policies of centralization Thursday night, blaming Premier William Davis and Provincial Treasurer Darcy McKeough for co-authoring "the most determined and disastrous centralizing in legislative history."

Speaking at a Lincoln Liberal Association nomination meeting, he referred to Mr. McKeough as "today's champion in the empire building at Queen's Park."

Mr. Nixon said three programs introduced by Mr. Davis and Mr. McKeough—provincial re-assessment, regional government and the county school board system—"are the most obvious reasons why this government must be defeated in the next election."

The programs were introduced when Mr. Davis was education minister and Mr. McKeough, minister of municipal affairs.

He said both the school board system and regional government were introduced without regard to "the views of the municipalities and the people," and that the provincial re-assessment scheme was "regressive" and bore "little relationship to the tax-payers' ability to pay."

"Ontario must return to the county assessment system. Centralization has caused frustration and a feeling of helplessness among rural people and those living in Ontario's towns and villages," Mr. Nixon said.

A lack of its remarks was released in advance of delivery in this community just west of St. Catharines.

Sydney J. Harris Says

We Must Be Anti-people

As you know, one of the great cosmic discoveries of our century has been "anti-matter" counterpart — a sort of mirror - image.

Matter and anti-matter are opposite in electric charge, but identical in mass. And if the two should ever collide, both will immediately blow up and disappear.

On bleak days, when I look at the headlines from all over the world and shudder, I am tempted to engage in the philosophical conceit that we are not really "people" at all. We are "anti-people."

It really makes more sense that way. Somewhere in the universe there are real "people." They are the positive charge, of which we are the negative. They have the same mass, and look just like us; but they have prudently avoided us for millions of years, knowing that if they came into contact with "anti-people," we would all blow up.

Dimly we perceive what positively charged people would be like. We have had a few specimens — not many — throughout the ages. They are people in whom love dominates hate, intelligence controls impulse, joy conquers bitterness, cooperation wins over rivalry. They live each for all and all for each.

We are the mirror - image, the "anti-people" of the universe. We are divided by politics, by nation, by race, by sex, by religion, by ideology, by the most idiotic of beliefs, prejudices and superstitions. Time and again, we kill off millions of our bravest and our best, for reasons we can hardly comprehend a few years afterwards.

No other species that behaved so irrationally and so self-destructively could possibly survive long anywhere in the universe. Our conduct is contrary to all the laws of nature, reason, and our own revealed religion. We are supremely unable to practise what we love being preached about; we want everyone else to start acting better before we will take that perilous chance.

Is this not the definition of "anti-people" more than of "people"? Are we not what "human beings" ought to be, but turned inside out, with our vices perpetually trampling our virtues? Do we not use our knowledge more for greed and vanity than for goodness; use our passions more for extermination than for reconciliation; use our lofty principles more for camouflage than for conformance?

The galaxies, we are told, are receding further away from us at incredible speeds. Who can blame them? And who can doubt that on some distant planet, the real "people" are breathing a sigh of relief that their chances of colliding with us grow remoter every day?

Crosbie Attacks Joey Smallwood

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld. (CP) — A former member of Premier Smallwood's cabinet says Mr. Smallwood's government is corrupt, incompetent, dictatorial and struggling to retain power for the sake of power.

John Crosbie, who switched from the Liberal government of Mr. Smallwood to the Conservative opposition in 1968, accused the premier of being "dictated now by megalomania, by egotism."

Speaking on the CBC television program Encounter, taped earlier for broadcast Thursday night, Mr. Crosbie said of the premier:

"This is a classic case of a man who just will not give up; you know, who has been in power a long time but can't let it go."

He said Mr. Smallwood had kept from public view information about government concessions to investors.

Community College Teachers Get Raise

TORONTO (CP) — The Council of Regents of Ontario's 20 community colleges has reached agreement with the Civil Service Association of Ontario to raise the salary of college teachers by six per cent, the Ontario department of education announced Thursday.

The agreement, retroactive to Sept. 1, 1970, was approved by education minister Robert Welch, the department said in a news release.

Salaries for the 4,000 college teachers fall into four categories ranging from $6,200 to $14,000. Most of the teachers are at the associate masters level which carries a range of $7,900 to $13,000, the release said. Average is about $11,600.

A spokesman for Mr. Welch said the salary increase covered only the question of retroactivity and that future salaries and working conditions were still to be negotiated.

Bankrupt Clyde Yard Unmarked by Revolt

GLASGOW (Reuter) — At Clydebank shipyard, where the great liners Queen Elizabeth and Queen Mary were built, there is little surface sign of a workers' revolt that is shaking Scottish industry.

By declaring workers' control, the unions have in theory attained one of the great classical goals of socialism. In practice, hardly anything has changed.

The giant cranes move majestically, sparks fly from welding torches and hammers clang on steel just as before. Fitters still take orders from foremen and foremen take orders from managers.

The work goes on as though Upper Clyde Shipbuilders, the consortium which ran Clydebank and two other yards, had never gone broke.

Officially, the troubled yards are being run by a liquidator whose job is to pare down resources as the work runs out. But when the workers' takeover was announced July 30, unions said they would resist all firings.

The upheaval resulted from the British government's refusal to pick up the bill for £78.8 million in debts piled up by Upper Clyde Shipbuilders. The government said it would provide funds if the yards were reduced to one from three and the work force cut to 2,500 from 8,500.

It is this reduction in force which the unions have sworn to resist.

About the only visible signs of union control are the 24-hour pickets maintained on the gates by shop stewards. The pickets search everybody and everything going into and out of the yard.

As one of them explained to a reporter while he checked an outgoing van: "If anyone removed the fuses from 'fur crates for instance, it would paralyse the work in the yard."

While the work lasts, there is no cause for clashes between workers and the management, now represented by liquidator Robert Smith.

Shulman Dissatisfied With Lawrence's Foe

TORONTO (CP) — Dr. Morton Shulman told a meeting Thursday night it had nominated the wrong man to campaign as New Democratic Party candidate in the next election against Attorney-General Allan Lawrence.

There were scattered boos as Dr. Shulman said the St. George riding association had "opted out" in declaring David Middleton as its candidate. He defeated Regula Modlich and Norman Elder.

About two weeks ago Dr. Shulman and NDP Leader Stephen Lewis introduced Mr. Elder as candidate for the riding nomination at a press conference at Queen's Park.

Mr. Elder is a member of Canada's Olympics gold medal equestrian team. He was previously a Liberal.

After the meeting Dr. Shulman said he will do no campaigning in St. George because he figures it's a lost cause for the NDP.

He said he had spent a week documenting a case of a death by fire in Woodstock last June, which was not followed by an inquest.

"He (Mr. Lawrence) has been negligent, time and time again. He's a terrible Attorney-General. Possibly the worst Attorney-General we've ever had."

Trenton Fails to Get Sidor Case Injunction

By KENNETH SMITH
Staff Reporter

TRENTON — Judge W. F. Lane refused the town of Trenton an injunction yesterday against builder Wasil Sidor and stated he was "not satisfied" the town council had "clean hands" in the issue.

The town had filed for an injunction July 9 to stop Mr. Sidor from tampering with the McGill Street water main he had severed the day before, cutting off the new Dufferin Development subdivision.

Counsel for Mr. Sidor, Bernard Hurley, argued before the Judge in the hearing at Hastings County Court House that he has evidence showing "that one, maybe more, members of council" have an interest in the future of Dufferin Developments.

One of the central arguments presented yesterday by town solicitor William Weston, as basis for an injunction, was the loss of taxation to Trenton if Dufferin were stopped.

Bernard Hurley told the judge there was only one house under construction in Dufferin Developments when the town decided to seek an injunction July 9.

"What we are talking about is a house that is unbuilt and unassessed," he said.

Although Judge Lane conceded there might be "contingent damage . . . damage that might be expected," he refuted the injunction due to insufficient evidence that irreparable damage would result if the injunction were denied.

In summation, the judge expressed dissatisfaction with evidence brought forward in records of cross - examination sessions of various parties involved in the case.

Mr. Hurley had cross-examined Councillor Paul Tripp and told the judge Mr. Tripp had refused to answer several questions on whether he had direct or indirect interests in the subdivision.

Mr. Hurley told the hearing Dufferin Developments had not been formally allowed to hook into the McGill watermain but, "then someone else restores the status quo (Mr. Sidor) and he is sued."

He contended some councillors were "benefiting their friends" and that "Sidor's entry onto the street (to seal the watermain) was prompted solely by Dufferin's earlier action to open the main."

Affidavits sworn out by Trenton town engineer Arthur Campbell and clerk - comptroller O. W. Larry had said irreparable harm would occur if the injunction were not granted, but Mr. Hurley told the judge both the engineer and clerk had failed to substantiate their statements.

Referring to the parties who gave contradictory affidavits and cross - examination testimony, Judge Lane of Picton, concluded they should have solidified me there are no implications.

Although the judge indicated he was not satisfied that council is "clean," he added "I am not prepared to castigate them. This is a matter for a trial." Further legal actions are still pending in the Dufferin - Sidor Dufferin Developments - Town of Trenton controversy.

Too Early, Man

Music Ends at 1.30, Crowd Comes Till 3

Expect 15,000 Present Today

By LENNY WILLIAMSON
Staff Reporter

MADOC — The music packed up early this morning, about 1.30 a.m., but cars continued to pile into the Rock Acres Peace Festival in a continuous stream until after 3 o'clock.

Disgruntled fans are complaining this morning of the early switch-off of the sound system: "After all man, this is a rock festival,' said one.

Estimates of the crowd varied from 3,000 to 5,000, hardly enough to enable the family enterprise, with more than $30,000 tied up in the event, to break even. However, the Quinlin family continues to assert their attendance goal of 15,000 will be realized today.

The Ontario Government's field hospital began to pick up some business last night. Two youths with suspected broken ankles were taken to Belleville General Hospital along with another whose nose was broken in a fight. He was treated and brought back to the site.

After dark Friday, a few bad "trip" cases began to turn up at the field hospital. Most patients seeking hospital treatment were suffering from sunburn, cuts and bruises.

Piledriver, a seven - member aggregation from Highland Creek, near Toronto, was the hit of the first day's entertainment. It drew a more enthusiastic audience reaction than the better - known Stampeders from Calgary, booked as the top attraction for the first day.

Drug use was obvious but not excessive, with beer and wine continuing to be more popular than grass and acid, even after nightfall. Hawkers continued to peddle their goods in a low-keyed, verbal selling campaign. The first sign advertising "grass" went up along the Quinlin farm lane at dusk Friday. Wine, at $3 per bottle, was peddled more seriously, with sellers shouting their wares at top voice throughout the testing area.

Four men Ontario Provincial Police teams are patrolling the grounds, believed to be the first time uniformed officers have gone into a rock fest. Plainclothes police, covered appropriately for the occasion, are also inside the farm. The constable expected an arm over the Quinlin's use of a Toronto security firm equipped with two attack dogs.

"Violence breeds violence," he said.

"A lot of the kids think the dogs are ours."

Madoc village's fire department, fearful of a fire in the Quinlin barn and ancient wooden outbuildings, is standing by to rush to the scene over the makeshift emergency road, bulldozed out across the pasture field. A firefighter makes twice-daily patrols of the site and buildings to report the fire hazard level.

A minor accident at midnight threatened to close the one-lane exit road from the farm but OPP detachments stationed at every cross - roads, were able to keep traffic moving. Township inhabitants, out for an evening drive to see the sites, were as numerous as festival goers. They saw very little . . . police and festival workers waved them quickly on to exit roads unless they were willing to pay the $12 entrance fee.

Word that the rock-fest originated with the Quinlin family planning a celebration for Mr. and Mrs. James Quinlin's 40th wedding anniversary last June 24 has spread through the audience. Youths are turning up at the farmhouse door to wish the couple a happy anniversary and invite them to tent parties in the evening.

Mr. Quinlin unlimbered his fiddle Friday afternoon and played a few tunes for an admiring audience of young people grouped around the farm house's front stoop. Mrs. Quinlin, it was work as usual during her anniversary celebration. She spent most of the day in the kitchen making sandwiches to feed the dozens of workers recruited by her sons who operate the festival.

The exotic touch came to the ecstatic Shanti Township farmstead Friday night when a van full of Hare Krishna followers rattled in for the duration of the festival. They were out at dawn this morning in long, yellow robes and with shaven heads, to awaken sleeping fans with their oriental dancing and chants.

Rock Festival Cost Well Over $30,000

MADOC — The Quinlin family, promoters of Rock Acres Peace Festival 10 miles north-east of here, sunk $30,000 into their festival.

And that doesn't include legal fees for the long court battles they fought before they got official approval for the rock-fest on their 200-acre farm.

James Quinlin Jr. co-organizer with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. James Quinlin Sr., and his brother, Leon, said that by Friday morning the family was committed for $30,000 for water tank trucks, security, road preparation, advertising, tickets and all the other adjuncts of a rock festival.

The lands Jim expects, will cost a total of $9,000.

"They play for union scale wages to get the exposure a rock festival gives them," he said. Generators, amplifiers and power and telephone lines up the costs.

The generator that powers the amplifiers and stage lighting cost $1,000 to rent, according to reports from stage crew. Trojner Amplifier Company's services are another cost. Two pay telephones have been installed at the far north-east corner of the farm. The Bell company is charging $600 to run a telephone line down the mile-long dirt road from county road 12.

The Quinlins will need about 5,000 paid admissions to break even on their three-day event. Advance tickets are $17 at the gate they are $12. But Leon Quinlin, in charge of security, estimates that only about half the fans camped in the grounds for the first day of the festival have paid admission. Many of these paid only what they had on them, from $5 apiece to a meagre 25 cents.

Another expense showed up Thursday night — four rented portable privies for the personnel of the Ontario government's field hospital. Their cost is being charged to LEJJ Enterprises, the family firm running the show.

To get the true cost of running a rock festival add to these expenses the cost of extra OPP officers patrolling the roads, township legal fees in fighting the festival and the cost of road work done in the vicinity of the Quinlin farm in the last two or three days before the event began. These costs have yet to be estimated.

Apollo Races Home Laden With Moon Rocks and Miles of Film

HOUSTON (AP) — The Apollo 15 explorers blaze back to earth today to climax their 12-day voyage of discovery. They bring back a rock collection that may include a piece of the original lunar crust, plus nearly two miles of film of the moon's surface.

David R. Scott, James B. Irwin and Alfred M. Worden were on a perfect course to come back into the atmosphere 76 miles above the Pacific Ocean at 24,000 miles an hour.

Splashdown was set for 4:46 p.m. EDT about 285 miles north of Hawaii.

The main recovery ship, the helicopter carrier Okinawa, reported the weather outlook in the landing zone was perfect, with scattered clouds at 2,000 feet, 10 miles visibility, 15 knot winds, four-foot waves and a temperature of 77 degrees.

As the 1.27-million-mile journey neared an end, the astronauts held a news conference telecast to Mission Control Friday.

Answering questions prepared by reporters at the Space Centre, moonwalkers Scott and Irwin discussed what they believe is a primeval rock they found near Hadley Base, praised the moon buggy that carted them about and assessed their findings.

Worden told of his space walk 200,000 miles from home, his three days alone in moon orbit, his sighting of possible ancient lava flows, and joined with the others in giving personal impressions.

As Scott and Irwin collected samples at the rim of Spur Crater on their second driving excursion Saturday they spotted a small rock which prompted Scott, to say: "I think we've found what we came for."

Both believe the rock, because of its crystalline composition, could be original lunar soil, dating back 4.6 billion years to the creation of the solar system.

"It was a small fragment sitting on top of a dark brown fragment almost like a pedestal," Scott told the news conference. "It was there apparently waiting for us.

"If we had had more time at that site we could have found more.

"I think this is one rock if it is in fact the bedrock of the moon, that will tell us an awful lot," the mission commander said.

Moonquakes Awaited

HOUSTON (AP) — Scientists are waiting for a flurry of moonquakes this weekend that might help pinpoint a region deep in the moon where 80 per cent of the lunar tremblors observed seem to originate.

They have speculated the region might be pools of hot liquid rock.

If the shudders are recorded by all three seismometers now on the lunar surface, including the new one left at the foot of the Apennine Mountains by Apollo 15, the experts hope they will be able to determine the precise source of the moonquakes.

Dr. Gary Latham of Columbia University's Lamont-Doherty Geological Laboratory said he expects the tremblors today or Sunday because the moon will be closest to earth. This is when earth's gravitational pull on her satellite will be greatest. It has been during this passage each month, called perigee, that the moonquakes have been observed.

About Half Festival-goers Try to Avoid Paying Piper

By COLIN BRUCE
Staff Reporter

Across the frontiers of the Rock Acres Peace Festival, 45 hired hands of the Canadian Family, six Phillips security guards and two doberman pinschers position themselves to discourage "crashers" from entering the festival grounds without paying.

"If you were to look at the entire population of the farm, and take 50 per cent of it, you would have an approximate figure of how many youths have tried to crash the event," said Leon Quinlin.

"Our forces have been effective and we have managed to spot up to 40 per cent of these people," he said.

By Friday morning, 2,000 youths had made the trip. Many have been turned away because of lack of money, and lack of a good enough story to warrant themselves entry.

While the cost of the festival has been set at $12 for the weekend, it has become a practice that rather than turn someone away cold, potential crashers are asked if they have any money at all. If a group is involved then the last will be passed around and members of the group are asked to contribute whatever they can.

"If we turn them away, then they will find some way of beating our security, and we will be left with nothing at all," said Mr. Quinlin.

"Several groups of youths have met with this circumstance, and in one instance, entrance was gained for a cost of about 25 cents each," said a gate spokesman.

Along the outskirts of the property, the Ontario Provincial Police keep a check on the traffic situation which, on Friday was kept under control. The police restrict their operations to controlling traffic on the road and are having nothing to do with checking the wouldbe "crashers".

"Thursday night, the only critical time was between 7 p.m. and 9 p.m.," said Mr. Quinlin. Only two incidents resulted, tying up the traffic for a short period of time.

All OPP personnel have been billeted at CFB Trenton. As many as 200 officers can be expected in and around the grounds during the weekend said one member of the emergency force which has been gathered from detachments across the province.

"Royal Canadian Mounted Police, reported to be in the area, have been specifically concealed if they are here," said Mr. Quinlin. "If thy are here, I don't know about it."

To aid in communications between security check points, a five - unit radio network equipped with walkie-talkies and relays messages to Mr. Quinlin at the main gate.

"Our security was not prepared until late Thursday because we expected that the greatest influx of festival goers would not arrive until Friday evening," said Mr. Quinlin.

A spokesman for the festival organizers said, "we feel that up to 70 per cent of the expected audience will arrive by Friday. Many people working will be making the Friday night voyage."

Ontario police will keep patrolling the road, the walkietalkies will continue reporting and the dogs and their handlers will be roving the woods.

Hand-outs Are Sought

Because of stringent measures taken with youths who could--not afford to pay admittance to the festival, a backwater of people collected Friday on the one-mile roadway leading to the Quinlin farm.

Many youths have been granted admittance by Leon Quinlin at a reduced rate.

"Depending on the individual, and the validity of his story, I usually grant entry. There are always a few who take advantage of this principle and are waiting their opportunity to sneak in on the road," said Mr. Quinlin.

Some of the more industrious of the collectors have begun "panhandling" — seeking funds from the passing traffic. Some are going as far as to stop the cars completely in an attempt to receive a hand out.

South Bay Plans Mariners' Service

PICTON (Staff) — The second annual Mariners' Service in South Bay United Church will be conducted Sunday afternoon, August 8, at 2 p.m. with guest speaker Rev. Robert Stewart of the Church of St. Mary Magdalene, Picton.

Revived last summer following a lapse of several years, the mariners' service represents a salute to Prince Edward County's sailors past and present. Former services were held at Cherry Valley church where sailors gathered each spring before "putting out to sea."

Canine Cuddler

Mrs. Karen Sorensen, RR 10 Picton, instructress for the canine drill team which will perform Sept. 11 at Picton Fair, cuddles up with top dog Maestro who has won his CDX (companion dog excellent) degree. Approximately 20 dogs representing several breeds will take part in the dog show.

Well-trained Drill Team To Perform at Fair

By MARGARET HAVLOCK
Staff Reporter

PICTON — Prince Edward County is going to the dogs with enthusiastic approval from members of the agricultural society.

A canine drill team coached by Mrs. John Sorensen, RR 10, Picton will perform during an exhibition show, Saturday, September 11. This precision trained canine corps includes two collies owned by the Sorensen kennels, an Afghan hound belonging to Susy Carman and a standard poodle owned by Elizabeth Hirst.

Mrs. Sorensen, a prominent collie breeder and owner of Denco kennels and obedience school, is now reviewing her tail - wagging drill team nightly. All dogs have graduated from obedience classes and have progressed readily to formation work.

All work and no play makes Rover a dull dog but Mrs. Sorensen has solved this problem with a fun fashion show.

Poodles are invited to dress for the grand occasion in their best rhinestone collars, while hounds might prefer to sport "casual wear." Canine fashion plates, imaginatively dressed to accent their handlers' outfits will model the latest in a dog's world.

The drill exhibition and fashion show will be held in the fairgrounds infield where a large crowd is expected to gather as Prince Edward "puts on the dog".

Mrs. Sorensen said approximately 20 dogs in the Quinte area will be taking part in the show and a number of breeds will be represented in the ring.

Highlight of the program will be a performance in obedience work by Denco's Maestro Von Holtz owned by the Sorensen family. Maestro has won his CDX (companion dog excellent) degree and has established a fine record in obedience classes held at Ontario dog shows.

Also performing will be miniature poodles owned by Mr. and Mrs. T. Folds, Picton.

A native of Denmark, where she learned to train animals, Mrs. Sorensen offers regular obedience classes for all interested dog owners. Graduation exercises are conducted each time a group of canines complete the course cum laude.

The instructress shows each handler how to teach his or her dog to heel, sit, stay and lie down on command. These exercises in basic obedience will be demonstrated in Mrs. Sorensen's September exhibition at the county fair.

Porky Gets Poked

It was porcupine hunting time on Goldfale Road last night, W. "Mac" Moffatt, 16 Goldfale Road, cautiously approaches the porky which, for the past several days, has given cause for concern to area youngsters. Safe in a tree following the confrontation, the hackles-raised porcupine will await the pleasure of the Ontario Humane Society, or nature, whichever comes first.

Joyride Ends With Jail Term

Marijuana smoking completely robbed a Belleville man of his senses, after which he stole a car from Front Street and went for a high - speed joyride through city streets, he said.

This story, presented in provincial court by William Laverne Baker, alias William Laverne Smith, 26, of 204 Station Street, was discredited by Judge T. Y. Wills.

"I don't believe the accused," the judge said, following testimony. Crown Attorney John Pringle, in summation, termed this testimony an "escape mechanism and nothing more".

Baker (Smith) who pleaded not guilty to joyriding, was found guilty as charged and will serve a six month term in the common jail.

Cleve Mulrooney of Madoc, testified he left the car he had borrowed from Stephen Reid, also of Madoc, in front of a downtown hotel with the engine running. When he returned, the vehicle was missing.

Police officers testified they reached speeds of up to 55 miles per hour while attempting to pull the vehicle over to the side of the road. At one point, an unmarked cruiser set up a road block as the two cruisers and the stolen car sped along Sidney Street.

In his refuted testimony, Baker (Smith) told the court on July 23 he consumed several bottles of beer followed by several cigarettes heavily laced with THC, a heavily concentrated marijuana extract. He said he could remember nothing after that until he woke up in the police station.

Distaff Diver Rescues Bikes

CARRYING PLACE (Staff) — Two stolen bicycles abandoned underwater in the Murray Canal west of the Highway 33 bridge have been recovered with the aid of a woman skin diver and youth using the location for swimming.

Sue McMaster, photographer with the Brighton OPP detachment, who lists SCUBA diving as a favorite off-duty hobby, offered her talent when officers on the force received an unsolicited tipoff and ordered an investigation yesterday.

Miss McMaster suited up and, equipped with tanks of air, provided police an advantage in searching the canal bottom. She was working in 17 feet of water after several fruitless probes in the murky depths when she located one of the missing bicycles and attached a line to it. It was hauled to the surface and examined for identification marks by officers waiting on the top. A thorough underwater search along the length of the south wall for 300 feet failed to produce further results.

A second bicycle, listed as stolen by police was recovered in shallow water in the same area by one of the regular swimmers earlier.

Scouts On Way Again

With repairs affected to their bus, 21 scouts and leaders from the 8th Fort Erie Scout Troop were back on the road Friday following a three-day stopover in Belleville.

Leroy Baker of the Fort Erie troop expressed appreciation for "the generous hospitality of the Belleville District Council of Boy Scouts," who provided facilities at Camp Segonaska, near Tweed.

On a two-week holiday, the added expense of transmission repairs for the troop could bring the trip to a close sooner than expected. Mr. Baker anticipates the troop will be able to continue on to Ottawa, and then Montreal for Man and His World, but feels the trip to Quebec City may have to be called off.

"Our whole transmission was shot," he said.

RONALD J. R. MARSH, CET son of Mrs. G. Marsh and the late Joseph R. Marsh, 27 Union Street, Belleville, received his certified engineering technician degree from the certification board OACETT and is presently working at Loyalist College.

The Rock Thing

Were it not for the Rock Acres peace festival in Madoc township this weekend many of us might never have known of the existence of the field hospital facilities being laid on.

As has been pointed out in our news pages the field hospital is being provided by the Emergency Health Services Division of the Ontario Hospitals Service Commission. It has an operating room, with two tables equipped to handle major surgery, is staffed by two or three doctors and nursing staff working on shift, and is backed up by four ambulances and even a helicopter which is available to airlift patients to hospital here if necessary.

It is billed as a peace festival, but the preparations are as if for a war.

The unit is designed to serve a population of 50,000, in other words not far from twice the population of Belleville.

Also in attendance are members of the Quinte branch of the St. John Ambulance Brigade. The Addiction Research Foundation also has personnel there.

It is quite an array and as we have noted, it is interesting to know that the province can provide this kind of facility.

Meanwhile we hope the water situation is satisfactory. There was word of a shortage with what consequences we can only imagine. All the more reason then why future events of this nature will require a still higher degree of efficient organization. The medical complex, incidentally, has four army water trailers, as well as a communications trailer. Does this mean the army is assisting in a small way? Who knows . . . as with everyone else we await further reports. As it is, the peace festival concept has spawned a considerable degree of provincial co-operation, especially in the medical sphere as mentioned.

The countryside around Queensboro now thunders to the sound of rock music. What about the so-called "peace" aspect of the event?

Are we to be treated to the harangues of members of the New Left? Calls for the United States to set a date for final withdrawal from Vietnam and that sort of thing. Again we await despatches from our people on the spot, to use the terminology of an earlier time — light years away from these and other strange happenings of the seventies and the now generation.

Prisoner Report

That report about a move to have 187 United States prisoners of war flown from Laos to Hanoi seemed so good to be true at the time. At least one television network in presenting the report the other night emphasized the denials by U.S. military authorities and by the North Vietnamese who hold the men in custody. Others however gave the impression that the report was factual.

We can only guess at the agony of wives and families of the men who thus have been made victims of sensational and erroneous reporting, originating unfortunately with a Swedish newspaper. Maybe something will come of it later, but it seems clear that whatever truth there was in the original rumors their release to the public was not only premature but unfortunate.

Those Errors

Newspaper staffs experience as much chagrin as do readers when errors appear in the finished product. Globe and Mail columnist Richard Needham was speaking in this vein recently; he was saying that people are always joking him why does the paper contain so many mistakes and he replied that newspapers are produced against the pressure of deadlines and that to err is to be human. If the reader and other Canadian publications have their quota of errors, typographical or whatever, he said that reading The New York Times sometimes is like reading Swahili. At the same time he did not condone such errors, and that is as it should be. A newspaper aims at a good product, but mistakes do occur; often they are of a minor character and should not detract from the whole. If readers concern themselves only with errors it indicates to us that they are reading the newspaper for the wrong reasons. We all make mistakes, the only difference being that newspapers publish theirs.

How Joe Greene Missed Out on the "Just Society" and...

Pierre Trudeau Inherited That Winning Catch Phrase

By RICHARD JACKSON

OTTAWA — Remember the "Just Society" . . .?

The limousine was rolling smoothly along the traffic-roaring Queen Elizabeth Way, outward bound from Toronto International Airport to St. Catharines.

It was a warm September evening in 1966 and Agriculture Minister Joe Greene with a couple of aides had flown from Ottawa to attend the annual festival of the wine in the Niagara fruitlands between the escarpment shore, there to be hailed as, of all glorious monarchs, "King of the Grapes".

One of the sides riding with him as the sleek Cadillac trelissed over the QEW concrete and slid through an overpass was Donald Peacock.

A former Canadian Press reporter in the agency's big Ottawa-Parliament Hill bureau, Donald Peacock some time before had left the newspaper business and, crossing over to the other side of the information fence, had joined the bureaucracy.

It was like a comrade-in-arms deserting the ranks and joining the enemy, if you see the hide-and-seek struggle between the press and the bureaucrats over information — with the civil servants too often trying to conceal it and the reporters forever stirring to find it — as a sort of war. He since has recrossed the information firing line and presently is managing editor of The Calgary Albertan.

Don Peacock became a special assistant to then Agriculture Minister (now Senator) Harry Hays of Calgary and Pekisko Creek near High River where he has a big and smashingly beautiful spread of beef cattle.

Hon. Harry had more than enough agricultural woes — how and things to do. Every think-noor.

Only trouble was he was having difficulty making it sound like he did.

His performance on the Cabinet benches as Prime Minister Pearson's — resident political "farmer" was sometimes so awful as to be embarrassing to those who watched and heard, and squirmed in sympathy.

Then along came Don.

And what a stunning character transformation for the tongue-tied Harry Hays.

Immediate popularity. Overnight success. Sudden much-wanted "honored guest" and "featured" speaker alike in the wheat and cattle country of the West and the money temples of the East.

Great in Ototoks and Picture Butte. Great, too, in Big-To and O-Gawd-O-Montreal.

Hon. Harry was put out to the rich pasture of the Senate and John Joseph Greene, a Toronto lawyer masquerading in an Arnprior law office as a homespun "Ottawa Valley Boy" became Agriculture Minister, inherited Don Peacock as a special assistant and became the same sudden overnight success in the fun-speech department.

It was a trick talent Don Peacock brought to both men, a gift for using wit wisely and well to make themselves heard, listened - to, enjoyed and respected.

But Joe Greene, energetic and easy-going and loose, was ambitious. Especially so.

Everyone knew Lester Pearson was stepping down soon, he had said so himself.

And Joe Greene was hungry for the job. Ravenously so.

That night in September of '66 as the limousine sped St. Catharinesward, Don Peacock addressed Joe Greene, in terms pretty close to this:

"You're going for the leadership aren't you — for if you say you're not, then I'm getting out of here."

Nobody including Joe Greene was sure whether he meant out of the limousine there and then, but they were sure he did mean out of the job.

Joe Greene looked at him sharply and wanted to know why all the sweat.

"I've got the speech right here," said Don Peacock with urgent earnestness, "that can make you leader and having done that, make you Prime Minister. I've got the one the magic words that can mean anything anyone wants them to mean — The Just Society' that will make you the winner."

Joe Greene blinked, shook his head if not in unbelief then in doubt, and mumbled: "You're crazy. You're nuts. You're . . ."

And so, as good as his word, Don Peacock, as he said "he would that night, did — and into Prime Minister Pearson's personal staff.

They say Joe Greene ground down his teeth to the gums in frustration.

Then when Lester Pearson left and Pierre Elliott Trudeau ran for the leadership, Don Peacock switched horses again, packing along that well-stuffed brief-case with the "Just Society" speech in it.

Joe Greene ran for the leadership, too, ran well, in fact, made the best speech of all the candidates. Paul Martin, Paul Hellyer, John Turner, Allan MacEachen were in the running too, but it was Pierre Elliott Trudeau and the "Just Society" who crossed the winning line first, just as he was to do later with the cry of "Just Society" ahead of Conservative Leader Bob Stanfield.

Hello Joe! What d'ya know!

Canadians Dull Maybe But Hardy!

Ottawa Journal

Fashionable women who travel a lot have described Canadian men as unromantic, tedious bores. Maybe so. But the Metropolitan Life Insurance Company tells us Canadian men enjoy their dreary lives longer than those exciting sports in Western Europe and the United States. In a two-year study statisticians discovered: Canadian men 25-44 have a death rate of 2.2 per 1,000, the same as those in Western Europe. The U.S. death rate is 2.5 per 1,000. Between 45 and 64 the Canadian death rate is 12.3 per 1,000; the Western European 13; the U.S. 14.4. From 65 to 84 Canadian men die at a rate of 57 per 1,000; 62 in the U.S. and 66 in Western Europe. Total women seem to prove we're not so dull after all or to quote from Don Juan " 'Tis very certain the desire of life prolongs it."

Northern New York's Pubs Hit by Ontario's New Edict

Brockville Recorder and Times

The taverns of Ogdensburg, New York, which used to do a roaring trade with customers from Brockville and the surrounding district, have seen this portion of their business shrink steadily as Ontario's liquor laws became progressively more relaxed. In recent years, a large part of their Canadian trade was with the under - 21s, since New York state's legal drinking age has been 18 ever since Prohibition was repealed.

References made to Ogdensburg and "the States" cropped up repeatedly in the remarks of Brockville teen - agers interviewed by this newspaper last week on the lowering of the legal drinking age to 18 in Ontario. "In the winter everyone goes to the Burg and this isn't right — we should be supporting our own country" and "The kids between 18 and 20 who want to drink won't be going to the 'Burg anymore." were among the teen - agers' comments.

The lowering of the legal age in this province was gloomy news to bar owners across the river. "This thing is going to hurt us. In fact it's the Canadians that are keeping the economy of northern New York state going. I didn't think they were going to change the laws (in Ontario) that fast." Jerry Shannon, proprietor of Pat and Jerry's Tavern, told an Ottawa newspaper man.

Mr. Shannon, however, saw a ray of hope that the invasion of Ontario jobs by young people might turn out to be good for his business in the long run. "The older people are used to having the places to themselves, I think the young will drive them over here. But the kids will keep on coming because they always have."

But the legalizing of drinking at 18 in Ontario could be the end of an era for northern New York's bars along the river. Oscar Cavallario, long - time owner of Oscar's Tavern, summed up the "old days" when this province's laws were rigid for selfish, let alone teen - agers - with the nostalgic comment: "Oh, them were the good years!"

On the Town

"Better to travel hopefully than to arrive" may be the thought these two young women have in mind as they negotiate some of the more strident commands of Belleville's downtown traffic scene. It is all part of the summer scene; a jaunt downtown, a shaft of sunlight at the end of the pedestrian walk and the river beyond. (Picture by Ian Robertson)

Taxes, Overseas Aid, and The Journeys of the Prime Minister

Editor,
The Intelligencer.

I am writing with regard to the article "So Many Will Die" in Weekend Magazine. Since I am a taxpayer I think I have a right to see how some of my money is spent. As most of us know Canadian immigration policies are poor. We take only a select few and allow them to come to Canada, most of whom are skilled workers whose country needs them far worse than we do since we have many young people to train for these jobs.

How often do you see Indian or Africans walking the streets like the many European races you see. I am sure if we need more people in Canada we could at least bring those in who need it most. This also raises the point that after they become reasonably educated they could return to their own under developed country and help it to grow more efficiently.

I see Mr. Trudeau is enjoying another holiday in Nova Scotia, which of course the taxpayer is paying for. Also on the news we hear of another trip planned which will take the Prime Minister and his wife to Asia. I am sure our money could be better spent on the poor in our country and abroad. Since we are taxpayers we have a right to say how our money is spent.

It seems the government in Ottawa (all parties) doesn't care since attendance is usually around 60 per cent. I am sure that the other 40 per cent of absences is not all government business and is supposed to be deducted from salary. Hurray for Diet since he deducted some of his absence from his salary.

Where are all of our other honest, concerned, politicians since they don't seem to care how our money is spent as long as they make it.

A CONCERNED CANADIAN.

Editor's Note: Just look around and you will see more people than ever from India and Africa, in Belleville, Ontario, and, elsewhere. Having tasted the affluence of life here many do not want to return to their homelands.

As for taxes the Government spends our money pretty much as it pleases, no matter how much we complain.

The Prime Minister is not on vacation in Nova Scotia, but rather on another of his economy conferences which most agree have to do with image - making and fence-mending for the next election. He is not planning to visit Asia but rather Yugoslavia and this will be a vacation trip coupled with a meeting with President Tito.

The Consumer and His Car

Ottawa Journal

The Used Car Dealers' Act, upgraded in late 1969, lays down strict regulations for the sale of used cars. Proven dishonesty can bring loss of licence, fines up to $25,000 and even jail sentences.

But if the regulations are strict then enforcement isn't. Only unscrupulous dealers seem to have been put out of business for giving out false mechanical fitness certificates or for refusing to honor guarantees. More mechanics who sign those assurances of vehicle safety without properly checking cars should have their licencing revoked. Even stiff sentences given fly - by - night operators might quickly put the fear of the law into the worst of those not yet caught.

Part of the difficulty with enforcement is of course that too few cases of sales dishonestly are reported. Buyers "taken" on a car purchase are often too embarrassed by their own failure to have known what they were buying.

To that end, the branch of the Financial and Commercial Affairs Department concerned with used car sales might undertake an extensive public education campaign, couldn't a form letter or brochure explaining the Act and dealer's obligations be sent to each person who buys a used car? The system would be useful to say with Motor Registration Branch and it could give the province a chance to put a good law to better use.

LOOKING BACKWARD

GLEANINGS FROM OUR FILES OF BYGONE YEARS

20 YEARS AGO

August 7, 1951

"The cost of living in West Africa is almost three times that of Canada", said Mrs. J. E. Villeneuve, in comparing the two countries. She has just returned from a three-year sojourn in Dakar, capital city of French West Africa. Mrs. Villeneuve is the former Anne Latta of Belleville and is currently residing with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Albert Latta.

30 YEARS AGO

Eric Law of College St. left today to join his unit, the RAO Corps in Ottawa.

Dr. Douglas Bankier has returned to the city after visiting in Kingston, the guest of his aunt, Mrs. E. Healey.

AC 2id Denyer of Kingston visited his parents, Mr. and Mrs. A. Denyer of Dundas St. E. over the weekend.

Dr. V. P. Helliwell is rejoining his unit of the CAMC today in Kingston. Mrs. Helliwell will continue to reside in Foxboro.

The third annual reunion of present and former residents of North Hastings was held at Oak Lake. Ten families were represented at the gathering, namely: Hazard, Hinchcliffe, Pound, Spracklen, Faul, Lonsberry, Maskett, Wilson, Lidster, Moore and Lough. The following officers were elected: President, James Hinchcliffe of Wallbridge; secretary, Selina Pound of Toronto; sports committee, Orville Lonsberry of Foxboro, M. Faul of Belleville, Harry Pound of Belleville, James Lidster, Ivan Gilmour and Edward Hinchcliffe of Wallbridge.

Mr. and Mrs. William George of Toronto are visiting the parents of the former in this city.

A new 23 ft. station is being built at Marysville; the former station was destroyed by fire some time ago.

Mrs. John Greenwood of Ridgeville and M. S. Greenwood of Toronto visited at Mr. and Mrs. Garn E. Dobbs of Yeomans St.

The city council has decided not to have the gas plant. The utility is not in as bad a condition as generally supposed, and the deficit this year will not be large.

Information Sought On United Empire Loyalists

Editor,
The Intelligencer.

I am trying to obtain information about the United Empire Loyalists who settled in the Belleville area.

Were any records made of the time they arrived and where they came from?

My great grandfather had land on the 5th concession of Sidney, and we would like to know more about him. This land remained in the family until the late 1940s, when my great uncle Mr. Angus Lawrence, died.

Young Priests Best Cardinal, Being Ordained by African

NEW YORK (AP) — Although prevented from conducting public worship in St. Louis where they work, an audacious band of newly-ordained Roman Catholic priests have been doing so elsewhere—singing as they go.

They're also keeping up their novel ministry, among the young and the poor, despite official ecclesiastical frowns.

"We want to show there are other options besides just walking out when the institution brings pressures," says Rev. John T. O'Reilly, one of the new priests ordained in a covertly-arranged ceremony.

He adds that the development of effective experimental ministries requires "finding means to get around official obstacles put in the way.

"But it can be done," says Brother Richard Pulmesi, a member of the Contemporary Mission, an innovative, three-year-old community with headquarters in a tenement in a run-down section of north St. Louis.

It is demonstrating "zeal and remarkable success" in serving the inner city, says the reform-boosting National Association of Catholic Laymen. It added in a resolution at its convention here in June that Cardinal John A. Carberry, Archbishop of St. Louis, "continues to impede" the group's efforts for needed "relevance and innovation in today's priesthood."

Cardinal Carberry, who turned down a request of the new priests to celebrate Mass at a St. Louis church June 13, says he did so because of "unanswered questions" about their preparatory studies and ordination.

However, he says he does not question the validity of the ordination itself—even though it was arranged in a clandestine circuitous fashion and in a manner to circumvent his disapproval.

It took place last May 11, when five young members of the group were ordained in a ceremony in Cromwell, Conn., by African Bishop Peter E. Sarpong of Kumasi diocese in Ghana, who then released them to work in St. Louis.

"I never dreamed they would do something like this," Cardinal Carberry said afterward in an interview in the St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

Members of the community claimed he had for three years blocked their ordination in various dioceses. He says he had written some letters raising questions about the group.

Under the circumstances, the ordination ceremony was kept secret until afterward, except for attending relatives and close friends. However, the office of Bishop Vincent J. Hines of Norwich, in whose diocese it occurred, had been notified.

'Christian Night Club' Features Blonde Singer

NEW YORK (AP) — Church lessons in judo . . . a Christian "night club" . . . a pastor in clown's face going through acrobatics . . . worshippers in gauzy sacks . . . whisky bottles on the church floor . . . Sunday school students pondering demonology.

These are among the various off-beat tactics that show up these days in church operations in the U.S. to whet interest and get the message across.

"We're doing it because there is an occult interest explosion," says Rev. Raymond Tiemeyer, a Lutheran Church education expert in explaining reasons for a new intermediate church-school course called "Mystery Trip."

It makes use of Tarot cards, incense, fortune-tellers and descriptions of the black mass, demonology, astrology, psychic phenomena and other mysteries currently with contrasting Biblical concepts.

The objective, the pastor Tiemeyer says, is to examine reasons for the surge of occult interest among youths in "rebellion against the mechanical impersonal view of life and the hunger for the mystical."

In San Antonio, the Green Gate Club, once known for its strip shows, reopened in June as the "Christian Night Club" featuring a miskirted, blonde professional singer, Karen Blackwell, who calls herself a "Jesus person."

In Detroit's Central Methodist church recently, the robed choir marched through piles of whisky bottles, mason jars, pop bottles and baby food jars, to reach the choir stalls.

The ton of bottles, stretching from the pulpit area out two side doors and down a corridor, had been brought there by worshippers to dramatize the nation's pollution problem.

At the Glen-Moore United Presbyterian church in New Castle, Pa., the pastor, Rev. Jack Heinsohn sometimes goes on clown's make-up and goes through acrobatics on a trampoline to get across points to younger members.

"I inject into the whole routine some good solid lessons in Christianity," he says, including the idea that many people hide their true selves behind false faces. He got his clowning talents from growing up in a circus family.

In Sacramento, Calif., St. John's Lutheran church—sponsors a judo and jiu jitsu club with nearly 100 participants, male and female of varying ages, in a church-owned athletic and recreation centre.

In Minneapolis, 25 youths and adult members were gunny sacks to services on a recent Sunday at Westwood Lutheran church to emphasize that there are poor people in the world and the church should do something about it.

Missionaries Trying To Meet Indians' Needs

WATERLOO, Ont. (CP) — Missionaries today are trying to listen to the needs of the Indian, says Rev. M. S. McLean of Winnipeg.

Mr. McLean, superintendent of missions in Manitoba and northwestern Ontario for the Presbyterian Church in Canada, says: "We have made our mistakes. We have patronized the Indians as the governments have done."

But now, if Indians request the help of missionaries, "we're ready to serve."

Mr. McLean, who was in Waterloo for a conference on world mission, said white missionaries working on Indian reserves get little negative reaction from the Indians. There was more from the white liberal living in a city, who might never have been on a reserve.

At one time missionaries were not trained to understand the Indian culture, the mission superintendent said. But now they take orientation studies and extension courses are provided by the University of Manitoba for the continuing education of home missionaries.

Mr. McLean said he is not opposed to the missionary efforts of some Indians who during the last five years have been trying to persuade their brethren to return to the old Indian religions and ways of life.

One of the church's projects has been a Fellowship Centre at Kenora, Ont., a place where Indians can go for comfort, rest, recreation and spurity.

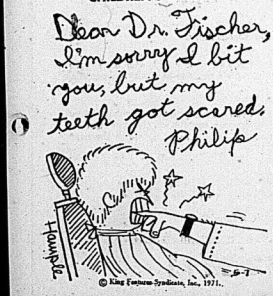
The staff try to help those who come to the centre to become reoriented and to learn the ways of city life. The centre also gives Indians from the 12 reserves in the area a place to stay.

It has a library, counselling and referral facilities for all agencies in Kenora, student tutoring, homemakers clubs, Alcoholics Anonymous groups and a court worker.

Mr. McLean said the Kenora community, aside from the church, hasn't entered into the work of the centre. "But I wouldn't blame them altogether. We haven't asked for their support."

Orthodox and Catholics May Soon Worship Together

VATICAN CITY (AP) — The world's half-billion Roman Catholics and 126 million members of Eastern Orthodox churches soon may be able to attend mass together after nine centuries of separate worship.



Contacts between the Vatican prelates and theologians and their Eastern Orthodox counterparts have been growing steadily since Pope Paul and Patriarch Sqyrov Athenagoras of Istanbul met in Christian embrace in the Holy Land 6½ years ago.

"Numerous are the signs that the Holy Spirit will bring to completion the work which has been started," said Johannes Cardinal Willebrands of The Netherlands in the Vatican daily newspaper.

The cardinal, who heads the Secretariat for Christian Unity, was commenting on a letter Patriarch Athenagoras sent to the Roman Catholic pontiff last March. It was the latest of several messages between Pope Paul and the spiritual leader of the world's Eastern Orthodox faithful.

"We agree with your Most Blessed Holiness," Patriarch Athenagoras wrote, "that it is necessary to strengthen community of church life between the East and the West, promoting true and sincere brotherhood at the level of the clergy and the people of the Roman Catholic Church and the Orthodox churches."

Her Home Has Become Kangaroo Sanctuary

The kangaroo is much more than a national emblem to Mrs. Iris Anderson, of Perth, Western Australia.

Her quarter - acre garden and lawn is the playground and her house the hospital for sick and deserted marsupials.

Through devotion to her brood, Mrs. Anderson has become an authority, which has changed her once quiet life into something quite different.

Now her telephone rings at any time of the day or night with people asking advice, asking if she will take a sick kangaroo, telling her about an accident — can she do anything?

People bring her sick kangaroos without warning and some even deposit them on her doorstep without a note.

Other kangaroos and wallabies come from regular sources. Professional hunters send joeys, (baby kangaroos) found in mothers they have shot. A matron of a hospital in the northwest of the State, 3000 miles away, collects joeys rescued from car accidents or shootings and sends them — by air.

Mrs. Anderson cares for them all and finds all but a few personal pets good homes. Wallabies, euros and greys, blue and red kangaroos are all part of the family.

As well as the routine work involved, Mrs. Anderson copes with influxes of visitors, especially on weekends, who bring their children to have a look at the kangaroos.

Her interest in marsupials started 16 years ago when a friend brought her policeman husband, Archie, and herself a joey which a hunter had given him.

They loved animals, accepted it. Incidentally and soon found themselves with another.

"From there it just snowballed," Mrs. Anderson said. "There were plenty of homes for cats and dogs, but nobody knew much about how to care for kangaroos and there was no home for them at all.

"I had spare time because our only child was grown up, and I hated to think of animals suffering when I could do something to help.

"We had no reference for caring for kangaroos, so we had to learn by trial and error. Several died while we were learning. We soon discovered that a young joey is very vulnerable.

"The baby is about the size of a peanut when it is born," Mrs. Anderson said. "It is like a little white grub with a hole in the top for the mouth and two little perfectly formed arms and hands.

"But it is still only an embryo and it has no fur and no hindquarters. It crawls straight up to its mother's pouch and fastens itself onto a teat, where it stays till formation is complete."

A pouch is a constant 90 degrees Farenheit to provide warmth for the joey, which cannot generate heat itself for many months.

Over the years, Mrs. Anderson has collected electric blankets and friends give her old woollen jumpers to provide suitable "pouches" for the young kangaroos she nurses.

At first she feeds them goat's milk — a cholesterol kangaroo milk — but sterilised bottles with a simulated teat of rubber tubing. Sick kangaroos also need this kind of feeding as well as drugs.

Later she changes the diet to powdered milk with added vitamins.

"In the early stages, joeys need feeding once every two or three hours." Mrs. Anderson said. "They need as much attention as human babies.

"I usually keep them beside my bed at nights, leaving their bottle in with them and the electric blanket. When they grate their teeth— the sign that they are hungry - I wake up and give them their bottle. They let go of the teat when they have had enough."

In setting up the back garden as a kangaroo playground, Mr. Anderson built a strong containing fence and separated a sandy corner as a basking and rolling pit.

Mrs. Anderson sprinkles trace elements on the lawn to make it a rich and nourishing green. Shrubbery provides wallabies with cosy corners for curling up.

The Andersons estimate that more than 1,000 marsupials have passed through their hands in the 16 years they have been operating the marsupial haven.

"We can cure most dehydration and other illnesses, but it's the accident cases where there is internal damage that are incurable. Collision with cars, often unavoidable, is one cause. Rough children's play is another.

The Andersons also have aviaries of birds in the back garden, many of which were gifts from appreciative people. Mrs. Anderson loves them all, but her first love is marsupials.

"They are such gentle animals, unless the male, or "boomer" is competing when he will stand on his tail and lash out with his strong hind legs to protect himself," she said.

"They make fnarvellous pets because they respond with affection and loyalty to proper feeding and care. One couple takes their pet' kangaroo to the drive-in cinema and everywhere else they go in the car."

Their love of the animals leads the Andersons to provide all their help and care free. "If we charged a fee, many people would not bring their pets in us, and then what would happen to the pets," Mrs. Anderson said.

The 1971 Queen's Honours List included a British Empire Medal for Mrs. Anderson.

"I'm very thrilled," she said, "but it seems strange getting an award for doing something you love to do."

Ann Landers
Show Some Interest When He Kisses You

DEAR ANN LANDERS: The letter from the teen-age boy who was afraid to kiss a girl because he didn't know where his nose would go, gave me the courage to write this letter. I am a teen-age boy also, and I wish someone would tell my girl what to do with her hands when I kiss her goodnight. She just leaves them hanging at her sides like a couple of corn stalks.

ANN LANDERS

Don't girls know that boys like to be held the same as they do? To kiss a girl goodnight and have her stand there like a clothing store dummies is a drag. Please print this letter. My dummy is a drag. Please print this letter. My girl never misses your column and I'm sure she'll know I'm talking about her. Thanks loads. — DUBUQUE.

DEAR DUB: Here it is, not only for your girl, but for all the chicks who stand there like clothing store dummies when they should be showing a little interest. For heaven's sake, girls, put your arms around the guy's shoulders. A kiss should be a joint venture. Be a participant, not a spectator.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I have been smoking since the age of 16. For a few years it was just an occasional cigarette, and then I discovered I was buying a second pack almost every day. In the past year I began to cough a lot at night. My husband (a non-smoker) bet me $250 I could not quit smoking, cold turkey, just like that. I seized the opportunity to quit because I'd been wanting to and this was a respectable excuse, even though I knew it was also a bribe. Ninety days later my husband gave me a cheque for $250 which I cashed the following day.

For four months I never touched a cigarette, then last week my next door neighbor's child was injured in a bike accident in front of our home. I had to drive the youngster to the hospital for stitches in his head. While the boy was in the emergency room, another woman whose child had also been injured, offered me a cigarette. I thoughtlessly took it. Just as I was leaving the hospital I noticed a nearly full pack of cigarettes lying on the magazine table — obviously forgotten by someone. It was almost as if Satan was working against me. The cigarettes were my brand. I took the pack and finished it within the next two days.

Yesterday I came to terms with myself. I will not smoke another cigarette as long as I live. I am really through this time. I am disgusted and ashamed of myself. My husband does not know what I did. Do I owe him $250? Please advise me at once. — CONSCIOUS STRICKEN IN LOUISVILLE.

DEAR LOU: Yes, you owe your husband $250. But — if he is a tender-hearted soul he will give you a break. I suggest you repay him the $250 — but he should put it in the bank with the understanding that you can take it out six months, provided, of course, that you have stayed off the weed with nary a flip.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I go with a very nice man (we are both divorced and in our 40's) and we get along very well. The only problem is that whenever we eat out he finds something wrong with the food and sends it back. The meal is always too rare, too well done, too tough or not properly aged. The vegetables are always undercooked or overcooked. The salad dressing has too much oil or too much vinegar. His reputation is well known and in some restaurants there are waiters who refuse to serve him. What can I do about this? — EMBARRASSED.

* * *

DEAR EM: Probably nothing. Chronic complainers who have a neurotic compulsion to be critical of food are usually incurable. Occasionally the food is not right, and should be sent back. But when the food is never right, the trouble is in the head and not in the kitchen.

Some Pottery Pieces Called 'Dry Bodies'

Among the oddments that turn up regularly at sales are a whole series of decorative pottery pieces known collectively as "dry bodies" because they consist of non-porous stoneware requiring no glaze. The best recorded are those of Wedgwood although many were made by other potters as well from the time of their invention in the 18th century right through the 19th century.

One of the most interesting is pastry-ware or pie - crust ware shown here in a dish for rabbit or game pies. In 1796 there was no available flour in England and in 1800 it was reported, "the scarcity is so great that the consumption of flour for pastry was prohibited in the Royal Household, rice being used instead. The distillers left off malting; hackney coach fares were raised 25 per cent and Wedgwood made dishes to represent piecrust".

The shortage ended in 1805 when pie - crust ware was temporarily dropped to be made again at intervals later. Pie-crust ware is unglazed but very fine. Although intended for the kitchen it is very decorative and comes in a range of handsome pieces. It is closely allied to caneware made in imitation of bamboo in a buff color, sometimes decorated to simulate bamboo and sometimes painted in reds or blues.

One of the earliest of oddments to be found is unglazed redware of the mid-18th century of about the same color and texture as modern flowerpots, and which may be decorated or plain. Dark red to chocolate ware was known as rosso antico and light redware was known as terra cotta.

A comprehensive line of kitchen equipment was made by Wedgwood in drab-ware, a plain olive grey pottery of modern appearance that was sometimes decorated with anthus leaves in lavender white or brown. White ware of the 1810 period could easily be mistaken for modern Scandinavian pieces. White stoneware anticipates Scandinavian design by at least 150 years.

In the mid-Victorian period undecorated whitewares were manufactured using styles devised in the 1770's consisting of straight - sided stacking pieces with simple bowls and plain covered dishes. These have been copied by a host of imitators since and issued to the public in succeeding generations as "new and modern" right up to the present.

Dry-body pieces may or may not be marked with a manufacturer's mark. Value depends on condition and appearance. The covered dish shown which dates from 1800 sold for $58.50 in 1968. Decorative pieces such as this one are worth about same price as Wedgwood jasperware, which is also a dry-body, and has a well - defined market value.

THE LOVING ANIMAL

"If there is love and caring in this world, it is only because we love and care." Paul Wyszkowski.

* * *

"Let's give him a lift, shall we?" thoughtfully suggested my husband as we noted a youthful American soldier hitch-hiking along an obscure road we had taken which led to a New England era we wished to visit — and were instantly glad we did — so pleased, grateful and relieved was he, who, as the succeeding dozen miles or so aped by, told us:

"Awfully good of you. My parents would have come for me, but I told them I'd take my chances. I've been away from home (I live on a farm) for nine months. It's the first time in my life I've ever been away, and just come back on a fourteen-day leave before going to Vietnam . . ."

A slight pause. The thought choked you. So young. Yet in those pair of quiet brown eyes, shy, timid, but alert, was a definite courage.

"No, army life isn't something you enjoy," he gave a slight snorting chuckle, "yet it gives you a feeling that it makes you fit, I like that. I was stationed in Missouri. The guys were from all over the States. You'll notice there's lots of woods about these parts. I grew up in them and guess it's come in handy, for in the army we had to go into the woods all the time, down there, to make paths, and, Ol' - see that farm ahead Prosperous looking? The couple that own it have no children, but adopted nine orphans." There was pride in his voice - pride that people "in these parts" were kind, loving. . .

Another pause. Then: "The next road to your left will be the lane of our farm. It's about a mile long. Yes, I've a "real" brother's and sisters - there are ten of us altogether. I'm the eldest," adding as an afterthought, "Sometimes its good. . . sometimes not."

An unreasonable sense of misgiving suddenly took over. Large families. Unpopular as they may be now, are they really grim? Grim and loveless as Mr. LeMay, the French Canadian author of "Outside From Within" declared on TV only this very week. Saying that when people exclaimed: "How wonderful!" that they were wrong - "for it was not wonderful. It was horrible." His mother went insane, his father hung himself and the author ran away and was brought up in an orphanage.

The memory of this interview persisted and the question lingered: Does love have little or no place in large families? Will this soldier's welcome be a cold one? as my husband turned the car onto a seemingly endless lane overrun with wildflowers. (Thanks, I didn't expect this, Sir,") and in time a modest farmhouse appeared. A man and woman were about to enter a waiting car. On the grass five or six youngsters were playing, whose activity momentarily froze as we drove up. Then the young soldier thanked us warmly as he jumped out with his neatly packed gear, bid us good - bye before turning toward the house, to hear "Oh, Jimmy! Jimmy!" and find himself fast in the wildly clinging arms of a sister, with tears streaming down her face. Right behind her, with arms outstretched as she ran, her face radiant - his mother.

The question was beautifully answered. Love had no problem here, and as the father eagerly strode forward and all the others crowded around, our road closed upon the scene of a family lovingly united.

A precious sight - a reminder that biologically man is emotional and capable of love. That the world after all is what we make it - live and love it - for man is "a loving animal".

Successful Living

Life's 'Scatter Mats' Can Be A Problem

By DORIS CLARK

A busy young mother with several pre - schoolers was asked how she managed to remain so relaxed and good-natured.

"It started one day when I was shaking a pile of mats on the porch," she explained. "Bored with the task, I asked myself what good those mats did. They created extra work for me, and it was nerve - wracking to be always setting them straight after the children scampered over them. Sometimes they were also a hazard. So I decided to get rid of my scatter mats."

It makes such a difference to my housework that I vowed to get rid of other 'scatter mats' in my life - energy - sapping scatter mats such as petty resentments, jealousies, grudges, criticisms of others.

"Getting rid of both kinds of scatter mats has made a world of difference to my life.

Dear Doris: Is there a right or wrong way for a son - in - law to address his mother - in - law?

My married sisters are called "Mother" by their sons - in - law but my son - in - law calls me "Mrs. S." My sisters feel this is terribly wrong.

I always called my mother-in-law Mrs. also, until our our children cam along, and then we called her grandmother, so I really don't mind being called Mrs. S. myself. — What's My Name?

Dear What's: Books don't dictate a set form - and good reason. There are times when a young man or woman simply can't bring himself or herself to call anyone "Mother" except that one dear person he has known all his life.

So we are left with "Mrs." or "Louise", or "Granny" when the kids come.

Nothing like a good frank discussion with said son - in-law. Ask him what he wants to call you and-tell him you aren't sensitive. And tell yor sisters to forget it.

Dear Doris: I have a friend who is in her early 30's and is still unmarried. I myself myself am 19 and out and around with a younger crowd; and really enjoying myself.

This friend used to be my baby - sitter and we have always been close. Now she seems to resent my youth and vitality and seems bitter towards me.

I did value this friendship, but now I realize it must end. How can I break away without causing any more bitterness? — Jane.

Dear Jane: Life means change, and I hope you will be making new friends all these days. And I hope she will too.

You don't have to do anything sudden. Keep giving her kindness, and gently encourage her to see more of others in her age range. Your own dates and fun will make you less available; and if she simply objects to your kindest course is to point out to her just why.

Leaflets mentioned by Doris are available to readers for 10 cents in a large, self-constamped, self - addressed envelope. If you have not received a leaflet requested, it may be that you have neglected to include the necessary seven-cent stamp.

Kitchen Tested Recipes

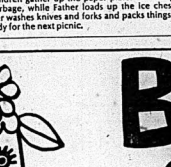
Here's How to Handle Black Currants

By MARY MOORE

QUESTION: I will be watching your column for black currant recipes as we have a big bush and last year I was away when they were ripe and didn't make any jam. Now I would like your black currant jelly and jam recipes. Give all the details as I am a young farmer's wife and am just learning. — Judy S.

ANSWER: I love helping novice cooks and hope these recipes make wonderful jam and jelly to start stocking your fruit shelves. Let me know whenever I may help.

BLACK CURRENT JELLY (six 8-oz. OR eight 6-oz. jars)



1 qt. black currants (about 4¼ to 4½ cups)
3 cups hot water
1 cup water (second amount)
1 box PLUS 4 tsps. powdered pectin (certo crystals)
5 1-3 cups sugar

Wash black currants in colander. Drain. Turn into large saucepan, add three cups hot water and bring to boil, cover and SIMMER 25 minutes. Line colander or large strainer with triple cheesecloth or double clean cotton tea towel or jay cloths and strain currants and juice — preferably overnight. To make a second pressing tip pulp into saucepan, add one cup water and bring to boil, covered, and simmer 25 minutes. Strain through colander as above INTO first amount of juice, for about four hours. Discard pulp. Measure juice. I had four cups.

Bring juice to boil, add powdered pectin and boil, stirring, one minute. Add sugar and boil hard, stirring, one minute. Remove from heat and pour into sterile jam jars and seal with clean melted paraffin and cover with lids. Label. -

BLACK CURRANT JAM

Wash, top and tail black currants and measure 6 cups. Add 5 cups of water, bring to boil and cook gently, uncovered, until tender — about 20 minutes. Add 8½ cups sugar, bring to boil and boil uncovered for five to eight minutes or until it will jell when tested on cold plate or until when a spoonful is tipped up two drops will form and run together. Pour into sterile jam jars and coat with clean melted paraffin, adding a second coating when first is cold. Label. -

Defending Champ Seeded Fourth

TORONTO (CP) — Play starts Monday in the $70,000 Canadian Open tennis championships that has a field so tough that defending champion Rod Laver of Australia was seeded fourth.

Laver, who has won more than $200,000 so far this year—"Rude, isn't it," he told an interviewer—has been ranked behind Wimbledon king John Newcombe of Australia, Arthur Ashe of the United States and Cliff Drysdale of South Africa.

Laver has been bothered by back problems which resulted in erratic service in the Queen Open two months ago when he lost in the finals to Tom Okker of The Netherlands.

Big Laver, who bowed in the quarterfinals in Wimbledon and considers the arena only as means to start the point, will remain a threat for the $10,000 prize that accompanies the men's singles title.

The seeding was suggested by World Championship Tennis under Texas millionaire Lamar Hunt who is bringing his 22 contract pros to the open.

"We didn't have to go by it but we went along with their suggestions," said Don Fontana, the chairman of the richest-ever Open. Prize money was just over $20,000 last year.

This year 48 men will be after the singles crown compared with 20 in 1970. There will be 16 women entries headed by Wimbledon queen Evonne Goolagong, the 19-year-old whiz from the Australian Outback, compared with 12 last year.

In addition to the 22 contract pros there will be eight Canadians and another eight independent pros such as veteran Pancho Gonzales, 43-year-old Los Angeles grandfather, and Frank Sedgman, also of the U.S.

Four Canadian women will attempt to give the 12 international distaff stars a run for the $1,000 women's singles prize.

But Andree Martin of Montreal andJane O'Hara plus two others from the Canadian closed tourney which concludes Sunday in Winnipeg will be in pretty select company.

Rosemary Casals of San Francisco and Virginia Wade of England, ranked third and fourth in the world, respectively.

Canada's Davis Cup team of Mike Belkin of Montreal and John Sharpe, Harry Fauquier and Keith Carpenter of Toronto were automatically included in the Open by the Canadian Lawn Tennis Association.

Carpenter is a sure-fire bet to get past the first round. He has a bye until he tangles with Laver in the second round.

Belkin, who Fontana says is playing the best tennis of his career, is rated an even bet to get through is first-round match with Aussie Ray Ruffels.

Sharpe will be out to avenge his Davis Cup loss to Marcelo Lara of Mexico. Lara beat him in three straight sets in Davis Cup zone play this year.

Fauquier will meet Australia's Fred MacMillan.

Canadian chances aren't expected to fare much better than last year when they all Canadians bowed in first-round singles play.

A Canadian hasn't won the open men's singles title since Bob Bedard of Lennoxville, Que., did it in 1938.

Missing from the women's draw is Australia's Margaret Court who left the tour last week because of pregnancy. She's expecting her first child early in the new year.

But Miss Goolagong, who is part aborigine and one of eight children of a sheep-shearer, should easily move up for the absence of Mrs. Court, whom she beat 6-4, 6-1 to take the Wimbledon title.

Tournament organizers were disappointed, however, that spectators in the 4,200-seat centre court stands would be deprived of the possibility of a Laver-Newcombe rematch.

The finals start Saturday with the $1,200 women's doubles title. The men's doubles final that will see the winning pair split $1,800.

Vantage Point

Twin Quarterbacks Work Controls In 22-17 Argonaut Victory

TORONTO (CP) — "As I said before, I think when you have two quarterbacks like we have the only sensible thing to do is play both of them," said Toronto Argonauts coach Leo Cahill Friday night, keeping a triumphant grin under control.

Cahill, who ditched conventional football strategy and used alternate quarterbacks on each new offensive series, saw his experiment pay off as Toronto dumped Saskatchewan Roughriders 22-17 in a Canadian Football League interlocking game.

Greg Barton and Joe Theismann, both lured away from the National Football League during the off season, made Cahill the master strategist by flinging a touchdown apiece to rookie halfback Leon McQuay.

And 19-year-old Ivan MacMillan, signed earlier in the week by Toronto, added six points, converting both touchdowns, kicking a 14-yard field goal and a 42-yard single.

The other four Argo points came in the third quarter when Roughrider Al Ford was forced to concede a pair of safeties less than minutes apart.

After a first-quarter, 13-yard field goal by Jack Abendschan, it wasn't until the third quarter that Saskatchewan began picking away at Toronto's 21-3 lead.

Saskatchewan rookie quarterback Bubba Wyche, replacing veteran Ron Lancaster who left midway through the third quarter with injuried ribs jogged three yards across Toronto's goal line. In the final quarter, Wyche threw a 30-yard pass to split end Silas McKinnie before the clock ran out.

"I was satisfied with two things," Cahill said after the game. "I was satisfied with our two quarterbacks and the fact that we won. But we still have some inconsistencies to work out."

"They (Barton and Theismann) were in constant communication on the sidelines, talking it up all the time. I think it's going to work."

"Joe and I basically get along pretty well working together," said Barton. "Leo's the main reason I came up here (from Detroit Lions). If he tells me to play safety, I'll do it. As long as we keep winning I'll do anything he says. I'm sure Joe feels the same way."

It was Toronto's second win in two starts, both at home. For Saskatchewan, it was its third loss after an opening victory and its fourth game in 11 days.

Roughrider George Reed thinks the tight schedule may be hurting the team.

"With so many games in such a short time, everybody's stiff," he said. "It takes a quarter or a half to loosen up."

The 31-year-old fullback lugged the ball 19 times Friday to increase his lifetime total of carries to 1,907, a CFL record.

The 118 yards he picked up lifted his lifetime gain to 10,006, 811 yards short of former Edmonton Eskimo great Johnny Bright's record.

"I would have liked it a lot better if we had won the football game," Reed said, "but I would have gained all the records for a couple of wins on the road."

Lancaster, who said he injured his ribs in Saskatchewan's exhibition matches, added he should be ready to start in his club's next game Aug. 13 against Winnipeg Blue Bombers.

"Every time they're hit, they're gonna get sore," Lancaster said. "We've played four games in 11 days and in 18 days we've played six games. It takes a helluva toll on a football club. A week is gonna feel like a month."

The Roughriders, already in jury-plagued trouble, end of Friday's contest with two halfbacks, Henry Dorsch and Al Ford, possibly sidelined.

"I don't know how serious they are but it doesn't look good," said Saskatchewan coach Dave Skrien.

Sport Briefs

AKRON, Ohio (AP) — Young Jerry Heard, a high school track runner, compared his $150,000 American Golf Classic lead today to a mile run.

"I never ran the mile, but you never could tell who was going to win by who was leadig at the half," said the 24 year old Visalia, Calif., pro, thinking of his seven under par 133 that paced the field by three shots after 36 holes. Heard had his reason for a cautious approach. Despite 270-068 in 100 mph winnings, he hasn't won in three years on the tour. His bulge over second place Bob Lunn, in with 69-67—136, was the largest of the year. The previous best after 36 holes was two strokes by Bob E. Smith in the Los Angeles Open, Charles Coody in the Nelson Classic and Arnold Palmer in the Westchester Classic.

GALT (CP) — Norm Defelice will return as coach of Galt Hornets of the Ontario Hockey Association senior series next season, team officials announced Friday. Defelice, a 38-year-old St. Catharines resident, coached the Hornets last season until sidelined with a heart attack during the playoffs. Bill Wylie took over and guided the Hornets to the Allan Cup.

Both Sides Now

WINNIPEG (CP) — Times were when Jim Spavital and Eagle Keys stood on the same winning side of a football field.

Monday the two, coaches of the Western Football Conference's only winless teams, meet in the first showdown between Winnipeg Blue Bombers and British Columbia Lions since Keys took the Lions' helm earlier this year.

Spavital expects his former boss at Saskatchewan will direct his team to the same sort of offence that made the Rough-riders a western power-house, building the offence around hard-running fullback Jim Evenson.

Swimmers Strike Pan-Am Gold

CALI, Colombia (CP) — Leslie Cliff of Vancouver, the first Canadian double gold medallist of the Pan-American Games, held off the No. 1 world-ranked swimmer in a major upset Friday night and looked forward today to doing it again.

Leslie, a tall strapping girl, stopped Susan Atwood of the United States cold in their first encounter in the warm waters of the big outdoor Olympic pool, winning her first gold medal in the women's 200-metre individual medley event.

Her suit hardly dry, the 16-year-old Canadian was back in the pool swimming the third leg of the 400-metre medley relay race in which she edged the United States for another gold medal.

The two swimming golds and another in the Three-Day equestrian team event provided the Canadian team with its best day of the Games, now at the halfway mark. And with 10 gold already in the bag, the team is in fast clutching in on the 1967 showing—12 gold.

The Canadian medal total stands at 42 with 112 events completed. One medal is a bronze the lesser Canadian semi-finalist in the light middleweight class will pick up when the boxing competition ends.

The Canadian team covered wide ground Friday in winning 10 medals in all, picked up 40 points in the unofficial standing and moved closer to second-place Cuba. No one is going to come close to the Americans, who now are approaching the 1,000-point mark.

For one Canadian, the playing of the national anthem when the gold medals were awarded was a sad occasion.

Hoping for the call that never came, Alvin Kaiser champion Robin Hahn of Belle Plaine, Sask., stood by with his mum The Nomad sidelined while his three team-mates received gold medals for their win in the Three-Day equestrian event.

Hahn was prepared to accept a gold medal although he had been disqualified Tuesday on a charge of ill-treating his horse and suspended from the Games for his lifetime.

But his name was not announced in Spanish, the working language of the Games, while he watched Clint Banbury of Wolseley, Sask., and two girl members of the winning team, Cathy Wedge of Saskatoon and Wendy Irving of Hull, stand on the podium to receive their gold medals.

Banbury also won the second gold medal in the Three-Day individual standings. The competition, one of the toughest in the equestrian world, pits the riders, against one another in dressage, cross-country and show jumping over three days.

The Canadian team was the only one to finish with all three riders remaining in the competition on the final day. Because no other country had the required three riders for a medal, Canada's gold was the only medal awarded.

A Mexican rider, Manuel Mendivil, won the individual gold with 7.55 plus points. Banbury had 53.84 minus points and the bronze winner, Juan Jose Neira of Colombia 99.80 minus points. Miss Irving was seventh in the 20 riders, including the best military horsemen in South America, failed to finish.

The Canadian team added six bronze medals Friday to their growing cache. Weightlifter Wayne Wilson of Vancouver won three of them in the middle-heavyweight class; Ralph Hutton of Campbell River, B.C., and Bill Kennedy of London, Ont., got two more in swimming, and boxer Bernard Gallon of Thunder Bay, Ont., lost to a Mexican in the light middleweight semi-finals on a third-round technical knockout for another bronze.

In the pool, the Canadian girls captured the two gold at stake Friday night while U.S. men swimmers swept three races in the three-final program.

Five more finals are on tap tonight, three of them women's races in which Miss Cliff is expected to be a finalist.

The battle between Miss Cliff and Miss Atwood, was ranked the world's top woman swimmer in 1970s, began in the first race of the night—the 200-metre individual medley.

The Canadian girl clocked the fastest time ever by a Canadian —two minutes 30 seconds—as she nipped Miss Atwood by three-tenths of a second. But the winning time was well below the Games record of 2:26.1, set in 1967 by Claudia Kolb of the U.S., a world record at the time but lowered by Miss Kolb in 1968 to 2:23.5.

The inspired Canadian girls then proceeded to take away the 400-metre medley, relay title from the United States, beating the American girls by a 1.2-second margin. Third-place Mexico was 10.3 seconds off the winning time.

Backstroker Donna Marie Gorr of Windsor started off the winning skein, Jane Wright of Toronto followed in the breaststroke, Miss Cliff did her 100 metres in the butterfly and freestyler Angela Coughlan of Burlington, Ont., dueled against Sandra Nellson in the final 100 metres.

Miss Atwood started off in the backstroke, and was followed by breaststroker Lynn Ann Colella and butterfly specialist Deana Deardruff.

Hutton, 23-year-old native of Ocean Falls, B.C., was third in the men's 200-metre freestyle. Frank Heckl won the gold for the U.S., clocking 1:56.4, 3.5 seconds ahead of the Canadian veteran.

Lucchesi Has Memories Dobson Gets Refresher

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Frank Lucchesi, Philadelphia Phillies manager, must have remembered Friday night that Willie Stargell, major league home run leader, was hitless in nine years against Joe Hoerner.

Lucchesi lifted reliever Billy Wilson and made him a third baseman so that Hoerner could face Stargell.

Hoerner struck out Stargell, who has 39 homers and 101 runs batted in, and Wilson came back to finish off the rest of the Pirates, handing Pittsburgh a 4-3 defeat.

Elsewhere in the National League, new York Mets pounded Atlanta Braves 9-1, Cincinnati Reds trounced Montreal Expos 9-1, St. Louis Cardinals ripped San Francisco Giants 13-8 and San Diego Padres nipped Houston Astros 4-3.

Lucchesi needed a little help to put on his strategy show and he got it from rookie Willie Montanez, his young outfielder, part of the compensation St. Louis sent to the Phillies when the Cards signed Curt Flood two years ago, clubbed a two-run homer in the top of the eighth inning, giving the Phils the lead.

The manager let Wilson pitch to leadoff man Roberto Clemente in the bottom of the eighth and then switched to Hoerner.

"We had it all planned from the beginning of the inning," Lucchesi said. "Everybody knew what was going to happen."

Tom Seaver took over the National League strikeout lead and added a four-hitter, easing the Mets past Atlanta. Seaver struck out 11, running his season total to 188, four more than Chicago's Ferguson Jenkins, a native of Chatham, Ont., was the eighth time this season and 30th time in his career Seaver has struck out 10 or more in a game.

Still, he wasn't completely satisfied with his performance.

"I looked like an old lady to begin with," Seaver said. "I had nothing. Then I reached a peak about the middle of the game when I had real good stuff, good velocity and good control."

St. Louis exploded for nine runs, bunching eight consecutive singles in the fifth inning, and went on to beat the Giants.

The streak of eight straight hits was just two short of the major league record for consecutive hits in a single inning.

Cincinnati's Big Red Machine

JOE HOERNER

unloaded four home runs and walloped Montreal. George Foster's three-run homer led the Reds' assault with Lee May, Johnny Bench and Tony Perez all tagging solo shots.

Don Gullett hurled a four-hitter to earn the victory for Cincinnati.

When Pat Dobson was in the midst of a 12-game winning streak, the Baltimore Orioles right-hander was asked how many more games he thought he would win during the remainder of the 1971 season.

"All of them, the way I'm pitching," he replied.

New York Yankees had a different thought Friday night.

The surging Yankees climbed over the .500 mark for the first time this season, routing Pat Dobson and Baltimore Orioles 12-3.

Dobson, after being tagged for six hits and six runs in 2 2-3 innings, said, "I didn't have my rhythm. Nothing seemed to work."

It was his first setback since June 12, when he was beaten 7-3 by Chicago, and his first incomplete game since June 25.

Despite the loss, Dobson has a 15-5 record, and is the biggest winner on the talented Orioles pitching staff.

And despite the loss, the Orioles retained their 4½-game lead over Boston in the American League East Division.

Elsewhere in the American League, Detroit Tigers blanked Boston Red Sox 2-0; Milwaukee Brewers edged Kansas City Royals 3-1; Washington Senators trounced Cleveland Indians 7-3; Chicago White Sox stopped Oakland Athletics 7-0; and California Angels defeated Minnesota Twins 2-0.

"I was just lousy," said the disappointed Dobson after watching his strings of 12 straight victories and nine consecutive complete games end as the Yanks rolled to their fifth win in a row and hiked their record to 57-56.

The Yanks' victory—their 10th in 15 games—pulled the fourth-place New Yorkers within 12 games of the Orioles.

Ted Wake fashioned another chapter in his OASA hardluck storyafter this season as the Ellis Juniors bowed 7-2 to Kemptville last night in the opening game of their OASA Junior "A" series.

Waite, who lost a one-hitter at the Kemptville tournament last weekend did not allow an earned run throughout the ten-inning contest but was still victimized by a powerful visiting squad. Kemptville manage to hold the perennially-strong Oshawa Tonys senior squad to a 2-1 win in their home tournament last week.

After Kemptville had taken a 1-0 lead on two errors and a single by Gerald Christie, the Juniors struck for a pair of tallies in the sixth frame. Singles by Rick Graham, Waite and Peter Staikovich allowed the home team to fashion a 2-1 lead which stood up until the ninth.

Singles by Clark Christie and Reg Hyndman, coupled with a passed ball allowed Kemptville to knot the game in their final regulation at-bats.

A triple by Bill Forbes drove in what proved to be the winning run in the tenth inning after the leadoff man had reached base on an error. Kemptville went on to add four insurance markers in that frame.

Singles by Graham, Waite and Staikovich and doubles for the Mariners with Glen Reynolds and Don Forbert adding two singles each. For Union Carbide it was Gary Little and Osborne with two hits each.

The Firemen went on a home run binge to help them on their way to victory over UIC. Larry Fritz, Brian Smith, Jack O'Neill and Brian Reid all crashed round trippers for the winners. Gordon, Chase and Collins each had two hits for UIC.

Reid hurled a six-hit, ten-strikeout effort to gain the win, while Hamilton and Coughlan were touched for ten hits in defeat.

Smokies Catch Fire Carbide Caught Napping

The Firemen were red - hot in their final regular Industrial Softball League outing, but the Merch Mariners were able to accomplish one of the more effective dousing jobs of the season.

The Smokies took a 9-5 decision from UIC, while Merch managed to upset the run-away pennant winners, Union Carbide, in a 3-2 battle.

Wilson Dalph handcuffed the Bakelite on eight hits to administer only the third defeat of the season to the first place finishers. The March mainstay fanned six batters and walked one. Ken Osborne gave up 12 hits in defeat striking out two and not issuing a walk.

New Look For Joe Willie

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The long shaggy locks still will be curling below his helmet, but it'll be a new Joe Namath tonight when New York Jets meet Detroit Lions in one of 11 National Football League exhibition games this weekend.

"Previously, only the coaches and players' opinions mattered," Namath said Friday, "I knew that they knew the real me, and I didn't cae what any one else thought.

"But my attitude is changed now . . . I do care what people think. I get tired of going to places and having people think they already know me. . . .

"Here comes Namath," they say. "The wise guy. The drinker." I don't want that."

The convincing begins at Tampa, Fla., scene of the Jets-Lions game and the first test of the broken wrist that sidelined Namath most of the 1970 season.

In other games tonight, Washington Redskins and new coach George Allen tangle at San Diego with the Chargers and Sid Gillman. Returning to coaching after a year's absence, Dan Devine debuts as Green Bay Packers' new coach in a game against Chicago Bears at Milwaukee. Kansas City Chiefs are at Baltimore Colts and Cincinnati Bengals at Miami Dolphins.

Sunday, it'll be Cleveland Browns and new coach Nick Skorich at San Francisco 49ers and New England Patriots with John Mazur at the helm for his first season-opener, at Minnesota Twins.

The curtain comes down Monday with New York Giants at Houston Oilers and Philadelphia Eagles at Oakland Raiders.

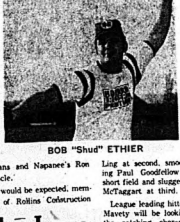
Cheers for Champs

Members of the Union Carbide entry in the Industrial Softball League this season had good reason to cheer as they walked away with the regular season pennant. They suffered a total of only three losses in 22 games to season pennant. They suffered a total of only three losses in 22 games to finish nine points ahead of the runners-up. The 12-team Industrial loop will start it's quarter round of playoffs Monday night with the top eight clubs eligible for post-season play.

No, Point Anne shortstop Rick Rosebush isn't practising the latest flamenco steps, or even signnalling for a sharp left hand turn. The Cementmen infielder executed the tricky footwork in a futile attempt to avoid a tag by Rollins catcher Wes May in a 5-2 Thursday win by the Constructionmen. Rosebush and seven Point Anne teammates, along with seven members of Rollins will be members of the Commercial League all-stars who will play an exhibition game against their Trent Valley Fastball counterparts at the Alemite field Monday night.

Stars Will Twinkle at Alemite No Matter What the Forecast

Games under the stars are nothing new at the Alemite diamond, since the Commercial Softball League plays a full contingent of night games there each week.



No matter what the weather situation is like Monday night fans can be certain of seeing stars at the Belleville diamond. An all-star team from the major city softball loop will be taking on a similarly hand - picked contingent from the Trent Valley Softball League.

Entries on both teams were chosen by ballots of the team coaches and managers.

Bob Ethier will toe the rubber for the Commercial stars. The stocky southpaw has recorded a 1.40 earned run average along with a league-leading 134 strikeouts while performing for the third-place Howard and Robert Printing.

Fast - balling George Ferguson of Trenton's Carms Cleaners will start the mound action for the Trent Valley League, which also includes entries from Madoc, Cobourg, Napanee and Picton.

Backing up Ethier will be the Rollins mound duo of Wayne McConnell, who sports a perfect (8-0) won - lost record this season. Relief hurlers available to the visitors include Picton's Ken DeMille, Jim Chase of the Cobourg

BOB "Shud" ETHIER

Orphans and Napanee's Ron Maracle.

As would be expected, members of Rollins Colstruction and Point Anne dominated the Commercial League selections. Each of the clubs placed seven players on the all - star roster.

Point Anne's Bill Shaw was chosen as the all-star coach with Doug Murray of Howard and Robert as his assistant.

Lyle "Stone-Hands" Thompson of Quinte Hofal will provide the back-up catching support while Vern Whalen, Bruce Sickle, Rick Rosebush and Eric Maher all of Point Anne will be available for infield duy. Second string support in the outfield will come from Howard and Robert's Pug Kellar and Ellis Junior's teammates John Campbell and Glenn Carleton.

Marv Stacey of Napanee will handle Ferguson's slants for the Trent Valley all-stars while the infield will consist of first baseman Roger Drake (Carms), second sacker John Clarey (Cobourg Juniors), shortstop Barry Dawe (Cobourg Orphans) and Dan Garrison (Napanee) at the hot corner.

In the outfield it will be Carl Stacey (Picton), Larry Thompson (Cobourg Juniors) and Pete Harrison (Cobourg Orphans).

The 8:15 contest will be preceded by a regular season bout between Quinte Hotel and Point Anne, beginning at 7 p.m. Door prizes will be given.

No Brotherly Love At Frontenac Downs

Women's Liberation takes over at Frontenac Downs this Sunday afternoon. Retta Herrington, who won almost $20,000 last season on the Golden Circuit tracks made her debut at the new million dollar track.

Retta had her drivers' license long before the great stir a couple of years ago when women tried to invade the sport of thoroughbred racing. She has two drives Sunday afternoon and in one of her outings she'll be competing against one of the top drivers in the Belleville area —brother Pat Herrington.

STOP KILLING YOURSELF

Being Definite Hard for Doctor

By Peter J. Steincrohn, M.D., F.A.C.P.
Author of "The Doctor Looks At Life"

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: I like my doctor except for one thing: he never comes right out and says, "Yes, you will be better" or "No, I don't think this or that will help you." Why can't he be more direct rather than so evasive? — Mrs. L.

COMMENT: I plead guilty. I'm that kind of doctor myself. I've never considered myself even a little god; no mere man can predict the future with certainty.

Recently a reader asked: "Since you aren't afraid to help people, would you be so kind as to answer with a simple 'yes' or 'no' the following — has Coumadin ever activated gout?"

All I can say is, "Yes, perhaps" — "No, perhaps." If it is true that this blood-thinner causes gout, then practically every patient who had a heart attack would also have had an attack of gout. But this doesn't happen. Yet, an occasional coronary patient comes down with gout — but why blame it on Coumadin?

Over four years ago a patient called me and said: "Have you seen the Feb. 11, 1967 issue of New Yorker magazine? Look at the front of the last page. There's a funny item about you."

I picked up a copy at the newsstand. (If you are interested in seeing it, Mrs. L., chances are your public library has a copy.) Here is what I read in the magazine:

* * *

"Dear Dr. Steincrohn: Is medicine as practiced in the United-States the best in the world? Mrs. M., Conn.

"ANSWER: Yes and No. — Los Angeles Herald Examiner

Now can't catch old Doc Steincrohn!"

(See what I mean, Mrs. L?)

* * *

For Mrs. F.: It is not true that tuberculosis is no longer a threat to human life. Although it has declined from first to twentieth place as a leading cause of death in the United States, it still claims about 5,000 lives a year. Then there is any question that your father's chronic cough may be a danger to your younger children, better have him examined and X-rayed to be sure you are not exposing the children.

For Mr. O.: A "sympathetic eye"? This usually means that sometimes when one eye has been severely injured or infected, the other eye becomes inflamed. The real reason for this phenomenon isn't known — although we suspect that sympathetic ophthalmia is due to autoimmunity, in which the body reacts allergically to its own tissue.

Whatever the cause, when this happens the eye specialist is on his toes to try to prevent loss of sight.

* * *

For Mrs. D.: If you are suspicious that your adolescent son is a gilse sniffer, better get him to your family doctor. Do not put it off. Perhaps an emotional problem is the cause of it. Perhaps just being dared by his playmates.

Whatever the reason, we known that many youngsters are innocently exposing themselves to brain damage, kidney failure, and liver and lung damage. Kids not only inhale glue, but gasoline vapors, cleaning and lighter fluids and spray paints.

I wonder whether they keep on if they knew how much they are harming themselves. That's why, Mrs. D., you need professional help right away.

Provinces Plan Advice To Ottawa on Tax Plan

VICTORIA (CP) — Canada's premiers completed their 12th annual conference Friday and decided to "help" the federal government in the areas of taxation reform and agriculture adjustment.

In discussions that Premier W. A. C. Bennett of British Columbia, the conference chairman, said were "frutiful and full of good feelings," the premiers also agreed to establish voluntary quotas on poultry products and bring an end to the so-called "chicken-and-egg war."

Other items on the agenda were the environment and pollution control, medical care and hospital services, investment opportunities, drug addiction and municipal matters.

Taking advantage of the closed-door gathering, Premier Robert Bourassa of Quebec spoke talks regarding the constitution and particularly the Victoria charter, and Premier Alex Campbell of Prince Edward Island got together with his Maritime partners. Richard Hatfield of New Brunswick and Gerald Regan of Nova Scotia.

The premiers decided to hold their 1972 conference in Nova Scotia in August.

In letters to Prime Minister Trudeau, Mr. Bennett said, the premiers will "advise" Ottawa of their feelings about tax reform and farm consolidation.

They will ask Ottawa to maintain the present system of estate and gift tax until the end of 1972, to give the provinces time to assess the implications. Ottawa wants to pull out of this tax field at the end of 1971.

The provinces also want Ottawa to retain the present abatement system in the personal income tax field, to extend the federal-provincial estate plan to five from three years and seek a share of new revenues to be derived from a proposed capital gains tax.

Premier Ed Schreyer of Manitoba told a news conference that he was "particularly happy" about a consensus on estate taxes and farm adjustment.

In a letter to Mr. Trudeau, the premiers will "urge in the strongest terms" that Ottawa take no action on the proposed federal agricultural adjustment program until alternatives to be drafted by a committee of deputy agriculture ministers are "carefully considered."

Mr. Schreyer said some basic assumptions of the federal program, which would consolidate the nation's farms into viable economic units, are "questionable" and would duplicate existing programs.

Premier Harry Strom of Alberta, who spent just one day at the conference before returning to the Aug. 30 election campaign in his province, made a basic contribution to the discussions on agriculture.

Mr. Strom was particularly pleased with the decision to establish voluntary quotas on eggs, broiler chickens and turkeys—which had been subject to marketing restrictions in various provinces since 1969.

The Alberta leader said the agreement on quotas rules out the need for federal marketing legislation. He said the quotas could be in effect by Oct. 4 and will be based on the sales of each province in 1969 and 1970.

Premier Campbell of Prince Edward Island expressed the hope that the quota formula might be extended to other agriculture products ....., "so that a surplus in one province does not work to the detriment of an area elsewhere in the country."

"There has to be an earmarking of markets on a national basis," Mr. Campbell said.

In regard to the environment and pollution control, the premiers agreed there must be some federal minimum standards but that the provinces should be responsible for administering those standards.

The provincial leaders were concerned about Ottawa's plans to change the formula for cost-sharing programs in hospital and medical care.

The federal government, which now contributes 50 per cent of the costs based on a five-year average, wants to switch to a set grant which would increase in relation to a province's population and the gross national product.

Jeane Dixon's Horoscope

For August 8

Your birthday today: Seek the shortest, straightest path thru life this coming year. Many pleasures come simply from a direct approach. Complex contingency plans turn out unnecessary when crisis conditions. Today's natives possess the "wonder of life" and are willing to teach what they see.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Disagreements pursued today will lead to lasting divisions. Unless you plan to go it alone, don't.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Results of previous work arrive belatedly, probably by channels you've neglected or didn't know.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Restow your best on your community today. Seek fresh and expanding social contact for its own sake.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Healthy emotional expression gets an answer this Sunday. Love and take — comparing experience brings joy and reassurance.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Once you've done your share of the community's weekend observances, take a completely break for yourself.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Being home pays unexpected dividends. Make a survey of what you have, an estimate of what you can do with it.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 - Oct. 22): Early tensions subside as you search for equilibrium succeeds. Almost certainly the day will bring an added chore, perhaps to benefit the entire neighborhood.

SCORPIO (Oct. 22 - Nov. 21): This Sunday's beginnings offer good prospects for future growth. Group ventures prosper.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): It's quite likely you'll get right to the core of the most delicate question with a direct, unplanned remark. Keep things simple.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20 - Feb. 18): There's more meaning in details of today's events than anybody suspects. Your study should begin very early and run steadily thru this long Sunday.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): To be of help to others you must keep your own balance today, and be willing to speak up quickly in a cooperative mood.

For Aug. 9

Your birthday today: Every move now contributes or reduces future resources. Make an occasional sacrifice of pleasure and time to build a strong reserve and store. Today's natives have strong abilities seldom fully used, rarely settle into conservative habits.

ARIES (Mar. 21 — Apr. 19): The week begins with much inertia, extra work, and hindrance. Your share seems more than you want, is hard to divide and spread.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 — May 20): Preliminary work should continue even though more important activities encounter delays.

GEMINI (May 21 — June 20): Diversity is the key to getting away from past limits. It pays in the long run to invest in side lines.

CANCER (June 21 — July 22): Your persistive powers are put to trial and could produce unusually good results, so stay busy.

LEO (July 23 — Aug. 22): Bring to your career effort the sound support of a serene and healthy homelife. Tomorrow the cycle reverses.

VIRGO (Ag. 23 — Sept. 22): Decisions are not easy but may be simpler than you imagine. Economic factors make all the difference.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 — Oct. 22): Take on all the extra work you are sure you can handle, but draw some definite line in your dealings to avoid misunderstandings.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23—Nov. 21): Emotional responses continue very near the surface now, both in yourself and others. Expect the best and proceed in hope.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 — Dec. 21): Be willing to see your loved ones in a different context. Being honest with yourself tends to spread into fair treatment for others.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 — Jan. 19): Your idea of what is appropriate may differ from the next one. Care and courtesy save the day and its effect — particularly if you're driving or travelling.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20 — Feb. 18): If you can get time off from serious endeavors, play, loaf, refresh your spirit. Let intuition have a chance to speak.

PISCES (Feb. 19 — Mar. 20): Begin intriguing studies; set distant goals, standards for current work. Your career depends on steady development effort, practice.

Margaret Is Trudeau Folks Want

STEPHENVILLE, Nfld. (CP) — Margaret Trudeau braved the crowds Friday for the first time in a week of touring Atlantic Canada. The going was rough at times.

At one point in Corner Brook, Nfld., her husband, the prime minister, straight-armed an affectionate drunk out of her way.

Mrs. Trudeau, 23, is ill at ease in crowds. Furthermore, she is expecting a baby in about four months.

But whenever she has failed to appear during the current ship-and-helicopter tour, local spectators—especially women—have expressed their dismay and disappointment to Prime Minister Trudeau, his aides and reporters accompanying the tour.

Gathercole Explains

Hydro Nuclear Criticism Incomplete

TORONTO (CP) — A stiff criticism of Ontario Hydro's nuclear power program was labelled Friday as incomplete, highly technical and intended only for internal use by people familiar with reactors and their terminology.

A statement from George Gathercole, Hydro chairman, said the report, prepared by three Hydro engineers and published Friday by The Star, is simply a preliminary draft of part of a continuing comparison of various types of reactors.

The 90-page report condemns Hydro's nuclear power program as recklessly rapid and inferior to those of other Western nations.

"The approach in Canada appears to have been relatively more rapid, much less orderly, less conservative with larger risks assumed," than similar programs in the U.S., it says.

The engineers who prepared the report are Robert J. Atchison, J. A. Sovka and R. A. James. Mr. James later was replaced by H. S. Irvine.

Their report says Hydro's program is five years behind the U.S. and needs three times as long as U.S. systems to make changes.

The Canada-deuterium-uranium—(Candu) Reactor, which has cost taxpayers $2.25 billion to, develop, uses costly heavy water and burns natural uranium fuel. Most others use ordinary water and enriched uranium.

The report says the Candu reactor has the single advantage of lower fuel costs.

Mr. Gathercole complimented the authors of the report on their criticism and said they will continue to do similar studies.

He said, however, that their technical report "makes no allowance for certain non-technical but important advantages of the Candu reactor, such as its ability to use Canadian natural uranium and Canadian research and scientific talents."

Mr. Gathercole also said the report, by its own repeated admission, is tentative and, since it was dated April, 1971, did not include operational data from the first reactor unit at Pickering, Ont. The unit began production April 4.

It says the report bases its comparisons with U.S. systems solely on prototype plants.

"The outstanding performance to date of the first unit at our Pickering generating station was not available at the time the study was made," Mr. Gathercole's statement said.

The report says the cost of heavy water from the Bruce plant being built on Lake Huron will be $50 to $65 a kilogram instead of the original estimate of $40.

It also says the Bruce plant's production estimates are "unrealistic" and predicts production will be 40 per cent or more below capacity for at least the first three production years.

A more thorough assessment is recommended.

Mr. Gathercole said further results from Pickering will be assessed before a decision is made on what kind of reactor will be chosen when Hydro builds another.

Trapper Lost for Two Months Recovering in B. C. Hospital

HAZELTON, B.C. (CP) — A man lost in British Columbia's northern wilderness since June 1 and presumed dead is recovering in hospital here after a two-month ordeal during which he lived on berries and leaves.

Ronald Alvin Woodcock, 42, had dropped to 100 pounds from 170 and could barely speak when found a few miles from here this week by two fishermen.

Mr. Woodcock, an experienced trapper, said he lived on green berries and leaves of plants before he found his way out of the bush that "was sometimes so thick I could hardly crawl through it."

"The only thing that kept me going was the thought of my wife and six kids. I wanted to see them again."

Mr. Woodcock was flown from this northern B.C. town to Blackwater Lake June 1 with three weeks' supplies. He arranged for the pilot to pick him up at the lake June 20, made camp and headed for his trap line. But he lost his way and wandered for almost three days before coming on the Skeena River.

Mr. Woodcock then headed cross-country looking for an old trail, which he knew would lead him to elsewhere.

It took him 14 days and by then he had exhausted the food he had taken with him.

He shot a moose with his rifle, but couldn't pack much of its meat with him.

He estimated it took him a month to walk the 90 miles along the trail to where he was found. Because of the overgrowth, he lost the trail twice, once for a week and once for three days.

Mr. Woodcock, who grew up in the bush, has been hunting and trapping for 20 years while working as a lineman for the CN at Endako.

He said he is going back into the bush when he recovers and this time he intends to stay there.

"That's the one thing this experience did for me," he said from his hospital bed. "It's given me the guts to quit my job pounding ties for the CN, collect my pension, and start all over again—in the bush."

Frankford Man Wins Four Pan-Am Medals

Maurice Switzer

Four-way Threat

Canadian heavyweight weightlifting champion Price Morris, who competes for Belleville's Apollo Barbell Club, did his bit for Canada at the Pan-American Games Sunday. The RR 2, Frankford strongman won four bronze medals all by himself. Canada won a total o f 61 medals in the first 137 events of the hemispheric competition.

Morris Excels As Super-heavy

By MAURICE SWITZER
Sports Editor

Price Morris proved Sunday that being weight-conscious doesn't necessarily mean taking ounces off.

Belleville's Apollo Barbell Club strongman, Canadian champion in the 242-pound heavyweight division, stepped up into the super heavyweight class and earned himself and Canada four bronze medals at the Pan-American Games in Cali, Colombia.

"I know he was eight pounds overweight when he left," said wife Louise from her RR 2, Frankford home when she heard of her husband's latest weightlifting feat. "He probably wanted to see what the competition was like in both classes and then make up his mind about taking off weight or not."

Coach Ken Carr-Braint agreed, but expressed surprise his protege would finish any where in the running against such giants as the United States' Ken Patera who won Sunday's event with a 1,309-pound three-lift total.

Carr-Braint said Morris, who would weigh in at no more than 250 pounds, "would look like a toy" alongside the 320-pound American.

Despite giving away valuable bodyweight to his super-heavy rivals, Morris' 1,062½-pound three-lift total — beating his personal best of 1,040 — was within striking distance of Fernande Bernaal of Cuba's 1,111½-pound second-place effort.

The Old Swimming Hole

The village of Queensboro proved to be popular with weekend attendants of the Rock Acres Peace Festival, who enjoyed swimming in the village mill pond. While almost all wore clothing of some description, there was the occasional youth who took a skinny dip. One young lady took the plunge nature style while a gallery of photographers fogged up their lenses. Many youths took the opportunity to talk to local residents. "They're good kids, I misjudged them," said one person.

Derry Parades Banned

Jail Without Trial Is Ordered for IRA

BELFAST (CP) — Prime Minister Brian Faulkner ordered internment without trial for guerrillas of the outlawed Irish Republic Army today and banned the annual religious parades which for the last two years have inflamed the communal passions of Northern Ireland's Protestants and Roman Catholics.

British troops were reported to have arrested 300 republican and leftist leaders in house to house searches during the night. The parade banning order cancels the annual procession of the Protestant Apprentice Boys in Londonderry scheduled for Thursday. The parade commemorates the part Protestant apprentices played in the Catholic siege of Londonderry in 1689, the Catholics consider it an open provocation.

Faulkner announced he will issue interment orders against men arrested today who "constitute a serious and continuing threat to public order and safety."

The announcement of the internment measures — meaning imprisonment without trial — came after mass arrests in Northern Ireland amid a fresh wave of violence in which a British soldier and a foundry security guard were killed and several soldiers wounded by gunfire.

In his statement, Faulkner said he has taken the step solely for the protection of life and security of property in troubled Ulster.

Faulkner has power to begin internment with a simple signature under the 1957 Anti Terrorist Act.

Arrested persons may be held for 48 hours, and police may get extensions on this. Within 12 days an interment order has to be issued or the arrested person freed.

Faulkner's move followed the worst weekend of violence in Northern Ireland in two years. In addition to the two deaths, several British soldiers were wounded and an unknown number of civilians hurt in shooting and bombing incidents.

Water Cut Off By Sidor Again

By KENNETH SMITH
Staff Reporter

TRENTON — Fresh from victory at Friday's injunction hearing, builder Wasil Sidor repeated himself Saturday afternoon by cutting off water service to Dufferin Developments.

Sidor admits that, in view of Judge W. S. Lane's decision to refuse the town of Trenton an injunction, he has restored the condition of the McGill St. water line "in the way it was before" Dufferin linked up to it.

Saturday had been a busy day for the fiery builder. In the morning he had been host for official dedication of the 794 Air Cadet Squadron's Stinson plane and had been out in the aircraft viewing Rock Acres Peace Festival before rolling up his sleeves for the west Trenton water job.

His action took place against the expressed position of the Public Utilities Commission that the PUC would take legal action against Dufferin or Sidor if either tampered again with the water system.

What the next stage in the long-standing controversy will be, remains an unanswered question today.

The commission has not taken action against Sidor but is now in contact with its Toronto solicitors, Fasken and Calvin, explaining latest developments and seeking advice.

PUC chairman D. J. MacDonald said today "the course to be taken by the commission will depend on the views of its legal counsel." There has been no indication what this will be. Likewise, Mr. Sidor says, "we really do not know what will happen next."

The possibility of a meeting with Ontario Municipal Board to clarify respective PUC and town council responsibilities is being contemplated by some parties. One of the side issues in the water debate has been which of the two groups should decide on water system issues.

Judge Lane Friday had refused to grant the town of Trenton an injunction because sufficient evidence was not presented to show that irreparable damage would result if it were denied.

The judge had conceded there may be damages involved but, said, if so, they could be repaired. As a rule, the basis on which an injunction is granted is clear evidence that irreparable damage would otherwise occur.

Satan's Choice Close Madoc Rock Festival

By LENNY WILLIAMSON
Staff Reporter

MADOC — The trouble-ridden Quinlin rock festival in Madoc township fizzled out in 90 degree heat at 5 p.m. Sunday, seven hours before its scheduled end.

However, even by noon, 7,000 fans had drifted away, the departure of many of them attributed to heat, fatigue and the intimidation of motorcycle gangs the night before. Statements of rape, assault, robbery and tent burning were given to OPP at the site, but none of the victims laid a formal complaint.

Within an hour of the last band, tens and fans had melted from the 200-acre site, leaving a garbage-littered pastureland and a welter of complaints and accusations in their wake.

James Quinlin, 25, blamed the invasion of members of the Satan's Choice motorcycle club for the early closure, claiming they had frightened away fans in their efforts to take over the stage in the early hours of Sunday morning.

But his brother Leon, 28, co-producer of the festival, said the gang's appearance, was only one reason. He refused to give those the other reasons, but blamed the early departure of fans Sunday on heat, fatigue and the need to get back to work early Monday.

'I had a little grass about an hour ago, And it's gone right to my head.'

Attendance peaked Saturday night to an Ontario Provincial Police estimated 10,000, half the number expected by the organizers. Leon Quinlin said the family was satisfied with the turn-out and the gate receipts, although they estimated earlier that only 30 per cent of the audience paid admission. Hundreds crashed the scene over the low cedar rail snake fences bordering the property, many equipped with sketch maps sold at Belleville's youth hostel for $2.

"The festival is a 100 per cent success, both financially and socially," said Leon as crowds began to stream in Saturday night.

Astronauts Start Debriefings

HOUSTON (AP) — The Apollo 15 astronauts, reunited with their families after a month's separation, today start the long series of debriefings that will give scientists, engineers and doctors the minute details of their historic moon journey.

In the Lunar Receiving Laboratory, physicists are preparing to open the first of the moon rock boxes the astronauts returned from Hadley Base.

David R. Scott, James B. Irwin and Alfred M. Worden spent the morning undergoing extensive medical examination. In the afternoon they shift to technical sessions to answer questions about the 12-day voyage that took Scott and Irwin to the surface of the moon for 67 hours of exploration among the highest lunar mountains and along an ancient canyon.

A United States Air Force C-141 transport flew the astronauts from Hawaii to nearby Ellington Air Force Base Sunday night, and the men rushed into the embrace of their families—a first for a moon-landing crew.

The three previous crews had to spend three weeks in quarantine, but experts concluded that moonmen bring back no harmful germs and eliminated the isolation for Apollo 15.

A crowd of about 2,500 who braved a drizzling rain cheered and waved banners and flags while a band in Scottish kilts played Fly Me to the Moon.

Scott told the assemblage that he saw the full moon from the Okinawa Sunday before dawn.

"As I looked at it, I felt a little homesick," he said. "If you go some place as beautiful and as fascinating as that and you spend three very intense days, you really get attached to it."

Rock Festival Fans Impress Queensboro

By COLIN BRUCE
Staff Reporter

While the main action of the festival was going on at the stage area, many of the festival goers (disenchanted with the calibre of music) resorted to straggling down the road to nearby Queensboro to swim and busy themselves in conversation with local residents.

"I am going to have to change my opinion of these young people," said one elderly Queensboro resident. "They have been sitting on my water main. Most took to the water in cut-off jeans, swim pits or under clothing.

The Ontario Provincial Police stood with their hands tied while the four mile bath-tub filled.

"We can't do anything unless someone complains," said one police spokesman. "If I had the chance I would be right in there with them to get cooled off."

Temperature on the closing day had reached 91 degrees.

Those who chose not to make the four-mile walk to the village, busied themselves by talking to friends in the shade of the trees skirting the Quinlin property or by visiting the Children of God or the Hare Krishna for words of inspiration.

The Children of God (the more active of the two) were busy during the weekend passing the word of the Lord to the festival goers. They supplied music at their campsite to induce people to enter their domain. They would then feed them with oatmeal and coffee and then proceed to try to convert them.

A typical response to the group was, "I ate their food, listened to their music and left."

The Hare Krishna, an offshoot of Buddhism, remained in their camping area for the greater part of the weekend. When people approached they were met with friendliness and given a brief description of the beliefs of the Hare Krishna.

One member of the group was injured when a member of the Satan's Choice threw a beer bottle. The Hare Krish na follower continued through the weekend sporting a white bandage taped to the top of his almost completely shaved head saying, "It was the work of Krishna that I was injured. It is all in the plan."

Medium-sized ice cream sundaes were selling for 50 cents ice was selling for 50 cents and ice cream cones were selling for 15 cents.

One Queensboro resident said, "Judging from the number of people in the village, and the length of time they are staying, I would say the kids are more interested in the village than the festival."

Gemboree Outdrew Festival

The much publicized Rock Acres Peace Festival at Madoc didn't attract any from the success of the 8th annual Bancroft Gemboree held last week in the northern part of the county.

The five-day event drew more than 16,000 persons — more than double the number attending the Madoc music festival — and was rated the most successful Gemboree staged by the Bancroft Mineral Society.

"The Madoc rock festival didn't interfere with us at all," stated Harold Pinch, mineral society secretary, noting that mineral rockhounds would have little interest in the music festival.

The Gemboree featured daily field trips with coach buntsers travelling as far as Craigmount, 55 miles away, to collect samples.

There was a midway and pony rides for the children, while the rock - scraping tables, tumbling and faceting demonstrations in the exhibitors' tents proved a big attraction for the adults.

The Saturday night entertainment attraction, the ever-popular Cross Country Jamboree was well attended.

His estimate of the weight of the large bank of blue sodalite was right on the nose at 139 pounds, even, and positional on answering a skill question, will be $50 richer. Second prize in the rock identifying contest will go to F. Gallant of Bramalea, his guess being only three ounces out at 138 pounds, 13 ounces.

Winner of the children's lucky admission draw first prize of a bicycle, was Nigel Avey, aged 7, of Scarboro. Second prize of a wrist watch went to Michael Murphy, also 7, of Pembroke, and third prize of a fishing rod and reel was won by Loretta Dagenais of Bancroft.

Rodney Sarara of Bancroft won the Bancroft Fish and Game Club draw prize of a tent and testing equipment.

The Kinsmen Club mini-bike was won by Chris Clark of Peterborough.

Cash Stolen

Police this morning report approximately $25 in cash plus a cash box, was stolen over the weekend from Duby Tezcan, 189 Dundas Street East.

Reported this morning, police discovered a washroom window had been broken to allow entry. Nothing else was reported missing.

Quinlins Promise Another Festival

The Quinlin's aren't laughing all the way to the bank, but they are satisfied with the festival.

"We have shown that a peaceful festival could be held in the township. We came up against many problems including the great numbers of gate crashers."

A security force patrolled the fence in an attempt to keep these gate crashers to a minimums. One exposure, run into the gate said "probably over half the people at the festival now at least tried to crash the gate."

Until Saturday afternoon, it was doubtful whether the Quinlins would make enough from the festival to cover the expense of the undertaking.

"We didn't make a killing on the event, but we know where we went wrong and these mistakes will be corrected next time," said Leon Quinlin.

The Quinlins announced to The Intelligencer on the closing day of the festival that there will be another festival next year on the farm. This festival will be held on a long weekend and bigger name bands will be hired.

"This seemed to be the major complaint from the audience," said a festival spokesman, "that there were no big name groups."

Along with the news of financial success came the news, "we are closing down at five in the afternoon and the bands scheduled for the evening will not be appearing," said the master of ceremonies.

Friday night had been filled with harrassment from a motorcycle gang who had crashed the gate earlier in the day. Peter Traynor, owner of the property summoned by the festival, feared for his equipment and, at a meeting with the Quinlins' decided that Peter (technical crew) strongly advised the festival be closed under another evening of disruption came.

There was little proof of the rumored harassment by the Satan's Choice gang. It was reported that rape, attempted for the station included a for the station included a meetal boat obtained at a cost of $315.

Mr. Railey reminded sailors the chronicles of the past 150 years have documented "an eternal commitment" to ships and crew members. He said today's challenge to gather and preserve the past is greater than ever before and added the past is now viewed "in a dimension we can be proud of."

Prince Edward marine historian Willis Metcalfe, author of Canvas and Steam on Quinte waters, was commended by Mr. Railey for his efforts in gathering tales of county ships and sailors. "We owe him a great deal," he remarked.

Highlights of the mariners' service was the introduction of two colorful "old salts", North Port's Angus Stewart and Llodley Calnan, news editor of the Picton Gazette.

Mr. Mowat, for many years a familiar figure aboard his sailboat the Scotch Bonnet, is the father of author Farley Mowat.

Lindley Calnan, a veteran of World War I, was on deck to witness the surrender of the German fleet. He has remained actively interested in sailing since his period of wartime service.

Philip F. Dodds, an organizer of yesterday's service, recalled earlier mariners' services held annually at Cherry Valley for 15 years. For several years the services were discontinued but resimed last summer at South Bay Church to honor Prince Edward sailors.

Mr. Dodds offered a special memorial tribute to county seamen who died since last summer's service. Among the names mentioned were those of Capt. Donald Head, Picton, Morley Norton, False Duck light keeper, Donald Thurston, Prince Edward fisherman, John Murphy, South Bay fisherman and Gilbert Striker, former light keeper at Main Duck. Capt. Thomas Lighthall, Glenora, presented a basket of flowers in memory of all of Prince Edward's sailors and fishermen who have "crossed the bar."

Guest speaker for the impressive sixty-minute service was Rev. Robert Stewart of the Church of St. Mary Magdalene, Picton.

He noted early sailors learned there was little security to be found as they followed the sea so they developed confidence in God to help them through perils. This was the beginning of their faith.

The rigorous demands of shipboard life taught the sailor discipline and he became adept at mastering the sail rigging, the winds and the currents under all weather conditions. This ability to adjust to constant change stood the seaman in good stead in everyday living as well.

As the sailor of early times gained knowledge of new lands and new waters he also gained a profound respect for God and for the sea.

Rev. Stewart said it is our challenge today to help all persons, especially young persons to sail their ships in congested waters. He spoke of today's youth and cautioned parents: "Raise children to deal with life as it is, not as it might or should be."

The minister charged, "Sow a thought and reap a deed, sow a deed, reap a habit. Sow a habit, reap a character; sow a character, reap a destiny."

The mariners' service closed with the voices of all present joined in the hymn, "Eternal Father" followed by God Be With You 'Til We Meet Again.

Among special guests at the service were County warden Allan Anderson, South Marysburg reeve Clifford Walker and Kingston harbor master E. Phipps-Walker.

The South Marysburg Mariners Museum, adjacent to the churchyard, filled with visitors following the close of service. Newest item in the park is a wheelhouse taken from the S. S. Acadian. Interior exhibits include an anchor, a reconstructed lighthouse and a lifeboat. The mariners' park welcomes 2,500 visitors annually. Funds are urgently needed to provide a building to house the marine artifacts county residents and outsiders wish to donate to the museum.

Residents' Reaction To Festival Varies

MADOC — "No money can pay for the mental anguish we suffered for six months over this festival. It was disgusting and terrible."

Mrs. Donald McKinnon, wife of the owner of a major part of the farm land adjacent to the Quinlin rockfest site in Madoc township was still up in arms this morning over the weekend events.

All weekend the sound of rock bands drifted over the McKinnon acres "right in our bedroom window." This morning Mrs. McKinnon said it would be months before they could estimate the damage done by fans who took down at least one panel of rail fence for fire wood, tore down no trespassing signs, trampled cornfields "just like cows" and threw beer bottles over fence lines.

Sunday morning 13 of the McKinnon's Holstein heifers got through fences, roamed the festival site and ended up trampling a McKinnon barley field.

Mrs. McKinnon, who said "they were the saddest looking kids," described festival fans as "a bunch of no good bums who have nothing to lose". She said they should be put in the army and trained to be men.

Although her husband, patrolling his acreage and fence lines during the three-day event, made several visits to the site, Mrs. McKinnon said she spoke to only one fan herself.

The McKinnons left their church at Easter because their minister made pulpit pleas to his congregation to greet the festival goers with friendliness and stop opposing youth. They now worship at the Presbyterian church, she said.

But a Queensboro storekeeper said she had no complaints about the fans who invaded the hamlet to swim and stock up on supplies.

"They were friendly and mannerly in every way, very pleasant to deal with," she said.

No shoplifting was reported and the merchant said she had no complaints.

Weston Youth Hurt on Cycle

MADOC (Staff) — A Weston youth travelling south on Highway 7, one mile east of the Madoc detachment, OPP came in collision with a car driven by Alexander McGlashan of Belleville.

The ensuing accident resulted in Terrance Hoskins, 22, and an unknown female complaining of injuries treated to Belleville General Hospital.

Both were treated for minor injuries and released. The couple had been riding a 1968 Harley Davidson.

Planning Bad Says Festival Doctor

By DONALD M. SOUTTER

It was all over yesterday and James Quinlin was saying "we will run a bigger and better festival next summer."

Up on the hill overlooking the festival site, Dr. N. H. McNally, director of the province's Emergency Health Services sat in his trailer and had other ideas.

"I would automatically say no, unless a lot of things were corrected," said Ontario's most experienced festival medical doctor.

"It doesn't make sense to turn down a festival at Rock Hills and then allow this one to go on. We will not come back here without adequate water supplies, power, reasonable sanitation and better access."

These were the things that were wrong with the festival right from the beginning. Efforts to stop the festival were centred around an agricultural land use bylaw which failed to stand up when challenged in the courts.

Dr. McNally said municipalities will have some better ammunition with which to fight next summer. "The amendment to the public health services act has been passed," he said. This is an enabling act which will permit legislation to be drawn governing such events as rock festivals.

"The sanitary and water facilities were the worst I have ever experienced at a festival," said Dr. McNally. His experience dates back to two at Rock Hills, one at Mosport and smaller ones at Ancaster and Dunnville.

When he gets back to Toronto, one of his tasks will be to "analyze the statistics we have been keeping and prepare a report." The report describing the Rock Acres experience will come complete with pictorial data, for a government team showed up on the site and took advantage of a helicopter supplied by Wall Aircraft to film the activities.

Dr. McNally's criticism of the health aspects were easily evident.

The primitive privies built by the Quinlin family rapidly deteriorated as the 4 x 8 wallboard sidings came away from the cedar post framing. Togetherness was the code-word of the day.

Efforts were made to keep the site supplied by water by tank truck but this did little more than barely keep even with drinking demands. Showers were non-existent and the best answer was a three-mile trudge to the mill pond at Queensboro.

"If promoters keep on putting on festivals such as this, they will kill it," said Dr. McNally.

Although the provincial health director was highly critical of Rock Acres he is quite a festival fan.

"I would be concerned about banning them altogether," he said. "They should be on but whoever puts them on should pay the bills.

"What we need is proper planning. When this comes about then these things will be okay."

Exposure to half a dozen festivals has enabled the doctor to pass judgment on the music of the young people. "I was hoping to hear Crowbar," he said. Crowbar, a Ronnie Hawkins band scheduled to play Sunday night, was sidetracked when the festival closed early.

Dr. McNally's hospital teams treated somewhere over 400 patients, with over half of them being for drugs. "The drugs were worse here than at some of the others," he said.

As a doctor and a music judge he had his own theory: "The bands didn't turn the kids on. The facilities were inadequate and as a result the kids turned to drugs."

As to cost, Dr. McNally gave a rough estimate of $30,000 for the emergency hospital tent. "We didn't have to come," he said, "but what would have happened if we hadn't."

"I don't know what the province plans to do about it," he said and then, humorously, "but I'll be sending them a bill on an escalating clause for treating Mr. Quinlin's grandson."

The youngster was one of those requiring the services of the medical team Saturday night.

And so went Rock Acres peace festival, 1971.

U.S. Air Cadets Visit Belleville

After an 8,000-mile tour of Canada which took them from Quebec province to the Pacific ocean, civil air patrol cadets from the United States visiting the city during the weekend noticed hospitality they received everywhere more than anything else.

The official welcome they received from the city in the ANAF Association's special meeting hall on Saturday, the praise of the cadet's escort officer Lt. Col. Paul Remlinger of Jacksonville, Florida who last visited Canada in the early 1930s.

Friday night, 15 cadets and two officers arrived at Camp Trenton on the final leg of an exchange visit that started at Montreal, July 25. The cadets were guests of ANAF Association members in Belleville and the area until they returned to the air station Sunday night for the flight home today.

ANAF Dominion president Jack Lundberg restated the Association's policy for dedication to youth development and citizenship in a message of welcome from the Canadian wide veterans' organization. Looking around at the youthful visitors, president Lundberg emphasized that veterans were encouraged to carry on as the association intended when experiences with youth were of this nature. He pointed out the ANAF had already expanded efforts and resources to better youth's future.

At Saturday's official function for the cadets, alderman Arthur Keegan represented Mayor Scott. He presided at the signing of the city's guest book and accepted the presentation of the honorary membership to the American civil air patrol for all citizens of Belleville from the cadets' officer in charge.

Each cadet and the two officers with them received honorary citizen certificates from the city. Their Canadian guide on the tour Armed Forces Capt. Gaetan Coutu and Lieut. Jim O'Bryan representing the Royal Canadian Air Cadet 608 squadron, received citizen certificates also.

Tent Hostel Popular Stopover

Effects of the Rock Acres Peace Festival reached Belleville last night as 90 participants in the festival entered the city to take advantage of the youth hostel located at the junction of highways 401 and 14.

A spokesman for the hostel explained that "because the festival closed seven hours earlier than expected, the crowd was able to make the trip to Belleville, obtain a hostel voucher and be at approximately $2 and leave the city."

Only 35 or so youths actually spent the night in the tent and only 10 to 15 of these people are left in the city this morning.

There had been word earlier that restrictions would be placed on the number of vouchers issued, which amounted to 8180. These restrictions were not enforced.

The 55 people who had come for food vouchers and had not arrived by night, left the city by 9 p.m. last night.

It is fortunate that this happened," said a hostel spokesman. "Tent capacity is 50 people and with the additional 40, we might have run into some safety problems including such room facilities and fire regulations. We would not have had adequate staff to police a group of people this large."

Darlene Sills Drowning Victim

Darlene Louise Sills, 15-year-old Sidney township girl, was drowned Sunday at Pine Tree Harbor, on Lake Huron near Tobermory where she was holidaying with her family.

The drowning accident occurred while the young girl was swimming with a brother.

Miss Sills was a student of Centennial Secondary School and took an active part in county 4-H club work and was a member of the Hi-C group at Westminster United Church in Sidney township.

Born in Sidney, she was the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Keith Sills, 2nd concession, and had lived in the township all her life.

Aside from her parents she is survived by three brothers Bruce, Melvin and Steven, all at home, and a sister Joanne Helena, at home. A brother Franklin Richard predeceased her.

The funeral will take place Wednesday with service in the chapel at the John R. Bush Funeral Home at 11 a.m. to be conducted by Rev. John Bunner. Interment will be in Belleville Cemetery.

All Hands on Deck

All crewmen seem to be busy here on the Pathfinder, a 60-foot steel-hulled brigantine as it was moored at the Government Dock in Belleville after its engine seized up. The training vessel for youths between 14 to 18 years went under repair during the weekend.

Pathfinder Was Harbor Visitor

By THOM REYNOLDS
Staff Reporter

"One thing is for certain, sail training is not yet dead, and many nations consider it's advantages sufficient to justify the expense." These are the words of Harold A. Underhill, a foremost authority on sailing ships.

The training vessel Pathfinder and its crew had the opportunity to tie up at the government dock in Belleville after it's engine seized while sailing in the bay. With a crew of 27 boys, the vessel tied up and had a mechanic look at the engine.

On Friday the engine was removed from the ship and sent to Toronto. The ship's crew was taken back to Toronto in a farmer's truck and the new crew arrived from Toronto. The new crew left Belleville dock on the weekend for Lake Ontario and on to Toronto under sail the whole way.

Maurice D. Smith, Master STV Pathfinder and the 27-man crew were very happy and wished to extend a 'thank you' to the Belleville CN Yardmen who took the boys to the Outlet on Friday while the vessel's engine was being repaired. The Yardmen took the boys to the beach and supplied them with drinks and hot dogs for the day.

The Pathfinder is a 60 foot steel - hulled brigantine designed for sail training and like its sister ship, the St. Lawrence II, was built in Kingston. She is equipped with a heavy duty diesel engine, her own generating plant and has accommodation for 24. For safety she carries a radio telephone and equipment in excess of regulations.

Pathfinder's crew has but one adult. All of the other hands are 14 to 18 years old who experience the beauty of sail through the help of a non - profit organization called Toronto Brigantine Incorporated, which has been unlocking the beauty of sail and the sea for Canadian youngsters since 1963.

The group does so by giving the teenaged boys the chance to spend one to two weeks on the water, learning the art of sailing. Almost any boy can afford the chance, as the charge is nominal and for those unable to pay full amount, only a partial charge is made.

Toronto Brigantine Incorporated has a second training ship, the 37 - foot, gaff - rigged cutter Trident II. In 1966 it was given to the organization and is used for the first weeks of training, serving as a sort of stepping stone to the Pathfinder. Work on a third training ship similar to Pathfinder has begun at Ontario Place in Toronto.

Held in the Sea Cadet barracks, HMSCC Renown in St. Catharines, the preparatory training of one-week gives the boys the basic seamanship, boatwork, ropework, sail theory and nautical lore necessary for a more enjoyable week or weeks aboard the Pathfinder, Emphasis is placed upon self reliance and the developing of individual and group initiative.

A boy may continue with Toronto Brigantine Incorporated by participating in winter instructional work and social program at their base in Toronto, Brigantine House. During the winter rigging and ships' parts are worked on so that the ships may be commissioned in an "all-found state" for the sailing season.

Pathfinder, launched in 1963, has logged thousands of miles on the Great Lakes. Twice in 1967 she was at Expo and hundreds of visitors came aboard. She has aroused public interest in many ports and is also well known among the exponents of the 'Outward Bound School' in Britain who have enquired fully about the Brigantine's program.

U.S. Aid to Greece and Pakistan Runs Into Opposition

By ROD CURRIE

WASHINGTON (CP) — The surprising House of Representatives vote Tuesday to restrain President Nixon on aid handouts to Greece and Pakistan is the most formidable evidence yet that Congress wants a greater voice in foreign affairs.

The argument of supporters of the restraining order is that such action might help oudge the Greek dictatorship and the military regime of Pakistan along the road to democracy. Many observers, however, remain skeptical.

Over the years a succession of American administrations seem to have been drawn inexorably, if not always willingly, to the side of extreme right-wing and even dictatorial regimes.

And a succession of presidents have held pretty much to the same, rather plausible, line: that allies are allies and the U.S must live with them; that Washington cannot presume to instruct friends in democracy by attaching strings to military and other aid funds.

The American role as world policeman, which it is seeking to shed, and in NATO, in Asia, and in Latin America has conspired to strengthen this thesis as a necessary evil of diplomacy despite growing misgivings by the young, a legion of academics and liberals.

Now the House, following the lead of other members in more liberal-minded Senate, has required that this is not necessarily so. Although the bill as now written leaves a number of large loopholes the feeling is that it could be a source of embarrassment to the Nixon administration if it take advantage of them.

The majority opinion in Congress now apparently is that since the Greek colonels have made no move toward free elections, as promised, and the military regime of Pakistan has nullified the elections it held recently, action on the fine of U.S. aid money could have a sobering effect.

The administration argues, as did previous administrations in their dealings with other such regimes, that the two countries are valuable allies, and must not be left open to the insults of a holier-than-thou attitude from Washington.

Martin Hillenbrand of the state department, in testimony before a foreign affairs subcommittee, noted the importance of Greece in NATO strategy in the eastern Mediterranean, and said:

"Any significant weakening of the U.S. posture in the area would create a dangerous kind of invitation to Soviet risk-taking and adventurism."

The House bill would suspend all military aid or weapons sales to Greece unless the president determines that "overriding requirements of the national security of the United States" justified aid. Aid to Pakistan would be suspended until the president determined that Pakistan had restored "reasonable stability" in East Pakistan and allowed refugees to return to their homes from India.

These clauses give Nixon considerable elbow-room and House Minority Leader Gerald R. Ford (Rep. Mich.) announced that because of the escape hatch in the provision, if Greece the administration would accept it.

But if Nixon does attempt to use the loopholes, many observers feel, he would have to put up a far more convincing argument than his administration has done so far to convince Congress that his course is correct.

"The fact that I follow the horse races doesn't make me a racist!"

Mystery Man

The Henry Gablinger affair has taken a further mysterious turn where this newspaper is concerned. It will be recalled that in June The Intelligencer printed an article by one John Samson quoting Mr. Gablinger, described as a resources expert and advisor to President Nixon. He said in effect that a resources-hungry United States would have to look to Canada for the water, minerals and so on that it needs. He hinted that if necessary the United States might just do a little invasion job and take it.

The article by Samson was said to have appeared in The Examiner, described simply as an American journal, or as we put it, a U.S. publication. It first came to our notice in the Kingston Whig-Standard. Then last week we received a letter from the United States Information Service in Ottawa pointing out that a search of three authoritative guides to American periodicals had revealed no such publication as The Examiner. Mr. Gablinger, moreover, was unknown at the White House and no one of that name was employed as an advisor or otherwise on the President's staff.

We made reference to the letter in this column. Then on Friday we received a phone call from a Rosemore reader; she was upset by the editorial because, according to her, she had watched a Channel 13 television program—either Face the Nation or Meet the Press—in which the dialogue was virtually word for word with the article she subsequently read in The Intelligencer. She believes it was between January and April; she had the set on but was paying no particular attention until she heard someone mention Canada. She could not recall his name but she believes it ended in "er" as in Gablinger. She inquired at work if anyone else had seen the program; no one had, then she saw the article in The Intelligencer.

There the matter stands. We might add however that a month or so ago we received a call from the CBC in Halifax saying a check with the White House had been met by silence about the material's authenticity. The other day we also received, a phone call from a woman in Toronto representing a body called the Committee for an Independent Canada; they too were interested in the article. The U.S. Information Service meanwhile asks our cooperation in tracking down the article's actual source. Was it the television program, and did writer Samson obtain the tape or make a verbatim note of the program? The answer may lie there.

Cuba's Games Effort

Canada is putting on a creditable performance at the Pan American Games in Colombia, but Cuba's continuing occupation of second spot in overall standings behind the United States is noticeable. It is apparent that Cuba has acquired this athletic expertise by means of the discipline that marks Communist society elsewhere, and through an emphasis on physical fitness neither matched nor encouraged by the contrasting permissiveness of life here? Cuba, moreover, has attained this status despite the difficulties of recent years, the shortages brought about by the revolution ,and, probably, lack of competition with other nations of the western hemisphere.

Contrasts

It must have been an interesting study in contrasts when the Prime Minister and his wife met the Governor of St. Pierre and Miquelon and his lady last week. Mr. Trudeau, we gather, looked for all the world like a French matelot on shore leave accompanied by a beautiful gypsy, while the Governor of the French islands was nattily dressed in a suit and his wife wore an elegant Paris-designed outfit. But doubtless the Trudeaus' fame had spread even to the islets, including word of their quaint disregard of some of the formalities of diplomatic protocol. And who would say this is not a refreshing trait?

Cosmopolitan

It would be interesting to know how many nationalities were represented at the Rock festival. The thought occurred when listening to the pleasant "down under" tones of Monica Patterson of CKWS Kingston, describing the Queensboro event. From Australia, or is she a New Zealander, to Madoc township is quite a trip. So too are the journeys some have made from the States.

Role Of The Press

The Ottawa Journal

. . . Revolution, or at least a good deal of desperation, nags at the world. The head of the Canadian Science Council, an eminently sober man, said in his annual report last month that mankind's chances of survival are pretty low.

In the early sixties there used to be a convention that one didn't shoot the piano player for he was doing his best. The public is not that sure about the press just now. We are fair game and it seems there is no closed season. But to attribute the downfall of civilization to the press is paying us rather a compliment. We just report it. Civilizations fell long ere press and television came on the stage.

French Islands Attract Tourists

Bruce West in The Globe and Mail

. . . The tiny French colony in the Gulf of St Lawrence is one of the most delightful places I've ever visited. Mind you it would only appeal to roamers of certain rather rugged tastes. It can be chilly in mid-summer, and the fogs often roll in and out and back in again in the time it would take you to stroll for a couple of blocks. Sometimes it rolls in and doesn't bother to roll out again for several days. It is definitely not bikini and bermuda shorts country, most of the time. It's more turtle-neck sweater, corduroy slacks and beret country. In all fairness, however, it must be stated that the sun does shine beautifully at times, for days in a row. And always the crisp breezes of the North Atlantic are zesty and invigorating.

It is, of course, completely French. The Quebecois, with their national frustrations and frequent grousing, are looked upon with a kind of amused tolerance in St. Pierre, where the geodarmes stroll down the streets as they do in Paris, with obviously no doubts about the national aspirations of themselves, or their fellow islanders.

Accommodations in St. Pierre, provided by the few hotels and numerous pensions, are simple but highly satisfying. Outside, the frame walls of the pensions look rather stark and weather-beaten. Inside, everything sparkles. At lunch and dinner there always sits upon the table as standard as salt and pepper shakers, the jugs of white or red wine from France. The cuisine is usually plentiful and superb and the rates are extremely reasonable. If you're thinking of going there, wait up a minute. The more I think of it, the more I'm tempted to get my heavy trenchcoat and go with you.

Hospital Evidence on Abortion

Ottawa Journal

The emotion - laden arguments about abortion in Canada are finally, and thankfully, confirming statistical evidence from hospitals where these operations are performed.

The result should give couragement and direction to Canadians who support some form of birth control as the reasonable approach to family planning.

They confirm a number of preconceived opinions about unwanted pregnancies but a Toronto study reveals that few women on welfare now apply for abortions although their status gives them special medical and legal access.

However, medical and social workers working directly with this group have been supplying guidance and material for birth control for some time with public funds and public support.

Unfortunately, this same assistance is rather readily available to other particularly vulnerable groups with the result that ill-educated women of low income make disproportionate use of abortion.

To continue to debate as if the only alternatives are the "sanctity of all life" or "back alley butchery" is wasteful because it does nothing to help this group.

They are turning now to abortion in increasing numbers, although no one can seriously argue that this is the more desirable choice. However, modern birth control demands levels of motivation and discipline which must be taught as widely and as simply as possible to all who need it.

P. M. and the Nation's Ills

Windsor Star

The only conclusion which can be drawn from Prime Minister Trudeau's press conference is that the ills of the nation are everybody's fault except the government's. As colleague Douglas Fisher said to the prime minister, "Aw, come off it."

Mr. Trudeau would have the people believe that they are responsible for inflation and unemployment. He seems to espouse the theory of the self-fulfilling prophecy — that when people think things will get worse, sure enough they get worse.

So now it is up to the people of Canada to dispel their own gloom, to find their own silver lining, to have faith and confidence. To stand up for Canada! As if a strong measure of esprit de corps will create jobs and stop the surge of inflation which has seen the consumer price index soar from 128.8 in December 1970 to an even 133 for June.

Mr. Trudeau has acknowledged that his party and his policies are losing favor, but even if he hadn't made such a confession, the loss of his popularity would still exist. Just ask last winter's unemployed, this summer's students or consult the grocery bills of any Canadian family.

National Convention in Fall

Paul Hellyer's 'Action Canada' May Fight Election

By STEWART MacLEOD

OTTAWA (CP) — Action Canada, Paul Hellyer's movement "to bring ordinary people into the mainstream of government," is likely to vote itself into the mainstream of politics this fall.

The movement is organizing a national convention to be held here, possibly in late September, and among others things the membership will decide whether Action Canada should become a political party. Supporters are almost unanimous in predicting that it will.

Mr. Hellyer, former Liberal cabinet minister and a party leadership candidate in 1968, announced the formation of the movement last May. An Action Canada's headquarters here, workers say membership applications are still "pouring in," but that there are no up-to-date figures available.

Maj.-Gen. E. D. Armour, the movement's executive-director, said the membership figures will be announced later. Memberships were "coming in from all across the country, from people in all walks of life."

While details of the convention are still to be worked out—it will last at least two days—Gen. Armour said that decisions will be taken on the basis of one member, one vote.

The members will discuss the eight main objectives outlined by Mr. Hellyer when he announced formation of the movement.

They include: "Immediate and fair" tax cuts, mandatory wage and price guides, an increase in housing to give every Canadian warm and clean shelter as a matter of right, environmental standards which are the highest in the world, a federalism which allows greater democracy at all levels, a streamlining of the bureaucracy, more transportation systems, and tangible programs to allow Canadians to own their own resources.

But the most important decision, say members, is whether Action Canada becomes a political party and fields candidates in the next general election. They say that unless Canada's goals can only be achieved through the political system, the movement is certain to move into that arena.

Mr. Hellyer, now the movement's leading chairman, would almost certainly become leader of the new party. Sources say he would likely run in his Toronto Trinity riding—which he now represents as an Independent Liberal.

Action Canada is collecting $10 membership fees from new members—$2 from students—and Gen. Armour said that all "basic preparations" for the fall convention have been financed.

The movement's headquarters operates with a staff of 10.

An Exchange of Goodwill

There was a warm handshake and a trade of pleasant remarks between Lt. Col. Paul Remlinger and Bill Ford the first vice-president of the Belleville branch of the Army, Navy and Air Force Association at the official ceremony marking the visit of 15 United States civil air patrol cadets with two officers on Saturday. Both had roles to play at the event.

Nagasaki Residents Recall Atom Bomb

NAGASAKI (AP) — Five thousand persons prayed for peace today at ceremonies marking the 26 anniversary of the atomic bombing of this Japanese city.

The observance was held in Peace Memorial Park, the spot where the United States dropped its second atom bomb on Aug. 9, 1945. The first hit Hiroshima three days earlier.

The list of those who died in the Nagasaki attack rose to 41,737 today with the addition of 2,815 newly identified dead.

The ceremonies were solemnly quiet, contrasting with those held at Hiroshima last week. Student radicals there said the Japanese government is militaristic and attempted to prevent Premier Eisaku Sato from participating.

Nobody Lays Formal Complaint

the right to hold the festival, the Quinlins needed 4,000 to 5,000 paid admissions to climb out of the red.

Fans reacted indifferently to a brief announcement from the stage at 2 p.m. Sunday that only three of the scheduled eight bands would play that afternoon.

Crowbar, main attraction of the all-Canadian roster of groups, was cancelled along with seven others. Jim Quinlin said the family would lose its 50 per cent advance deposits, but were hoping to get out of paying the remainder of the contract fees.

The Quinlins were bitter about the motorcycle gang invasion that reputedly caused the early wind-up of the festival.

"It was going so good, and then they spoiled it," said Jim.

Inspector R. L. Bender of the Ontario Provincial police here said police asked the family twice in the early hours of Sunday morning to lay a complaint that would enable the force to go into the grounds and disperse the gang.

"The Choice came in, one or two at a time, Saturday afternoon and evening," said the inspector. "They were never challenged, never asked for an admission, and never paid for one.

"By midnight or later, they began taking over the stage area creating a no-man's land between themselves and the fans as the audience took flight before them. At 2:30 a.m. Sunday we began assembling a 50-member crowd control squad in Madoc and asked the family for a complaint so we could go in. But both Mr. Quinlin Sr., owner of the farm and Jim and Leon declined to give it."

Inspector Bender estimated the number of Satan's Choice and Paradise gangs at 50 at the height of the disturbances Sunday morning.

The police received numerous statements from fans who claimed the Choice had roughed them up. All making statements refused to give their names or identify gang members responsible.

The gang started several tent fires, the inspector said, a rape was reported to police and a single motorcyclist from a similar gang in another province was robbed of $200 about 3:30 Sunday morning.

By 8 a.m. Sunday the Choice were observed by the press preparing to strike camp, set up beside the non - violent Hare Krishna people from Toronto. Gang members amused themselves by tossing hatchets close to the circle of dancing, chanting Krishna people. One man was hit on his shaven head by a beer bottle thrown by a gang member. It required two stitches to close the gash.

Standard procedure for motorcycle gangs at the events, said Inspector Bender, is to bring a truck and load it with stolen cycles. Police stopped and searched every bike leaving the grounds Sunday for improper serial numbers and seized about 15 or 17.

The Quinlins gave a different version of police reaction to gang intimidation and harassment. Jim and Leon said the police told them to "take 400 of your own people and go in there with hammers and kick them out". The brothers claim that they asked OPP to disperse the gangs was emphatically denied this morning by police.

Estimates of the number of fans arrested on drug and liquor charges varied this morning as OPP and RCMP officials completed their tallies. An RCMP spokesman said he believed about 20 people were being held in Quinte Regional Detention Centre, Napanee on drug possession and trafficking charges. OPP undercover agents on grounds made drug and liquor purchases and arrested the vendors as they left the grounds. One person was arrested on a bootlegging charge in a tent pitched on the Quinlin family lawn.

"This was the worst festival I was ever at, having regard to the small size of the crowd," summed up Inspector Bender.

Price Morris Wins Four Medals at Cali

(302) were personal records, although his Canadian heavyweight clean and jerk record is ten pounds better than the 401½ he hoisted in Cali Sunday.

All three lifts and his total earned the stocky five-foot-eight Morris bronze third-place medals.

Only in Olympic and Pan-American game competition are participants eligible for medals for individual lifts in addition to their totals.

In his last international appearance for Canada at the 1970 British Commonwealth Games, Morris won a bronze medal with a 1,035-pound total. He finished fourth at the 1967 Pan-Am Games in Winnipeg.

Morris has been a member of five Canadian weightlifting teams to international meets, and is currently holding his fourth Canadian heavyweight title.

The first Canadian to lift 400 pounds, Morris' clean and jerk of 411¼ in April's Ontario Senior championships in Belleville stands in the record books as the most any Canadian competitor has ever hoisted overhead.

Living in a converted schoolhouse near Frankford with wife Louise and one child, Morris said before departing for Cali trouble finding financial assistance might make this year's Pan-Am games his final competition.

"This is costing my family about $250-$300 — and that's a lot of bacon and beans." Morris, who received a $200 donation from Trenton's Rotary Club and $50 from Belleville's Duke of Edinburgh Army-Navy Veterans, also said his Trenton PUC employers indicated this would be the last time he would be permitted to take leave of absence without pay to attend competitions, which presumably would include the 1972 Olympics in Munich.

Morris' performance in Cali Sunday accounted for four of the 61 medals Canada won in the first 127 events of Pan-Am Game competition.

Civil Rights Not Violated

Policemen Freed in Deaths

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Four policemen have been acquitted of violating the civil rights of two unarmed Mexican citizens killed in a "mistake" shooting.

A U.S. District Court jury returned the verdict Sunday in the third day of deliberations.

Acquitted were Sgt. Marshall F. Gaines, 39, Jeffrey Fedrizzi, 28, and Hector Zepeda, 25, of the Los Angeles police force and William Kinsella, 28, of the San Leandro police.

The defence described the slayings of the two men, Guillermo Sanchez, 22, and Guillardo Sanchez, 21, as a "tragic, unfortunate mistake."

The two were killed 13 months ago when police, looking for a man described as an armed, dangerous murder suspect from San Leandro, near San Francisco, kicked down the door in he apartment where the two were staying.

In the ensuing confusion, the Sanchez cousins, who spoke only Spanish, were shot. The man sought was not there, and when he surrendered later elsewhere.

Manslaughter charges against the four officers were dismissed in Superior Court and a police department investigation cone he was cleared.

cluded the officers acted properly. But a federal grand jury indicted them last March on civil rights charges.

There was no immediate indication from prosecutor Donald Whyte whether the state will again seek to try the 29 year-old Newton on a charge of voluntary manslaughter in the shooting of officer John Frey Oct. 28, 1967.

Panther Leader Goes to Court Again

OAKLAND, Calif. (AP) — Black Panther co-founder Huey P. Newton, whose retrial on charges stemming from the killing of an Oakland policeman has ended with a hunt jury, goes before a new judge Tuesday to learn if he must stand trial a third time.

After six days of deliberation, a jury of 10 women and two men told superior Court Judge Harold Hove Sunday that it was deadlocked.

First jurors sent out a note asking they be taken for dinner, but another note followed saying: "One of the jurors no longer wishes to deliberate."

Some were not keen as the judge dismissed them and directed Newton to appear before the criminal calendar court for setting of a new trial date. He remains free on $50,000 bail.

Sadat Renews Action Pledge

CAIRO (Reuter) — President Anwar Sadat has renewed his pledge to the Egyptian people that there must be either a military or civil solution to the Middle East crisis by the end of the year.

"The battle is inevitable" unless a solution is reached, he told the 230-member central committee of the Arab Socialist Union, Egypt's sole political party, at a meeting Sunday.

Egypt would agree to a cease-fire of only six months while the Suez canal was cleared, he said.

Guerrillas Will Be Interned

Faulkner, who is also minister for home affairs, said he will issue internment orders only after careful scrutiny of information sufficient to convince him that the individual concerned was a threat to the presentation of peace and the maintenance of order.

Any person interned would have the right to have his case considered by an advisory committee which would make recommendations to the prime minister.

Jack Lynch, premier of neighboring Ireland, said in Dublin that "the introduction of internment is deplorable evidence of the political poverty of the policies pursued."

Army authorities in the Irish Republic were instructed to make camps available for dependents of people interned in the North.

Police said the foundry security guard died today after being hit by a nail bomb.

Bernadette Devlin, militant civil rights member of the British Parliament for North Ireland constituency, said the army had arrested at least 200 persons today.

She told reporters these included six members of the Independent Socialist party and about 30 other persons in Londonderry, and about 100 persons in Belfast.

There was fresh rioting in Belfast and Londonderry today as rumors spread that the authorities were introducing internment powers. Several arrests were made.

Two soldiers were hot and wounded in Londonderry at daybreak today as troops tried to disperse a crowd attacking a police station.

Rioting in Belfast and Londonderry erupted again after two nights of heavy fighting which left one soldier dead from sniper fire in the Roman Catholic Ardoyne district and two others wounded.

The troubles in Belfast continued after a few hours of uneasy peace during the night as troops scrached for arms in the Springfield, Falls Road and Ardoyne areas.

Youths took to the streets upturning and setting fire to cars and buses as women banged garbage can lids to warn of the advancing security forces.

Rubber bullets and tear gas were used in the fighting today. The army was attacked with nail bombs and stones.

The soldier killed Sunday night, a private in the Green Howards Regiment, was the 29th person killed this year in the communal violence in Northern Ireland and the 11th British soldier. A total of 50 persons have been slain since Northern Ireland's ancient Catholic-Protestant feud erupted into near warfare during the annual parade of the Protestant Apprentice Boys in Londonderry on Aug. 12, 1969.

The weekend violence in Belfast began with the slaying of the driver of a delivery truck, Harry Thornton, when his vehicle backfired outside an army post. Sentries apparently believed they were being attacked and fired a fusillade of shots which killed Thornton.

Snipers' bullets injured three soldiers slightly during rioting that followed Saturday night in protest against Thornton's death.

Mobs rampaged through Belfast again Sunday night, and "the city was in a hell of a state," an army spokesman said.

Shortly after dark a "brief but vicious" riot erupted in the Ardoyne Roman Catholic area, and it was during this clash between the army and stone-throwing demonstrators that a sniper killed the soldier. Snipers injured two other soldiers slightly.

Successful Living

Youth Led on Path of Self Indulgence

By DORIS CLARK

Dear Doris: Do we have to wait until a person does terrible damage to property or other persons before we can lay a charge?

There is a 18 - year - old youth of below average mentality, but very tall and big for his age, who is bullying our son. He drives the family car (which is an old wreck) at terrific speed along the road into our car when our son is driving, then switches directions at the last minute, hoping that our boy will go into the ditch. My boy is becoming a nervous wreck.

There is no use speaking to the boy's parents because he is allowed to do anything he wants. They just tell people not to let him worry them. Since they put the car in his hands he gets a wicked pleasure out of tormenting people. He does other terrible things too. — Tormented.

Dear Tormented: This is no ordinary bully, but a youth who has been led along a path of self-indulgence, and without the mentality to keep level-headed when power is put in his hands. He is not only a threat to you and others, but to himself.

Talk to the police. A warning might slow him down and wake his parents up. Considering the anguish he causes you and your boy, he could be charged with "watching and and besetting", "inciting to a disturbance of the peace", or some other form of disorderly conduct.

* * *

Dear Doris: My skin is always developing pimples. Everything I have tried makes my complexion dry and flaky. I am constantly in the public eye, at my job, and I can't have flaky skin either.

It even makes me very self-conscious. I am 24. — Still Trying.

Dear Still Trying: The usual treatment for the greasy type skin which fosters pimples is to apply a drying lotion - which will cause the skin to flake off if it is used too much. You have to experiment with it.

Scrupulous cleanliness - up to six bathing and scrubbing operations a day - are sometimes needed to avoid clogged pores. Then there is diet. Write in for my leaflet "Acne - What To Do About It", enclosing 10 cents and a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Confidential to Determined To Know: There are rare cases in which two people have been able to keep their love a secret from the persons they are married to. Usually, it ends up sadder than it began. Legal partners find out about it: or the affair creates intolerable guilt feelings.

For these reasons marital counsellors are more than grateful for the relaxed divorce laws, making it possible for desperately unhappy marriages to come to an end. To my mind there is scarcely anything more horrible than to be living day after day with a person whom one no longer loves, but dislikes.

Where there is uncertainty, I recommend professional consultation first, in the hope that the married partners can still find happiness together.

* * *

Leaflets mentioned by Doris are available to readers for 10 cents and a large seven - cent - stamped, self - addressed envelope. If you have not received a leaflet requested, it may be that you have neglected to include the necessary seven-cent stamp.

Liver Should Be Weekly Fare

By MARY MOORE

"Gram, are we having liver for dinner? Could you fix it up some way so I'll like it? You know I don't like liver very much."

Such a diplomatic request from Davey deserved careful consideration and got it.

Because we should all serve liver to our families once per week and because it is inexpensive (ranging in price between 59 cents and 69 cents per pound) I hope you will take heed and give this a try on your bunch. It is a pleasant surprise and Marianne called it

LUVERLY LIVER
(Serves 5 or 6)

1 cup raw long grain rice
2¼ cups boiling water
1 tsp. salt (first amount)
1 lb. beef liver
¼ cup margarine — divided
2 med. onions, peeled and chopped
2 tbsps. flour
1 tsp. salt
1 tbsp. sugar
½ tsp. oregano
One 15-oz. can tomatoes (or 2 cups fresh — peeled and chopped)

Cook the rice first for it takes 30 min.: In a heavy pot with a tight-fitting lid stir rice and salt into boiling water, bring to boil covered, turn off heat for 5 min. Turn on heat as low as possible for another 20 to 25 min.

Melt 2 tbsps. margarine in a med. frying pan and add onion and saute over med. heat until limp — not brown. Stir in flour, salt, sugar and oregano until blended, then stir in tomatoes until thick. Cover and simmer over low heat, stirring occasionally, about 10 min. Quickly saute the liver, which has been cut into serving - size pieces, in the remaining 2 tbsps. margarine. Do not overcook it.

When serving time arrives serve on a mound of rice on each plate a piece of liver and top it with a generous serving of the tomato-onion sauce.

I hope and think this method of smothering liver will add quite a few Canadian converts to the growing list of liver lovers.

Ann Landers

Note Upsets Her More Than Parking Ticket

ANN LANDERS

DEAR ANN LANDERS: At this moment I am fuming. My husband suggested that I get rid of my anger by writing to Ann Landers, so here I am.

A few hours ago I returned from a dental appointment to find under the windshield wiper of my car something that looked like a ticket for a traffic violation. I couldn't understand it since I had parked my car in a no-time-limit zone on a side street two blocks from the meters.

The ticket read as follows: "This is not an official parking ticket. Unfortunately I am only a private citizen and have no authority to tag improperly parked vehicles. I did want you to know, however, that anyone who is such a lousy driver that he can't park any better than you should have his license revoked. You have taken up enough room for two mule teams, an elephant and a high-school band. Had you done a decent job of parking I would have been able to park my car behind or ahead of you with no trouble. Now I must circle around indefinitely because you are a selfish pig.

I sign off wishing you an early transmission failure on the Edens Expressway at 4.30 p.m. Also, may the fleas of a thousand camels invade your armpits."

Isn't that the meanest thing you've ever heard of? I feel better for having written this letter. Thanks for helping reduce my blood pressure about 30 points. — OAK PARK.

* * *

DEAR OAK: Don't mention it. And please write again whenever you feel the need.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: My husband married me 22 years ago. I was 19. When I asked him why he wanted to marry me he said, "Because you need someone to watch over you."

I thought it was beautiful then, but now I am fed up with being treated like a small child or worse yet, an addle-brained fool. Fred handles all the money, pays all the bills and makes all the decisions. He will not let me get a driver's license although I have had a learner's permit for years.

Fred has had two serious heart attacks and one of these days I might be forced to do everything myself and I won't know how to do anything because he never let me make any decisions. I need your help, ann. — IBSEN'S NORA.

* * *

DEAR NORA: There are two kinds of husbands — those who get married because they want to watch over a woman, and those who get married because they want a woman to watch over them. There are lots of women who would gladly change places with you.

Reading between the lines, however, I suspect you are more helpless than you need to be. A wife doesn't have to produce her husband's signature to get a driver's license. Nor does she need his permission to learn from an insurance agent the things she should know in the event that she is suddenly widowed. If you would assume more responsibility your husband would not treat you like an idiot.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: There's a $10 bet riding on your answer. The manner in which you responded to the person who wrote about the propriety of wearing a Phi Beta Kappa Key created an argument. My husband says you are a Phi Beta Kappa or you would not have answered as you did. I say you are not. What's the verdict? — GAMBLING IN LAS VEGAS.

* * *

DEAR GAM: Your husband owes you $10. I attended Morningside College in Sioux City, Iowa which had no Chapter of Phi Beta Kappa. I am not at all sure I would have received the honor in any event.

Police Brutality Charged

Vancouver 'Marijuana Smoke' Protest Erupts Into Bloody Riot

VANCOUVER (CP)—A marijuana smoke-in protesting recent police pressure on the illicit drug trade erupted into a bloody riot Saturday night as police arrested 79 and chased hundreds more through the old Gastown section.

Aldermen and eyewitnesses charged police Sunday with using excessive force in clearing the streets of several hundred demonstrators and more than 1,000 bystanders. They called for outside investigation of the incident by the attorney-general's department.

Fifty-four persons were charged with offences ranging from obstruction of a police officer to assault and possession of a dangerous weapon. Bail ranged from $150 to $1,000, and eight persons were still in custody late Sunday on the dangerous weapon charges. Twenty-five of those arrested were released hours later without charge.

Thirty-eight of the adults charged were to appear in provincial court today. Three juveniles were to appear in juvenile court. Court appearances for 13 others were not set.

Ald. Ed Sweeney, who witnessed part of the riot after being telephoned at home, criticized the police for being too aggressive and said they were using special three-foot riot sticks "like you would use a stick to beat a dog."

He said both police and demonstrators appeared to provoke each other but said the police should have used more restraint and discrimination. Police Inspector Robert Abercrombie used a loud hailer and gave the crowd just two minutes to disperse, he said, then police "just charged into the group."

Photographers covering the disturbance were harassed by police.

Glen Baglo, a photographer for The Sun, said a mounted policeman snatched a camera from him. Only the leather strap on the camera was broken, and no film was taken or destroyed.

Dave Looy, who was filming for the Canadian Broadcasting Corp., said a sergeant told him to stop taking pictures and "get out of here." Mr. Looy said while filming earlier he had been hit several times by police from behind. Both photographers were hard hats identifying their respective organizations.

Police Chief John Fisk was ordered to make a full report on the disturbance by Mayor Tom Campbell.

Chief Fisk said a number of allegations had been made suggesting abuse of police authority and improper police tactics in quelling the demonstration.

Eyewitnesses were asked to give information to the four detectives and senior officer conducting the investigation.

Meanwhile, the Gastown Merchants Association, which had earlier given full support to the police in their efforts to clean the drug dealers out of the area, seemed to have swung 180 degrees in its attitude.

Larry Killam, president of Town Group Realty Ltd. and one of the largest property owners in Gastown, said Sunday at a meeting of the association that lawyers would be in his offices today to take affidavits from witnesses concerning the police action.

He and other merchants contributed $3,000 toward a bail fund for those arrested.

He said he saw police pull a girl in shorts by her hair and shoulders on her seat through broken glass toward a paddy wagon. Mr. Killam, who watched from his offices above Maple Tree Square where the riot began, said he saw a man taken to the door of a paddy wagon by four officers and beaten on the head with riot sticks.

Later Sunday, 18 eyewitnesses told an impromptu press conference in a Gastown coffee house about their experiences.

Stan Williams, who said he was a transient from St. Thomas, Ont., told the coffee house crowd of 125 that "generally there was just a mass beating-up on everybody for no reason."

A policeman "told three or four others to get me," he said. He said he suffered a broken arm either in the chase or the beating by police that followed. It was four or five hours before he got to see a nurse at the police station and not until 9 a.m. that he was taken to hospital for treatment.

Richard Roth of New York City said he was picked up by four police in the same area. "They took me into a back alley and beat me up . . . and I can't hear too well as a result. They also broke my glasses."

Moving Promotes Strife

GENEVA PARK, Ont. (CP) — Frequent household moving promotes civil strife because people do not stay in one place long enough to get to know their neighbors, a psychiatrist said Saturday.

Dr. Vivian Rakoff of the Clarke Institute of Psychology at Toronto said Canadian and American families move once every four or five years, on the average.

These moves mean families are regularly entering neighborhoods where, as strangers, they are distrusted and distrusting, he told the 49th annual Couchiching Conference.

Witnesses Say Innocent Clubbed

VANCOUVER (CP) — Eighteen eyewitnesses told an impromptu news conference Sunday city riot police clubbed innocent people, many of them late-night strollers and shoppers, in clearing the old Gastown area Saturday night of rioters.

The eighteen included young people, Gastown property owners and a housewife from suburban Burnaby. They said that several police on horseback charged the crowd at least four times, clubbing left and right.

Peter Fee, a Gastown merchant, said the demonstration was peaceful, with a gospel group singing and bongo drummers entertaining the crowd, until police charged.

Charles Traynor, who runs a record store nearby, said he saw police club to the ground a woman who was pushing a paraplegic in a wheelchair.

He said he had been watching the demonstration—organized by Yippies as "a marijuana smoke-in" to protest the 109 arrests of young people on drug charges—all evening, "worried that the demonstrators might cause some damage."

He said he soon changed his mind when he saw the mounted police charge the crowd.

"I was trying to figure out what happened when the infantry (police on foot) moved in. I saw two cops club a kid then a cop on horseback ride right over him."

He brought several people into his store, including two girls—"one of them had her teeth knocked out."

Mrs. Del Carrell of Burnaby, who came to Gastown for a night out with her husband, said they saw a big crowd. "It was very peaceful and wasn't exciting enough to stay around."

They walked to an antique store when the disturbance started.

"We were inside but we had a view of what was happening. Everyone was scurrying for cover."

Mr. Traynor was arrested after he began protesting to police that he wanted to see their badge numbers and arrest warrants before they came onto private property—the front steps of his store where people were huddled.

"They threw me down and were beating me around the head," he said.

He was arrested about 11 p.m. and later released without charge at around 3:30 a.m.

More Newspapers Urged to Engage In 'Muckraking'

GENEVA PARK, Ont. (CP) — Muckraking is an honorable term and a practice that newspapers should use more often, delegates to the annual conference of the Canadian Institute of Public Affairs were told Sunday.

Mark Harrison, executive editor of the Toronto Star, said muckraking "is an honorable term originating from the investigative reporting of social abuse."

Mr. Harrison, one of four persons in a panel discussion, said "more newspapers ought to get back" to such reporting.

He made his remarks in reply to an audience member who said the news media would rather intrude upon people's privacy and engage in muckraking than adhere to standards to benefit the public interest.

Knowlton Nash, director of information programming for the Canadian Broadcasting Corp., said "there is not enough invasion of privacy of people holding public trust, not enough investigative journalism along this line in Canada.

"It takes invasions of privacy to uncover scandals."

C. W. Davey, managing editor of The Globe and Mail, said: "By and large I think the news media is doing a lousy job of invading the privacy of public figures and public officials."

Max McMahon, a former editorial writer for The Star and now a public relations official with Bell Canada, said when a man runs for public office or rises to high levels in private business he loses some of his rights to privacy.

"When a person uses his private life to his advantage, then turns around and suggests when he doesn't feel it is to his advantage that, 'No, no, no, you mustn't invade my privacy,' sometimes now the press can get just a little bit tired being used in this way."

Mr. Harrison said if there were a press council in Canada a person could complain if he felt his privacy had been invaded.

Mr. Nash said radio and television outlets already are governed in this respect by the Canadian Radio - Television Commission.

One Wedge Shot Could Change Vollmer's Golfing Career

VANCOUVER (CP) — A 109-yard pressure shot with a sand wedge could change a career for Wayne Vollmer, a 26-year-old Vancouver professional who was ready to quit competitive golf before winning the $16,013 British Columbia open championship Sunday on the last hole.

Vollmer scored an eagle on the par-five 18th hole at the Marine Drive Golf and Country Club to clinch the title and $3,000 in prize money with a 14-hole total of 206, seven under par.

One stroke back were professionals Moe Norman of Gilford, Ont., leading money winner on the Canadian tour, Tony Nettles of San Diego, Calif., Bill Wakeham of Lake Cowichan, B.C., and amateur Scott Keenlyside of White Rock, B.C. The pros each won $1,433.

Vollmer, who moved from a second-place tie in the first round to a one-stroke lead after 36 holes, carded one birdie on the way to a 36 on the front nine and two birdies and a pair of eagles to come in at 33, two under par.

The par 71 was his worst round of the three-day tournament, the last of seven on the $79,000 Peter Jackson Canadian tour. He had a four-under 67 Friday and a 68 Saturday.

More than 4,000 people watched the final round in sunny, hot weather and hundreds mobbed Vollmer after his 100-yard second shot from the middle of the 18th fairway dropped into the cup to avert a five-way playoff.

He began the round by announcing at the first tee:

"Well, if I blow this one I'm through."

Three years ago he started out on the pro circuit with encouraging sponsors and lots of promise. Since then he has led in the final round of six tournaments, but has lost all of them.

"That was my first victory since the 1963 Alberta Open, but it should have been my eighth," he said in the clubhouse. "I've blown so many tournaments, so many leads in the last round.

Wakeham, who fired a 66 Friday and followed it up with a 70, tied Vollmer's 71 of Sunday.

Norman's second-place money of $1,433 increased his total on the Canadian tour to $6,708. He had rides of 33-34 for his second straight 67 after going to a two-over 73 in the first round.

Nettles, a former linebacker with Edmonton Eskimos of the Canadian Football League, fired the best round Sunday—a five-under 66. He was 70-71 in the early rounds.

Keenlyside, 18-year-old British Columbia junior champion, was 35-34—69. He had a 68 Friday and a 70 Saturday.

Ron Willey, picked up $800 for a 209 while Ray Bolte of Los Angeles, who shared the first-round lead with Wakeham, earned $800 for a 210.

U. S. Swimming Stars Soaked With Excuses

CALI, Colombia (CP-AP) — Blonde Canadian tomboy Leslie Cliff has drowned her U.S. opposition in the Pan-American Games, but the triple gold medallist thinks the Yanks have a poolful of excuses.

"They're sick . . . Their team morale isn't too good. . . . I passed myself for the Pan-Am Games and the Americans are tapering toward a peak for the U.S. Nationals in two weeks at Houston," she said Sunday night.

The 16-year-old Vancouver swimmer conquered Susie Atwood of Long Beach, Calif., to win gold medals in the 200- and 400-metre individual medleys and also swam the third leg—the butterfly—in winning a team gold in the 400 medley relay.

In her individual 400 medley victory Sunday night, Miss Cliff knocked off Miss Atwood and Alice Jones, the American world-record holder in the 100 butterfly.

"Susie was very sick after the 400 metres," Miss Cliff said. "And Alice Jones was so sick she barely managed fourth."

Canada's girl swimmers came to the Games two weeks before the competition began. "That was too early," said Leslie, "but the U.S. squad showed up 48 hours before its first event and now they're all getting the 'tourist' stomach trouble."

Miss Cliff and Jocelyn Lovell of Toronto, who won a cycling gold medal Sunday night, boosted the team total to 14 gold after nine days of competition.

With five days of the two-week Games remaining, the 1971 team already has surpassed its Winnipeg performance in 1967 by two gold.

While the second-place Cubans were winning only silver and bronze during the weekend, the third-place Canadian squad won four gold in their 18-medal spree Saturday and Sunday.

The Cubans, with 19 gold, have little going for them in swimming. And with 33 swimming and diving gold medals at stake, the Canadian squad already has logged six gold—all by the women—of 17 awarded in the pool.

Donna-Marie Gurr and Sylvia Dockerill of Vancouver won a pair of gold Saturday night in the 100 backstroke and 100 breaststroke respectively. Liz Carruthers of Edmonton won a diving gold last week in the springboard event.

Their golds, combined with the three Miss Cliff and the relay team won, gave the Canadian girls six of eight women's events. In Winnipeg, only Elaine Tanner of Vancouver was able to crack U.S. swimming stranglehold, winning two individual gold.

Tiny Deanne Deardruff, a 14-year-old Cincinati whiz, halted Miss Cliff's string of victories in Sunday night's 100 butterfly, taking only the second U.S. gold in the women's competition. Miss Cliff got the silver in a dead-close finish.

"The Americans wanted to win here," said the Canadian champion. "But they couldn't. For that reason I feel mighty good about winning three gold and a silver."

The "peaking" business she talked about is strictly tank jargon for being in top shape. Leslie feels she will be "peaked out" when she enters the U.S. Nationals at Houston, Tex., but that the Americans will be ready.

The Canadian team's medal total reached 81 with the completion of Sunday's 12 finals. Saturday the team won two gold, four silver and two bronze. Sunday, the total bag was slightly better—two gold, one silver and one bronze.

Angela Coughlan of Burlington, Ont., took silver in 200 free-style, losing to 14-year-old Kim Peyton. Both girls cracked the Games record, Miss Peyton clocking 2:09.6 and Miss Coughlan 2:10.6.

In swimming, Ralph Hutton of Campbell River, B.C., in the men's 400 freestyle, and John Hawes of Montreal in the 200 backstroke were bronze winners Sunday night.

Jorge Delgado of Ecuador won his country's first Pan-Am gold ever in the men's 200-metre butterfly, equalling the Games record of 2:06.4. Ron Jacks of Vancouver placed seventh.

Another silver for Canada was won in shooting as the centre-fire pistol team came up against a world-record performance by the U.S.

Frank Higginson, Hezekiah Clark, Jim McCauley and Robert Whitacre contributed to a score of 2,363, four better than the world record another U.S. team set in Cairo in 1962.

Jules Sobrian of Omemee, Ont., Jim Lee of North Burnaby, B.C., William Hare of Renfrew, Ont., and Charles Gibert of Qualibaki, B.C., scored 2,323 for the silver and Sobrian won the individual bronze in a shoot-off as Lee gold and silver went to Higginson and Clark.

Price Morris, 29-year-old lineman from Frankford, Ont., was four bronze medals in the super-heavyweight class, last of 11 weightlifting championships.

Price Morris, Canadian heavyweight weightlifter built like a tank, won four bronze medals in the superheavyweight class—taking third in all four classifications. His total lift of 1,062½ pounds was the best of his career. The 29-year-old lineman from Frankford, Ont., is five-foot-eight and weighs 242 pounds.

All-star Cast

New York Jets, quarterback Joe Namath, a slit-trouser revealing his taped left knee, walks to his car on arriving at New York's LaGuardia Airport early Sunday. He declined to use the wheelchair at left. Namath later underwent surgery at Lenox Hill Hospital to repair a torn ligament in the knee. Doctors said he would be in a cast for six weeks and might be lost to the team for most of the season. He sustained the injury in the exhibition game against the Detroit Lions at Tampa, Fla. Saturday night. Detroit won 28-24.

CALI, Colombia (CP) — Canada, which won a team gold and an individual silver in the three-day equestrian event at the Pan-American Games, rode into the jumping ring Sunday with a clean sweep in prospect for the individual jumping event.

It rode out again with a third-place bronze.

Plunkett Comes Too Late

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

About the only thing that marred Heisman Trophy winner Jim Plunkett's professional football debut with New England Patriots was that his team lost.

"I wish we could have won," the rookie quarterback said after the Patriots were defeated 17-10 by Minnesota Vikings in one of two exhibition games Sunday.

Plunkett entered the game with only 11 minutes left to play and completed two of three passes but couldn't spark the New England offence that was throttled by the marauding Viking front four.

The Patriots managed to break into Minnesota territory only once in the first half and scored their lone touchdown on Clarence Scott's 23-yard interception return of a Bob Lee pass. Short carries by Jim Lindsey and Dave Osborn had a field goal by Fred Cox accounted for Minnesota's scoring.

Quarterback John Brodie and receiver Gene Washington combined for two long scoring plays as San Francisco 49ers inaugurated play in their new Candlestick Park home with a 38-24 thrashing of Cleveland Browns.

In Saturday's contests, Chicago Bears forced Green Bay quarterback Frank Patrick into his own end zone for a safety and then held on to edge the Packers 2-0. Super Bowl champion Baltimore Colts failed to avenge a loss to Kansas City Chiefs early last season and wound up on the short end of a 10-7 score.

Quarterback Ken Anderson tossed two fourth-quarter touchdown passes to power Cincinnati Bengals to a 27-10 triumph over Miami Dolphins and Detroit Lions wiped out an early New York Jets lead and went on for a 28-24 victory in a game that sidelined Jets quarterback Joe Namath for most of the season with a knee injury.

Petty's Plymouth Takes Stock

ONA, W. Va. (AP) — Richard Petty, driving a 1970 Plymouth Road Runner, captured the NASCAR West Virginia 500 Sunday.

Petty, fighting much of the way against Bobby Allison, averaged 73.895 miles per hour over International Raceway Park's asphalt oval.

A total of 33 cars started the race, but only 14 were running at the end.

Allison won the pole position with his 1970 Mustang with a speed of 84.128 mph, but Petty over took him by the end of 29 laps. They exchanged the lead 13 times

Trevino Helped

AKRON, Ohio (AP) — A tip from Lee Trevino six weeks ago was worth nearly $50,000 and a first tournament triumph for American Golf Classic champion Jerry Heard.

"Trevino taught me how to make the ball fade at the United States open. I used to play a hook," said the 24-year-old Visalia, Calif., professional who won the $30,000 Classic first prize Sunday with a 72-hole total of five-under-par 275.

Heard played the first 23 tests of the 1971 tour. He won a little over $50,000.

Kingston first baseman Jim Geddes reaches for the ball as Brian Cousins of the Belleville Kinsmen Juniors makes a safe retreat on a pick-off attempt at first base last night. Cousins later starred in a key double play as the Kinsmen blanked Kingston 5-0 to win the Eastern Ontario Baseball Association playoff series. The Belleville Juniors can now continue down the OBA play-down path.

Kinsmen's Title Win Hurt More Than Losers

Kingston Juniors may not have known it, but Sunday's shutout win hurt Garnie Adams almost as much as it did them.

Despite being troubled by a sore arm, Adams was in command all the way to lead the Belleville Kinsmen to a 5-0 win, which gave them the Eastern Ontario Baseball Association junior championship.

"It bothered me some all right," admitted Adams. "Last week I pitched a South Hastings league game one night and then a game against Kingston the next and it wasn't too good for my arm. I was throwing a lot of off-speed pitches tonight because of that."

He explained that his strategy for the game was, "to keep the ball low and throw a lot of drops and sliders. In this league you can't rely on just a fast ball."

The strategy worked to perfection Sunday as the slender righthander scattered seven hits over the nine - inning route and faced only one major scoring threat.

Kingston starter Phil Tracey on the other hand ran into trouble in the first inning as Belleville plated three runs. Singles by Steve Moore, Brian Cousins and Steve Bedard accounted for one run before first baseman Barry Culkin lofted a double to right field that chased home two more tallies.

Tracey was relieved in the second inning after giving up all five Kinsmen tallies. Left-hander Rick Love worked the remainder of the contest limiting the winners to a pair of hits. Between them, the visiting hurlers walked four batters and set the same number down on strikes.

Adams, who also worked the opening 7-4 victory by Belleville, came up with a seven-hitter striking out eight men and walking a pair. The second game of the series, won 8-3 by Kingston, had been under protest because of their alleged use of an ineligible player. The protest was withdrawn however, after the Kingston men won last night's game to give them, the series.

Infield play was a key factor in the game with the Bellevile unit providing strong defensive support. Shortstop Rick Meagher was a standout, while hot corner custodian Brian Cousins made the game's big play turning in an eighth - inning double play which snuffed out a Kingston rally.

Culkin had a double and single to pace the winners, while Moore added a pair of singles. The other hits went to Cousins, Bedard, Adams and Scott McLaren.

Jim Scullion had a pair of singles for Kingston with Tom Goodall and Mike Lynch cracking doubles.

The series win by Belleville means that they will now represent eastern Ontario in the OBA playdowns which get under way near the end of August. A series with Oshawa for the junior championship of the Lakeshore Intermediate League will give the Kinsmen a playdowns tuneup.

Tykes Tangle, Anything Goes

Belleville's Towers Food City Tykes found out that when playoff time arrives nothing follows any set pattern and anything goes!

Towers opened their best-of-three Eastern Ontario Baseball Association playoff series with Peterborough over the weekend playing a home-and-home series on Saturday and Sunday. The results were unpredictable as Belleville opened the series with a 31-5 crushing of Peterborough Saturday but then came up on the short end of a 12-9 score Sunday.

Ken Revoy hurled the win for Belleville, picking up 13 strikeouts. He also punched a triple, double and single to help his cause. Bruce Bell added a homer and single while Dale McTaggart connected for two doubles and a single.

Revoy was on the mound again Sunday in Belleville's 12-9 loss. He struck out six and walked seven. Greg McEachern smashed a home run for Belleville with Mark Crawford adding two singles.

Gord Lewis fired the win for Peterborough fanning ten and walking eight. Mike Hughes created both home runs to pace the winners at the plate.

Builders Square Set with Cementmen

It's boiled down to a best-of-one series between Rollin's Construction and Point Anne in their Ontario Amateur Softball Association Intermediate 'A' playdowns.

Rollin's evened the best of three series at one game apiece Saturday night at the Alemite with a 3-0 blanking of the Pointers. The current city Commercial League leaders' win snatched a 3-0 victory recorded by the Cementmen a week ago and forces the deciding game this Friday.

Paul Goodfellow shared the limelight with Rollins' pitcher Wayne McConnell. The lanky short-stop-first-baseman scored the winning run and drove in the insurance run as Rollins tallied once in each of the fourth, sixth and eighth innings.

Goodfellow opened the hitting in the fourth with a double and then raced home on Jerry Hill's clutch single. "Goodie" came through with a single in the eighth to chase home Steve Ling for Rollins' final run.

McConnell fired four - hit ball for Rollins and picked up seven strikeouts in earning the shutout. Wayne McTaggart had two singles with Wes May, Cliff Scott and Hill adding singles.

Jamie Hunter toed the rubber for the Pointers giving up eight hits and fanning three.

The third and deciding game begins at 8 p.m. Friday night at the Alemite, with the winner advancing against either Kingston or Brewer's Mills.

Industrial Winners Go Down A Notch

It was the more you win the lower you go in the week-end's Industrial League Softball scene as both Mead Johnson and the CN Yardmen chose a lower position in the final league standings despite victories in tie - breaking play-off games.

Mead Johnson stopped the Firemen 4-2 and chose fourth spot rather than third which subsequently went to the Firefighters, and the Yardmen dropped The Intelligencer 6-4 hen relegated themselves to sixth instead of fifth, to avoid playing pennant - winning Union Carbide in the one - five, first - fifth, second - sixth, third - seventh, and fourth - eighth play-off system that begins tonight.

The Firemen were forced into third place by virtue of a weekend win and a loss. The Firefighters stopped AOCO 15-6 Saturday but a 4-2 loss to Mead Johnson Sunday allowed Mead's to choose fourth rather than third for final positioning.

Sonny Holloway hurled the win for Mead's giving up nine hits and striking out seven. Gary Genereaux had two singles and Blaine Young a double for the winners of the tie-breaking contest.

Brian Reid started for the Firemen giving up all four runs on six hits and five walks. Perry Sode pitched shutout ball the remaining two innings. Lloyd smashed a homer and double to pace the Smokies at the plate.

Another tie - breaking weekend game saw the CN Yardmen stop The Intelligencer 6-4. The Yardmen chose sixth place and moved The Intell up to fifth to meet the pennant - winning Union Carbide entry.

Greg Bellis fired the win allowing six hits and striking out three. McKenna had a double and single and Bell two singles to lead the Trainmen.

John Edwards was tagged with the loss for The Intell giving up seven hits. He fanned seven and walked four. Ron Culloden smashed a triple and Brooks and Hickleston each had a double for the losers.

The two of three quarter-finals involving the top eight teams commence tonight with Union Carbide playing The Intelligencer in the A series and Brooke Bond battling the Yardmen in the B series. Mead Johnson and UIC begin their series Tuesday and the Firemen - Morch Series not starting until Thursday. Semi-final action will begin next week.

No Time for Rosewall To Rest on His Wallet

BROOKLINE, Mass. (Reuter) — Ken Rosewall of Australia won the United States pro tennis championships Sunday, overwhelming Cliff Drysdale of South Africa, 6-4, 6-3, 6-0. Rosewall's straight set triumph in one hour and 44 minutes boosted his 1971 earnings to $61,171. Sunday's victory was worth $10,000. Drysdale's purse was $5,000.

Rosewall will not have much time to rest on his wallet, which is $10,000 thicker when he arrives here for the opening round today of the Canadian open tennis championship.

Forty-eight men chase the $10,000 prize for the singles' championship. The loser gets $5,000.

The $4,000 women's crown at the open will be highlighted by the North American appearance this year by Wimbledon queen Yvonne Goolagong of Australia.

Defending champion Margaret Court of Australia was forced to withdraw because of pregnancy but Miss Goolagong will have plenty of competition in Rosemary Casals of the U.S. and Virginia Wade of England ranked third and fourth in the world respectively.

Burwash Wins

WINNIPEG (CP) — Top-seeded Peter Burwash of Toronto stroked his way to victory in the men's singles and doubles events Sunday at the Canadian national tennis championships.

Burwash, a 25-year-old touring professional, defeated unseeded Jim Boyce of Toronto, a former junior star who was the surprise of the six-day tournament, 6-1, 6-4 to take the men's singles title.

Lolich Proving to Be Darkhorse

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Vida Blue, Oakland Athletics' pitching whiz, has been getting all the attention this season but the American League's dark horse is Detroit Tigers' Mickey Lolich.

The Detroit left-hander is the hardest worker in the League with 270 innings hurled and has compiled 226 strikeouts, a 2.93 earned run average and an 18-8 won-lost record, including Sunday's 8-3 victory over Boston Red Sox.

In the other American League games, Kansas City Royals clouted Milwaukee Brewers 7-2; Cleveland Indians trimmed Washington Senators 6-2; Minnesota Twins nipped California Angels 3-1 Chicago White Sox spilled Oakland 9-7 in the first game of a doubleheader and beat the Athletics in the night-cap 3-1.

But Lolich has had little chance to scene-steal from Blue, who nailed down No. 20 Saturday with a 1-0 conquest of Chicago White Sox.

MICKEY LOLICH

Lolich's victory over Boston kept the Red Sox from gaining ground on pace setting Baltimore in the East Division. The Orioles were beaten 2-1 by New York Yankees Sunday.

Five times this year, Lolich has lost leads in the last frame and also lost the victories.

Lolich, who was nicked for a first-inning run on Carl Yastrzemski's sacrifice fly, ran into familiar ninth-inning trouble when he gave up three hits, including Phil Gagliano's run scoring double.

But Lolich had more than enough working margin to wriggle out this time and moved closer to the prized 20-victory plateau, something consistently denied him in eight previous major league seasons.

Felipe Alou knocked in the winning run with a pinch-hit single in the ninth inning as New York rocked Baltimore for the third time in their four-game series.

The game winning hit snapped a 1-1 tie that existed from the first inning.

Dick Drago spaced nine hits and contributed a key, two-run double to pace Kansas City over Milwaukee. Drago broke the game open with his hit after Paul Schaal's double and a walk to Ed Kirkpatrick in the fourth inning.

Niekro Has New Approach

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Phil Niekro, whose elusive knuckleball has been baffling National League batters for the last few years, added the tantalizing "goo-goo" pitch to his repertoire this season.

Sunday, he used both to their full effectiveness, hurling Atlanta Braves to a 5-0 victory over New York Mets, the team that had bombarded Atlanta pitching for 39 runs and 21 hits Saturday night.

Elsewhere in the National League, San Francisco and Chicago split a doubleheader, the Giants winning the opener 4-2 and the Cubs taking the night-cap 8-0; Philadelphia and Pittsburgh also divided a twinbill, the Phils capturing the first game 3-2 and belting the second 4-0; Cincinnati Reds downed Montreal Expos 6-3; Los Angeles Dodgers defeated St. Louis Cardinals 4-2, add San Diego Padres edged Houston Astros 3-2.

Niekro's delivery was given its name by his team-mate, pitcher Bob Priddy. It floats toward the plate, then breaks away from right-handed batters and in to left-handed swingers.

"It's hard to get it over the plate, but that isn't the purpose," Niekro said. "I figure if it comes anywhere near the plate, the batter is going to swing at it, especially if he already has two strikes on him."

The veteran right-hander allowed only four hits—all singles, struck out seven, including Tommie Agee four times, and walked three in raising his record to 12-8.

The only Met to solve his mystifying "goo-goo" pitch was Duffy Dyer, who tapped a single into left centerfield in the third inning.

The Braves nicked Charlie Williams for a run in the first inning on Felix Millan's triple and Ralph Garr's sacrifice fly, and added four runs in the second, with Millan and Hank Aaron each rapping two-run singles. Aaron now has hit safely in 16 consecutive games.

Chicago's Billy Williams smashed three two-run homers, including two in the nightcap, and Glenn Beckert had seven hits in nine at-bats raising his batting average to a league-leading .337 in the Cubs' split with the Giants.

Beckert's productive day put him a fraction of a percentage point ahead of St. Louis' Joe Torre in the batting race. Torre had 1-for-4 against Los Angeles and dropped to .336.

Torre's hit was only one of three the Cards collected against Don Sutton and Jim Brewer, who got the final out. The Dodger's Jim Lefebvre broke a 1-1 tie with a three-run homer in the eighth off Jerry Reuss.

Willie Montanez' two-run homer, his 24th, helped Philadelphia edge Pittsburgh in their first game. Woodie Fryman blanked the Pirates on four hits until four consecutive singles with two out in the ninth accounted for two runs.

In the second game, Bob Johnson scattered eight hits for his first National League shutout and Gene Alley belted a solo homer for the Pirates.

Cincinnati's Lee May broke a 3-3 tie with his second homer of the game and 32nd of the season, a three-run shot in the ninth off Montreal's John Strohmayer. It followed singles by Pete Rose and pinch hitter Jimmy Stewart.

Paige Enters Hall Through Front Door

COOPERSTOWN, N.Y. (AP) — Leroy Satchel Paige was inducted today into baseball's Hall of Fame—through the front door.

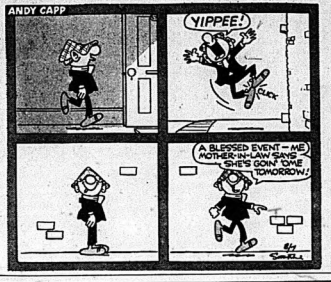
The end of a long campaign for Paige's inclusion among the immortals of the sport—black or white—came when the hesitation-pitch marvel of the Negro Baseball Leagues was formally inducted with seven others on the porch of the National Baseball Library.

Also inducted were:

Dave Bancroft, a star shortstop with the Philadelphia Phillies and New York Giants some 50 years ago; Jake Beckley, a pre1900 starter who played a record 2,368 games as a first baseman for Pittsburgh Pirates, Cincinnati Reds and St. Louis Cardinals; Charles Chick Hafey, St. Louis and Cincinnati outfielder from the mid-1920s to mid-1930s; Harry Hooper, an outfielder who starred with Boston Red Sox from 1909 to 1920; Joe Kelley, a pre-1900 outfielder with Baltimore Orioles who hit as high as .301; Richard (Rube) Marquard, who posted 201 victories during his career, including 19 in succession, while pitching for the Giants in 1912; George Weiss, longtime executive with New York Yankees, whose career spanned 19 pennant-winners.

Senators Caught Short

WASHINGTON (AP) — The capital is in danger of losing Washington Senators' franchise to Dallas because owner Bob Short has caught the other American League owners in a power play, The Post reported Sunday.



Making public additional details of the recent American League owners' meeting in Chicago last week, The Post quotes one owner as saying: "Bob Short is making it hard for us to deny him permission to move the team. He has caught us in a power play."

In Sunday's story, Short is said to have told the owners he has no prospect of paying the $3.5 million that will be due on his baseball loans Oct. 31. The league's three alternatives were outlined as follows:

—Permit Short to go into bankruptcy.

—Find him a buyer for the Senators at his price.

—Grant him permission to move the franchise.

Disaster-prone Areas

U Thant, United Nations secretary-general, has recommended steps to provide quicker and better aid to areas of the world that tend to suffer from volcanic eruptions, earthquakes, windstorms, tidal waves and floods. This map, based on information provided by the International Red Cross, shows disaster-prone areas. Particularly hard hit area segments of Central America and Asia are where disaster regions overlap. (CP Newsmap)

Territory in Dispute

South-West Africa, now known as Namibia, a region with 749,000 inhabitants, including 90,000 whites is administered by South Africa under a mandate from the old League of Nations. The United Nations, objecting to South Africa's racial segregation policies has long sought to take over the territory but continues to meet resistance from Pretoria. South Africa recently proposed to the International Court of Justice in the Hague that a plebiscite be held to determine whether residents want to continue to be administered by Pretoria. Feeling May Not Be Reciprocated But..

Trudeau Is Enchanted with Maritimes

OTTAWA (CP) — Like thousands of Upper-Canadian tourists before him, Prime Minister Trudeau flew home from Atlantic Canada early today with a sense of enchantment about the area and its people.

Only the general election expected next year will tell for sure whether the feeling is real. In the 1968 federal election, the region voted largely against him and the Liberal party.

Throughout the 10-day tour touching 16 communities in Nova Scotia, Newfoundland and Prince Edward Island, the prime minister referred several times in brief speeches to the attractiveness of the quiet, gentle way of life and fine scenery.

That romantic attitude toward the region did little to smooth over some of the difficulties of slow economic development and, in some places, labor-management disputes.

Last Friday, following Mr. Trudeau into Newfoundland, New Democratic Party leader David Lewis criticized the prime minister on the ground that he dallied on the tour instead of dealing with real problems.

The response from the prime minister's staff is that charge was that the tour was never intended to be primarily political, either in answering problems or in electioneering.

The aim, aides said, was to make a relaxed excursion on which the prime minister could meet the people, they could see him and his presence would help make the rest of Canada more aware of life in the Atlantic region.

But that approach led to a description of the tour by Mr. Lewis as a sort of royal progress through the domain, more suited to a head of state than a leader of government.

The manner of the touring, however, was a far cry in appearance and organization from a visit by a monarch.

Mr. and Mrs. Trudeau on all occasions except the final evening were dressed casually — he usually in jeans, shirt and sneakers. Margaret in slacks or midi-length peasant outfits and sandals.

The exception was Sunday night at a variety show in the theatre of Charlottetown's Confederation centre, where the prime minister wore a sports jacket and Margaret was dressed in a lime-green gown and sash.

Local politicians, who arranged the main outlines of his stops in each province, seemed pleased with the results of his appearances.

The pressure of crowds in some places was typical of true Trudeaumania but the reaction of spectators otherwise was reserved—perhaps in keeping with the character of the region.

Although the chatty speeches delivered by the prime minister seldom touched on partisan matters, local party officials seemed to take that an appearance by the prime minister by itself was building up voting capital for the future.

Margaret, making her first substantial tour in Canada since their marriage last March, was given a taste of political expeditions. She was uncomfortable in crowds, but nevertheless was exposed to the curious at close quarters, particularly in western Newfoundland Friday.

Mixing pleasure with business, the Trudeaus travelled most of the way on the coast guard ship Sir William Alexander and made frequent private side trips to see personal friends.

Between leaving Newfoundland Friday evening and arriving in Charlottetown Saturday night, they made a private visit to the Magdalen Islands in the Gulf of St. Lawrence, where Mr. Trudeau did some skin diving.

The prime minister took more time out for fun Sunday in Prince Edward Island. He and Premier Alex Campbell went swimming and water-skiing off the north shore while 2,200 Islanders waited with growing impatience at a Government House garden party and hundreds of the uninvited wilted outside the grounds in hot weather.

They also were late for the theatre performance, delaying the curtain and the radical audience of about 1,200 for more than 20 minutes.

Mr. Trudeau had disarmed criticism at the garden party earlier by conceding that he and Mr. Campbell had been "playing hockey"; but blamed it on the attractions of summer sports in Prince Edward Island.

India and Russia Sign Treaty Of Friendship and Co-operation

NEW DELHI (AP) — India and the Soviet Union signed a 25-year treaty of "peace, friendship and co-operation" today which in effect put the Russians firmly on the side of the Indians in their potentially explosive dispute with Pakistan.

Foreign Minister Swaran Singh said the treaty should provide a "stabilizing factor in favor of peace" in Asia.

"It is also a treaty of non aggression," he told cheering members of Parliament when he informed them of the pact signed two hours earlier by him and Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei A. Gromyko.

The 12-article treaty does not commit either country to give military aid automatically to the other in the event of an attack by a third nation. Instead, the key ninth article says:

"Each high contracting party undertakes to abstain from providing any assistance to any third party that engages in armed conflict with the other party."

"In the event of either party being subjected to an attack or a threat thereof, the high contracting parties shall immediately enter into mutual consultations in order to remove such threat and to take appropriate effective measures to ensure peace and the security of their countries."

With tensions between India and Pakistan mounting steadily over the Pakistani army's repression of the independence movement in East Pakistan and the flight of seven million East Pakistani refugees to India, the treaty could set the stage for a new confrontation in which Russia would side with India and Communist China with Pakistan.

The new Soviet-Indian treaty apparently was worked out in highly-secret negotiations concluded before Gromyko's arrival Sunday on what had appeared to be a hastily-arranged visit occasioned by the threat of war between India and Pakistan.

In the eighth article of the 1,500-word pact, both countries undertake not to "enter into or participate in any military alliance directed against the other party." They also agree "to abstain from any aggression against the other party and to prevent the use of its territory for the commission of any act which might inflict military damage on the other."

The treaty will come into force within one month, "subject to ratification," presumably by the parliamentary organizations of each country.

In presenting the treaty to Parliament, Singh sought to remove any impression that it altered India's traditional policy of non-alignment.

Airline Pilots Complaining Fighter Planes Buzz Them

LONDON (AP) — British airline pilots charge that West German and French fighter planes have been buzzing them in apparent practice attacks, threatening a repeat of the recent Japanese collision disaster.

"We are extremely concerned at the number of near-misses involving military aircraft over Europe," the British Airline Pilots Association said in a statement to The Sunday Express.

The West German and French governments had no immediate comment.

The pilots said the military flyers buzzed them repeatedly and apparently locked them in their gunsights before veering off. A spokesman said there were eight near misses over West Germany last year.

"It is well known that civil aircraft flying at 30,000 feet or more make an ideal target for young fighter pilots under training," said a spokesman for the British pilots association. He said it was "commonplace" for military planes to approach "close enough for the pilot to register a 'kill' and at the same time present the sort of hazard that may have caused the Japanese disaster."

He referred to the death of 162 persons in the collision of a Japanese airliner and a Japanese fighter July 30. It was the worst disaster in aviation history.

A senior pilot for Sabena, the Belgian airline, said near misses by military planes occur "all the time" and he has been buzzed by French and Belgian fighters. He said a disaster similar to the Japanese crash could "easily happen" over Europe.

A spokesman for Trans World Airlines said his pilots have made "various near-miss reports over the years," but never anything like the "target practice" described by the British pilots.

Shortage Over

Teachers Face Tougher Times

OTTAWA (CP) — Would-be teachers will have a tougher time finding jobs in an overflow job market in future, a manpower study shows.

Alan W. Gowan, a department analyst, says in a recently published report that the persisting shortage of elementary and secondary school teachers of the last 10 years has probably ended.

Instead the country is faced with a growing oversupply which should continue for the balance of the 1970s.

The main reason for the drop in job opportunities has been the declining birth rate over the past 15 years which has increasingly curtailed the growth of school enrolment. At the same time, the number of teachers has been rapidly increasing.

The surplus of teachers applies in most parts of the country—even in the North. However, there is a need for specialists in French, art, music, social education and physical education.

The trend in Canadian education is toward specialization. It is most evident among elementary schools, where most generalists now are employed.

The number of elementary school teachers, who represent about two thirds of all teachers, may actually begin to decline this fall, while the growth of teachers in secondary schools should not end for at least another five years.

The tighter job market has increased the trend toward higher qualifications for teachers.

A university degree for entry to elementary school is becoming standard practice.

Elementary and secondary school teachers constitute the largest profession in Canada, numbering about 270,000 in 1971.

In the school year beginning this September, the growth in the number of teachers is expected to drop to 2 per cent, from 3.5 and 4.7 per cent in the past two years.

TV Sets Dumped

OTTAWA (CP) — Imports of television sets from Japan and Taiwan have cut deeply into Canadian producers markets, damaging prices and profits and endangering employment, Canadian TV manufacturers said Sunday.

Their views were contained in a brief submitted to the federal anti-dumping tribunal by the Electronic Industries Association of Canada. It asked the tribunal for a ruling that dumping of foreign sets on the Canadian market has in fact caused damage to the Canadian industry.

Vance in Winning Run At Quinte Raceway

It Al Vance is stuck in a rut, the Belleville harness driver couldn't find a better one to be stuck in. For the second week in a row Vance rescued a trio of winners across the line in the Quinte Raceway's Saturday night card. He has now collected six firsts, a third and a fourth in his last two Belleville outings.

Larry Zebedee guided Mindale to the fastest mile of the night as the six-year old chestnut horse paced a 2:12.2 effort in the seventh heat.

Zebedee's efforts weren't so lucky Saturday. Marvin Lockhart learned that his five-year old gelding Andy Dale had contracted Swamp Fever. The bay horse had a string of three wins in seven starts on the Belleville track this season.

Claradale Jordee, a four-year old bay gelding owned by Arli McDonald of Belleville fell from a trailer after the vehicle had a blowout and will have to be destroyed. The horse had finished fifth in the first race of the Saturday night card.

A total of 1,171 racing fans were in attendance, wagering a total of $36,126 at the parimutuel windows.

STOP KILLING YOURSELF

By Peter J. Steincrohn, M.D., F.A.C.P.
Author of "The Doctor Looks At Life"

Perfectionists Harm Themselves

I am sorry for perfectionists. Somehow they look at the world they live in with astigmatic eyes. They don't seem to realise that it's too much to expect perfection in the next fellow (even if the "fellow" happens to be your wife).

No. 1. Here's a businessman who worked 16 to 18 hours a day simply because he could not comfortably delegate any of his work to other officers in the company. He demanded perfection in others he couldn't find in himself.

Result? After many years of suffering this daily stress, he developed hypertension and diabetes — and an overactive thyroid to boot. Not until he "gave in" a lot, and realized that seekers of perfection in others are the target for every kind of devastating illness did he improve. He says, "What a fool I was." (You notice, the past tense.)

No. 2. Here is a secretary who has become, as she says, "a nervous wreck." Whenever she takes shorthand or does her typing she is mortally afraid she will make a mistake. When she does — and these are rare occurrences — her boss gets red-faced, seems as if he's going into a convulsion of anger.

The only way I could help her was to advise that she find other employment. Otherwise, her perfectionist boss would surely drive her out of her mind.

No. 3. And here is a wife whose husband insists that she have dinner on the table by the time he opens the front door. And Lord help her if his three minute eggs turn out to be 3½. X-rays showed that she already had an ulcer of the duodenum.

I had him in my office during his complete physical checkup. I said, "You're not only an ulcer-getter, you're an ulcer - giver. You've given one to your wife as well as to yourself. Why don't you face reality? Nobody and nothing in this world is perfect. Forget about expecting perfection in everything and in everybody you meet.

He came to his senses, declared a truce in his search for perfection — and both ulcers healed.

I suppose another way of saying "don't be a perfectionist" is: learn to forgive. This philosophy often helps more than medicines.

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: My 8-year-old son has St. Vitus dance. He drops things, is clumsy, can't seem to sit still and is very nervous. Will this go away? Is it serious? Does it mean that he has suffered brain damage? — Mrs. H.

COMMENT: As your doctor will tell you most cases of St. Vitus Dance are part of some patients with rheumatic fever infection. Your child can't help being clumsy and dropping things. Chances are he also has the habit of making grimaces and "funny faces." It's all a part of the condition.

Usually we expect most of the symptoms to disappear — or at least be improved within six to 12 months. (I'm assuming that the doctor has ruled out any specific brain damage due to some other cause.)

Meanwhile, give him all the assurance you can. Don't berate him for being clumsy. Your doctor will probably check on his heart to be sure there are no rheumatic fever complications; and will prescribe tranquilizers and any other medicines that are indicated.

For Mr. Y.: Don't believe everything you hear. It's not only highly intelligent people who get the gout.

Truck Upsets, Three Drown

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Three persons drowned Sunday when their pickup truck left a Manitoba road and overturned in a ditch containing about four feet of water were among at least 72 persons who died in accidents across Canada this weekend.

A survey by The Canadian Press from 6 p.m., local times, to midnight Sunday showed 49 persons died in road accidents, 18 drowned, four died in fires and one perished in a miscellaneous mishap.

Killed in the accident at The Pas, about 300 miles northwest of Winnipeg, were the driver of the truck and two passengers. Three others in the vehicle were taken to hospital with minor injuries.

The 49 traffic deaths on the weekend and 45 during the week brought the number of persons killed on Canadian roads since Jan. 1 to at least 1,950.

Quebec recorded the highest death toll of the weekend with 17 accidental deaths—13 on the roads and three by drowning.

Six persons with killed on Ontario's roads while four others drowned. A two-year-old girl died from burns received in a fire at her parent's home and a man was killed in a waterskiing accident.

Manitoba reported three road deaths and seven persons drowned. In Saskatchewan one person drowned and seven others died in road accidents. In Alberta five persons died in traffic accidents.

British Columbia had four road deaths, a drowning and one perished in a fire.

Nova Scotia recorded three deaths in traffic and another two in fire. There were three roads deaths and a drowning in New Brunswick. Newfoundland reported a single drowning.

Prince Edward Island remained fatality free.

The survey does not include industrial deaths, known suicides or slayings.

One Can Face Damages For Negligent Actions

It is axiomatic to say that people can be held legally responsible for the consequences of their negligent acts. Depending on the circumstances, the responsibility can be civil, criminal or both.

Civil liability is a question to be determined between the wrong-doer, such as a negligent driver, and the person injured by the wrong-doing. The wrong - doer's responsibility would involve the payment of damages to the injured party.

Criminal responsibility involves a punishment, such as a fine and-or imprisonment, as the result of a charge laid by police. For example, in the case of a car accident, the responsible driver can face civil liability to the injured party and criminal or quasi-criminal liability for a driving offence. These are separate and distinct matters.

This column will concentrate on the civil aspect of liability. It may be said in general terms that a person is civilly responsible for the consequences of a negligent act done by him if: 1) the act was in fact negligent; 2) the negligence, rather than some other factor, was the cause of what happened; 3) the injuries or other consequences complained of were a result of what happened and were closely enough connected in it for the doer of the act to be held responsible for them.

Negligence is legally defined as a breach of a duty to care, a breach of a duty to act in a way that a reasonable person would act in any given circumstances.

For instance, the driver of a car owes a duty to other people on and near the road to drive carefully. The owner of a building to which the public has access — such as a department store — owes a duty to his customers to keep the premises in good repair so that customers will not suffer any physical injury from being there.

An illustrate point 2 above, let us take an example of a pedestrian crossing the street with the green light in his favor. He is hit by a car that didn't stop for the red light because the driver was looking at a girl on the sidewalk instead of watching where he was going.

The driver's negligence is the cause of the accident in this case and he is responsible for the pedestrian's injuries.

On the other hand, if the pedestrian deliberately decided to cross in front of the car and take his chances even though he knew the driver was not watching the road, the court would probably hold that it was the pedestrian's negligence, not the driver's, that caused the accident and the injuries.

The driver then would not be liable, even though negligent, because his lack of care was not the cause of the accident. Also, depending on the circumstances, negligence might be apportioned between both parties.

On point 3 above, let us say the same accident was witnessed by someone through a window inside a building, and the witness died of a heart attack brought on by the shock. Even if the driver was responsible for the accident, he would probably not be held responsible for the death of the witness.

The death would probably be considered a consequence too remote for which to hold the driver responsible. It could also be argued that the witness did not fall within the class of people to whom the driver owed a duty to care.

That's the law!

Sydney J. Harris Says

Broadway Is Generic Name

Noticing the playbills I brought back from a theatre-going trip to New York this spring, one of my children remarked that none of the theatres I attended was located on "Broadway".

I explained that "Broadway" was just a generic name for the New York theatre, and that actually 95 per cent of the theatres are on side streets in the 40's.

In the same way, even during the heyday of the movies there were only one or two studios in "Hollywood". The rest were in other suburbs of Los Angeles, but the whole industry was referred to as "Hollywood".

Likewise, we still speak of "Madison Avenue" as the locus of the advertising business, when three-fourths of the biggest agencies are on Lexington or Third Avenue or other streets than Madison.

There is a tremendous psychological need to codify and categorize and label all things, even when the label doesn't correspond to reality. This begins as a handy device, but it often ends in our taking the label for the reality — which is one of the great semantic sins in human communication.

We can see the danger clearly in such popular medical terms as "heart attack" or "cancer" — which are often frightening labels of little clinical value.

What the public loosely calls a "heart attack" can be any one of a half-dozen different ailments, in some of which the heart may be only casually involved. And "cancer" is a generic name for a variety of malignant growths, ranging from the easily treatable to the incurable. But most of us respond to the word rather than to the medical actuality.

You may recall the story of the woman who returned to the doctor's office a week after she had taken a test there. "Ah, Mrs. Jones," said the doctor, "I have good news for you." "My name is Miss Jones," said the woman. "Then, Miss Jones," replied the doctor, "I have bad news for you."

And, of course, the classic story about the way we live by labels more than by reality concerns the old peasant whose farm was on the Russian-Polish border during the long conflict between those states. As the battles continued back and forth, his land kept changing hands, first Russia, then Poland, and back again.

Finally, the Poles conquered, and as the army left, the commanding officer assured the farmer that he was now safely and permanently in Polish territory. "Thank God," said the farmer. "Now no more of those terrible Russian winters!"

China Shuns Mediator Role

NEW YORK (AP) — Premier Chou En lai says Communist China will not mediate the Vietnam war "in any way" and will continue to support the forces opposed to the United States pending complete U.S. withdrawal, the New York Times says.

Chou made his comments to James Reston, vice-president and columnist of The Times, in a lengthy, recorded interview held in the Vast Fukien Room of the Great Hall of the People in Peking last week, the newspaper says.

Reston says Chou is prepared for broad discussions of world problems when President Nixon visits Peking some time before next May.

Chou stressed that he wants to talk about the changing roles of the United States, Japan and the Soviet Union in Asia and the Pacific, and is not solely preoccupied with the problems of the Vietnam war or the two-Chinas controversy, Reston says.

Chou praised the boldness of Nixon's initiative in seeking the meeting, noting that the move had been praised by some of the president's political opponents, Reston says. He reports Chou also made these points:

—Chou voiced some concern over what he termed the budding revival of Japanese militarism and ambitions in Taiwan and Korea.

—China's position on United Nations membership is that it will be in alone or out, that U.S. State Secretary William P. Rogers's "two-Chinas" formula is "not a step forward." On the question of Taiwan, he said, "we are willing to sit down and enter into negotiations with the U.S. government for a settlement."

—Chou stressed that no private deals were made during the recent visit of Henry A. Kissinger, the president's adviser on national security affairs.

—The Chinese are preparing for the possibility of a Soviet nuclear attack by digging underground tunnels in "the great majority" of its big and medium cities. Chou said China is "not a nuclear power."

"We are only in the experimental stage."

He rejected a Soviet proposal for a conference of the five nuclear powers, calling instead for a conference of "all the countries of the world" to eliminate nuclear weapons.

—He proposed that "a way should be found to bring about a re-approachment between the two sides in Korea and to move toward a peaceful unification of Korea."

Unionize, Doctors Advised

TORONTO (CP) — The medical profession in Ontario must organize itself like a trade union and hire tough, skilful negotiators to bargain with government, says a University of Toronto doctor.

If it doesn't, says Dr. Joseph Gollom, the day will come soon when doctors will have no say in determining how much they earn.

In a letter in the Ontario Medical Review, the journal of the Ontario Medical Association, Dr. Gollom says that before long the government will make it illegal for doctors to bill patients.

Doctors will be forced to bill the Ontario Health Services Insurance Plan (OHSIP) and accept whatever it pays as a full fee.

He said this would put doctors in the position of approving in advance the government's right, through OHSIP, "to determine our income without any kind of negotiation."

OHSIP now pays 90 per cent of the fee schedule and doctors may collect the full fee from the patient.

Farm Couple Slain

APPIN, Ont. (CP) — Police are continuing their investigation today into the shooting deaths Monday of a farm couple near this community, 30 miles southwest of London.

The couple's 33-year-old foster son, Philip Marsh who was wounded in the buttock in the incident, is in satisfactory condition in a London hospital.

Philip and his brother Donald, 15, who was unhurt, told police they ran after their foster parents were shot down.

Peter Poole, 58, was apparently shot while sitting on his tractor. Coroner Dr. Maurice Sanders said Mr. Poole, who was shot at least twice in the head, was dragged behind the barn.

The body of his wife Hilda, also 58, was found in a milk house about 100 feet away.

Mrs. Joseph Rogers, who lives about a half-mile east of the Poole home, said the boys arrived at her home Monday morning and she took them to a nearby doctor.

Mobs Gathering In City Streets

BELFAST (CP) — Fresh outbursts occurred throughout Northern Ireland today and police said that the troubled six counties may be in for a repeat of Monday night's violence when 14 persons were killed.

Mobs began to gather and roam the streets of Belfast, Londonderry and Newry. There were clashes with troops in all three cities.

Police said that the number of car and truck hijackings indicated that barricades that British troops were tearing down would go up again at nightfall.

Monday was the bloodiest day in 50 years of Protestant-Roman Catholic feuding in Northern Ireland.

As well as 14 dead, there were 91 injured and millions of pounds of property damage.

Today the same pattern was developing in Londonderry, Newry and Belfast—roaming mobs of youths, hijackings and stone throwing. Four British soldiers were wounded in Belfast and Londonderry.

Other troops were attacked with bottles and stones while trying to remove barricades in another Belfast district and they fired back rubber bullets and nerve gas.

Several trucks were hijacked in Londonderry's Bogside district to form barricades—apparently in preparation for another rough night—and other vehicles were stolen in Belfast for the same purpose.

But largely the riot-wearied populace—at least in this capital—appeared for the time to be obeying army advice to stay indoors in the hope that matters might simmer down after the outburst of death Monday that followed an internment roundup of about 300 suspected members of the extremist Irish Republican Army.

An air of tension hung over the capital as it counted its dead, wounded and enormous property damage with unofficial estimates of the dead running as high as 20. Property damage in Belfast was estimated at $2.5 million.

Authorities gave the figure of 14 known dead but an army spokesman said that was based on the number of recovered bodies.

"There may well be many others so far unaccounted for," he added. "Some were simply hauled away by friends where the fighting was thickest."

There were 50 known wounded and 10 of these were in hospital with bullet wounds.

There were repercussions in the Irish Republic to the south, home of the IRA dedicated to reuniting British-run Ulster with the republican south.

In Dublin, the Irish cabinet held an urgent meeting to hear demands from some members of its parliament for a militaristic line toward the north.

Outside Dublin's O'Connell St. post office—scene of the start of the 1916 rebellion that led eventually to Eire's Independence—hundreds gathered to hear exhortations to "rise again against the British empire."

"Bring us any guns or other weapons you've got," one speaker urged. Some of the crowd marched to the British embassy, where the Union Jack was burned.

In London, Home Secretary Reginald Maudling, in charge of law and order, said the government is not considering the recall of Parliament, in response to demands by independent Ulster members.

Scotland Yard's special branch instituted a special watch at harbors and airports against any IRA men who might flee to England from Ulster.

Police also kept a close watch on a number of IRA cells in London, Liverpool, Glasgow and Manchester. Military authorities also strengthened guards on ammunition and arms depots in Britain.

Children's Aid Opposes Act

TORONTO (CP) — The proposed Young Offenders Act is retrogressive and shows "a fear of youth which apparently exists in the minds of some legislators," says the Ontario Association of Children's Aid Societies.

In its brief to the Solicitor-General, the association says the age of youthful accountability to a court of any kind has been raised in Ontario in recent years from 12 to 18 years.

"Lowering it to 10 would for us be retrogressive," the brief says.

The brief criticizes sections of the bill dealing with records. These are described as being "obscure and self-contradictory."

Under the proposed legislation, it appears possible for a 15-year-old to acquire a criminal record.

It says the proposal to make it possible for an offender to be called before a court at 21 for an offence committed while a juvenile "is totally inhuman and intolerable."

The association also urges the federal and provincial governments to get together before the bill becomes law to provide adequate facilities for young offenders.

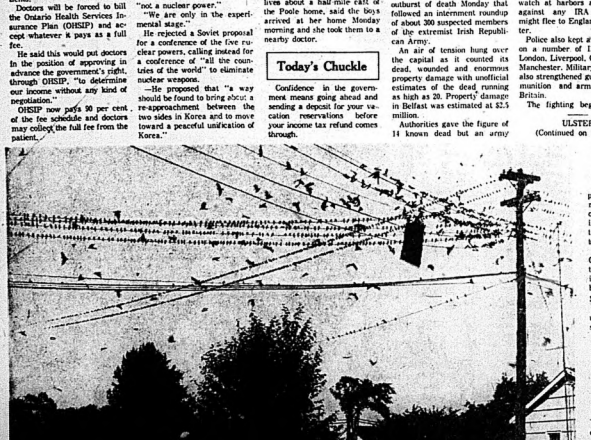
Lightning Starts 331 Fires in B.C.

VANCOUVER (CP) — The entire British Columbia interior is under bans today as firefighters fan out over the Kamloops, Nelson and Prince George forest districts, already hit by 231 new lightning-sparked fires.



A B.C. Forest Service official Monday described the Rocky Mountain Trench, from Invermere in the East Kootenays to McBride, 100 miles northwest of Jasper, Alta., as "almost one big inferno."

"Not only are the fires burning in the trench, but they are sweeping up the mountains on both sides," he said.

In the Kamloops district alone, there were 175 new fires, bringing the total to 264. The Nelson area was hit by another 119 for 132.

The weather office says there is no relief in sight for the 2,179 men on the lines battling 535 fires throughout the province.

"The long-range forecast is for more hot, sunny weather and the situation will get even worse before it gets better," said the forestry official.

Residents of Sidney Critical of Planning

Many residents in Sidney Township feel they are getting the short end of a planning stick and are being requested to play second fiddle to Belleville's future expansion.

The first vocal hearing to receive public reaction to Belleville and Suburban Planning Board's residential chapter of the proposed official plan met with mixed reaction in the Sidney Township municipal hall last night.

Township resident T. A. Carruthers tabled a motion that no adoption of the residential chapter be made until the Quinte Area Planning Board takes over the duties of planning for this area Sept 1.

Mr. Carruthers echoed the feeling of several speakers who felt the plan was "dictatorial" and was designed for Belleville's growth at the expense of Sidney and Thurlow Township.

Tom Ransom, representing Stanley Park Ltd., consultants, landowners and developers within the confines of the Belleville and Suburban Planning Board, claimed "the bulk of the study has dealt with the city's problem."

Mrs. Margaret Cooke of A.E. LePage Realtors, asked the board if the residents were being asked to "encourage the growth of Belleville and curb growth in Sidney Township."

Bert Kenny, planning director for both the Belleville and Suburban Planning Board and the Quinte Area Planning Board, suggested the objective look at the situation reveals that urban growth within the townships is "not in an urban context; not in urban form."

He said the urban sprawl which had developed over the past several years had resulted in a scattering of small developments, far removed from adequate services, a problem now being faced with future expansion of water lines in Belleville and surrounding urban regions.

"For the sake of the community and for the sake of services which, for growth of the area, will be paid for on a usage basis," expansion must be restricted to section closer to the city.

"But why must we kowtow to the city's demands?" asked one resident.

Mr .Kenny replied: "Belleville is a growth - pressure area with political boundaries. People are coming in because of the growth of Belleville; they are related."

When Mrs. Cooke asked if developments such as Monrose Blvd., referred to by planners as a planning blight, could be expanded, Mr. Kenny stated the growth would possibly be "stagnant" unless proper services were available.

Township councillor Reg McCurdy stated there were "very few building permits issued between Belleville and Montrose Blvd. in the past year because services were not available."

Mrs. Cooke was not convinced.

"We should be given consideration for the future. People are always concerned for what the future of this area is going to be," she said.

"The plan should be far-reaching."

Mr. Kenny felt many residents were "residing into the plan something that may not be intended."

When asked by another resident if township councils would have a proper say in acceptance of the plan, the planning director told the gathering all councils must support the plan or the Ontario Municipal Board would not approve it.

Township Reeve Jack M. Bush, chairman of the QAPB, said the provincial government would have to dissolve the Belleville board, which encompasses Sidney and Thurlow Townships and the city, and officially put the new board into operational planning.

Township Reeve Douglas Harry said he was opposed to the high density propsal of the Belleville residential chapter and claimed with the "majority of the people still opposed to it, the planning board is not taking them into consideration."

Cyclist Injured

A Toronto youth who lost control of his small Japanese motorcycle while travelling west on Highway 401 near the Salmon Riviere Bridge, suffered five broken ribs and severe lacerations when he flew over the handlebars of his vehicle and landed in a pile of rocks.

Eric Kelley, 26, was in the process of pulling off the highway onto the road shoulder when his vehicle swerved on loose gravel, struck a 2½ foot pothole, resulting in the head-over-heels accident at 11.35 a.m. Monday.

Damage to the motorcycle is estimated by OPP to be $500.

A city resident referred to the division between one faction and the other as planning board's "putting a pair of handcuffs on the other."

Zdenek Kvarda, chairman of the Belleville and Planning Board took exception to the city resident's remark; "any decisions are made as one. We are an AREA planning board," he said.

Kenneth Peoples, a city resident who has attended most of the hearings held in Belleville over the past few weeks, said "all this delay means the city of Belleville will be destroyed a little bit further."

Belleville Alderman E. A. Orr, vice - chairman of the QAPB agreed that the "difficult situation exists in Belleville, and urged there "not be any delay in this thing."

He urged the municipalities to follow the example of towns such as Trenton, a member of the new area planning board, which has already accepted an official plan.

Ulster

after the Northern Ireland government rounded up the IRA suspects and Prime Minister Brian Faulkner announced plans to intern them without trial.

In the fighting that followed, British soldiers battled mobs and roving bands of IRA gunrillas for nearly 24 hours. Arsonists battled homes and looting destroyed scores of homes and buildings in Belfast and other cities.

As the skies were lit by explosions and the glare of whole streets of houses going up in flames, those killed included a Roman Catholic priest, shot as he administered rites to a dying rioter; two youths aged seven and boys, a British soldier and a young volunteer in the newly-mobilized Ulster Defence Regiment."

Early today battle-weary troops combed the smoldering riot areas for bodies not already found and stayed tensely alert for the trouble that broke at any minute flare again in neighborhoods that now resemble blitzed battlefields.

Belfast was generally quiet after day broke, with some but by no means all of the working population filing silently to their jobs on foot, by a partially-restored bus service or by car.

Some had to pick their way over smoking wreckage and the ruins of burned-out cars, others by Monday's orgy of violence.

The atmosphere throughout Ulster was one of bewildered stories of burnings and fatal gun battles in this capital and elsewhere known.

Some 500 Catholic refugees were reported to have fled south into the Irish Republic for the safety provided by government-run camps set up for the first time since Ulster's 1969 outbreak of factional violence.

Water Supply May Be Airborne

TRENTON (Staff) — On advice from its solicitors, the Public Utilities Commission will not take legal action against Wasil Sidor for his second cutting off Saturday of the McGill Street water main.

Although the Toronto firm of Fasken and Calvin had advised the sending of letters to both Dufferin Development and Sidor earlier in the summer threatening legal action for further tampering - with the water system, the lawyers now caution against a law suit.

PUC chairman, D. James MacDonald, said in an interview today that "there is a possibility of legal action in the future but at the present time we are not taking any."

Chances of the commission ever filing a suit against Sidor for his severing of water service to Dufferin Developments over the weekend are doubtful. The legal consultants feel it would not solve any problems.

If the PUC decides to make any new moves, they will base them firmly on Fasken and Calvin counsel but the lawyers are not yet ready to make recommendations.

According to Mr. MacDonald, Robert Fraser of Fasken and Calvin is "curious" about the fine points of Judge W. S. Lane's decision last Friday to refuse the Town of Trenton an injunction against Sidor.

The chairman indicates that much of the future of the controversy will depend on two factors — the text of the injunction hearing transcript and clarification of the ownership of the one - foot reserve at the end of McGill Street.

Fasken and Calvin are now waiting for a copy of the transcript, — not having one has been a factor in their caution.

"The big thing to clear up now is the ownership of the one-foot reserve . . . I think council should get this done," says Mr. MacDonald.

Council met in private session here last night and may meet again Wednesday — again behind closed doors — to deal with senior personnel matters but not the water controversy.

Council is becoming cautious.

The key to servicing Dufferin Developments clearly appears to be the McGill reserve.

"If Sidor does own it, it would be a breach of his land to put water through it," says the PUC chairman who has now become sole spokesman for commission thinking.

The impasse is not deterring new and even inventive approaches for getting water into Dufferin Developments.

Although it is not clear whether Dufferin has given up in its bid to serve the first phase of its sprawling 400-home subdivision from the Mc Gill Street, the company did try today to secure PUC approval for a thermal link-up from Edgeview Drive (a street swinging south from McGill Street).

By the new plan, Dufferin would take water through a 15-foot long footpath from Edgeview but this was turned down by the commission. Reason for the rejection was that another one-foot reserve may cross this path and their ownership of this may be in dispute too.

Additionally, the commission feel that a loop in the course would be difficult to service.

Chairman MacDonald raised the possibility today that Dufferin may be served by looping a water line through the air over the top of the McGill one foot reserve. He explained that above-the-surface piping is on the market and it would not freeze up in winter.

"We are looking at air rights now and it may be the only way out." he said, adding, "we could even paint clouds on the pipe so nobody would notice it." It is believed that, if Sidor owns the reserves, he does not have all rights above them.

The PUC is resolved that when first water flows to the new housing area it should go along the original McGill route, underground or through open air.

McFarland's Aid Not Asked: Carter

PICTON (Staff) — Mayor Margaret Ackerman last night insisted Colin Carter, chairman of a citizens' committee, openly read his submission concerning the proposed rental of lock-up cells at Loch Sloy Holdings, ignoring a warning it contained "a few personal elements."

"Our council meetings are open and you can read your address if you like," the mayor told Mr. Carter. When he suggested she and members of council first read it privately, Mayor Ackerman again emphasized council sessions are open to the press and to the public.

The submission, signed by Mr. Carter, stressed former Picton mayor H. J. McFarland was in no way allied with a petition asking council to obtain a ceiling for renovation of Mary St. School for lockup and town office facilities.

It was stated; "from the inception..of our undertaking every member..stated that we would be absolutely independent and not associated in any way with the controversy that existed in the 1969-70 council and beyond and of which we knew little or anything."

Mr. Carter also noted in his submission "in earlier stages of the petition we were offered assistance by" Mr. McFarland who is still interested in preserving the Mary St. School, but I turned this down."

A later denial of alliance with Mr. McFarland emphasized by the submission noted "this was never the case and if at these late stages I have chosen contact with Mr. McFarland it is because I would have enlisted the aid of Satan himself to try and convince you not to demolish the school, but to utilize it as hundreds of citizens have requested."

Earlier in the council meeting, Mr. Carter was thanked by Mayor Ackerman for obtaining a key to lock-up facilities at Loch Sloy Holdings to open the building for yesterday's inspection tour by council respresentatives and Ontario Police Commission advisor, Jack Taylor.

Reportedly, the inspection party had attempted to get a key from the McFarland Construction officers without success.

Twenty Appear in Court As Rock Festival Sequel

As an aftermath to the weekend rock festival held in Madoc township, RCMP and Ontario Provincial Police yesterday paraded 20 persons, some handcuffed, into Hastings County court to appear before provincial Judge T. Y. Wills.

The young men, many of them wearing the insignia and paraphernalia of either the Satan's Choice or Para-Dice motorcycle clubs, were arrested at or near the James Quinlan farm, site of the Rock Acres Peace Festival.

Eighteen charges of possession of hashish or marijuana, charges of trafficking both marijuana, hashish and beer, four liquor control offences and one charge of possession of stolen goods were brought before the court.

— Dennis Joseph Godah of RR1, Belleville, pleaded not guilty to possession of marijuana and was remanded until Sept. 9 in Madoc. He was released on $100 cash bail, he was the first to be arrested at the RCMP command post.

— Allan Keith Antoney of Brantford pleaded not guilty to possession of one tablespoon of hashish and was remanded on $50 bail to appear in Madoc court Sept. 9.

— Peter Mark Balusnik of Oshawa pleaded guilty to possession of one pipe containing hashish. Balusnik told the court the pipe was "a souvenir". Requesting release on his own recognizance, he was remanded in custody to appear before court in Belleville, Aug. 12.

— George William Dragmoto of Oshawa pleaded guilty to possession of $5 worth of marijuana. RCMP told the court the marijuana was found covered in the "upper left hand pocket of his jacket". He was fined $100 or 21 days court costs, payable forthwith.

— Larry Edmund Trilsbeck, from the Toronto area, pleaded guilty to possession of 15 grams of marijuana. He was fined $200 and $3 court costs.

— Patrick Thomas Walsh of Clayton, N.Y., pleaded guilty to possession of 21 grams of hashish and marijuana and possession of liquor. He told court it "takes a large amount to be stoned" and his possession of the marijuana and hashish was "for myself" and not for purposes of trafficking. He was fined a total of $210 and 90 court costs.

— Robert Frank Kern of Ohio pleaded guilty to possession of $5 worth of marijuana, which police said was found in his running shoe. Asked if he'd pay his $100 fine and $3 court costs, Kern replied, "I'd rather be free; out of jail."

— David Bruce Daniels of Kemptville, Nova Scotia, pleaded guilty to possession of hashish and was fined $100 and $3 court costs.

—Gregory B. Adams of Lindsay, pleaded guilty to possession of a pipe containing hashish, was fined $100 and $3 court costs. However, Judge T. Y. Wills threw out his guilty plea when he was informed of the youth's age and the fact his parents had not been notified. Adams requested his parents not be involved. Judge Wills said he wouldn't deal with 18-17-year-olds without their parents' knowledge. He was remanded until Thursday to appear in provincial court in Belleville.

Ralph Edwin McKnight of Toronto pleaded guilty to possession of $3 worth of hashish and $5 worth of marijuana. He was fined a total of $100 and $6 court costs, most of which he paid immediately, the remainder due in a week. Although he pleaded guilty he told the court he "wasn't aware" it was in his possession. Acting Crown prosecutor Thomas J. Lally reportedly told the magistrate:

"He threw the bash away."

Roger M. Bispack of Ohio, pleaded guilty to possession of a pipe containing hashish, was fined $100 and $3 court costs. He was remanded in custody until Thursday, while an attempt is made to sell his car in order to pay his fine.

Those remanded until Sept. 9 will appear before provincial court in Madoc to face their respective charges. When granted bail ranging at $100, those who could not meet the bonds set by yesterday's court, were remanded in custody in the Regional Detention Centre in Napanee.

They were escorted to a provincial police paddywagon by OPP- Constables Douglas C. Robertson and Richard C. Lewis.

Also appearing in court were James Alexander Hay of Kingston and Robert Andrew King of Toronto. Both were remanded on $100 cash bail until Sept. 9 on charges of possessing a stolen motorcycle helmet, valued at less than $50.

Larry Steven Cochrane of Toronto pleaded guilty to unlawful sale of between two and six cases of beer. He was fined $50 and $3 court costs.

George John Sammut of Toronto pleaded not guilty to possession and illegal sale of liquor. He was remanded to Sept. 9 on $100 bail.

Kenneth Richard Climpson of Oshawa was released on $100 bail to appear in provincial court Sept. 9 on a charge of prowling by night near the residence of Robert Hudson of Madoc. He was released on $100 cash bail to appear in provincial court in Belleville Aug. 12.

Last man on the list, Theodore Peter Anderson of Toronto, who drove his motorcycle while under a court order prohibiting him from operating a vehicle anywhere in Canada, was remanded on $100 cash bail to appear in Madoc Sept. 9. Judge Wills informed the accused he might face charges of contempt of court for his breach of a court order.

The Rock Acres Peace Festival scheduled to last a full three days, broke up early Sunday after disruptions by motorcycle gangs.

Two Frankford Youths Guilty of Kidnapping

Two Frankford youths who were found guilty of abducting a man camping at the Riverside Tent Park in Frankford, were sentenced to two months in the common jail and placed on a year's probation.

James William Stacey, 18, and Richard Mark Stacey, 17, entered a test occupied by Daniel Sullivan, June 26, and led him away.

The trio began talking and finally Mr. Sullivan talked them into returning him to his tent.

The youths were also fined $10 and $3 court costs for underage drinking June 26.

A charge of attempted break and enter against Kurt Schneider, of 80 St. Charles Street, was dismissed in provincial court Monday.

Schneider had been charged with attempting to break into Hitchon Radio and TV, 340 Front Street at 9.35 p.m. July 24.

Police discovered fresh impressions on a rear door, similar to that of a tire iron found nearby. The accused was discovered hiding beneath a truck in the yard and subsequently arrested.

Although he pleaded not guilty to the first charge, he pleaded guilty to a charge of theft of a tape player and tapes valued at $171, July 19.

He was remanded in custody until Aug. 12 for a pre-sentence report.

On July 26, police discovered a Belleville area man violently attempting to dislodge a 1971 model car from a ditch along Highway 2.

Asked to step out of the car, Clifford Howie, 56, of RR 3, Belleville, was charged with impaired driving and possession of liquor. Subsequent analysis revealed an alcohol content of .21.

Pleading guilty to the charges in the court, he was fined a total of $135 and $7 court costs.

Ronald Allan Young, 32, of 179 Cornwell Avenue, Toronto, pleaded guilty to charges of leaving the scene of an accident and impaired driving.

On June 30, police reported the accident on Highway 2 east. A car, travelling west on Highway 2, east of Trenton. The vehicle kept going and struck a divided highway sign, knocking it to the ground. Belleville police were alerted and an arrest was made.

Paint samples were taken at the scene of the accident.

He was fined a total of $275 and $16 court costs and was given a total of two months in which to pay both fines.

An Agincourt man who passed an OPP patrolman on Highway 401 July 11, did so because of a faulty speedometer.

Ronald Norman Young thought the officer was traveling at less than the 70 mile-per-hour limit, but subsequent tests revealed a speedometer's was faulty at a rate of six miles per hour for every 30 miles charged.

"Ignorance of the law is no excuse," Judge T. Y. Wills informed him, but a fine was agreed to a reduction in the charge to reduce the licence points lost. He was fined $30 and $2.50 court costs.

Trent's Traffic On the Increase

TRENTON (Staff) — Boat traffic on the Trent-Severn system appears to be heading for a new season record although the start was slow in May compared to other years.

Until last night the number of watercraft passing through Lock No. 1 since May 13 totalled 1,195. For the same period last year the total was 1,198.

Traffic logged at the High-way 33 bridge on the Murray canal also shows holiday travelers using Quinte waterways are on the increase. The latest report revealed the number moving both ways was over the 2,000 mark.

Jim Howard, the lockmaster on the first lock on the inland canal route to Georgian Bay, reported half of the traffic passing his station was from the United States.

Rawdon Creek Sludge Found Not Raw Sewage

STIRLING (Staff) — The brown sludge - like material that came floating down Rawdon Creek and the Trent River in Sidney Township near the village of Stirling shortly after the weekend of May 24 has been proved not to be raw sewage coming from the waste treatment system in Stirling.

The area was pointed out in a letter from L. G. South, district engineer, division of Sanitary Engineering, Waste Management Branch of the Ontario Water Resources Commission in Kingston. The letter was received by the Lower Trent Region Conservation Authority.

After examination of samples taken at several places along the creek and the river, it was found that the material mainly consisted of green algae. Floating chunks of the material appeared to be pieces of inorganic material and considerable quantities of organic debris.

The letter said that "the sludge is nothing more than naturally occurring bottom deposits".

According to Mr. South, the flotation of this material was probably the result of either gases formed when the material was decomposing, or of physical agitation, such as an increased flow of the water.

The condition was brought on by a highly productive stream system. The land runoff is different from waste treatment systems, such as the lagoon at the village of Stirling, which is achieving good organic and suspended solids removal, add to the nutrient enrichment of the creek.

Mr. South also said that the intensity of the problem this year was a result of the conducive environmental conditions, proper algae growth and the flow rate in the Rawdon Creek.

The background to the problem is that after the May 24 weekend, Reeve Jack Bush of Sidney Township was confronted by a large group of citizens and summer cottagers who were sure that the material was raw sewage.

W. L. Lawson, secretary-treasurer of the LTRCA, contacted the Hastings and Prince Edward Health Unit, Belleville, which examined samples taken by C. Morton, a member of the Water Advisory Board of the LTRCA and by his own officials. The health unit replied promptly, indicating that the material was diluted sewage.

The Waste Management Branch examinations of the samples, however, did not support this opinion.

Potter On Tour

Ontario Mines Minister Leo Bernier and Hon. Richard Potter (Quinte), the provincial government's youth director and health minister, are on a six-day tour of remote Indian communities of Northwestern Ontario.

The two cabinet ministers left Sioux Lookout Monday morning and will cover approximately 1,600 miles in their 6-day tour of 23 Indian reserves.

The Ontario mines minister said the trip would be a "meet the people" tour, commenting that Indian people of Northern Ontario in general displayed a lack of sense of identity with the province.

Mr. Potter said he has to be re-elected and could only be accomplished by personal contact and local meetings.

Dr. Potter said he and the mines minister would meet with various Indian leaders to review provincial programs that could be expanded to improve the quality of life of the native people.

Loot Unusual

Someone in Belleville may be planning a little sidewalk reconstruction in the next few days, or they may be visiting a scrap dealer.

City police report theft of 600, 2½-foot sidewalk paving stones plus two inlaid at $1.-600.

The weekend theft of the property owned by Reway Construction Ltd., took place at a service station on the corner of Canniffon Road and College Street.

The construction company had stored their materials on the Rollins Shell lot while making repairs to sidewalks.

A Newspaper's Move

External Affairs Minister Sharp was one of the sidewalk superintendents, along with Ottawa Journal president Norman Smith, who watched the transfer of equipment when The Journal moved from its Queen Street location to new headquarters in Laurier Avenue recently.

Eyes craned skywards, and as the astronauts were touring still farther out in space, they followed the passage of heavy composing room hardware as it was swung by crane from the seventh floor of the old building and lowered to trucks below.

The move, as a Journal editorial notes, means goodbye to a building that has served since 1914, to elevators of dubious effiecency and to traffic bottlenecks for the circulation people. In short to what the editorial describes as "a tired plant."

The journalist's mania for collecting things, for filing away pamphlets, clippings and so on, is reflected in Mr. Smith's front-page description of the move. Like the astronauts, he noted the staff had dust troubles, "mostly in the caverns of our old files and desks . . ." Some of the things he carried over to the new home: a few forlorn pictures, two raincoat pockets full of a china cup, pills, a hairbrush, paperclips, one unmated bookend, an old diary and a screwdriver — "all, despite earlier trips, found malingering in our editorial temple."

There were clippings he stuffed away for possible reference later — "but I knew, and so did they, that they would probably remain where they were stuffed. That's why cabinets exist . . ."

Ah, yes indeed. As Mr. Smith adds: "My own entry for stupid filing was a nice big brown envelope I found to contain an unused and very attractive 1961 calendar, doubtless touched away by the accountants . . . but of course I saw at once that it could be used for next year. Another staff member found a birth certificate he had accused his wife, and then his lawyer, of losing, and had got replaced only at much cost and trouble. And there was a cheque for $3 for payment of a summer subscription and found behind a filing cabinet, a press release from the Industrial Development Office in Regina mailed 15 years ago. And also behind the filing cabinet, a note from the news desk to the copy boy to go get some coffee. And that is how it is in a newspaper office; nobody is perfect, we are not automations and some things just get lost in the rush and in subservience to the main task of getting the paper out.

Tolerance Required

Extreme attitudes on the subject of rock festivals or anything else suffer from the effects of their own bias, from one side or the were. Thus when all is said and done the Rock Acres affair was just another gathering of the now generation, a few thousand teenagers sitting around and enjoying their thing.

Until the arrival of two rival motorcycle gangs there had been no serious trouble. Still we have to consider such matters as public health, sanitation or lack of it, the same with water supply, sleeping facilities and so on. Nor can we discount reports of rape, robbery and arson.

The young people who attend these festivals are their own worst enemies. It is not so much the long hair that repels "straight society" as the unkempt appearance of many and of course the incidence of drug abuse. An Englishwoman interviewed on U.S. television a few years ago was asked about the hippie phenomenon and she replied that she thought it was a good idea — "but they're so dirty." And that has a great deal to do with the objections of society generally.

If getting to a rock festival, on foot or by hitchhiking, as many have done, is not conducive to a well-scrubbed appearance, then another of the facilities for delousing on the arrival, for those having the necessary regard for good grooming, will have to be greatly improved.

But to leave a church congregation, and join another one, as one Madoc township couple are reported to have done because their minister urged people to adopt a more tolerant attitude, reflects the kind of extremism and intolerance which leads to further confrontation and schism in our society.

Tug-of-War with Treasury Board's Charles Drury

Mackasey's Soft Line on Right-to-Strike Irks Some

By RICHARD JACKSON

OTTAWA — There is a quiet struggle for power in High Places here in the National Capital of which you may be only vaguely aware, but very much involved.

It is a tug-of-power between Treasury Board president Charles M. Drury and Labor Minister Bryce Mackasey.

At stake is what to do about the pugilistic loolips of the hit-and-run striker which have been putting both private and public enterprise up against the wall.

The federal Government can set the example — as it has historically in other fields of employee - employee relations, such as wages, salaries, pensions, working conditions, the lot — but so far has not moved to a firm follow-through posture on the problem of rotating strikes.

Bryce Mackasey seem to be a Labor Minister who assumes his only responsibility is to labor.

A showboat of an Irishman, and all the more likable for his blarney, he has spent much of his time in Cabinet carefully protecting the already well-entrenched rights of labor.

Perhaps that should be, except that it has not always been the attitude of federal Labor Ministers, many of whom, in their day of power, operated as a balance wheel in worker-management relations including, especially, those of the Government—where the public interest was involved.

If Mr. Mackasey sees his role as a labor-management wheel, the man is badly out of balance.

For not only has he been at pains to protect the bargaining power of labor which in more recent disputes has out-clouted management's, again including the Government — but has strengthened it.

Labor — in the federal Government's own sector — has used the rotating strike several times to the vast inconvenience of the public whose taxes pay its wage bill.

Employees of Air Canada have done it.

And while they were threatened with the usual counter-action of what in the airline business would be a lockout — the grounding of the fleet — they used it successfully as a bargaining lever.

Hard-boiled Air Canada President John Baldwin, former federal Deputy Transport Minister, warned the rotating strikers that he might have to shut down the service completely, so much to break the strike as for the safety of the travelling public.

But Air Canada strikers ignored the warning and said they would continue "rotating" airport close - outs simply because they knew the airline could not pay the price of continued trouble and would settle as the less expensive thing to do.

The postal workers who, in recent years, until this summer, have staged what almost has become an annual stop-work festival, showed the way in uses and abuses of the rotating strike.

And if they have not yet taken to their annual picket patrol this year, they'll be talked about it.

Last summer when they went for their four months of rotating strikes, it put the Post Office $29 million into the red.

And that was only the loss that could be counted — for unaccountable was the inconvenience lost when business and industry, having lost confidence in the Post Office, turned to use their bulk mail delivery trade to private carriers.

The Post Office tried hitting back, to bring the strikers to their senses, by closing down a mail depot for every one struck.

But Civil Service staff relations board chairman Jacob Finkelman, in a decision, disarmed the Post Office of that weapon, ruling that shut-downs were legal when they "impeded" the mail service, but illegal when taken as "retaliatory action" against postal strikers.

Meanwhile, during this academic exercise in labor relations, the taxpayers were making do with some rotten mail "in-service."

This got Treasury Board President Drury in a mood to warn public servants that federal labor laws giving them the right to strike must, in the public interest, "be reviewed".

He judged it "completely unfair and utterly unbalanced that the right to strike was not matched by the right to lock out."

It was on this that which the Government should face up, he said, and decide whether, in the public interest, such an "imbalance" and one-sided use of bargaining power was workable or even reasonable.

Drury, who is a hard-nosed former Royal Military College businessman-type of politician, since has managed to get the labor laws under some searching scrutiny.

But that is all.

No action has been taken, just possibly because Mackasey, a soft-hearted popularity - loving sort of politico, has stood him off.

"You were investigating the theft of our secret files and somebody stole your WHAT?"

Laporte Case Suspects

Do They Deserve Better Conditions?

Grasby La Voix de l'Est: Jacques Rose and Bernard Lortie, accused killers of Pierre Laporte, have been transferred from the 13th floor of the Quebec Provincial Police headquarters to regular cells.

The decision was made following a letter of protest from the Quebec batonnier, Yves Jasmin, to Justice Minister Jerome Choquette.

Mr. Jasmin protested against the "unacceptable" conditions of the detention of Rose and Lortie. . . .

Here we see a good move, one of compassion for these delicate beings threatened by nervous depression. After all, we're not in Sudan.

Mr. Laporte himself, could he have used a table and chair in his prison-tomb on Armstrong Street in St. Hubert? Are there two forms of justice? He was so well treated that batonnier Jasmin had no grounds to intervene and protest.

A. B. C. Doctors in Conflict with Provincial Government

Vancouver Sun

Conflict between the provincial government and the medical profession must be stopped before public health suffers.

Health care is in jeopardy because the people directly providing it - the doctors - question whether they can continue to work under government control.

A deteriorating relationship between the doctors and the government, particularly Health Minister Ralph Loffmark, has reached a critical stage because of the cabinet order giving him power to decide where a doctor may practise.

The effect is to challenge the right of professional men to self - determination.

In some respects the medical profession itself is responsible for the cabinet's extraordinary action. It is somewhat suspicious for Social Credit MLA Dr. Scott Wallace to question whether the government was right to assume such powers if the doctors had a strong trade union with the right to strike. Doctors have, in effect, one of the strongest trade unions in the country and they did strike in Saskatchewan. The College of Physicians and Surgeons has wide powers of professional regulation under authority of the legislature, and there have been times in the past when the application of these powers was open to question. Some doctors themselves - perhaps only a few - have complained publicly and to the government of restrictive policies at certain hospitals regarding their right to practise.

The government, too, should always be concerned about the cost of medical care, since it represents the people who, one way or another, must pay the bills.

But medicare, as an institution, must be administered with a soft touch in order to preserve the professional integrity of doctors and thereby determine the standard of treatment.

The cabinet had its hobnailed boots on when it passed the order which technically gives the minister of health power to decide which doctors may practise at a hospital.

Mr. Loffmark himself said he would use this power to redistribute doctors around the province. He claims to be embarrassed by the concentration of doctors in the metropolitan centres and the Okanagan; he said - and this is significant - that the government's chief concern is the needs of the rural areas.

Leaving aside the government's rural bias, it is true that there is a genuine shortage of rural practitioners. There may be, too, some truth in Mr. Loffmark's charge that the medical profession has failed to convince its newer members to go out into the sticks.

But how has the government encouraged them? Surely the enlightened way was chosen by Ontario, three years ago, when it offered medical students $3,000 bursaries and a guaranteed annual income of $25,000 for five years if they would start their careers in the less - populated, less - attractive communities.

Furthermore, it is questionable that anyone has the right to tell a man where he may live and work in a democracy. The government might as well issue an order assigning lawyers to the various courts in legal hierarchy; or decree where teachers may work.

There may well be too few rural doctors, but this doesn't mean there are too many in the cities. If we are to believe the medical schools, there aren't enough doctors anywhere in Canada.

The really outrageous part of the cabinet's order is the denial of the right of appeal to doctors who may be arbitrarily banished, or assigned against their will.

Up to now hospital boards had the power to say which doctors could practise in their premises. But hospital boards are a lot closer to the medical profession than Victoria, even though the government had earlier taken steps to try to get control of them, too.

Only a hospital board, under the new rule, could appeal a decision. But hospitals are often only to the cabinet, which after all has given Mr. Loffmark his new-found power. The very least the government could have done was to provide for an impartial tribunal to adjudicate, with medical and legal representatives.

Ontario's far different reasons has been embroiled in controversy with doctors lately. But its government had the sense to agree that supervision of doctors' income should be conducted by a panel fully submitted by the profession then appointed by the cabinet.

Even though there may be some good reasons for leaning a little on the medical profession, the B.C. government has gone about it the wrong way.

It cannot be overlooked that the powers it is assuming could, in future, be used for sinister political purposes - by any government, for, it must be said, can the distasteful incident of last year be forgotten, when Mr. Loffmark's colleagues in a hot water over the question of the right of a doctor to practise in Clearwater.

But any decision made by the cabinet is not Mr. Loffmark's alone, as the president of the College of Physicians and Surgeons pointed out. It is a government decision and Premier Bennett, who runs the government is Premier W. A. C. Bennett, who backs his decisions, despite the claim that the government is trying to ensure "fair treatment for all."

This is a decision which must be given a second look, because the viability of medicare is being challenged. The government must remember, and the doctors too, that it is the general public which may suffer, and the good health of the public is what counts most.

Picton Council Approves Demolition of Mary Street School

By MARGARET HAYLOCK
Staff Reporter

PICTON — Town council last night accepted a demolition tender for the former Mary Street School after a motion to obtain its renovation costs as a lockup and town offices was lost in a tie vote.

A recorded vote requested by Picton reeve Albert Piroth showed mayor Margaret Ackerman and councillors Harold McLoughlin, William Lane and Bessie Ward in opposition to the proposal.

The motion to obtain a costing for comparison with the estimated $98,450 cost of a new building was supported by reeve Piroth, deputy - reeve James Bird and councillors Harry Abram and Corey Walraven. Councillor Ross Cronkwright did not attend this special meeting of council called to examine the possibility of renting lockup facilities from Loch Sloy Holdings.

Mayor Ackerman and councillors William Lane and Corey Walraven yesterday toured the guard house at the former Camp Picton with Inspector Jack Taylor, advisor to the Ontario Police Commission.

The OPC representative also accompanied the municipal officials on an inspection tour of Mary Street School. A report of Inspector Taylor's findings was read to council and revealed the lockup cells at Loch Sloy Holdings were inadequate.

The exterior and interior of "the former guardhouse were described as "a potential fire hazard." The plywood construction of the cells' interiors also was unacceptable.

The cells were condemned because they do not have individual toilet facilities and it was observed it would be impossible to maintain satisfactory health conditions without latrines in each cell and adequate floor drains.

Exposed overhead pipes were noted as hazards which could contribute to suicides by hanging.

The cells did not conform to the minimum requirements of municipal lockups.

A tour of Mary Street School uncovered several flaws in its acceptability as a lockup and Inspector Taylor said draft plans for its renovation would have to be submitted to the OPC for approval.

Town council's plans for construction of a new building at the Mary Street School site also were reviewed by Inspector Taylor. He suggested they should be amended to include a lunchroom for members of the police force and a storage locker for small and bulk items. Absence of a lunchroom, in Inspector Taylor's opinion, could become an issue for arbitration in future.

Council agreed last night to request its planning firm to amend original building plans to include the recommended additions. The revised proposal is to be presented to council for approval as soon as possible.

Colin Carter, chairman of the citizens' committee, last night told council committee members are "absolutely independent" from the 1969-70 council controversy. He added a commitment he obtained in writing from Loch Sloy Holdings for rental of lockup cells perhaps had created the impression the committee was allied with former Picton mayor H. J. McFarland.

Mr. Carter stressed he had rejected Mr. McFarland's offers of assistance. When demolition of Mary Street School was discussed Mr. McFarland indirectly informed council cells were available at Loch Sloy Holdings. At council's request confirmation of the availability of these facilities was put in writing.

The former councillor said a petition he circulated which gained 1,179 signatures supporting a costing for renovation of the school, seemed to have angered council.

Mr. Carter suggested some person may have felt his action represented an alliance against Mayor Ackerman.

He said the department of municipal affairs will retain a copy of the citizens' petition and interior and exterior photographs of Mary Street School.

Councillor William Lane remarked the citizens' committee elected council and now "in effect, is trying to blackmail us a little" through suggestions that the Ontario Municipal Board may not approve plans for a new building.

Mr. Lane said he felt the motion for a costing of the renovation of the former school had come "too late". He criticized taxpayers who ignored the need for lockup cells when it was first discussed and emphasized, "we're running out of time."

He added, "We can't do anything to that school to ever make it look right."

Reeve Albert Piroth cautioned council he feels the OMB is "very interested" in the town's plan for lockup and office facilities.

He urged co-operation with the OMB and commented, "It is not to our credit to charge along on a plan I fear contravenes the Municipal Act."

Mr. Piroth later said he felt the town could continue to use lockup facilities at the former county jail beyond the specified period of "the summer months." He added he could probably obtain confirmation of this in writing.

Reeve Piroth was the lone opposer of a motion to accept the $1,950 demolition tender for Mary Street School submitted by Howe Wrecking. He criticized it because it did not include the $100,000 liability insurance certificate customarily accompanying tenders.

It was noted a telephone conversation with a representative of an insurance company had guaranteed the flood coverage if Mr. Howe won the tender.

Reeve Piroth insisted the tender was irregular and said specifications for submitting tenders are useless unless they are observed.

A motion to delete Mr. Howe's tender with that of a second wrecker was defeated at last week's regular council session. Both tenders lacked requirements specified for their submission to council.

Uphill Work All the Way

The Prince Edward County road department completed a three-year resurfacing program on the Rossmore to Carrying Place Road yesterday with the laying of the last piece up Onderdonk's Hill. This year's undertaking renewed a three-mile stretch of the busy route to Belleville. The 4,500 tons of black top used cost $40,000, according to county road engineer Donald F. Clark, overseeing the work.

Campbellford Sewage Plant to Be Opened

CAMPBELLFORD (Staff)—This town's secondary sewage treatment plant will open August 18.

The $1,165,000 plant utilizes the activated sludge method with mechanical aeration to process sewage. The complete system also includes a trunk sewer, forcemains and two pumping stations.

The province has financed and will operate the system for the municipality.

Consulting engineer was Canadian-British Engineering Consultants Ltd., Don Mills and contractors were Clairson Construction Co. Oakville and Trivedian Developments Ltd., Agincourt.

Officials of the Ontario Water Resources Commission and other government representatives will participate in a ceremony to mark the official opening of the system at 2 p.m. next Wednesday.

Jobs don't grow on trees. They grow from the initiative and enterprise of the private sector. That's a plain fact of economic life. And here's another one. The most promising growth opportunity in a decade is staring you right in the face. Right now. If you're ambitious to grow along with Canada, this is the time to start.

In the past year, we've contained inflation more successfully than any other country with a free economy. Economists (both inside and outside the Government) are predicting that Canada is at the beginning of a new period of growth. Things are moving. Companies are expanding. Opportunities are opening up.
But we can do much better still.
This is no time for undue pessimism; no time for sitting back and waiting to see what happens. Now (while the growing is good) is a time for building and expanding into new markets and new product areas.

There are thousands of skilled people ready and anxious to help you build your business — and Canada Manpower Centres are just as ready to help you find them. If necessary, they can arrange the training of people you need, and help them relocate to wherever you need them for more productive employment.

Canada Manpower economists and researchers are ready to help in their own field, too — with analyses of market potential in every part of the country, with detailed reports covering the probable effects of technological change in your industry and in your company — with whatever facts and figures you need to take advantage of existing opportunities and to create new ones.

Just how far and how fast Canada will grow in the next few years is very much for you to decide. The stimulus must come from your energy, your enterprise and your confidence in the future of this country. We're ready to grow when you are.

The forecast is favourable. The people are available. And the Government has plans to help with all kinds of business expansion programmes.

Now let's get growing!

The bridegroom's father officiated at the double ring ceremony, while Mrs. Burrell Hamilton, at the organ, provided music for the occasion and also accompanied the soloist, Miss Pamela Kinsman.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore an Elizabethan style gown in nylon organza over nylon taffeta with empire waistline, standup collar, and full sleeves coming to a tight cuff with a frill at the bottom. The collar, sleeves, bodice and skirt were trimmed with rows of guipere lace and also edged the matching full length veil which was caught with a headpiece of clusters of flowers in guipere lace trimmed with real pearls and aurore borealis. She carried a cascade bouquet of silver amethyst roses, miniature white carnations, pale orchid daisy 'mums, baby's breath and ivy.

Miss Jeanenne MacPherson, as maid of honor wore a full length gown of orchid nylon organza over taffeta with empire waistline, white bodice, full collar, long full sleeves and trimmed with a sleeveless vest in Swiss lace, appliqued in orchid, green and blue small flowers. She wore a matching headpiece of orchid daisies with centres of seed pearls. Miss Janice Smith, RR 4, Belleville as bridesmaid was dressed identical to the maid of honor and both carried white baskets of pale orchid single daisy 'mums, white and purple flat 'mums and baby's breath.

Little Miss Lynn Kinsman, Montreal, a cousin of the bridegroom, acted as flower girl. Her costume was similar to that of the other attendants and she carried a miniature basket of the same flowers.

Best man was David Hahn, Belleville and the ushers were Brian Tweedy, Sudbury, brother of the bride, Lorne Strickford and David Kowl, both of Belleville.

At the reception, held at Club Canara, the bride's mother greeted the guests in soft pink crimplene dress and matching cost ensemble, with rose colored accessories and corsage of deep pink carnations. The bridegroom's mother assisted wearing a pale blue flowered sheer over taffeta dress, with matching sheer coat, white accessories and corsage of pink sweetheart roses.

For a wedding trip to points north, the bride chose a hot pants suit in white embossed on aqua knit, made with a scoop neck in front caught with a tight collar around the neck and buttoned with pearl buttons in the front. A white picture hat, white accessories and corsage of pink sweetheart roses completed her outfit.

On their return the couple will reside at 16 Grewelle Cres., Ottawa.

New Dairy Queen Named

TWEED — Miss Heather Rogers, 17, of RR 1, Napanee, was recently selected Dairy Princess to represent Lennox and Addington at the Ontario Dairy Princess competition to be held at the Canadian National Exhibition, later this month. The local competition was sponsored by the Lennox and Addington Holstein Club, and held on the farm of O'Neill Brothers of RR 1, Erinsville.

The event drew several hundred people who watched three contestants demonstrate their ability to prepare and milk a cow, make a speech and take part in personal interviews. The other contestants were: Miss Jane Baker, of RR 1, Napanee and Miss Susan Snider of RR 6, Odessa. Both received cheques for $25, from the county milk committee. Miss Rogers, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Roy Rogers of RR 1, Napanee, received her crown and sash from Miss Karen Cronk, the reigning Frontenac County dairy princess. Both she and Miss Cronk will be presenting their contestants at the Ontario Dairy Princess competition to be held in late August at the Canadian National Exhibition.

The wedding took place in Holloway Street United Church, Belleville, recently when Lenore Ann Wilkes, daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Wilkes became the bride of James A. Clemmison of Wellington (parents deceased) with the Rev. William Lamb officiating.

Wedding music was played by Mrs. Phyllis Barkley.

The bride wore a scru antique lace dress with matching cost and an orchid corsage. She wore a wide brimmed hat and lace gloves as accessories.

The maid of honor, Mrs. Patricia Morden, a sister of the bride, was dressed in yellow shantung with a matching coat and wore a yellow rose corsage. Her veil, hat and gloves also matched.

Best man was Eugene B. Morden and the ushers were Keith Chambers and Doug Richardson.

The reception was held in the church parlors and at the home of Mr. and Mrs. E. B. Morden.

'Equestrian Sanitation' Job Done by Girls

VICTORIA (CP) — For 30 years the gally-painted and canopied Tally-Ho wagons have been a familiar part of the summer scene in Victoria, as the horse-driven vehicles take tourists on sightseeing trips around the city.

But for the first time this year girls are in charge of "equestrian sanitation" — and their boss thinks it has been done better.

Anne MacGillivray, 20, and Geraldine Peet, 19, first-year students at the University of Victoria, thought up the imposing job description when filling in their 1971 census forms.

The girls said they had a difficult time convincing friends they were going to be sweeping and shovelling in the wake of clip-clopping polluters.

"I guess they thought we wouldn't stoop so low to earn an honest living," said Geraldine.

Both girls like their outdoor job and particularly relish the reactions they inspire among tourists.

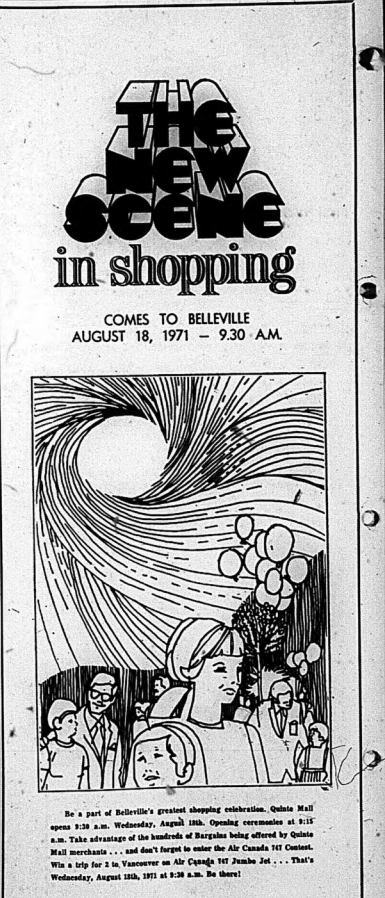
"Some just stand and stare as if they couldn't believe it, while others nearly die laughing," Anne said.

Art Knapp, who manages the Tally-Ho tours, says the company hasn't received a single complaint from the public this year because the girls are "the most clean-up crew I've ever had."

Patrolling the route in Victoria's streets which have large wooden boxes mounted on the back bumper, Anne and Geraldine are constantly on the lookout for the tell-tale mounds.

Anne admits she has developed such a keen eye in this respect that "even when I'm out on a date I can't help watching the road."

Regional Pay Rates Suggested



OTTAWA (CP) — Federal treasury board negotiators Wednesday stood pat in support of a regional rather than a national pay rate for general duty nurses in the public service.

In a brief to a three man arbitration tribunal here the board even suggested it would like to see rates for nurses in higher pay categories put on a regional rather than the present national basis.

About three quarters of the 2,200 federal nurses in 58 parts of Canada are on regional pay rates for first level nurses.

The treasury board, however, argues that a national pay policy for first level nurses would result in overpayment or under payment in some regions.

The issue of regional versus national rates is a main reason the wage dispute over the two year contract, retroactive to Jan. 1, 1971, has gone to binding arbitration, a source said. The tribunal's decision is expected in about six weeks.

Ann Landers

Bertrand Russell Was Married Four Times

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I wonder if the woman who shamelessly signed herself "Still Enjoying It" is aware that the vast majority of men and women who live to be 90 and over gave up sex at an early age. Ask Bertrand Russell. He will celebrate his 100th birthday next year.

In later life, Bert's far-out philosophy and sex life has changed along with his radical notions about politics. He has become more placid and less volatile these past several years. Those who say the old boy has gotten not only older, but wiser. — UNVARNISHED FACTS IN TULSA.

ANN LANDERS

DEAR UNVARNISHED: I regret being the bearer of bad news, but Bertrand Russell died on February 2, 1970. So much for your "unvarnished facts."

Bertrand Russell was four times wed. At 63 he married his secretary who was 25. His fourth marriage took place when he was 80. His bride was 42. Mr. Russell, incidentally, made it to 97 which speaks fairly well for sex among the Geritol set. And those who know say he was a pincher to the very end.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Is my problem one of jealousy or a take-over-mother-in-law? You be the judge.

My husband, Harry, is 30 years old — the only son in a family of women: two aunts, two sisters, a grandmother, his mother, and now me.

Harry had surgery last week. Before the operation, his mother who is a registered nurse, made appointments with the anesthesiologist and the surgeon to discuss details. After the operation the surgeon came to the waiting room to announce that everything had gone well. He did not speak to me, however, he spoke to my mother-in-law. When I asked a question he treated me as if I were an intruder.

When the nurse came to say we could see Harry, my mother-in-law went into the recovery room. (Of course he didn't know we were there.) Within a few minutes, I was politely ushered out, with a firm hand on my elbow. His mother stayed for almost ten minutes, talking with the nurse in hushed tones.

I've gone out of my way to include my mother-in-law in social activities. I've taken her side at vari[illegible] times when Harry felt she was too pushy. Her conduct these past several days has put me to the quick. I feel that she has shoved me into the background in a most inconsiderate way. Has Harry's illness made me too touchy? Am I over reacting? What do you say? — INFRINGED ON.

* * *

DEAR IN: Perhaps your mother-in-law "took over" because she is an R.N. and the hospital is her ballpark. I hope by the time you read this you will have overcome your resentment. You sound like a fine woman who has tried to be a good daughter-in-law. Don't let this incident spoil your relationship.

* * *

DEAR ANN: Please change your advice to the lady with the hair-sprouting mole. Perhaps, like me, her moles are too deeply rooted to be removed. My dermatologist said I should live with the large mole on my chin because removal would be dangerous. How come you didn't check with an authority before you answered? — GUAM READER.

* * *

DEAR G: I did check and three dermatologists said the only moles which might present a removal problem are those on an eyelid or near the nose. I suggest you see another dermatologist about the mole on your chin. If it is deeply rooted the removal might leave a slight indentation but it would be less noticable than a large mole.

First Woman 'Postie' Happy With Job

PORT ALBERNI, B.C. (CP) — "There's the odd time when I just feel like throwing something at someone," says Blaseen Oreskovich, "but for the most part it's a good job, and I'm happy."

Miss Oreskovich was the first woman in Canada to become a "postman," and along with five colleagues in this Vancouver Island community, has set a precedent for other post offices throughout the country. She has been delivering mail since December, 1968.

"The big cities back east . . . Toronto, for example, make such a big thing out of getting their first postwoman," says Port Alberni Postmaster Les Hammer. "We've had them for the past 5½ years, for pete's sake."

Despite the hazards of long routes, the women are staying on the job. Four of them are married and raising families.

They walk an average of 12 miles a day, and deliver up to 30 pounds of mail.

They also get bitten by dogs two or three times a year. A small can of dog repellant discourages most hounds.

While the job poses certain risks for women it has its compensations as Esther Bakken points out.

"Yes, it's a good job," says Mrs. Bakken, who is a mother of three. "After all, what other line of work would let you lose 25 pounds in less than a year without dieting?"

Little Blue Suit Latest in Fashion

PARIS (AP) — The "little blue suit" the workers wear in China is the latest fashion craze in France and is even challenging the Vietnam war look that is all the rage with the young in St. Tropez.

The women are storming the Boulevard St. Germain to snatch up the baggy blue cotton outfits.

People who like their workers' outfits in the white collar side can get them in shapy grey cotton. And rich women who want to look like prosperous rice pickers pad themselves in Yves Saint Laurent's quilted satin peasant jackets.

POINTS FOR PARENTS

BY MARY BRYSON

Keep glasses and pop bottles out of the car while you're on a vacation trip. Use paper cups if the children want drinks enroute. Also ban suckers or ice cream on a stick. These are potential menaces to children's eyes or mouths if the driver has to swerve or make a sudden stop.

Coconut Crisp Squares Can Also Be Chewy

By MARY MOORE

Can a thing be crisp and chewy at the same time? These squares seem to be both to me. They are a thing of the past though for although I made a double batch they were gone in less than two days.

When I arrived in Kingston on my present and final visit there to my daughter and her family I was greeted with open arms and "Now we'll see what's cooking!" You see they are packing to leave for Edmonton where my son-in-law has been posted as Commander Air Borne Regiment. Marianne's energy has been channelled to preparing for the big move and baking has taken second place.

So in stepped Gram. You just have to make these to believe one piece of squares could be so popular.

COCONUT CRISPS
(Ostsize batch)

½ cup shortening
2 cups light brown sugar
2 eggs
2 tsps. vanilla
1 cup stirred but unsifted all - purpose flour
2 tsps. baking powder
1 tsp. salt
1½ cups medium-cut coconut

Into large beater bowl measure the shortening and sugar and beat until pale and creamy. Add eggs and vanilla and beat in 2 or 3 min. longer. Add remaining ingredients and beat to blend evenly.

Carefully butter a 10½ x 15 x ½" (jelly roll) pan and turn dough into it. This dough is thick and has to be pushed into the corners with your dampened palms to make it level.

Bake at 350 deg. Fahr. at centre of oven for 20 to 25 min. You must watch it for you will notice that it is full of sugar and will burn at the edges if overdone. I turned ours around at halftime. I cooled it in the pan and when it was cold cut it into 1 x 2" strips and piled them carefully in the cookie jar.

I foolishly thought it was a nice supply to serve with fresh fruit for a few days. With four ever-hungry children helping with the morning chores each time they passed the cookie jar they would dip in. When I took a peek to see how soon I had to bake again it was bare.

P.S. Soon you will see a recipe here for Matrimonial Squares for I have had a special request from Gary for them.

Tweed Scout Flies to Japan

TWEED — Mrs. Robert Wilson, (the former Gertrude Vance) of Belleville, was at Malton Airport over the weekend to say bon voyage to her grandson, Robert Dunham, 14 years of age, from Windsor, Ontario, who left Malton by air for Vancouver, B.C. and from there he will fly to Japan, to Mount Fuji, where some 20,000 boys in the age group of 14-18 years will assemble for the 13th World Jamboree of the Boy Scouts who will come from all parts of Canada and the United States.

General Rule in Sex Education 'Is to Tell It Like It Is'

By DORIS CLARK

Dear Doris: Can children receive too much sex education? I have bought a set of books dealing with the life cycle, as I do not want my daughters to grow up as ill-informed as I was.

One of the books illustrates male sexual organs and I was wondering (am I a prude?) if it was necessary for my daughters to know and see this. They are just seven and four.

If I leave these books out in the open, how do I handle the situation when visiting children get hold of them and titter and laugh at the illustrations? This happened once when two 12 - year - old boys were looking through one of my pregnancy books.

I didn't think it was anything to make fun of and promptly told them so. Never Miss Your Column.

Dear Never: Reference to books are fine, and the illustrations will be helpful. The general rule in sex education is to tell it like it is, but not any more than is asked.

When a youngster has done a little thinking and observing and thoughts about her own body and others begin to puzzle her, she will ask the question which is at the top of her mind. Answer it. Later she will move on a little and come back to you in confidence that you'll continue contributing to her education at the speed she can take.

If discovery and tittering happen again, make nothing of them. You only drive natural inquiry underground when you show indignation.

* * *

Dear Doris: About the poem which ends, "Sit on the lid and laugh", this was written in my autograph album many years ago.

The poem is entitled "Then Laugh", and consists of two verses of eight lines each. I have copied it out for you. A Reader.

Dear Reader: Thank you, you. And our thanks to all the others - Senior Citizen, Mrs. H. C., Mrs. A. S. T., Mrs. R. L., A. B., C., Mrs. M. E. T., M. E., McW., L. G., B. McC, and many others, including Another Clark.

Sources of this bit of inspiration included old Sunday school papers, assorted collections of poems, autograph books and ancient radio programs. Copies may be had by writing in, enclosing 10 cents and a seven - cent - stamped Canada-self - addressed envelope (and please note - no stamp, no poem!).

Dear Doris: I would like to know if contraceptive pills can be prescribed to unmarried women for the purpose of birth control, if the reason is not that of gynecologic disorders or irregularities. — S.B.

Dear S.B.: There is no law against it. A doctor's conscience has to be his guide, and some supply birth control information and prescribe the Pill, being convinced that this is better than permitting unwanted pregnancies.

You may be sure he will keep any patient's confidence.

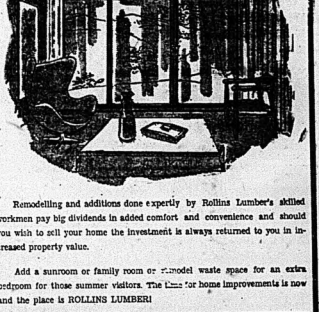
CLUB 4-H NOTES



TWEED — The recent meeting of the 4-H club of Natural Resources Club, was held at the Ivanhoe Township Hall. The president, Susan Ray opened the meeting with the 4-H Pledge. The secretary read the minutes of the last meeting. Then David Foley looked at the plans for the tent - trailer park. The club is planning to develop a park at Plainfield, Ontario.

The front area will be for tent trailers. A road is planstablished a fine record in ned to lead back into the swimming area with tenting lots along the sides.

A nature trail will also be cut through for the adventurous. If the plan is accepted by the Moira River Conservation Authority, work will begin next spring. This should be a nice, clean place for swimming as the rapids are just up the river and water is constantly moving.

The next meeting will be held at the same place. Then an accurate plan will be drawn up with detailed reports with the hope that the Mas T Belle 4-H Conservation Park may become a reality.

Trenton Grasps Lacrosse Win

Trenton managed to grasp onto a tie for second place in the final Belleville Minor Lacrosse juvenile standings at the expense of their cohorts in the runner - up position, Campbellford, Monday night.

Trenton doubled the score on Campbellford 18-5 to prevent the losers reaching the .500 mark and also preventing themselves from being regulated to last place.

Greg Scarlett led the winners with four goals with Neil Turner hot on his heels with three. Rick Bunnett, Ken Booth and Ron Gale rounded out the scoring for Trenton.

In peewee games last night the Police Association missed their last chance to move into first place by dropping a 5-1 decision to the Dairy Queen. The pennant winning Y's Men's Club was held to a 4-4 draw with the RCAF T-Birds but the one point was the margin of difference in the final league standings.

Dan Duffy and Dave Mc-Bride fired two goals each for the Men's Club while Ross Hand had two for the T-Birds.

Jeff Runciman tallied both Dairy Queen goals with Wally Inwood answering for the Police.

Fosters Apply Heat

Foster's Thurlow peewees applied the heat Monday night to melt the Dairy Queen 15-3 in a Belleville Minor Base ball contest.

Brian Masterson picked up the win fanning 12. Randy Adams cranked three hits with Sandy Walen, Master-son and Bob Roy each having two safeties.

Brad Graham hit two singles for the only Belleville hits.

In bantam action Vader's Datsun proved that two can do the job better than one as Ross Geen and Craig Empey led the Thurlow team to a 6-3 win over Brian Turner of CJBQ Expos.

The pitchers matched fivehitters with Bruce Sullivan cloaking a double and single for Vaders and Brian Culkin returning the favor for CJBQ. Farley Vader, Jim Aitken and Ross Geen had the other hits for the winners.

Pan-Am Athletes Return to Canada

TORONTO (CP) — About 80 members of Canada's Pan-American Games team returned to Canada Monday night, blaming frustration for their early departure from the Games which end later this week.

The athletes, most of them from track and field, were to remain in Cali, Colombia, until the end of the Games, even though their events were completed.

But Mike Mercer, a bronze medal winner in the shot put, said from his home in Oakville, Ont.: "We just wanted to get the hell out of there."

Jenny Meldrum of Toronto, a contestant in the hurdles and pentathlon, said:

"It was difficult enough while we were competing, but just to sit there and vegetate for another week . . .

"The reason we came back was simple. There was absolutely no track and field training facilities and we have a very important national meet at Winnipeg Aug. 21 which determines the Canadian team for a dual meet in Italy in September."

But both Mrs. Meldrum and Mercer cited other reasons.

"If you didn't have dysentery, you were constipated," Mrs. Meldrum said. Sanitary conditions were poor, she added.

Mercer said the frustration "gets you."

"There were 14 people sleeping in my room. We were on bunkbeds and it was a very small room. The showers didn't shower—they shot cold water like out of a tube. But there wasn't water to brush your teeth."

Read Stages Late Playoff Comeback

Read staged a late inning comeback and erased a seven inning lead by Latta to take a two games to one jump in the best of seven South Hastings Baseball League semifinals.

Carm Milligan's two - run, two run homer in the bottom of the eighth provided Read with the lead for the first time in the game and the 6-5 victory.

Latta had built up a 5-1 lead after seven and a half innings but five runs in the last two innings by Read foiled Latta's victory hopes.

Frank Farrell started for Read giving up all five runs on four-hits. He fanned three in his seven inning stint. Harold Pascoe finished the game picking up two strikeouts. Milligan produced a double along with his game winning homer and Steve White and Pat O'Connor each had two safeties.

John Masterson and Bob Smith shared the loss each allowing three runs. The pair fanned five. Wayne Harrison had two hits for Latta and Masterson a double.

Mudcat Deal‡

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Pittsburgh Pirates said Monday night they are selling the contract of relief pitcher Jim (Mudcat) Grant to Oakland Athletics for an undisclosed amount.

Canucks Kick Win

The Station Square Canucks peewees offense might have died after only one half in Monday night's Belleville Minor Soccer action but the defence came alive in the late stages to preserve a 4-2 victory over the Flyers.

Joe Malaski fired three goals and Glen Andring one for the winners who saw their lead dwindle when Frank Spada and Brian Hamilton scored second half goals for the Flyers.

Mighty Fall Hard

Even the mighty fall and go one knows it better than Wesse's Flowers the run-a-way leaders of the Ladies Softball League.

Wesse's were upset 8-7 by the Dairy Queen Monday night mainly due to a five run outburst in the fourth. Marianne Sills picked up the win for the third place Queens striking out four.

Nora Barberstock and Donna Brant shared the loss for Wesse's. Nora fanned three and smashed a triple for the losers.

Top Dogs Take Industrial Tumble

There will be no resting on past laurels for the top teams in the Industrial League if Monday night's opening playoff games are any indication of things to come.

Pennant winning Union Carbide found themselves out-hit and for a change in taking a 10-4 whipping on the note from fifth place Intellgencer. Meanwhile second place Brooke Bond found themselves up against the wall after dropping a 9-7 decision to the CN Yardmen. Both games were the first in the best of three quarter - finals.

It looked like the beginning of a real slugfest when Union Carbide took a 3-2 lead after only one inning but when the final out was over The Intell had been the only ones slugging. The Printers pounded out nine hits in picking up their first win over the Bakelite this year.

Terry Hiddleston's two-rbi triple in the first for The Intell indicated it would be no walk away for the Carbiders. The league leaders came back in their half of the first scoring three runs on five successive walks by Intell starter Dave Feeney. Ron Culloden took over the pitching chores and stopped the Carbide the rest of the way.

George Phillips two run homer gave The Intell the lead in the second and started them on the road to victory. Phillips added a single to his long shot while Hiddleston connected for an additional triple and single to keep up his no-hitting streak. Lead off batter Bill Hoard also had a big bat pounding out two singles and a double.

Ron Culloden allowed only four hits in picking up the victory. He fanned one and walked three.

Ken Osbourne went the distance for the Carbides fanning three and walking one. Lucas cranked a fourth inning homer for Union Carbide for their only extra - base hit. Little, Hughes and Bird added singles.

The CN Yardmen tallied four runs in each of the fourth and seventh innings to record their 9-7 victory over Brooke Bond.

Only one extra base hit was marked in the CN's 13 safeties, a third inning double by Rob McMurter. Homer Thomas lined three singles while Ron Marshall, Mike Fahey and Bob Duvall each had two singles for the winners.

Brian Plumbe toed the rubber for the CN allowing 14 hits and two walks. He fanned three.

Bob Chambers gave up 13 hits in defeat while showing flawless control and striking out one. He also connected for a homer and two singles while at bat. Bill Rivers' three singles and Jack Walsh's double and single highlighted Brooke Bond's hitting.

Point Anne Pitcher Stops Quinte

Holoway Hurls Commercial No-Hitter

Point Anne pitcher Don Holoway proved that he was all-star calibre last night by tossing a 4-1 no-hit effort against Quinte Hotel. The big right-hander has been a mainstay for the second-place entry in the Commercial Softball League this season.

Point Anne's Don Holoway cut it close but nevertheless he pulled off a first for the 1971 Commercial Softball League Monday night when he fired no - hit ball for seven complete innings to record the first such performance in the league this year .

He waited until the Cementmen's 23rd game of the 24 game schedule and until probably his last regular season start to pull off the #1 no-hitter against Quinte Hotel.

Three errors and a passed ball allowed Quinte's uncarned run to cross the plate in the first inning giving them a one run lead which held up to the fourth when the Cementmen pushed across two runs. Jim Horwood's clutch single drove in both Bruce Stickle and Mike Cook to give the Pointers the lead for good.

Singles by Holoway and Eric Maher set the stage for Horwood to come through again as he smashed a double to drive in the final two runs for the winners.

Holoway picked up four strikeouts and issued the same number of walks but steady fielding from his team mates preserved his no-hitter. Horwood had a perfect night at the plate with two doubles and a single. Cook, Stickle, Maher and Holoway all had singles for the second place Pointers.

Stocky Harold Werkhoven took the loss for Quinte giving up seven hits. He fanned four and didn't walk a batter.

Trent Valley All-star centre-fielder Carl Stacey races to first base during Monday night's exhibition contest with the Commercial League All-stars. Stacey, from Picton Merchants, failed to reach the bag in time as Point Anne's first-sacker Vern Whalen stretches towards the ball. The Trent Valley squad came up with a 4-2 victory over the local team.

Trent Valley All-Stars Stop Commercial Best

If the Trent Valley Fastball League was out to prove something Monday night in their contest with the Commercial League All-stars, they accomplished just that.

The Valley All-stars pushed across two runs in each of the first and seventh innings en route to a 4-2 victory over the Commercial League's finest.

The visitors used a couple of long time standouts and a relative rookie in stopping the home club on only three hits. Young George Ferguson of Trenton's Carm Cleaners started for the Valley fanning four and not allowing a hit in his three innings of work. Cobourg Orphans chucker Jim Chase took over for the next three innings, giving up one hit and one run and picking up four strikeouts. Picton's veteran hurler Ken Demille worked the final three frames being touched for two hits and a run. He stuck with the pattern by also picking up four strikeouts.

The only hits the Commercial League could manage were Rick Rosebush's sixth inning triple, Lyle Thompson's ninth inning single and John Campbell's last inning rbi triple.

Paul Gutteridge of Cobourg connected for two singles for the Valley including one in the seventh to drive in two runs. The Orphans Pete Harrison also connected for two hits, both singles. John Clarey of the Cobourg Juniors, Carl Stacey of Picton and Barry Dawe of the Orphans all had singles to round out the visitors hitting.

Rollin's Scott Reid, forced into the starting pitchers role due to the absence of Bob Ethier, was victimized by two errors, a hit batter and three singles before he could retire the side. Reid picked up four strikeouts plus the loss. Point Anne's big thrower Don Holoway, fresh off a no-hit performance in the preceding Commercial League regular game with Quinte Hotel, fired one hit ball for the next three strikes past six batters. Rollin's hard luck continued when Wayne McConnell took over in the seventh. A walk, an error and two singles allowed two more runs to cross the plate. He struck out four over the final three frames.

A packed Alemite Field was on hand for the fast paced game, the first such endeavored by the two leagues.

Kinsmen on Key

The Kinsmen Bobcats and the Kinsmen Hawks both had an easy time of it as they wrapped up their Belleville Minor Softball tyke semi - finals Monday night.

The Bobcats whipped Malcolm Brothers 25-7 to gain a berth in the West Hill finals while the Hawks won a 9-0 forfeit from Harbor Marine in the East Hill.

Homers made the difference for the Bobcats with Peter Bisbee, Greg Denard, Robi Duval and Steve Mequaid each connecting for the long ball.

In squirt playoff action Ernie Tuck Appliance bombed O'Neil Stationary 12-2 to wrap up their semi - final series while Stephen Licence opened their semis with the Shopping Plaza by nipping the Plaza 15-12.

Tim Seale fanned 13 and walked only one in leading Ernie Tuck to victory. Clinton Dell had a homer and triple with Darrell Coltman adding a homer and two singles to the winners hitting attack.

Ward Morrison struck out 11 on the O'Neil mound. Ken Jones and Mike O'Shaugnessy each smashed home runs for the losers.

Pennant winning Stephen Licence needed homers from Doug Campbell with two and Ken Boisinel to chalk up the victory over the Plaza.

Mike Kott had a homer and two doubles and Robbin McKinney a homer and three doubles for the losers.

Senior Hockey Picture In Focus

Belleville's Senior 'A' Hockey picture is coming into better focus all the time with Monday nights Booster Club meeting throwing a little more developer onto it.

Last night's meeting at the Quinte Hotel resolved three questions — prices for tickets and season subscriptions plus the election of the executive for the club.

Bob Lloyd will be serving this seasons term as the new president of the Booster Club with last year's president Jim Graham taking over the vice-president position. Mrs. Mary Acera will lend a woman's touch to the secretary-treasurer position.

The thirty people in attendance last night set the season ticket prices at two for $50. The purchase of the season tickets makes it eligible for the all expenses paid trip to the West Indies. Tickets can be purchased from any club member or member of the Quinte hockey team as well as from the Quinte Hotel and McKnight's Variety Store.

Last year's subscribers have one week to renew their tickets or else return to the general admission prices of $1.50 for adults 16 and over and $1.00 for children.

Weslock Shows Way in Willingdon Cup Opening Round

OAKFIELD, N.S. (CP) — Veteran Nick Weslock showed them how with a two-under-par 71 in the Willingdon Cup team golf matches Monday and said it's the wind that will separate the men from the boys.

The four-time Canadian amateur champion from Ontario said that at the Oakfield Country Club layout, "the wind is the dominating factor."

It blew hard enough Wednesday to allow only four golfers to card sub-par rounds on the first day of the two-day, 36-hole team trials. A fifth shot, even par on the 6,781-yard course.

Two golfers shot 72s to lead the British Columbia entry to a four-stroke lead over defending-champion Ontario going into today's play.

"I've learned how to handle myself in the wind," Weslock said. But he added that he wasn't pleased with his opening-round performance.

Weslock, from Burlington, was one under par on each of the front and back nines. But he couldn't seem to make any headway on the par-five holes.

The eight-time Ontario amateur champion said he should have carved strokes from his count on the par fives, but went into bunkers on at least two occasions.

Some competitors said they found the Oakfield greens, dry and bumpy in some places and were leaving their putts short.

David Mok of Victoria and Bert Tiedhurst of Vancouver paced British Columbia with one-under-par rounds.

Last year's Canadian Junior champion, Doug Roxburgh of Vancouver, playing with borrowed clubs, finished two strokes over par, John Russell, also from Vancouver, contributed a 76 and the B.C. contingent had a first-round score of 295.

Former Canadian amateur champion Gary Cowan of Kitchener ran into difficulty on the first hole and had to settle for a 75. Stu Hamilton of Brampton had a 77, and Killy Roberts of London added a 76 as Ontario finished five strokes ahead of third-place Nova Scotia.

Cowan took a seven on the first hole after his second shot went to go away and went to the left of the green. He required three more strokes to get back to the green.

"There is no way Cowan is going to start out at seven again," said Ben Parsons, non-playing captain of the B.C. team. "It's going to be hard to beat Ontario. Four strokes is nothing to them."

Nova Scotia golfers shot a 304 for third spot.

Manitoba held fourth place with the quartet carding a total of 310. New Brunswick had 311 while Alberta and Quebec tied with 314s. Prince Edward Island golfers got together for a 317. Saskatchewan had a 323 and Newfoundland finished with a 330.

Andre Gagne of the Royal Quebec Golf Club at Boischatel, Que., also managed a one-under 72. Gagne went one stroke over par on the front nine but carved two strokes from the regulation 27 on the way home.

The Canadian amateur championships, with an entry field of 164, open Wednesday. The four-day, 72-hole event runs until Saturday.

Down Winnipeg 29-16

Lions Kicker Finds Range

WINNIPEG (CP) — British Columbia Lions, with a 17-point performance by place-kicker Ken Phillips, downed Winnipeg Blue Bombers 29-16 Monday night and head coach Eagle Keys said he didn't care about the breaks.

"I'm just happy to win," said Keys, grinning after his club turned a big first-quarter lead and four pass interceptions into their first regular-season victory, leaving Bombers winless in three outings.

Phillips, a 22-year-old rookie who leaves the long field goal tries to veteran Ted Gerela, connected on all five attempts, the longest from the 29 and the shortest a 15-yarder, and converted two touchdowns.

The converts were on Jim Young's 47-yard scoring pass-and-run play and Jim Evenson's one-yard plunge that gave Lions a 17-3 edge at the end of the first quarter. Phillips connected a safety touch in that quarter.

Bomber head coach Jim Spavital, noting the four interceptions on quarterback Don Jonas, said the team just could not expect to win, given the ball away so often. One that hurt particularly was by George Anderson.

At that point, in the third quarter, Bombers were down 23-16 and had pushed into scoring territory on short passes to Bob Larose and Jim Thorpe. Anderson snuffed the threat, grabbing the ball on the one and running it to the Winnipeg 25.

The turnover did not lead directly to any scoring, as Evenson fumbled soon after and defensive tackle Ray Watrin fell on the ball. But Bombers as a team did not recover from the missed chance.

Spavital agreed that Jonas seemed hot and cold, connecting on 15 of 29 pass attempts for 190 yards gained, the same yardage that quarterback Paul Brothers earned with nine of 17 tries.

The Winnipeg coach said his receivers dropped too many passes and the interceptions hurt. Two were by halfback Wayne Matherne in the first quarter and one led to Young's touchdown. Greg Findlay made another.

Lions, who went through the game without giving up an interception, had the edge on the ground with Young and Evenson rolling up 75 and 74 yards, respectively. Bombers gained 103 yards rushing, compared with B.C.'s 174.

McQuay Out in Front

TORONTO (CP) — Shortly after Leon McQuay arrived in Toronto Argonauts' training camp, the Eastern Football Conference club brass had visions of his being prone to injuries.

Shin splints, a traditional hazard with pro football players, often circumvent other injuries, especially pulled muscles.

Fortunately, for Argos, McQuay outgrew the splints and has emerged as their biggest threat, scoring two touchdowns in each of the first two scheduled games.

His 24 points is 10 more than runner-up Gerry Organ; Ottawa Rough Rider placekicker whose six converts, two field goals and two singles give him 14 points in the EFC scoring statistics released here this week.

McQuay is No. 2 man in the conference rushing department, 222 yards and a 7.9 average a carry in two games to 276 piled up by Ottawa's Dennis Duncan in three games for a 5.6 average.

The 21-year-old rookie from Tampa, Fla., also rates high among conference pass receivers and is among a group at six behind leader Hugh Oldham of Ottawa, with nine, and Tony Gabriel of Hamilton Tiger-Cats and Wayne Giardino of Ottawa, at seven apiece.

Tarkenton Joins Joe on Sidelines

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Pro football lost its second glamor quarterback in less than 48 hours Monday afternoon, when New York Giants signal caller Fran Tarkenton left the club and returned to his Atlanta home because he could not reach a contract agreement with owner Wellington T. Mara.

Tarkenton joins New York Jets' quarterback Joe Namath on the sidelines. Namath continued to recuperate at New York's Lenox Hill Hospital following surgery Sunday morning to repair torn ligaments and remove damaged cartilage in his left knee.

Whenever Tarkenton returns, it will not be soon enough for Giants' coach Alex Webster, judging from the team's exhibition opener against Houston Oilers Monday night in the Astrodome. Houston scored two quick touchdowns before the hometown fans, built up a 21-3 lead by halftime, then coasted to a 35-6 romp over the Giants.

In Monday night's other preseason contest, Philadelphia Eagles turned two blocked punts to their advantage and defeated Oakland Raiders 23-24 in a West Coast game.

Eagles' quarterback Pete Liske threw a TD pass to Lee Bouggess.

ATLANTA (AP) — Fran Tarkenton, the New York Giants quarterback who scrambled his way to a reported $100,000 contract, denied Monday night he is retiring from the game.

"I think I should make statements concerning what I am going to do," Tarkenton said when told that Wellington T. Mara, owner of the National Football League club, had told a news conference in Houston his quarterback is retiring.

"I am not retiring," said Tarkenton. "Mr. Mara and I just have not been able to come together on contract terms . . ."

Tarkenton, who in 10 NFL seasons passed for 35,917 and 205 touchdowns, left the Giants Sunday night and returned to his Atlanta home.

Tarkenton has signed one-year contracts in the past, reported to be for $100,000.

At his news conference in Houston, Mara said: "I told him he was making a mistake. But if he wanted to retire that was his prerogative. Fran came to me and told me that under the present circumstances he has, so many obligations and people who worked for him that he could not go on playing football."

Mara said he didn't think contract negotiations presented any insurmountable snag, but that there was a question of a loan which Tarkenton wanted from the club.

He said on the basis of what his advisers told him, he could not make the loan, which he said was in the six-figure category.

However, Tarkenton, who led the Giants to their best season last year since 1963, a 9-5 mark, insists "the only thing involved is my contract."

"Our 30,000 mile guarantee proves a lot about this $36.88 BRAKE OVERHAUL"
Disc brakes extra.
"That 30,000 mile guarantee tells you a lot about the quality of brake linings we use. About our workmanship. And about our concern for your safety. "Thorough, painstaking care goes into every step of the job. $36.88 is a rock-bottom price. But we certainly don't cut any corners. There's too much at stake.
1 "We turn the drums and are the new brake linings for a perfect fit. Total contact between drum and lining over the entire surface is your best guarantee of ideal braking performance.
2 "We check the entire braking system. We examine the wheel cylinders and the master cylinder.
"We also inspect the brake shoe return springs to make sure they have even tension on all four wheels. If not, your car will pull to one side when you brake. "Then we check your hydraulic fluid lines. Very carefully. We don't just look for leaks. We look for corrosion inside — weak spots that may give way if you must make a panic stop.
3 "We clean and re-pack your front wheel bearings. We remove inner and outer bearings and inspect them for flaws. Then we clean off the old, crusted grease and re-pack with top-quality grease. This could save you from replacing wheel bearings damaged by neglect.
4 "We add super heavy duty brake fluid. We use the best. This is certainly no place to skimp, after we've taken so much care every step of the way.
5 "Then we road-test your car. When our Riding System technicians put their stamp of approval on your brake overhaul, you can be sure it measures up to the highest standards of material and workmanship. The Firestone standard, backed by a 30,000 mile guarantee."

Take Gold, Silver

Canadian Divers Make Sweep

CALI, Colombia (CP) — Nancy Robertson, a 21-year-old college student from Winnipeg, compiled the most points ever registered from the 10-metre tower by a Canadian woman Monday as she led Canada to a gold-and-silver sweep at the Pan-American Games.

Miss Robertson's total was 375.18 points, compared with 363.57 by team-mate Beverley Boys of Pickering, Ont., who also trains in Winnipeg.

Debby Lipman of the United States won the bronze medal with 362.01, with Mitzi King of the U.S. fourth at 337.77.

Speaking of his divers' one-two victory, diving coach Don Webb said:

"Either Nancy or Bev could have won the Olympic Games with those scores.

"About five weeks ago we won the Swedish Cup and beat Olympic gold medalist Melina Duchkova of Czechoslovakia. Now we've beaten the best in the Americas in King and Lipman."

Bev dived first on the wind-up day of the tower, going in with 203.13 points. She got 48.4 points on a forward 3½ somersault, piked, diving her 251.37.

Miss King, who at that time had 191.94 points, got 41.24 on a back 3½ somersault with tuck for a total of 233.28.

Miss Lipman pulled up 48.99 points on a back 1½ somersault in layout position for a total of 246.84.

Nancy, from Saskatoon, was leading with 211.68 points going into Monday's dives and picked up a high 50.16 on a back 1½ somersault, piked.

"I thought my knees would never stop shaking," she said when she climbed out of the pool.

Bev was shaky off the tower with her second dive, an inward 1½ somersault in tuck position but won 48.96 points for it for 200.93.

Miss King, on her second dive, tried a tough 2½ somersault in tuck position with a 2.7 degree of difficulty. She was long and did not tuck tight but still picked up 43.74 points for 277.02.

Miss Lipman came back strong with a forward 3½ somersault in tuck and registered 50.94 points for 302.82.

Nancy fought back with an inward 2½ somersault, tucked, for 54 points and a total of 315.84.

All four girls—the other seven in the competition were well out of it—pulled out all stops on their final dive.

Bev pulled off a forward 1½ somersault with three twists, a dive with a 2.9 degree of difficulty seldom used in a woman diver's repertoire.

She picked up a sensational 62.64 score for it, to run her total 363.57.

Miss King came back with a backward 1½ somersault with 2½ twists, almost as difficult a dive as that of Miss Boys. She got 60.76 points for a total of 337.77.

Like Miss King, Miss Lipman went for a dive with a 2.7 degree of difficulty, a forward 2½ with one twist and picked up 59.13 points for 362.01. She was short of the silver medal by 1.56 points.

Even with everything riding on her last dive, Nancy picked up 59.28 points for a forward 1½ somersault with two twists for 375.12 points.

"I was worried, very, very worried," she said.

Miss Robertson, unbeatable and unscathed after two days of diving 35 feet against some of the toughest competition in the world, suffered her only mishap on her final dive.

She skinned a toe climbing out of the pool.

Donna-Marie's gold and another in women's tower diving by Nancy Robertson of Saskatoon brought the Canadian team's gold total to 16 after completion of 166 events. The Titan is a strong third in the standing with a total of 70 medals. The U.S. leads with 91 gold and runner-up Cuba has 35.

Canada won nine medals all told Monday—two gold, four silver and one bronze in swimming and diving, a bronze in yachting and a bronze in wrestling.

The Canadian girls have been the talk of poolside observers who have watched them win eight of 12 swimming and diving finals. But the Canadian men haven't won any gold as yet in the pool where the American team continued to dominate, winning two more gold Monday night for a total of 11.

Of the dozen men's final completed in swimming and diving, only Ecuador got a peak through the American curtain, winning two more gold Monday night for a total of 31.

Of the dozen men's final completed in swimming and diving, only Ecuador got a peak through the American curtain, winning a single gold.

In the women's 200-metre breaststroke, Jaude Wright of Toronto had her second gold medal in sight for Canada from the opening gun right to the last 25 metre when she lost the lead. Her 2:39.96 of 3:51.6 held by Miss Cist.

Lyn Colella, of Seattle beat Miss Wright for the gold with a time of 2:39.0. The bronze winner, Leonor Uresta of Mexico, was 1.7 seconds behind Miss Wright. Rose-Marie Pepe of Vancouver was fifth in 2:55.9.

The first of the two blackouts occurred in the race preceding the women's 200 backstroke, the 200-metre individual medley for men.

The lights went out midway through the medley but there was sufficient twilight for the race to be completed. The judges got down on their knees at the finish line to get a better view.

Steve Furniss of the U.S. won the medley, giving him both the 200 and 400 medley titles. His time of 2:10.8 was a Games record. Big Frank Heckl of the U.S. was second, Mexico's Felipe Munoz third and Dave Hunwell of Calgary sixth.

The American put out an announcement over the loudspeaker that they were after a world record in the men's 800-metre freestyle relay. They got their wish.

Heckl, a 6-foot-5 pre-medical student anchored the U.S. team to a world-record clocking of 7:45.8, the first world swimming mark to fall in these Games. Another U.S. team set the old mark of 7:48.0 last year in Tokyo.

Jerry Heidenbreich, Jim Mc-Conica and Steve Genter swam the first three legs with McConica's 1:58.1 the fastest 200 leg.

The Canadian team was second in 8:04.8 and Brasil third in 8:08.4. Bob Kasting of Lethbridge, Alta., gave away too much distance to Heidenbreich in the first leg, and the Canadians never were in the race. Ron Jacks of Vancouver, Brian Phillips of Winnipeg and Ralph Hutton of Campbell River, B.C., swam the last three legs in order.

In the women's springboard last Thursday, Elizabeth Carruthers of Edmonton was the winner with Miss Boys getting a bronze.

Dodgers Gain Ground On Fading Giants

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Los Angeles Dodgers are moving up fast on the fading San Francisco Giants, who have held a comfortable lead in the West Division of the National League for most of the season.

Monday night, the Dodgers sliced San Francisco's lead to 4½ games—the smallest margin since July 7—with a 6-5 victory over St. Louis Cardinals and Bob Gibson.

In the only other major league game Monday Boston Red Sox outslugged Detroit Tigers 12-11 in an afternoon contest in the American League.

The Dodgers, who have trimmed the Giants lead since falling nine games back Aug. 1, blasted Cardinal pitching for 15 hits, including four each by Wes Parker and Willie Davis.

"It's the best we've hit in a long time," said manager Walt Alston, whose Dodgers trail the Giants by only three games in the loss column. San Francisco has lost seven of its last eight games.

The Dodgers pounded Gibson for 14 hits in seven innings in beating him for the third straight time this season.

Parker doubled following a Cardinal error in the second inning, before Duke Sims belted a two-run double. After the Cards tied it on Dal Maxvill's two-run single in the bottom of the second, the Dodgers again took a two-run lead in the third on singles by Bill Buckner, Davis, Willie Crawford and Parker.

Davis singled home a run in the fourth, and Parker doubled in the seventh and scored the final Los Angeles run on a single by Al Downing. The Cards added a run in the third, and Ted Sizemore singled in two more runs in the eighth before Jim Brewer came in and preserved Downing's 14th victory.

Richie Allen was a late scratch from the Dodger lineup for the second time this season. Allen, the club leader in runs batted in, overslept and didn't get to the ballpark until the start of the game.

Rico Petrocelli, making his first pinch-hitting appearance of the season after being given a rest, capped the wild Boston-Detroit slugfest with a run-scoring single in the ninth inning. The hit was the 2nd in the game and scored John Kennedy, who had doubled.

Rookie catcher Bob Montgomery drove in six Boston runs with a two-run double in the second and his first major league grand-slam homer during an eight-run fourth.

Detroit's Bill Freehan drilled three solo homers, Willie Horton smashed two homers and Gates Brown in five runs, and Aurelio Rodriguez cracked a solo homer.

The game was interrupted by a melee in the sixth inning when Detroit reliever Bill Denehy hit Boston outfielder Reggie Smith with a pitch on his back just below the right shoulder. The two exchanged words as Smith headed towards first base, with Freehan, the Detroit catcher, standing between them. Then, Smith threw a punch over Freehan's shoulder that just missed Denehy, causing both dugouts and bullpens to empty. But there was no further trouble.

Tennis Field Proves Tough

TORONTO (CP) — Canadians managed to take only two sets from a tough international field Monday as five lost first-round men's singles matches in the $70,000 Canadian open tennis championships.

The depth of the draw for the richest-ever tourney held in Canada—the men's singles winner gets $10,000—was accented further with the upset of 11th-seeded Pancho Gonzales of Los Angeles by a young Pakistani who turned pro three weeks ago.

Three Canadians remain in second-round men's singles play today, but their chances are about as good as those of Custer at the Little Big Horn.

Tony Bardsley of Vancouver, semi-finalist in the Canadian closed last week in Winnipeg, drew a first-round bye to meet top-seeded John Newcombe of Australia, this year's Wimbledon king.

Others with second round byes are closed-finalist Jim Boyce of Toronto who will meet seventh-seeded Marty Reisen of Evanston, Ill., while Keith Carpenter of Toronto, the only remaining Canadian Davis Cup player, takes on defending-champion Rod Laver of Australia, top money-winner on the pro tournament circuit this year with $207,767.

Top-ranked Canadian Mike Belkin of Toronto, playing with a sore back that left him rubber-legged, was the first casualty as he was beaten 6-3, 2-6, 6-1 by 25-year-old Ray Ruffels of Australia.

Belkin, who displayed brilliant passing shots in the middle set with his two-fisted backhand, said he was "one step behind the ball all the time" because of his sore back that shot pain down his spine and right leg.

"I don't like making excuses but it just drags you down," he said. "I don't like giving 60 or 80 per cent of my game and playing like a dog."

John Sharpe of Toronto, second-ranked Canadian, turned up flat for Marcelo Lara of Mexico in a replay of an American zone Davis Cup match which Sharpe lost in straight sets in June.

"He didn't have to play very well to beat me," said Sharpe who again bowed in straight sets 6-4, 6-3.

Harry Fauquier of Toronto was the only other Canadian to take a set but he was beaten 6-3, 4-6, 6-2 by South African Free McMillan. Canadian closed titleholder Peter Burwash of Toronto was tipped 6-3, 6-4 by Ismail el Shafei of Egypt. Pierre Lamarche of Montreal bowed 6-1, 6-3 to Bob Lutz of Los Angeles.

Second-seeded Arthur Ashe of Los Angeles was extended to a third set to beat Nikki Pilic of Yugoslavia 7-5, 5-7, 6-1.

Ashe said poor volleys cost him a chance to end the match in the second set when he led 5-4 and was serving the 10th game.

"I'm not good at volleying on clay," he said. "When I'm sliding into the ball—I never learned to slide and volley accurately. I hit the ball cleanly but it just goes out or into the net."

Third-seeded Cliff Drysdale of South Africa, who lost in the finals to Ken Rosewall of Australia in last week's United States professional championship at Brookline, Mass., downed Charles Pasarell of Puerto Rico 6-4, 6-3.

Rosewall, who is seeded sixth, continued his victory string by beating countryman Frank Sedgman 6-4, 6-2.

Other matches involving seeded players saw eighth-seeded veteran Roy Emerson handle young Richard Cresby 7-5, 6-3 in a battle of Australians. 10th-seeded Andres Gimeno of Spain trounce Bob Carmichael of Australia 6-1, 6-2.

Gonzales, a 43-year-old Los Angeles grandfather, was victimized 7-6, 6-3 by 22-year-old Haroon Rahim, who he has met many times in practice at the University of California at Los Angeles where Rahim is on a tennis scholarship. This was their first tournament clash.

Rahim was successful in keeping the wily Gonzales away from the net with thundering ground strokes from the baseline.

"He passes and lobs very well," Rahim said. "I tried to stay back as much as possible. I just tried to play good defence."

Only Carpenter and Fauquier advanced to the second round in men's doubles but they got there on a default by Frank Stebbins of Salt Lake City, Utah, and Pat Cramer of South Africa. Cramer's plane was late.

The footbone's connected to the headbone.

Think about it.
Your feet do a lot of things for you. They dance when you're happy. They walk when you have to get someplace. They jump when you're excited. They tiptoe when you come home late. In short, you can't get along well without them. And that's where proper footwear helps.

When you play tennis, you wear tennis shoes. When you walk, you wear good walking shoes. And when you work, if your job calls for them, you wear safety shoes. They protect your feet from injuries. Puncture-resistant soles protect against protruding nails. Protective toe caps absorb the shock of falling objects. And painful stubbing. And deep treads in the soles protect against treacherous walking conditions.

Take a good look at your shoes. Make sure they're not getting run down at the heel. Change fraying laces. And check the soles to see that they're in good condition.

That's what self-defence is. Taking good care of yourself.

Proper footwear protects your feet.

Check that soles are in good condition.

Self-defence is taking good care of yourself.

Self-defence. It works.

Saskatchewan Moratorium Proposed

Finance and Implement Firms Fear One-year Loan Holiday

TORONTO (CP) — Finance companies and farm implement companies say they and Saskatchewan farmers will suffer if provincial legislation providing a one-year holiday on loans is passed.

Bankers have expressed doubt that the proposed legislation would apply to bank loans.

The bill now before the Saskatchewan legislature would allow farmers to suspend payments on farm machinery, livestock and land debts between Aug. 1, 1971, and Aug. 1, 1972.

Canadian Farm and Industrial Equipment Institute—a Toronto-based organization whose members include major manufacturers of farm implements—sent a 1,750-word telegram Monday to Roy Romanow, Saskatchewan attorney-general, giving details of the institute's objections to the bill.

"Political expediency should not over-ride the very real adverse implications and risks inherent in this bill to the viability of the agricultural community.

"We therefore strongly urge that the government submit this important bill to a committee of the legislature so that farmers, dealers, lending institutions and suppliers be given adequate opportunity to make representations before the bill is passed," the telegram said.

Figures from five major lending institutions in the farm implement and commercial vehicle fields show the amount of outstanding credit in this area is at least $15.5 million. Included in the five are the finance subsidiaries of four major manufacturers of farm implements and trucks.

The Saskatchewan agriculture minister, Jack Messer says the government has no estimate on the amount of farm debt outstanding.

Spokesmen for companies that make loans for farm equipment say they believe the legislation would substantially increase their risks.

The chairman from the farm equipment manufacturers' association said the bill "creates an unfavorable environment for all lending institutions" because there is no assurance that the present expiration date will not be extended.

"Consequently, credit grantors are forced to make determinations as to whether they undertake future business of lending or financing in the province."

The telegram was signed by R. M. Snelgrove, chairman of the legislative committee, and R. E. Cudmore, president.

Mr. Snelgrove, a member of the legal staff of Massey-Ferguson Ltd., said his company is "concerned about what might happen in other provinces."

He said problems for companies financing farm equipment are compounded by existing Saskatchewan legislation which allows a lender to do no more than repossess. This means that if resale value of repossessed equipment is less than the balance of the loan the lender must assume a loss and cannot sue the farmer for the difference.

He said Massey-Ferguson's experience has been that they lose money every time they repossess and they prefer to give the farmer every opportunity to make payments.

Banks are a major factor in farm credit but bankers generally were not concerned about the bill.

Some bankers said they doubted that the legislation would apply to banks because banks operate under federal legislation. Their interpretation was that the provinces only could legislate credit terms governing financial institutions operating under provincial legislation.

A major portion of mortgage loans are made by institutions regulated by federal legislation.

The Canadian Bankers' Association said it is studying the bill but had no comment at present.

Automobile industry sources estimate that about 80 per cent of dealer sales of cars are financed by the company's finance subsidiaries but they say the percentage may be less for truck sales, which would be affected by the Saskatchewan bill.

STOP KILLING YOURSELF

By Peter J. Steincrohn, M.D., F.A.C.P.
Author of "The Doctor Looks At Life"

Short Blackouts May Be Petit Mal

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: Not too long ago, perhaps two or three months, you wrote about a young man who had blackouts. I recall that he was worried about killing himself while driving his auto.

I meant to clip the column but it has been lost in the shuffle. Can you send me a copy? I have an identical problem. It usually (almost always) occurs after lunch and before dinner.

My blackouts actually last a second or so. When they do, I feel "stunned". It's like an overwhelming tired feeling — Mr. K.

COMMENT: Sorry I haven't the column. However, I wonder if it would help. It isn't certain — although you think so — that your problem and his are "identical". You should have your own doctor decide.

Your symptoms may not be due to hypoglycemia, to hypothyroidism, or to narcolepsy (overwhelming desire to sleep). There may be some other reason. For example, I think it is important that you have an EEG (electroencephalogram) to rule out petit mal as the cause. Meanwhile, there is more than one danger involved. Not only of "killing yourself" in an accident, but inflicting injury on innocent drivers or pedestrians. Don't you agree that it makes good sense to give up driving (for safety's sake) until you have been thoroughly examined?

* * *

For Mrs. W.: What do I think of the grapefruit diet? Just as little as I think of any other preposterous shortcuts in reducing. For one month try eating "everything" but cutting down total intake 25 to 35 per cent. See if this isn't as effective in losing 10 pounds (and less painful) than any fancy, contrived diet.

* * *

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: Is a stroke the same as a cerebral hemorrhage? — Mrs. K.

COMMENT: Yes. But the term "stroke" also applies to anything which will interfere with arterial circulation in the brain. For example, cerebral thrombosis (clot) or cerebral embolus (something floating in the blood stream which occludes an artery) usually a small one. In some cases a temporary spasm of a brain artery is also called a stroke.

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: I have broken veins in my legs. They make an ugly pattern. A friend just told me that eating oranges and orange peels will help. True? — Mrs. W.

COMMENT: Vitamin C is supposed to decrease abnormal fragility of blood vessel walls; but it is not invariably helpful. I should think that taking orange without the peel would be a sufficient trial of its effectiveness.

* * *

For Mrs. W.: I know of no special medicine which will "cure" hardening of the arteries (atherosclerosis).

* * *

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: Over a year ago, at age 58, I had a severe attack of shingles. Recently I've had a heart attack. Is there any connection? — Mr. D.

COMMENT: I doubt it.

Sydney J. Harris Says

Peace Studies Planned

One of the best ways in which the college students' demands for "relevance" can be combined with good scholarship and the humanities will be offered this fall, when Manhattan College, a Roman Catholic school in the Bronx, begins an undergraduate course in "peace studies."

Believed to be the first of its kind in the U.S. this course will be a "major" requiring 30 credits as well as weekly "peace seminars" and a year-long independent project in the field.

It will be based on interdisciplinary studies, drawing on courses in history, English, economics, philosophy and biology. For the subject of human conflict — as institutionalized in war — ranges all the way from the biology of human behavior to the social psychology of international problems.

It is astonishing that the basic human problem of survival, now threatened as never before by the possession of nuclear weapons, has been given hardly any attention on the academic scene, except in a few rarified "think-tanks" for expensive game-theory experts.

War is a social institution, and the most overwhelming of all. It is a connected problem that cannot be solved on the political or social or economic levels, but must encompass an understanding of its deep psychological and emotional roots.

Most people confuse the terms "aggression," "conflict" and "war". Because there is an aggressive component in our species, because we are bound to have "conflicts" they make the unwarranted assumption that "you'll always have war."

But war is not aggression or conflict on the biological scale. Other animals quarrel and disagree but do not engage in wholesale slaughter of their own kind; indeed, violence is extremely rare among animals of the same species, and almost never leads to death. Man is the only animal that has institutionalized violence and made it part of his social fabric.

The Manhattan College course will not only deal with the biological questions of territoriality, hierarchy, and intergroup conflict among primates and men; but also with international relations, law, judicial economic geography, religion, pacifism, and the whole spectrum of peace-making efforts from ancient times to the contemporary world.

All these need to be tied together, as they have not been before, so that we can obtain a clear and coherent overview of how we can get from anarchy and violence to some form of world tranquility. If the end of knowledge is action, based on the best value-judgments we are able to make, then "peace studies" might be the most valuable course any college could teach.

Jeane Dixon's Horoscope

For August 11

Your birthday today: This year you must diversify, create reserve vocations to follow past time if need be. Some bad causes and waste are very useful learning opportunities and friends in which romantic attachments may flourish. Today's natives seldom are satisfied with conditions as they find them.

ARIES (Mar. 21 — Apr. 19): You'll be proud and well rewarded for your tact and prudence of mind. Take a complete change of scene and mood for a quiet, solitary evening.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 — May 20): The stress of today is part of creating brighter conditions tomorrow. Put your entire energy into doing things you really believe in. Can support others ably.

GEMINI (May 21 — June 20): Feelings run well ahead of thought. You may blurt out something awkward, spoil a deal — and be ever so much better off. The goal is to live comfortably with yourself afterward.

CANCER (June 21 — July 22): Wear your favorite cheer up, seek the romantic and sentimental in everything you do.

LEO (July 23 — Aug. 22): Expect little from anybody; be moderate and keep doing the best you can. Attend neglected bits of routine, tag ends of information to retrieve, errands to complete.

VIRGO (Aug. 23 — Sept. 22): Being obstinate is a luxury; be sure you have adequate reason and can prove some point by doing so.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 — Oct. 22): Your sense of justice leads you into action beyond your plans. Avoid overdoing — divert some of your restless energy into tending obligations you've let slide.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23—Nov. 21): Two sharp words plus two more may add up to a schism whenever your conscience or jealousy has been building. Seek better ways, and means of settling such matters.

SAGITTARIUS. (Nov. 22 — Dec. 21): You may not like what you hear about yourself, but it will pay to listen and speculate as to what you have done to provoke such commentary.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 — Jan. 19): For lack of a good excuse or definite information you may have to let things go on exempt from your guidance for quite a while.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20 — Feb. 18): Younger people, freshly rising puzzles create pressing inconvenience. Write off your lost time as experience.

PISCES (Feb. 19 — Mar. 20): Where people come to disagreement or a standstill, let them alone. Make plans for your own solitary ventures and proceed.

Burning Rectal Itch Relieved In Minutes

This Special Hemorrhoid Remedy Contains a Unique Healing Substance That Relieves Pain As It Shrinks Hemorrhoids

One of the most common afflictions is a condition known as "Itching Piles". It is most embarrassing for the sufferer during the day and especially aggravating at night.

If you want satisfactory relief — here's good news. A research laboratory has found a unique healing substance with the ability to promptly relieve the burning itch and pain. It actually shrinks hemorrhoids. This substance has been shown in product tests to check the rate of healing. Its germ-killing properties also help prevent infection.

In one hemorrhoid case after another "very striking improvement" was reported. This improvement was maintained over a period of months. Among these sufferers was a wide variety of hemorrhoidal conditions — some of long standing.

This was accomplished by a new healing substance (Bio-Dyne)—developed by a world-renowned research institution. This substance is now obtainable in ointment or suppository form known as Preparation H. Ask for Preparation H. Suppositories (convenient to carry if away from home) or Preparation H. Ointment with special applicator. Available at all drug counters. Satisfaction or your money refunded.

Council to Get Report on Riot At Vancouver

VANCOUVER (CP) — Protests over police handling of a demonstration in the Gastown area Saturday night shift to city council today as aldermen prepared to receive a police report and many of the 100 affidavits from witnesses.

Four aldermen, the New Democratic Party and the B.C. Civil Liberties Association all called for an independent investigation of alleged police brutality by Attorney-General Leslie Peterson.

A special team of five detectives spent the day interviewing some of 200 witnesses to the demonstration and ensuing riot, while lawyers for Gastown property-owners took affidavits from other bystanders and participants.

Mayor Tom Campbell said Monday he would ask Mr. Peterson to conduct an inquiry if the preliminary report by police indicated there was any police brutality.

Ed Hicks, who will be presenting the affidavits to council for the Gastown Merchants Association, said most of the people making affidavits weren't young long-hairs, but "older people, about 40 or 45, who are very incensed about what happened to them Saturday."

The affidavits are a combination of what people saw and what happened to them personally. A lot of people have been showing bruises where they were hit or banging in wood-stained garments they were wearing Saturday."

The disturbance began Saturday night as a "grasstown smoke-in," organized by Yippies to protest Operation Dustbin, a recent police sweep through the skid road section of the city which has been gradually restored and populated by restaurants and boutiques designed to preserve the old atmosphere.

It was mainly peaceful until four police on horseback moved in to clear away the crowd of several thousand.

At a press conference Monday, Police Chief John Fisk said the "disturbed" that plain-clothes police were equipped for riot duty and were used in the incident.

Regarding the reported use of the three-foot hickory riot sticks as clubs, Chief Fisk said they are basically a defensive weapon, to be held with hands at both ends. They could be used as prods but never as clubs, he said.

"Last year the police received praise for handling demonstrations. This year it's different. Daily our officers accept verbal and physical abuse, but this is no different from last year."

A group of about 20 Young New Democrats of B.C. carried placards through Gastown to the police station early Monday evening, protesting the police action and demanding the removal of Chief Fisk and Inspector Robert Abercrombie, who is in charge of the Saturday night operation.

Robert Williams, NDP member of the legislature for Vancouver East and a former alderman, called for Mayor Campbell's resignation. He said residents had "lived with an irresponsible, loudmouth, headline-grabbing mayor for too long."

"In recent weeks, and on earlier occasions, I have had the impression that the mayor was urging both the police and the young people to become more antagonistic toward one another, and now it looks as though the mayor got what he wanted."

Mr. Williams said the mayor's approach to the soft drug problems in Gastown was totally irresponsible and it should have been dealt with through the police commission "rather than by inflammatory statements."

Farmers Give Eggs to Poor

MONTREAL (CP) — Disenchanted farmers distributed about 7,800 dozen eggs to low-income citizens' groups Monday in a peaceful protest against Fedco, Quebec's egg marketing agency.

The egg producers, who said they plan to hold more give-aways, claim the agency is forcing them to sell eggs at a loss and then over-charging the public with no resultant profit to the farmers.

The protest followed a meeting in Drummondville Sunday when more than 150 egg producers voted to set up a new organization to replace Fedco.

The producers decided to revise the list of egg farmers in Quebec, demand payment of money owed farmers by Fedco and boycott the supply of eggs to Fedco.

Late last week, Rudy Kral, and Sons of Petrolia, Ont., applied for an injunction against what it called Fedco's "blatant interference with, and an impediment to" interprovincial trade.

Fedco not only grades eggs and sets prices but also is empowered to seize out-of-province eggs that enter Quebec without its approval.

Benson Thinks Grants For Youth Are Success

KINGSTON, Ont. (CP) — The $12-million Opportunities for Youth program likely will continue, Finance Minister Edgar Benson said Monday.

"The program has generally worked out well and it is likely the government will continue the program next year," Mr. Benson said after a tour of six area projects being carried out under the program.

Mr. Benson said he toured the six projects to get a first-hand look at how the federal funds were being spent.

Mr. Benson also said the state secretary's department is conducting a national evaluation of the program. He did not say whether the results would be made public.

Judge Flays Denial Of Lawyer Before Test

TORONTO (CP) — Conviction of a Stayner, Ont., man for refusing to take a breath test was quashed Monday and the presiding judge said police action in the case revolted him.

Clarence Wayne Brownridge appealed to the Ontario court of appeal following his conviction by Provincial Judge Leslie Gamble Jan. 21 on a charge of failing without reasonable excuse to provide a breath sample for analysis.

Mr. Brownridge's counsel, D. J. D. Sims, submitted that Metropolitan Toronto police at first refused to allow Mr. Brownridge to consult his lawyer early Nov. 19, 1970, to decide whether he ought to comply with a demand for a breath sample.

About 3 a.m. Mr. Brownridge spoke to his lawyer and then asked for a chance to give a breath sample but the offer was refused.

Mr. Justice Edson Haines said in his judgment handed down Monday: "It is obvious that as soon as the accused in this case requested to consult his lawyer and that request was denied, the Canadian Bill of Rights was violated."

". . . I cannot adequately express my revulsion at the police behavior in this case. They were wrong."

Youth Says Police Threatened To Break Second Leg for Him

VANCOUVER (CP) — A 18-year-old Ontario youth charged Monday that he was "waylaid" Saturday night by about 10 riot-squad police who broke a bone in one of his legs, then forced him to walk after threatening to break the other.

Robert Elliot, son of Dick Elliot, city editor of the Thunder Bay News-Chronicle, said the incident occurred away from the Gastown fracas which saw 70 persons arrested and 38 of them charged.

"I was with a couple of friends sitting on a fence ..... two blocks from the scene of the riot and we were phoning around the different agencies looking for a place to stay. We hadn't been hassling anyone—police or anyone.

"A police car with four riot-equipped officers drove up and parked nearby for about five minutes. They just sat there, then used their radio.

"Finally they got out and told us to move off the fence. I tried to climb down to the street side, but they told me to descend the other side, into a parking lot, and I did this.

"Behind the fence there were at least seven uniformed police in riot equipment and there were four men in plain clothes also in riot garb.

"They called me over and soon as I got to them they started beating me with the riot sticks.

"I kept trying to tell them we were just trying to make phone calls and we'd been doing nothing wrong. Finally, one hit my legs out from under me and I could feel the right leg snap.

"I asked them to get me to hospital and told them my leg was broken.

"They said: 'Get up or we'll break your other leg.'

"I got up and managed to walk to the police van and they handcuffed me down again. I told them again my leg was broken and one of them said: 'Does this punk-look arrestable?' Finally one of them picked me up and carried me to the wagon. They only arrested me after they broke my leg.

"At the police station they asked me a few questions and then sent for an ambulance. There was no charge laid."

Moonmen Undergo Tests

Strikingly Beautiful Color Pictures Taken by Astronauts Are Released

HOUSTON (AP) — The United States space agency today released five strikingly beautiful color pictures taken by astronauts David R. Scott and James B. Irwin as they explored a valley of the moon at Hadley Base.

Scientists, meanwhile, continued their preliminary examination of Apollo 15's moon rocks and doctors scheduled an extra physical exam for the space men, who returned to earth Saturday from their 12 day journey.

The first Hadley Base pictures released show the astronauts, their lunar lander Falson and their moon car on the stark, desolate lunar plain. The sky is jet black, the deep surface dust is grey.

There are shots of the two astronauts saluting the U.S. flag; Irwin sitting in the moon buggy and standing beside it, and the buggy by itself, surrounded by the footprints of the explorers. Rising in the distant background in four of the pictures are sections of the Apennine Mountains, their tops rounded like terrestrial hills.

A sixth color shot shows the command ship Endeavour orbiting 70 miles above the moon. It was snapped from the Falcon while the two ships were separated.

The National Aeronautics and Space Administration also released nine black and white photos of similar content. It delayed release of a film clip until Wednesday.

Dr. Charles A. Berry, the astronauts' chief physician, summoned Scott, Irwin and Alfred M. Worden to the extra physical today to monitor how fast they are adjusting to earth's gravity after experiencing weightlessness and the moon's one sixth gravity.

Dr. Berry reported after a four hour exam Monday that "the crew is in good general condition."

"However, their performance had not returned to pre-flight levels." He referred mainly to exercise on a bicycle-like device.

Dr. Berry also reported that Scott developed minor bleeding under three fingernails on his right hand and one in his left hand during the first lunar surface excursion "due to work done with the tightly fitting suit glove." He said the problem did not affect Scott's work.

Scott and Irwin Monday night joined with scientists and geologists to view the first box of moon samples opened in a sterile, glass enclosed pressure cabinet.

Forest Smoke Covers Plains

VANCOUVER (CP) — A pall of smoke from the burning forests of British Columbia and Alberta extends hundreds of miles from northern B.C. through central Alberta into Montana and North Dakota, combining with hot weather and difficult terrain to frustrate the efforts of fire fighters.

"There's all this damn smoke," said an A.C. forest service official. "We've got to have rain."

The smoke extends along a line through Edmonton and Calgary to Helena and Billings, Mont., and north again to Yorkton, Sask. Visibility at Bismarck, N.D. was only three miles.

Sizzling dry weather continued to make work difficult for more than 2,500 men battling some 350 forest fires in B.C., many of them burning out of control.

With no prospect of rain in most areas this week, officials of the B.C. forest service said their only luck appeared to lie in the absence of high winds.

More than half the fires in the province—324—were burning in the Kamloops and Nelson forest districts in southern and southeastern B.C. Dense smoke in some areas kept water bombers and spotting planes grounded.

Worst of the fires in B.C. were burning in a hard-to-reach 150-mile stretch of the Rocky Mountain Trench between Golden and McBride. Twenty fires were reported to be burning in steep river valleys between the Rockies and the Selkirk and Columbia mountain ranges.

Lull Ends In Belfast

'I don't get it! How does this come under housekeeping?'

BELFAST (CP) — Gun battles broke out in strife-torn Belfast after daylight today following an uneasy post midnight lull. Two gunmen were shot and killed by British troops, bringing the death toll to 20 in the fighting that has wracked Northern Ireland since Monday.

At least one British soldier was wounded in the gutshille in the Whiterock Road area of Belfast and an army spokesman said more bodies might be found. British troops arrested 08 persons in the battle.

Another fight was raging well into the morning in the markets area near the city's centre where gunmen had taken over a bakery and were under fire from the army.

After an hour-long spell of gunfire, troops burst into the building but four men were holding out on the roof. A spokesman said there might be two dead with them.

Several bomb explosions, most of them nail bombs, were reported elsewhere in Belfast and a number of cars were reported set on fire.

More than 100 persons have been wounded in gunfights, bombings and burnings in Ulster since Monday when the violence erupted after a roundup of more than 300 suspected members of the Irish Republican Army. The Northern Ireland government announced plans then to intern the suspects without trial.

The two gunmen were shot when they opened fire on army patrols, military headquarters said. Three men were captured in the fight just before dawn and 35 persons were picked up for questioning a few hours later when troops moved into the area to flush out snipers.

Heavy Water Decision Near

OTTAWA (CP) — Premier Gerald Regan of Nova Scotia said today he expects the federal government will clarify its intentions with respect to the Glace Bay, N.S., heavy water plant.

Mr. Regan was scheduled to meet Energy Minister J. J. Greene following a federal cabinet meeting today. They were expected to discuss rehabilitation of the heavy water plant.

The multi-million-dollar installation, started in 1963, has never produced any heavy water. It was taken over by the province in 1966.

The province's cost now is estimated at well over $120 million.

Unofficial reports have said that the latest estimate of getting the plant into production involves substantially more than $50 million.

Locked-out Ottawa Garbagemen Brawl with Non-union Drivers

OTTAWA (CP) — Police swiftly defused an early-morning confrontation between locked-out union garbage collectors and non-union garbage truck drivers of Ottawa Disposal Systems Ltd.

One member of the union group was hit by a car at the company's east-end garage, and bricks were thrown through the windshield of one truck. Several firefights broke out, some involving policemen.

The man hit by the car was the only one requiring hospital treatment. Police made four arrests, including the driver of the car and a company security guard who was on one of the trucks. A baseball bat and tire iron were taken from the truck the guard was riding.

Other arrests were for impeding traffic and possession of dangerous weapons, including pieces of wood, iron bars and shovels.

But the 92 union garbage collectors, reinforced by about 200 sympathizers, appeared in a good-natured mood when the confrontation gradually melted away two hours later.

As the confrontation broke up, union organizers were exhorting their men to appear again Thursday morning.

"We'll have 3,000 men here tomorrow," one vowed.

Meanwhile, about 60 youths waited in a downtown park for jobs at $2.20 an hour loading garbage on the trucks.

The company's last offer to the union was $3.27 for drivers and $2.20 for loaders.

The men are members of the Canadian Union of Public Employees.

Before negotiations broke down several weeks ago, the company had offered a 14-per-cent increase over three years, but the union wanted 15 per cent in a one-year contract. The 15-per-cent increase would have given drivers about $3.67 and loaders about $3.47.

When the workers refused the last company offer Friday, they were locked out.

Man Who Won His Appeal Says Police Conduct Good

TORONTO (CP) — A Stayner, Ont., man said Tuesday night that an Ontario Police Commission investigation into the conduct of Toronto police officers who charged him with impaired driving would be a "waste of time," effort and taxpayer money.

Wayne Brownridge, 29, who was refused permission to call his lawyer before taking a breath-analysis test, said in a telephone interview that he was not intimidated by police Nov. 19, 1970.

"They were 100 per cent gentle men," he said. "There's definitely no need to investigate their conduct."

Mr. Brownridge was commenting on a conference held earlier this week by Ontario Attorney-General Allan Lawrence.

Mr. Lawrence said at the time he might ask the Ontario Police Commission to investigate how Mr. Brownridge was treated by the police.

Mr. Lawrence called the conference the day after Mr. Edson Haines of the Ontario Supreme Court ruled that police had violated the Canadian Bill of Rights by refusing to let Mr. Brownridge telephone his lawyer before taking the test.

"I cannot adequately express my revulsion at police behavior in this case," Mr. Justice Haines said, in handing down his decision.

Mr. Lawrence said the attorney-general's department will appeal the ruling at the fall sitting of the Ontario Court of Appeal. Meanwhile, police will continue their policy of not giving impaired driving suspects a chance to telephone lawyers.

Mr. Lawrence said the essence of the test is to get a measurement quickly. If police waited until a lawyer was present, the purpose of the test would be defeated.

But defence lawyer David Sims said in an interview Tuesday that he thought Mr. Lawrence had misinterpreted the comments of Mr. Justice Haines.

"I don't think Mr. Justice Haines goes so far as to say that a lawyer must be present to witness the administration of a breath test," said Mr. Sims.

He said he thought Mr. Justice Haines simply had upheld the right of a suspect to call his lawyer for advice before taking the test.

Drugged Idaho Convicts Riot for Clean Clothes

BOISE, Idaho (AP) — Authorities say about 50 convicts were high on drugs during rioting at the Idaho Penitentiary in which two prisoners were stabbed and two buildings were burned.

Guards fired tear gas as about 150 of the prison's 245 convicts, some armed with knives or baseball bats, rioted Tuesday night. The convicts demanded more frequent changes of clothing because temperatures range as high as 118 degrees in the 100-year-old institution.

Warden Raymond W. May, who made the estimate that about 50 prisoners were high on drugs, brought the situation under control by telling the prisoners that none will be punished for the uprising and that their demand probably will be met.

During a lull in the riot, Warden May and Sheriff Paul Bright argued heatedly before reporters. Bright accused May of being too lenient.

May met with a six-member prisoner council and said the main prisoner grievance was over a rule allowing changes of clothing only every three days despite the 100-degree heat.

A medical attendant, David Bortz, 25, was stabbed in the chest by prisoners who broke into the hospital in search of drugs, prison officials said. Bortz was serving a two-year sentence for passing bad cheques.

"We had removed all the 'hot' drugs," May said. "But they got quite a few pills and some needles."

Charles Rice, 30, serving 10 years for lewd conduct, also was stabbed in the chest.

A third prisoner, Charles Sharp, suffered eye injuries from tear gas fired by guards.

There were no escape attempts and no hostages were taken.

The warden ordered his guards and more than 100 sheriff's deputies and state policemen to stay out of sight to avoid provoking the prisoners.

Sheriff Bright said had he been in charge, "I would have had this mess cleaned up 30 minutes after it happened."

May replied that "it was controllable situation" and that a show of force would have caused more bloodshed.

Big Four Hold Unusual Berlin Talks

BERLIN (AP) — Big Four ambassadors met today for the second consecutive day, and another talk session is scheduled Thursday on the future of Berlin.

The ambassadors of the United States, the Soviet Union, Britain and France began negotiations in March, 1970. Sources said the burst of activity was an attempt to make progress toward new arrangements for the divided city, but reports were that the Soviet demands may still be too high for the others to accept.

Soviet Ambassador Pyotr Abrassimov said, "two big steps" were taken at the meeting Tuesday, but neither he nor his aides would identify the steps. A Soviet spokesman said he was referring to all issues and to the narrowing of the gap between the West and Moscow.

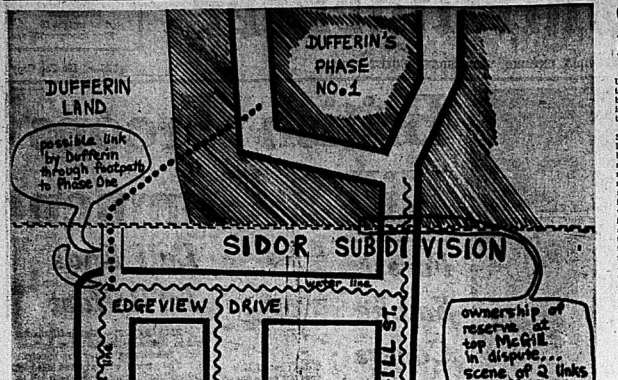
Western officials said the "two-big-steps" statement was purely a Soviet concept and they did not know what was meant.

A British official said there is no agreement on the concessions the Russians are demanding in exchange for their guarantee of unimpeded access to West Berlin. They include:

1. Reducing the political ties between West Berlin and West Germany, which heavily subsidizes the isolated city, and restricting trips of West German politicians to Berlin.

2. Opening a Soviet consulate in West Berlin, which the West fears will be used to soften up West Berlin for eventual absorption into East Germany.

3. Continued discrimination between West Berliners and West Germans in regard to travel and passports. West Berliners are not allowed to travel to East Berlin nor to use their West German passports to enter Communist countries. West Germans are not so restricted.



4. An end to the West German governments representing West Berlin in foreign affairs.

Scene of Controversy

Simplified map above shows the scene of Trenton's long-standing water service dispute along the boundaries between the established subdivision of Wasil Sidor and the first phase of Dufferin Developments. In July, Dufferin hooked into the McGill main and crossed the controversial one-foot reserve. Subsequently, Sidor cut the link, Dufferin restored it and Sidor cut it again. Yesterday, Dufferin began to link up through a 15-foot wide footpath on Edgeview Drive across the path of which there is no disputed reserve.

Trenton's Water Dispute Continues

By KENNETH SMITH
Staff Reporter

TRENTON — "The Public Utilities Commission has called on the town police force to stop Dufferin Developments from tampering with watermains on Edgeview Drive but Wasil Sidor's branches of the water system will go unpunished.

Reports that "the pavement on Edgeview was up and the curbs were cut" by Dufferin yesterday brought utilities commissioners into special session late in the day to phone their lawyers and make decisions.

Doug Mankow, the PUC manager, told the meeting Dufferin had begun to link up to a main on Edgeview Drive and planned to take water into the new 400-home subdivision through a town-owned footpath. Edgeview Drive swings south from McGill Street and runs parallel to the Sidor-Dufferin border.

However, Dufferin crews barely began the job when they left the scene and the commission sought yesterday to have the police check their continuation.

Before they had started, Dufferin tried to secure PUC approval for the eliminate link-up from Edgeview but this was rejected. Town deputy clerk Arden Royce confirmed during the afternoon that a Hugh O'Neil, the Dufferin vice-president, had informed the municipal offices that it was doing the work on Edgeview.

Hooking into the system at Edgeview would give Dufferin water without violating the disputed McGill Street one-foot reserve but the PUC does not like the idea, wanting the water to go through at McGill or not at all.

Taking water through the footpath from Edgeview to Dufferin property, a line must cross an area not yet approved by the Ontario Municipal Board as a subdivision on its way to the first phase of the housing development.

"There is no approved subdivision there. This has never been registered or approved," said commissioner Charles Hilton.

"What they are doing," stated Mr. Mankow, "is trying to service a registered subdivision through an unregistered area."

The commissioners spent only a few minutes discussing the matter before telephoning their Toronto lawyers, Fasken and Calvin, for counsel. As one commissioner after another posed telephone questions to Robert Tuer of Fasken and Calvin, it became clear the advice was to call in the police.

Subsequently a letter was drafted to Dufferin Developments informing the company that "the Commission has instructed the Police to take all necessary steps to prevent any attempt by anyone to connect or tamper with the Public Utilities Commission's watermain on Edgeview Drive."

Earlier in the summer, Fasken and Calvin had advised the sending of letters to both Dufferin and Sidor threatening legal action for further tampering with the water system but since then breaches of the water system have continued at McGill Street.

PUC chairman, D. James MacDonald's statement Monday that, "the big thing to clear up now is the ownership of the one - foot reserve (on McGill)" rang true yesterday.

One member of the commission disclosed that the possibility that Wasil Sidor owns the reserve had deterred the PUC from taking action against him for his second shutting of the watermain on McGill Saturday.

Moreover, Fasken and Calvin have advised the commission not to breach this reserve themselves. In view of this, the PUC has told council they are unable to put water through to Dufferin Developments.

In a letter dated August 8, Mr. Mankow advises council: "Sidor Construction Ltd. has breached the eight - inch watermain at the one foot reserve (on McGill Saturday) and therefore, the Trenton PUC will be unable to supply water to Dufferin Developments (Trenton) Ltd. through its eight - inch watermain until the legal ownership of the one foot reserve is established."

The letter also states, "it is the opinion of our legal advisor that we should not breach the one foot reserve to supply water to Dufferin Developments (Trenton) Ltd."

Mr. MacDonald said the Intelligencer yesterday he is convinced the answer to servicing Dufferin is loop a waterline through the air over the top of the McGill reserve. He said above-the-ground piping is now on the market and it would not freeze in winter.

He explained that Mr. Sidor does not have air rights above the one-foot strip.

Council and the PUC are agreed that water to Dufferin should flow through the line on McGill Street but the commission has resolved not to extend the water service until the reserve dispute is settled.

Orchard Trees Not Assessable

AMELIASBURG (Staff) — Under regional assessment township property owners will be permitted to add $2,500 in improvements to buildings their assessment being raised.

Township treasurer Brian Smith advised council of this last night along with a number of other changes in assessment procedures in his report of a meeting with assessors and clerks from the region last Friday. He also informed council orchardmen will no longer be assessed for apple trees as the trees are now considered part of the land. Growers expecting to have adjustments implemented will have to register a formal appeal he pointed out.

Under new regional assessment, property owners will not be notified of their assessment each year as was the case previously the treasurer reported.

First notices will be distributed in 1974 from a revised roll being assembled in the meantime he said. All new buildings will be added to the roll as they are completed to the satisfaction of the building inspector as is the normal custom, Mr. Smith noted.

The procedure for appealing assessment under the regional plan changes from a set period of time to no limit of time as long as the application is made within one year from the time the property owner is notified.

Treasurer Smith explained that the $2,500 improvement on buildings being allowed free of assessment would come under close inspection and if the spending was in excess of the maximum permitted, the whole amount would be added to the current appraisal for the property.

The changes are part of the effort being put forth by regional government to speed the implementation of the 100 per cent method of assessment for real property in the province, it was noted.

Treasurer Smith substituted for clerk William Nightingale who was unable to be present for the discussion due to a previous commitment.

Council approved two applications for loans under the new Tile Drainage Act. Since the new legislation went into effect, the onus of acceptance is the responsibility of council.

Applications approved were for Ronald Lough, $2,350 and Donald and Edna Jones, $9,000. Both live at RR 7 Belleville.

New construction in the township was on the increase again in July, building inspector Harry Bisdee reported. Council learned the 21 permits issued in the month represented a total value of $226,000 an all - time record for home and outbuilding construction in any one month since introduction in local real estate started to climb upward in 1960.

A resolution proposed by councillor Arnold Weese (Ward 1) and seconded by councillor Don Southern called for council to request the Conservation Authority to proceed with the rebuilding of the mill dam at Consecon according to the agreement with Mr. and Mrs. Richard Baldwin.

Crowning Glory

Park Dale playground supervisor Phyllis Cronkright attaches a Miss Park Dale 1971 ribbon to the bathing suit worn by Debbie Newman, 6, of 54 Auburn Street. Chosen from a total of six contestants, the little miss received some admiring glances from fellow competitors in the Miss and Master Park Dale contest last night. Stephen Smith, 6, of 112 Glendale Road, took top honors in the latter competition.

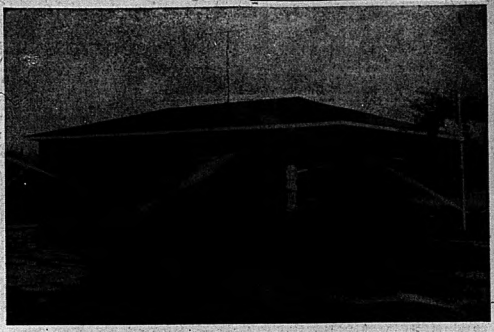
These two youngsters are getting their education completed in the Spook House at Park Dale Community Centre. Ushered in by Stuart Field of 20 Maple Street, right, the two girls await the pleasure of ghoul Gary Cone of 46 Maple Street. All part of last night's cross-city playground week parents' night, the pennies collected will go towards Thursday night's Penny Carnival at the Memorial Arena.

Warning Issued

Police have issued a second warning in as many weeks for householders to be on the lookout for bunko artists attempting to solicit funds or gain entry into homes.



Inspector Ralph Blatchford this morning reported a Cannifton Road woman informed the police that a man passing himself off as a hydro inspector, attempted to gain entry to her house.

Without proper identification, the woman turned him away.

Subsequent checks by police revealed that neither the Public Utilities Commission nor the officer of Ontario Hydro had such a man making inspections.

Inspector Blatchford warns: "Don't let any person into your home without proper identification. All service companies provide that."

Any suspicious incidents should be reported to police.

Cool Living at Its Best

Apparently Clarence Vanclief, of RR 1 Belleville has lost confidence in the weatherman's promise of rain in the last few days. His alternative was to set up part of the farm irrigation system on the front lawn in making sure the looked-for relief from heat and humidity would become a reality as far as he was concerned.

Stirling Blaze Damages House

STIRLING (Staff) — An early morning fire gutted the living room of a Stirling home and caused heavy smoke and water damage to other parts of the house. The home, owned by Bernard Berry, who runs the Stirling Electric and Appliance Shop, is at 155 Frankford Road.

A fire alarm was turned in at 5:30 this morning by a neighbor, Edward Klompmaker after he had heard the screams of Mr. Berry's children. The fire was spotted by Mr. Berry's son, Michael, eight years old. Mr. Berry, on smelling the smoke pushed out the window in the bedroom, letting down his sons, Michael, Brian, 14, daughter Agnes, 16, and wife and eight-month-old son David. Mr. Berry's oldest son, Earl Minzie, 19, who was sleeping in the basement escaped through a back door.

On breaking open the window Mr. Berry received a badly cut arm which later received stitches.

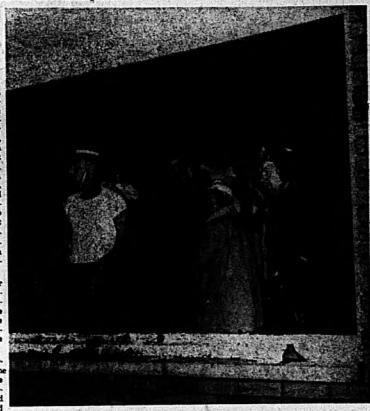
The fire was brought under control by the Stirling Volunteer Fire Department headed by Graham Mouck. The living room was gutted by fire and the rest of the rooms received heavy smoke and some water damage.

Fire Chief Mouck and insurance adjusters are probing the scene this morning for the cause of the blaze. It is believed that the fire started somewhere near a chesterfield located in the living room. No estimate of damage has been given by the owner or the adjuster.

The Berry's received another fire loss on May 8, 1969 when fire gutted their appliance shop which is located beside their home.

Stunted Corn Used For Feed

With dry mid - summer weather parching pasture lands, some Quinte district farmers are beginning to use late-sown corn to supplement cattle feeding.



"It's not a big thing, but a number of farmers are already cutting late-sown corn and feeding it as ensilage," Hastings county agricultural representative Douglas Tipper said today.

The corn being cut for cattle feed are patches of short growth that are not doing well or that are not likely to mature. The corn is being blown into silos from where it is stable fed.

The dry weather is affecting even improved pastures where growth is no more than three quarters of normal. Natural pastures have slipped completely stopped growing.

Area farmers are beginning to harvest early oats and barley, although no reports have been received at the agricultural office regarding yields.

Late barley, however, has short straw as a result of the dry weather and agricultural officials feel this is bound to be reflected in reduced yields.

Firemen Survey Damage

Firemen from the Stirling Volunteer Fire Department are seen here looking over the damage that occurred this morning to a Stirling home owned by Bernard Berry. Firemen, Dave Lakeman, in white shirt, Elwood Wilson, and fire chief Graham Mouck are seen here examining the gutted living room of the house.

Police Role

In the early days of rock festivals the police were inclined to plunge in, with near-riot consequences. Now they are more discreet; all the same it is encouraging to note that the open peddling and taking of drugs and liquor at the Rock Acres festival was not permitted to go unchecked. Police made a number of arrests; the police in fact did a good job all round and were ready for every eventuality.

We would be happy to offer similar praise to the police in Vancouver, but the episode in the city's Gastown area the other day, in which police reportedly laid about them in clearing demonstrators and bystanders during a marijuana smoke-in, gives us pause. From the reports thus far the tactics of the police appear to have been rather zealous to say the least, and to a degree which can only reflect adversely on the force in Vancouver.

It may be said that with the hippie invasion of the city in recent years, trouble on the harbor beaches, drug abuse and last year's problems at the armories, Vancouver authorities have had their share of unwanted difficulties. However, this is all the more reason why the police should be able to bring an experienced and disciplined hand to law enforcement; that it apparently has not on this occasion is a matter for concern.

Reaching Out

Kingston is seeking support for its efforts to become the sailing centre for the Montreal Olympics in 1976 and it would certainly be a feather in the city's cap if successful in this regard.

Since Kingston is working on this it would be churlish for Belleville to try and muscle in with a similar bid for our own substantial spread of water; yet Kingston's example should spur us to consider this community more and more as a potential location for national or even international events.

Our hotel and motel facilities are growing in numbers and quality and we have parks and sports facilities. We note that a group of Japanese young people have been visiting in the Toronto area; this and a host of other potentially valuable ideas for reaching out to the rest of the world are available to Belleville. The city should be considering them now.

Ulster Tragedy

If there are any budding Sean O'Caseys in Ireland today there is material enough in the current unrest to last them a lifetime and beyond. Thereby lies part of the tragedy of the Emerald Isle, and of Ulster in particular — the perpetuation of ancient ills through its literature, and through the indoctrination of Protestant and Catholic young people living in the crowded industrial tenement areas, and infinitum and ad nauseam.

The shadow of the gunman still stalks the land. Oddly enough the burning of their own homes by Protestants in one section of Belfast could be a blessing in disguise, for if there is ever to be peace there it will come only with the dispersal of rival factions now living in tinder-dry proximity. It is a social as well as a political problem which haunts Northern Ireland.

Olympics Her Goal

The next Olympics are in Munich in 1972 but up in Barrie there is a high school girl who is preparing for the 1976 Olympics. She is Liesje Mulder, 17, and she was pictured recently running the Ganaraska trail from Port Hope to Collingwood. We must confess we had not heard of this route but it sounds a rugged one, embracing a 220-mile hiking trail extending through the Pine Ridge region north of Port Hope. For Miss Mulder it is possibly a more agreeable way of spending a part of the summer holiday than working in an office.

They Want It Back

The Social Credit party is reported to be campaigning for restoration of the death penalty in Canada. There will be many who are in sympathy for this, for scarcely a day goes by that there is not some case of homicide somewhere in Canada, including Ontario. The most recent involved the fatal beating of a 17-year-old girl in a bungalow in Southampton, and injuring of an 18-year-old companion. The girls were believed to have been attacked while asleep. A 17-year-old youth has been charged in connection with the fatality.

Congress Claims It Was Tricked by L.B.J.

By ROD CURRIE

WASHINGTON (CP) — The Senate, increasingly alarmed by the way the White House is gradually usurping congressional powers, is preparing for an all-out battle to reassert its authority.

The secrecy surrounding negotiations for President Nixon's mission to Peking was about the last straw to a Senate still burdened by the humiliation of the Gulf of Tonkin resolution, railroaded through by President Lyndon B. Johnson.

Many senators now feel they were tricked by Johnson, and although the chamber has twice voted to repeal the 1964 resolution its shadow stands as a haunting reminder of how the White House and a succession of presidents have manipulated Congress.

At the heart of the matter is the contention that an administration through "executive privilege," can withhold or even distort information, preventing Congress from making a balanced judgment.

In the years since the founding fathers established a government of three separate and independent powers—the judicial, the executive and the legislative—the judicial has pretty well maintained the status quo while the executive has chipped away at the legislative, gradually tipping the balance in its own favor.

The principal reply to complaining congressmen is that they have only themselves to blame; if they were alert and doing their job it wouldn't have happened.

Many agree. And now, led by Senator William Fulbright, chairman of the foreign relations committee, and others, they hope to retaliate, curbing the president's warmaking powers for a start.

The Constitution lodged such powers with "Congress alone. But when Johnson alleged that enemy gunboats had attacked two U.S. destroyers off Vietnam, Congress quickly pushed through the resolution authorizing the president "to take any action necessary in repelling armed action and protect American lives."

Johnson used it to escalate the war, sending thousands more men to Vietnam. Congress later argued it was misled, that the evidence was faulty, and that it never intended the resolution to be so broadly interpreted. Still, it had passed 88 to 2 in the Senate, 216 to 0 in the House of Representatives and was used to conduct the war although Congress never voted a declaration of war.

The China arrangements, too, were another of many examples of executive omnipotence, announced when they were an accomplished fact.

It was, said Fulbright in testimony recently, "a striking example of the way in which the new foreign policy apparatus in the White House circumvents the Congress."

Although he argues presidential adviser Henry Kissinger, who went to Peking secretly to make arrangements, should have briefed the foreign relations committee, many argue that if he had the secret would not have been kept, the arrangements might not have been completed.

Indeed, Kissinger has never appeared formally before the committee and the committee cannot force him to do so, since he claims executive privilege granted by the president.

Under the bill taking shape in Senate hearings, employees of the executive branch would be forced to appear if summoned by a Senate committee even if they declined to disclose information. Executive privilege could not be invoked routinely as now, but only under specific command of the president. Also, the president would be shorn of warmaking authority. Although he could retain the option to make war in an emergency he would have to have congressional approval within, say, 30 days.

The idea has strong support in the form of Senate Republican Leader Hugh Scott who is at odds with the administration's contention that such legislation would interfere with the president's flexibility in foreign policy.

Others also have warned Congress that if it wants to reassert its power it will have to improve itself. While fundamentally sympathetic in his testimony, former state department official William D. Rogers said bluntly:

"Your staffing is woefully inadequate. Your organization is wrong. Your ways of doing business are outmoded. And your conventional habits and practices are in need of fundamental reform."

Police Chases Can Pose Unnecessary Hazards

Windsor Star

Four people were killed and two injured, in Moncton, N.B., as a result of a police - initiated chase through the city' streets.

The tragic results of that chase once again demonstrate the need for utmost police caution in chasing cars for any offence, serious or otherwise. The police, it is true, have the right to pursue suspected criminals, but such pursuits should be carried out on the basis of well-calculated risks concerning the seriousness of the crime and the dangers to others, including the police themselves and innocent bystanders. Just as there is no need for a bank teller to be a hero by refusing to hand over money when ordered to do so at gunpoint, there is no reason for police officers to initiate hazardous car chases.

There are other ways to catch offenders and those other ways should be employed before resorting to drastic measures that might result in death, a punishment which the Criminal Code provides only for the murder of a policeman or prison guard on duty. That should inspire caution.

U.S. Dollar Weakness Causes Concern in Europe

By HAROLD MORRISON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

The current weakness of the United States dollar suggests that by an ironic twist Europe may one day be forced to mount a Marshall Plan in reverse, in its own self-interest.

Initiated in 1947, the U.S. Marshall Plan ensured European economic recovery through a huge flow of American financial aid. In those days the U.S. dollar was as highly prized in Europe as gold bullion.

But as the U.S. pursued foreign policies over the years which led to a heavy outward movement of dollars without a countering balance of imported foreign currencies and gold, the dollar became increasingly suspect.

Holding surplus U.S. dollars in European central treasuries at one time symbolized international support for American defence of the free world.

But as fear of a great world collision receded, and allies began questioning White House philosophy, central bankers started to unload heavy dollar holdings, demanding American gold in exchange.

Now leading European currencies are strong and the U.S. dollar is weak. The worry in Europe is that the weakness conveys not just a temporary fever soon to disappear but some deep and ominous ailment.

President Nixon probably could overcome the American problem through remedies that would prove politically unpopular. He could increase the official price of gold—if Congress approved—and thereby effectively devalue the dollar. He might invoke a tight-money policy and such high interest rates that money abroad would be rushed back to take advantage of the big interest profits.

Or he might clamp down on imports to create a favorable U.S. trade balance of such dimensions that the huge pools of American dollars abroad might eventually dry up.

It is this latter possibility that worries exporters not only in Europe but in most other regions. American Protectionism and protectionism are the hated twins that could cause more problems for Europe than the current dollar weakness.

While some countries keep pushing the U.S. to rectify current distortions by devaluing the dollar, this pressure, which seems irresistible, nevertheless is likely to be moderated by fear that a desperate American administration may take action that would hurt European prosperity.

American economic activity is of such major proportions around the world that a slump in Washington could cause pneumonia in Paris and Zurich.

The best "Marshall Aid" that the U.S. could use at this time is restraint in Europe in converting surplus dollars into gold or other currencies. Prolonging the state of "freeze" in some dollar transactions is likely to involve transatlantic bargaining including European satisfaction that the U.S. government will take internal action to restore greater dollar confidence.

$5 A Day Enough for Tour

Ann Laughlin, a young Canadian Press staff writer from Montreal, is on a two week hitch hiking tour of Europe, living on $5 a day. Here is her first report.

By ANN LAUGHLIN

COPENHAGEN (CP) — So far I've made it.

After four days hitch-hiking on my own in Europe, I'm unmolested, several friends richer, well under my $5 daily budget and still fairly clean.

As soon as someone patted the flag stitched on my orange packsack and said in English "Canadian, eh?" I felt more at home.

More warmth was conveyed by Usa It. Copenhagen's efficient but friendly youth agency which so far this summer has provided 100,000 young travellers with tips on what to see in the city and where to eat and sleep cheaply.

Young Danes direct wealthier youngsters to private hostels costing up to $2 a night. Most—including me—are booked into temporarily converted school buildings or a tent camp where 90 cents buys breakfast and a mattress for the night amid 15 youngsters of both sexes.

Called sleep-ins, these city-financed hostels are a clearing house for the latest on road tips, dating, trip experiences and prices.

Packsackers meet easily. Through a quick exchange of information on one city square, I was able to get free beer during a brewery tour, join a sing-song by a lake in a park, pub-crawl with a handsome American boy on a more affluent budget and find cheap but good sandwiches in Tivoli Gardens before trekking back to the mattress for the night.

Total cost for my first day came to just $3.50—not bad.

I decided to head on my own for England and The Netherlands.

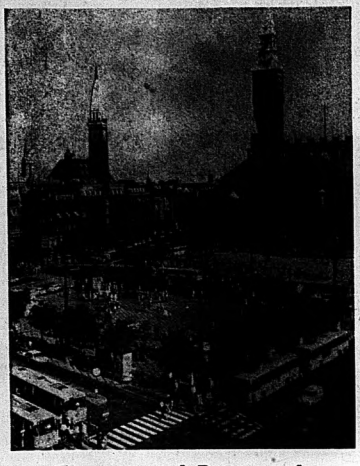
Youth hostel bulletin boards abound with notices from men seeking female hitch-hiking partners—often essential to attract the much-needed motorist on the road.

Scandinavian drivers are leery of picking up male thumbers who may be carrying drugs or who may be out to rob. Motorists say this season has been an exceptionally bad one.

The motorists I met on a two-day trip across the island of Zealand, and after a ferry trip across the Aarhus, along the Jutland playground peninsula, were courteous, helpful and more than willing to show me interesting sights along the way. Not one made a pass at me but one dumped me when I didn't co-operate.

Aside from one American couple, all my drivers were men alone, either Danish or German.

When the first one slowed down 15 minutes after I joined a straggle of hikers in the mid-morning rain outside Copenhagen, I wondered whether I was asking for trouble.



But the face peering through the rear window turned out to be a smiling young Dane who apologized that he couldn't take me more than about 20 miles and bought me lunch to make up for it.

Generally, lifts were short, averaging about 40 miles, but so were the waits. On highways I was picked up within a half-hour.

Drivers helped my budget by offering me lunch or dinner. During one two-day travel, my chief expense was a $2 ferry ride and a $3 overnight stay in a hotel.

In Aarhus, a ferry base on the east side of Jutland, the town's sole hostel was full. I wandered into what turned out to be a posh hotel where a clerk found me a dim little room to meet my limited budget.

A sunny morning's travel through the rolling farmlands of western Jutland, an afternoon on the beaches and I was ready for a restful 18 - hour boat trip to England.

Elegance and Pornography

Tourists old and young are swarming into Copenhagen, much publicized for its tolerance of pornography and its general air of relaxed elegance. But authorities are warning youthful travelers that the Danish capital is not a city without laws and that anybody smoking hashish or using drugs runs the risk of being arrested. Belfast Gunfights Are Resumed

Late Tuesday night, heavy shooting broke out in the predominantly Roman Catholic Lower Falls district of Belfast. The British Army said its troops were not involved and it was believed that rival factions of the IRA were fighting each other. No casualties were reported.

Since the fighting began Monday, gunmen believed to be from the IRA have fired on troops of police, mobs of Protestants and Roman Catholics have battled each other and troops and police fought all of them in attempts to restore order.

The British government announced it is dispatching 550 more troops to reinforce the 12,000 soldiers attempting to contain the worst bloodshed that has hit Northern Ireland in its 50-year history.

Northern Ireland, predominantly Protestant, is part of the United Kingdom. The IRA wants it joined with the independent Irish Republic to the south which is overwhelmingly Roman Catholic. The Northern Ireland violence arises out of protests by Roman Catholics about alleged discrimination in jobs and housing by the Protestant-dominated Ulster government.

During Tuesday night's fighting, British soldiers sealed off the Falls Road, Ballymurphy, Ardoyne and Old Park Road areas of Belfast as those Catholic districts crackled to the sound of gunfire under the flickering light of burning buildings.

Mobs of Protestants and Catholics tried to get at each other across Cavehill Road Tuesday night, but troops drove a wedge between them. As the mobs retreated, the soldiers came under sustained sniper fire. The troops flattened themselves on the sidewalk and poured bullets into the surrounding rooftops, which were lit by flares.

Police reported a civilian died in a truck overturned during another clash between Protestants and Catholics hurling rocks and bottles. A youth lost a leg.

As Belfast's night fell streets were deserted except for combatants. Troops came under "really vicious, highly controlled" fire, the army said.

Explosions damaged a movie theatre and a garage. A bank blazed, and several homes were in flames, stripped of valuables as their occupants fled.

More violence hit Londonderry. Northern Ireland's second city, and Newry, its third. A sniper killed a soldier in Derry, and two other soldiers were wounded there.

A boy of 11 and another of 14 were seen placing a package outside an army recruiting office in Londonderry. Seconds later a powerful explosion wrecked the building and hurled a car 90 yards across the street.

Four other explosions shattered the night air in less than seven minutes. One hundred rioters assaulted troops with rocks, flaming gasoline bombs and gelignite nail bombs.

At Newry, firemen who tried to tackle the work of arsonists found their hoses severed by rioters with axes and knives.

In London, Foreign Minister Patrick Hillery of the Irish Republic was to meet with British Home Secretary Reginald Maudling.

Hillery was expected to urge a conference of all interested parties—the British government, the Republic and leading representatives of Northern Ireland's Protestant majority and Catholic minority.

Hillery was sent to London Tuesday by Premier Jack Lynch of the Irish Republic, who has attacked the Belfast government's internment decision.

Lynch has said such a meeting should consider the introduction of a new form of government in Northern Ireland But it was thought in London that neither the British nor Northern Ireland governments are likely to even consider the idea at this stage.

Meanwhile hundreds of Belfast citizens, their houses scorched and bullet-riddled in the cross-fire between IRA gunmen and British troops, have decided they have had enough.

More than 1,000 of them, part of the Roman Catholic minority, were reported by the Irish Republic Army to have crossed the border to refugee camps.

Hundreds of others—believed to be mainly Protestants—were flying to England.

British police kept close watch on power stations, gas plants and chemical plants in England in case the IRA tried to expand its sabotage operations. IRA supporters demonstrated in London outside the home office and said they would turn London streets "into Falls Road or Ballymurphys."

Ann Landers

Personality Disorder Is Cause of Her Hostility

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Much has been written about battered children. What about battered parents?

My husband just phoned our married daughter to tell her a family event would have to be postponed because I have a miserable cold. She flew into a rage and used language you couldn't print.

ANN LANDERS

This girl has had a hair-trigger temper since childhood. She has spoiled every family celebration because someone said the "wrong" thing to her.

One semester of college was all she could tolerate. She left in a huff, mad at everyone and was subsequently fired from several jobs because of her temper. She was not speaking to us when she married so we were not invited to the wedding. Her husband is exactly like her — abusive to his parents, and discourages any contact with us because we are "trouble makers."

You'll probably say that had we raised our daughter properly she wouldn't be this way and you could be right. But do you have a word of comfort for us and for other parents who are completely alienated from their children? We need it. — WALLED OFF.

DEAR W.O.: Your daughter's hostility, her inability to get along with other relatives and friends, her conflicts in school and in the work world, are all symptoms of a severe personality disorder. This girl is more than ornery, she's sick — and she's been sick for a long time.

It's useless to tell you now what you should have done 20 years ago, but for the parents whose children are hostile, angry and given to frequent outbursts, I suggest a neurological examination to determine if there is a physical reason for the volatile behavior. If there is no evidence of a physical problem, by all means take the child to a psychiatrist for an evaluation. If therapy is indicated, no time should be wasted. The earlier the treatment the better chance for recovery.

To parents whose grown children behave as your daughter does, I say this: stop catering to them, stop trying to appease them and for heaven's sake stop blaming yourselves! No one knows for sure why some kids burn out beautiful and others are loused up. The experts have expressed a variety of theories but nobody knows for sure. As I've said before, the same fire that melts butter hardens iron.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Why did you advise the young fellow who carried a thermometer in his pocket and took his own temprature every hour to marry a nurse? Nurses don't want guys who are looking for medical care. What's more, being married to a nurse carries no guarantee that he'll get it.

My best friend, Trudie, married a jeweler because she was nuts about jewelry. Her husband bought her many lovely pieces but she couldn't keep anything long enough to enjoy it. Whenever anyone admired a ring on Trudie's finger, or a watch, or a pin or earrings, Sam sold it right off her. Sometimes she'd say, "But Sam, this was your anniversary present . . ." He'd reply, "I can get you another one within two weeks." Something always happened and she never got the replacement.

Trudie and Sam were divorced two years ago. She married a tax lawyer in December and now she really does have beautiful jewelry! — LONDON OBSERVER.

DEAR LONDON: It is said that the shoemaker's sons go barefoot. Thanks for the evidence.

Successful Living

Undue Criticism May Be Result of Handicap

By DORIS CLARK

Dear Doris: My husband lost his left arm in a car accident. With the help of my son he is still farming, but he is a quick - tempered, critical individual.

One thing that has always bugged me is that he will not come in for meals at regular hours .Breakfast is usually at 10, dinner from 2 to 4, supper from 6 to 8 and milking done after that. My life has been one scramble after another.

He can be the most charming person and full of fun, or he can be roaring mad, hitting the cows and scolding me and our boy and girl until we are ready to hit him.

I do wish he would quit criticizing the children; I wish he would keep our engagements with me and how can I persuade him that regular meals would help a lot? — Scrambled.

Dear Scrambled: Life with father! And this one sounds even more quick - tempered than usual. It is enough to disorganize anybody and unnerve the people who try to work with him. Or is the temper associated with the accident?

Start with your husband's doctor. There may be nerve strain here, as well as the frustrations connected with the handicap. What he probably needs is some high class professional rehabilitation, to get him going again both physically and psychologically. There have been persons with worse handicaps than one arm off who have faced the world with good cheer.

Discuss this meal business. Get him to state what hours he considers proper for meals, and warn him not to be surprised if you start without him. There is going to have to be some deflance on your part before he will get the message - or any message.

* * *

Dear Doris: I have a problem about a so - called friend who left her husband years ago to live with a man who is old enough to be her great-granddad.

A couple of months ago her husband got a summons to go to another province where she is living, for a divorce, and I was the one she named! This is not so and I can prove it. I don't want to be blamed for something I did not do.

She ran around with anything that wore trousers. Can I sue her? — Disgusted.

Dear Disgusted: You might, but do you want to? To make a big noise in the interest of clearing your name might well serve to point a finger at you.

I'd be interested to know what evidence she plans to

Mashed Potato Salad Is Shorter Process

By MARY MOORE

A lifelong reluctant convert to mashed potato salad now I have become an enthusiast.

I think the great success of this mashed potato salad is the new potatoes in it for they do not mash as smoothly as the old ones and thus there were some delicious little lumps left in it.

One of the time-consuming steps in making a potato salad is the dicing but the mashing is done in no time at all so it is a shorter process overall.

MASHED POTATO SALAD
(Serves 6)

4 or 5 med.-sized new potatoes, scrubbed and cooked in their skins
1 small clove garlic finely chopped
2 tbsps. white vinegar
1 tsp. salt
1 tsp sugar
¼ tsp. dill weed (optional)
2 tsps. finely chopped parsley (or bottled flakes)
2 (or 3 — see below) hard-cooked eggs chopped
2 green onions finely chopped (or 2 tbsps. finely chopped cooking onion
6 stuffed olives sliced (or ¼ cup finely chopped sweet pickles)
1-3 cup mayonnaise

Cool and peel and mash potatoes. Add all remaining ingredients except lettuce. Carefully mix to blend evenly. Line salad bowl with washed and dried leaf (or iceberg) lettuce. Turn potato salad in.

NOTES: 1) If desired hard cook three eggs and add only two of them to the salad mixture. Then slice or cut in wedges the third egg and use it to garnish the top of the salad. 2) The second time I tested this salad I chopped and added six medium-large radishes and they gave the salad a pretty pink glow.

Dinner Menus

Luverly Liver (see Monday); Fluffy Rice (see Monday); Sliced Zucchini; Shredded Cabbage and Chive Salad; Fresh Peach Melbas; Tea.

WEDNESDAY

He can deny it, but a dispute in court might bring out information about your innocent friendship which even you might not want aired.

Talk it over with a lawyer. In most cases where a person wants to keep her good name, she does it best by making no fuss at all. . . .

Dear Doris: I have two sons 17, 16, six - foot - three, 170 pounds, and they are nearly driving me out of my home. They do not work for themselves or their parents. All they think of is TV, vehicles, eating and sleeping. What do you suggest? — Up The Wall.

Dear Up The Wall: Some parents would say, "Just normal Canadian boys!" It is true that many teen - agers go through a stage of tremendous inertia except for activity which us older people think of as frivolous. I'd suggest less permissiveness in the wrong places and some reasonable expectations in return for free rations.

This doesn't mean you have to spoil all their fun; just make sure they understand there is a time for work and a time for play, a time for eating and a time for earning that privilege. Make what you say stick. . . .

MR. AND MRS. PETER BELISLE

Belisle – Beaton

Shirley Anne Beaton, daughter of Mrs. Donald Beaton and the late Donald Beaton was married on August 4 to Peter Paul George Belisle, son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Paul E. Belisle. The ceremony was conducted by Monsignor James Sullivan in the Church of St. Michael the Archangel. Miss Dorothy Grant, organist and William Mann, soloist, provided music for the occasion.

Given in marriage by her uncle Frederick L. Hogan, the bride wore a floor length gown of crystal peau styled with an empire waistline, round scoop neckline and bell sleeves. The waistline, neckline and edge of sleeves were trimmed with Venice lace and seeded pearls. The sleeves were caught above the elbow with a matching bow of crystal peau. A cathedral train floated down the back of the gown. A four-tier silk illusion veil flowed from the headpiece consisting of a cluster of seven roses in Venice lace entwined with seed pearls and centred with aurora borealis. In the centre was a single rose with a bud in the centre made of nylon taffeta with stamens of seed pearls. She carried a cascade bouquet of pink pink roses and white miniature carnations.

The bride's only attendant was her cousin Mrs. Helen Lyon who was in a gown of pink Swiss dot over nylon taffeta with an empire waistline, high stand-up ruffled collar, leg of mutton sleeves and A-line skirt. Her head piece was of matching pink Swiss dot styled with a bow and streamers. She carried a colonial bouquet of white, pink and green mums.

The best man was Jamie Trudeau while guests were ushered by the bridegroom's cousins Frank and Robert Quinn.

The reception was held at Club Canara. Greeting guests was the bride's mother in an aqua coat and dress ensemble with a sleeveless sheath style dress in polyester crepe. The skirt featured a deep scalloped lace bottom. The matching lace coat had full sleeves and a roll collar of polyester crepe caught with a bow in front. She wore a white orchid corsage.

The couple travelled to the British Isles for their honeymoon. The bride's going away outfit was a dress and coat ensemble of printed nylon chiffon over taffeta. She wore a corsage of white gardenias.

Upon return the couple will live in Belleville.

Prior to her recent wedding Mrs. Peter Belisle (nee Shirley Beaton) was honored at a miscellaneous shower held by her fellow teachers with Mrs. Barbara Doran as hostess; and at a miscellaneous shower held by Mrs. Helen Langton with Mrs. Nancy Langton, Mrs. Helen McMurray and Mrs. Phyllis Graham as co-hostesses. The bride's home - room students made a presentation while the bridegroom was honored by his fellow Jaycees with a presentation.

Staff Nurse To Be Hired

Members of the Quinte Branch of the Victorian Order of Nurses met for the July meeting at the Trenton Memorial Hospital. Chairman of the car committee Rex Hunter reported that his committee recommended that the Board purchase a new car at once. This recommendation was adopted by the members and action will be taken.

The report of policy committee chairman Donald Mayhin was discussed. A decision was made to hire one additional staff nurse in September. It is hoped that again this year the VON will have a booth at the Quinte Exhibition to supply information and answer inquiries relating to the services available in this district.

Miss Valerie Truax reported that 594 visits were made during June of this year as compared to 593 visits made during 1970. The visits for June of this year gave nursing care to 55 patients.

WEDDING

KOLBINSON — UENS

The recent wedding ceremony was solemnized in Holloway Street United Church, Belleville, when Susan Margaret Uens, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Uens of Belleville was united in marriage to Terry James Kolbinson, Ottawa, son of Mrs. Kolbinson of Calgary Alberta and the late Mr. Kolbinson.

Given in marriage by her brother, Jack Uens, the bride wore a white crimplene gown featuring a V neckline and lace sleeves, and complemented with lace hood. She carried a single long stemmed red rose with white ribbon and wore white flowers in her hair.

Garth Young attended the bridegroom and the ushers were Peter Uens and Dave Hannah and Ted Uens was ring bearer.

Following a reception at the Sun Valley Motor Inn, the couple left on a honeymoon trip to the Gatineau Hills in Quebec and points in Northern Ontario. The bride wore a hot pants suit of navy with white polka dots with white accessories and a pink corsage.

On return Mr. and Mrs. Kolbinson will reside in Ottawa.

Woman Is Stone Carver

OTTAWA (CP) — The hours are bad but Eleanor Milne's work is unique, Dalhousi there's a repetition of that 1916 fire, Miss Milne may not have a successor.

She is National Stone Carver. And she is grinding and chiselling along in the wee hours of the morning in Parliament Hill's Centre Block, a building most Canadians old enough to remember thought was completed about a decade after fire burned most of it in 1916.

Only a post-midnight visitor would find out how far it is from being finished in Eleanor Milne's view.

The late visitor would find a high scaffold, perhaps set up in the rotunda outside the doors to the Senate. There is Miss Milne, the national carver since 1952. With her are eight assistants, holding pneumatic cutting tools.

Miss Milne roughs out the designs on the Nepheline limestone in charcoal. The whine and chatter of the tools shatters the midnight quiet.

Once the power tools have achieved the rough outline of the face, human figure, flower or tree, Miss Milne moves in with her hammer and chisel to do the intricate work.

Although often overlooked by the casual visitor, the halls of the Centre Block are a veritable gallery of carvings. There are Indian heads, crowns, native flowers, beavers and other native forms of wildlife, coats of arms and faces of many men—dreamed up by the carvers who often look friends as the models.

Thomas Fuller, architect of the first Centre Block building which was burned out in 1916, is there. So is John Pearson, architect of the present replacement building.

Although the Centre Block was erected in the 1920s following the fire, the carving still is not completed. It has been in progress for almost 50 years.

Miss Milne says there is good reason. Carving a tree trunk into a cornice, for example, may take two weeks.

Does she like it?

"You might say that my job resembles having your own business. I have so many different things to do and no interference from my superiors."

Family Reunions

TANNER CLAN

In 1852, William Edward and James Tanner migrated from Ireland to Canada to seek their fortunes. They married and most of them settled in the Stirling area. Later some of the children seeking more adventure went to United States, working on the New York Central railroad. Others went to Western Canada to take up farming. As time went on the only communication was by letter until the era of the automobile, when they visited back and forth.

In 1957 it was decided to hold a Tanner reunion. The first one was at Oak Lake with over 250 present.

Last Sunday while the crowd was less than in previous years, the enthusiasm was just as great. All enjoyed a picnic lunch at Zwick's Island.

John Courtney (president) called a short business meeting. He warmly welcomed everyone. In the absence of secretary, Mrs. M. Parks, Mrs. D. Elvidge was appointed to take notes. The family history is being prepared and it is hoped to be ready for next year's picnic, which will be held at Zwick's Island the second Sunday in August.

Prizes were awarded to the following: eldest lady, Mrs. Sara Morgan; eldest gentleman, William West; eldest married couple, Mr. and Mrs. William West, most recently married couple, Mr. and Mrs. W. Christenphson; largest family, Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Tanner, youngest child, David Clare; nearest birthday, Mary Courtney; person from longest distance, Beth Carson, Ottawa.

Relatives were present from Stirling, Madoc, Harold, Napanee, Toronto, Ottawa, East Lake, and Belleville.

'Lifetime's Gathering-up' Is Wiped Out Before Irish Eyes

Cy Fox of the London bureau of The Canadian Press tells what it was like after hundreds of homes in West Belfast went up in flames in Monday night's Northern Ireland violence.

BELFAST (CP) — "Getting out with your life was the thing."

"That was a lifetime's gathering-up."

"My brothers in the merchant navy are coming home to no home at all."

These are the keenings of three housewives in Belfast's desolated Velsheda Park, which on Monday was a pleasant tree-lined with trim, terraced houses and now in a scene of smoking destruction and homelessness.

Velsheda Park and two similar streets nearby were the flaming heart of vilence which seared West Belfast Monday night and left 300 working-class families without homes in the latest wave of sectarian strife.

I visited them Tuesday, after these hundreds of homes had been set alight and gutted into shells, and find it difficult to explain this mass destruction in terms of Canadian life.

The trouble with Velsheda Park is that one end of the street is Roman Catholic and the other—the fire-ravaged end —is Protestant.

The Protestants say that for months they have been threatened and terrorized by Catholics intent on changing the whole neighborhood into a residential stronghold of Northern Ireland's minority Catholics.

On Monday the climax came. Catholics were enraged by a new Ulster government policy of internment without trial for members of the Catholic-supporting Irish Republican Army. Violence erupted through the British northern region.

As rioting started, the Protestants of Velsheda Park and neighboring streets began moving out their furniture in preparation for a mass exodus. Some draped themselves in the Union Jack.

Then came machine-gun fire splattering around the forlorn piles of chairs, beds and TV sets waiting in the streets to be picked up by Protestant-run trucks.

Fires started in the houses.

The most widely-held theory is that, in view of the intensity of the gunfire, the Protestants decided that the Catholics were closing in for a takeover of their homes.

Some of the more zealous Protestants may then have concluded that a scorched-earth policy was better than having their houses fall into "enemy" hands.

In any case, a rash of fires suddenly started up and spread quickly down Velsheda Park and adjoining Farrington and Cranbrok Gardens.

Some of the residents fled as darkness approached and snipers began to pick off targets lit by the blazing buildings.

Others tried to rescue their pathetic piles of belongings under what they said Tuesday was a storm of bullets from the nearby Catholic quarter.

One woman was shot dead as she stood in her Velsheda Park doorway. Behind her, the rows of neat little brick homes were swirling turning into dreary strings of roofless shells which by Tuesday were alive only with lingering wisps of blue smoke—the last memory of households.

Troops with automatic weapons kept close guard Tuesday over the homeless Protestants as they went cautiously back in search of belongings. They had spent the night in temporary shelter in neighboring homes and in schools and churches.

One Protestant rescue volunteer said there would not be much in the way of household effects to save.

"It was a big furnace," he said. "You couldn't stand in Velsheda Park, the heat was so terrible."

Fight to Save Rapeseed Continues

Ten People Treated After Contact with Army Worm Poison

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

At least 12 persons have been injured in Alberta and Saskatchewan in the battle to stop hordes army worms from destroying valuable rapeseed crops.

Ten persons, six in Saskatchewan, have received hospital treatment for poisoning from the highly-toxic chemical Lanate which has been flown in from Texas to kill the voracious insects.

A Regina pilot, Lloyd Johnson, and his son were in Melfort, Sask., hospital Tuesday after their spray plane hit a power line and crashed about 50 miles southeast of Prince Albert. Both suffered minor injuries.

More than 135,000 pounds of Lanate have been delivered to Saskatchewan farmers alone and more was expected to arrive in Saskatoon Wednesday night. Agriculture departments in both provinces were issuing warnings to farmers to exercise extreme caution in mixing the chemical.

Dr. C. A. R. Dennis of Regina, director of the health department's occupational health branch, said inhaling Lanate dust could cause death.

Lloyd Peterson, an entomologist with the Alberta agriculture department, said farmers should wear gloves, respirators and protective clothing when handling the chemical. All pesticides are dangerous, he said, but Lanate is more so because western farmers are unfamiliar with it.

There also were reports from North Battleford, Sask., of many birds being killed by the pesticide.

Lanate was ordered from the United States because DDT has been banned by the federal government and other chemicals were not effective in killing the 1½ inch greenish-black worms.

The infestation is killing rapeseed crops in a belt stretching from east-central Alberta to west-central Manitoba. About one million acres were affected in Saskatchewan and 250,000 acres in Alberta. The Manitoba outbreak was spotty.

Mr. Peterson said the infestation could be likened to the grasshopper plagues of the 1930s because a major crop was being attacked. Rapeseed, used in cooking oils, now is a more important crop than wheat in Alberta.

There are no indications yet how many acres actually have been ruined.

There were 70 aircraft spraying in Saskatchewan Tuesday, each covering about 1,000 acres. At least 20 of the airplanes were brought in from South Dakota and more were standing by in Montana if needed.

An estimated 200,000 acres have been sprayed in Saskatchewan from the air and another 60,000 from the ground. There are 2.5 million acres seeded to rapeseed in that province.

Saskatchewan Agriculture Minister Jack Messer toured parts of the province Tuesday and was to fly over other affected areas today.

Question: We would like to spend a week in August touring the New England States. We are interested in music, arts, antique shops and swimming. Will you please give us a good scenic route and point out places of interest on the way.

Answer: We took a similar vacation last year and enjoyed it very much. Here is the route we took and the places of interest we visited. Take the 401 or No. 2 to the Ivy Lea Bridge, interstate 81 to Watertown, N. Y., route 12 to Utica, N.Y., and the New York Thru - way east to exit 21A where we took the Massachusetts Turnpike east to exit 1. This is 315 miles and a good place to start your tours of this interesting countryside. Take 102 east a few miles to Stockbridge, where you'll find the Chesterwood Art Studio which contains a display of casts and bronzes by Daniel Chester French. Open daily - admission $1.

A few miles farther east on route 102 and 20 at Tyringham, Mass., is the Tyringham Art Gallery. Here you will find paintings and sculpture by many famous artists as well as early American and Victoria antiques. Open daily 10 a.m. to 5 p.m.

Turn north on route 7 here a few miles and you will reach the beautiful Berkshire town of Lenox, Mass. Here, at Tanglewood, is the summer home of the famous Boston Symphony Orchestra on a 200-acre estate. From early July to August 22, it is the scene of the nationally - renowned Berkshire Music Festival, with a seating capacity of 6,000. Last weekend, Seiji Ozawa, the brilliant, young Japanese conductor of the San Francisco Symphony Orchestra, conducted the orchestra. The hall was filled to capacity with many people sitting on the lawns outside. It is wise to get tickets early in the day so you can get front seats and view these famous musicians at close range. There are many other famous conductors here on alternate week - ends, such as Arthur Fiedler and Leonard Bernstein at present conductor of the New York Philharmonic. It is open Friday at 7 p.m. Saturday at 8.30 p.m. and Sunday afternoon at 2.30. Prices range from $6 to $8.50.

There are many motels here, but more often than not, they are filled to capacity. So make reservations early in the day. Motel prices range from $25- to $35 a night.

From here we travelled north on Rotte 7 for about 20 miles to the beautiful little town of Williamstown, Mass., where many antique stores are to be found. The Sterling and Francine Clark Art Institute is here. It is an impressive white marble structure housing a world - famous collection of paintings by such masters as Rubens, Van Dyck, Rembrandt, Gainsborough, Goya, Degas, Manet, Renoir, Winslow Homer and John Sargent. There is also a priceless collection of silver, ranging across five centuries. There are also sculptures here by Rodin, Epstein and Picasso. Open daily except Monday from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Admission free.

From here, we took route Route 2, also known as the Mohawk Trail, east to the 495 By - Pass around Boston. The Mohawk Trail is a very scenic highway which winds through the lush green forest and mountain ranges. It is very high in some places, affording a splendid view of the countryside below. Along this route are numerous antique shops in which you may browse.

From Route 2 you can by-pass Boston on 495 which takes you to the large, shallow, sandy beaches of Hampton, New Hampshire. We followed the Atlantic coastline north on 1A to Rye Beach, N. H., where we found an efficiency cottage overlooking the rocky shoreline. There is a sand beach here but the water is very cold and swimming is only for hardy souls.

From here we continued north up the coast to Ogunquit, Maine. All through this area you'll find antique shops and Art Galleries. Ogunquit has wide, shallow, sandy beaches and it is a real artist's colony, dotted with many interesting shops. There are many good motels on the beach, but it is pretty crowded here and reservations should be made early.

We then turned west on Routes 9 and 16 to Rochester, N. H., where we took 11 north to Weirs Beach on beautiful Lake Winnipesaukee. This is the largest lake in New Hampshire and lies in the foothills of the White Mountains. Here, you may water ski or go on boat trips around the lake. There are many attractive cottages and motels here which ranges in price from $18 to $20. We took Route 93 from here north through the White Mountains. Here you can ride a mile up Canon Mountain in an aerial tramway, or up the Flume with the mountain streams tumbling down beside you, or take the Mount Washington Cog Railway to the summit of Mount Washington. This is the highest mountain in this range and reaches a height of over 6,000 feet. This scenic ride takes three hours for the round trip. Adults $7.50, children $4.

From here we continued on route 93 and 302 west to interstate 89 which takes you to Burlington, Vermont. On the way, we stopped at Waterbury, Vermont and turned north on route 100 to the famous ski resort and quaint village of Stowe. Here we turned up on route 108 where there are lovely Swiss Chalets and motels in the mountains. The Trapp Family, of Sound of Music fame, has a beautiful chalet lodge up in the mountains and also a small Swiss chalet restaurant and souvenir shop where you may buy German beer and delicious German pastries. Next morning we turned south again to 89 or route 2 to Burlington, Vermont.

Just south of Burlington a few miles on route 7 is the Shelburne Museum which is well worth visiting. From Burlington we took the Lake Champlain Ferry to Port of Kent, route 9N and 86 to Lake Placid and route 3 through the Adirondacks to Watertown N.Y. From here we took 12E north - west to the Cape Vincent, N. Y. Ferry where you can cross to Wolfe Island and hour. This was a very delightful and scenic journey. We found New Hampshire the the most beautiful and unspoiled of the New England States.

Boys at Camp Near Belleville Enjoy Free Holiday with Nature

By COLIN BRUCE
Staff Reporter

With a budget so small it's not worth calling a budget, R. C. Rumball and seven area youths have gotten together and have formed a summer camp to cater to needy children.

Using an Opportunities for Youth grant for capital, the camp has been set up on the shore line of the Bay of Quinte about three miles from the city.

Although not under the leadership of any one particular organization, the camp was originally conceived by the Youth for Christ movement. Under the leadership of James Williams, the project was cancelled when Mr. Williams left the Bible group.

Mr. Rumball did not agree with the cancellation of the project because of its many merits. A second application was made to the federal government without the Youth for Christ and a grant was made to the group for $1,600.

"This was the factor that has lead to the under-capacity attendance of the camp," said Mr. Rumball. "We were not sure until quite recently that the project would go ahead. We circulated no advertising and I am sure that many who would like to use the facility, do not know of its existence."

Camp capacity is about 20 youngsters. In the first week of tie program near-capacity was attained while in the second week (in progress now) only eleven have turned out.

"The camp is run for children who have never had the chance to go to camp and for this reason there is no charge to the children. Everything is free" said one of the counsellors.

"Because of our small budget, we have approached several stores and groups in an attempt to cut running costs. Most of the people we approached got behind the idea and gave reductions," said Mr. Rumball.

"We must do everything we can to cut the costs of supplies or we will not have enough money to pay the students working for the three-week period," said Mr. Rumball, secretary for the group and manager of funds.

The camp has a busy schedule which keeps the boys occupied throughout the day. Boating, fishing, swimming instruction and sports fill the curriculum with free periods for the boys to explore the area.

Located on the Potter's Cabins lot, the boys have ample space to play in. With the river running through the property the boys re-enact the tales of Tom Sawyer and hunt for turtles and ducks living in the pond.

The camp, designed for boys only, has had its successes and its failures.

Many of the students working for the summer did not understand the younger children and could not cope with their behavior. "We lost one such student in the first week when he just couldn't take it anymore," said Mr. Rumball.

One of the highlights of a camp day is the water bag throw. The event means that one of the counsellors must dress in a clown costume and sit on the ground while the rest of the children take water filled balloons and throw them so that they break on the student. Later, the broken balloons, left in the lap of the student are counted and points are scored.

Along with the day's activity comes the bonfire and Bible reading. The camp is interdenominational.

Three boats are at the disposal of the camp including a canoe and a flat - bottomed boat. These boats are used only while one of the counsellors is on board. As well as this, there are two lifeguards on duty, making sure that no safety regulation is breached.

As well as Mr. Rumball, Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Reed help out with the camp, devoting their time freely to the camp.

"I could be up at the cottage having a great time doing nothing," said Mrs. Reed, but I feel like I am accomplishing something when I help at the camp like this."

Because it is a federally sponsored program for unemployed students, the Reeds and Mr. Rumball cannot accept any pay for their services.

Many of the children say that if they were not at the camp, they would have nothing to do.

"I like it here. There's lots of things to do and the people are friendly."

"This is my second week here and I am going to miss it when I go home." "I want to find out if I can stay for the third week, too."

The children spend the night in two cottages, sleeping on the floor or on the two beds in each house.

"They have a good time at night," said one counsellor. "It gets a little difficult sometimes when the kids get out of hand, but on the whole I wouldn't trade this summer job for anything." a counsellor said.

If there are any children who would be interested in going to the camp, information may be obtained by calling Mr. Rumball at 968-3326.

Picton Council Action Criticized by Carter

PICTON (Staff) — Colin Carter, chairman of the citizens' committee, has stated the front of council's proposed new municipal building can be "a memento not to sacrifice, but to the destruction of, town property and moral responsibility".

Mr. Carter, who has fought against demolition of the former Mary Street school until a costing for its renovation as a lockup and town offices is obtained, gathered pledges totalling $3,700 toward a new front for the old structure. It would have been dedicated to veterans of World War II and the Korean War.

Councillors Monday night accepted a demolition tender of $1,950 for Mary Street school and supported further revision of plans for a new municipal building.

In a letter to a local newspaper Mr. Carter commented the mayor and councillors, who have "continuously opposed getting an alternative estimate," can go down in the history of Picton's town councils as representatives of "a body that had no respect for the expressed wishes of the citizens".

A petition protesting demolition of the school was circulated by Mr. Carter and signed by 1,179 persons.

Mr. Carter attacked councillor William Lane's criticisms of the former school's suitability for renovation noting, "I weep for Mr. Lane's utterances."

The councillor said Monday night the building's brickwork would begin to deteriorate in another decade.

Mr. Carter countered, in his letter to the newspaper, that Mr. Lane is now living in a brick home much older than the school with no apparent fears that it will crumble.

The letter stated the Mary Street school has ample area to provide everything required for town offices, namely police headquarters, detention cells, a police lunchroom and a storage room for small and bulk items.

"It now appears that the school's use might have meant a saving of $40,000 of the taxpayers' money with the subscription of $3,700 to $5,000 for the memorial front, virtually assuring a cost of not over $50,000," observed Mr. Carter in his letter.

The new plans recently considered by council for a lockup and town offices carried a cost figure of $68,450. The need for a police lunchroom and storage facilities has necessitated a revision of these plans and a final cost figure is to be presented to council as soon as possible.

Weather Ho-hum!

There was little to note about July except that it was not notable for practically anything!

That is the way officers at the Tweed Climatological Station described July weather in their monthly report.

Temperatures for the month were below normal (a mean reading of 65.33 degrees compared to a normal 68.43), and there were "no extreme extremes."

Precipitation, especially during the first part of the month was above normal (3.46 inches, as compared with 2.62 inches, normal) with the high temperature for the month being 85 degrees and the low 45 degrees.

Early July rains helped to keep forest fires down with only 62 fires reported from April to the end of July as compared with 87 fires in the same period last year and 116 in 1968.

Only 83 acres had been burned over at the end of July as compared with 991 in the same period a year ago.

Tweed Woman Hurt in Crash

TWEED (Special) — A Tweed woman is in Belleville General Hospital today with arm injuries resulting from a collision about 3 p.m. Tuesday on Highway 41, one-quarter mile north of Northbrook.

Mrs. Agnes-Munro, 73, sustained the injuries when the car driven by her sister, Miss Jean Quinn, also of Tweed, came in collision with a car driven by Ronald Thibeault of Northbrook.

Miss Quinn and two passengers in her car, Paul Monaghan, 15, Halifax, N.S. and his sister Ellen, were treated at BGH and released.

Mr. Thibeault was uninjured.

Visitors Injured

PICTON — Two Toronto youngsters vacationing in Prince Edward County were taken to Prince Edward County Memorial Hospital yesterday afternoon after the bicycle they had been riding collided with a pickup truck on County Road 7 near Lake on the Mountain.

A spokesman for the Picton detachment of the Ontario Provincial Police said Richard Zaban, 18, and his 8-year-old sister Marie, apparently cycled into the path of the truck driven by John Burrows, RR1, Unionville.

Marie Zaban has been received treatment for multiple cuts and bruises and was released from hospital. Her brother, Richard, was admitted to hospital with a concussion and scalp lacerations. No charges have been laid.

A Cherry Valley man was treated at Prince Edward County Memorial Hospital yesterday afternoon following a two - car, head - on collision, near the Quinte Sports Centre, Lake St.

Injured was James Whitefird, 59, Cherry Valley. A spokesman for the Picton detachment of the OPP said Mr. Whitefird, taken to hospital by a friend, was treated for cuts and bruises and released.

He collided with a car driven by 24-year-old Larry Vanwarmerdam, 52 Main St., Picton. Mr. Vanwart sustained a minor cut on his forehead. Damage to the Whitefird car was estimated at $500 while the Vanwart vehicle sustained an estimated $800 damage.

Bon Echo Tops Poll

TWEED (Special) — If a popularity poll of provincial parks was taken, Bon Echo north of Highway 7 would win hands down.

For the last four weeks Bon Echo has been full, with new campers replacing departing ones so quickly that Tweed Lands and Forests office has consistantly reported "no vacancies" at the park.

Outlet and the overflow campsites at Sandbanks have slipped from their first place spot on the popularity lists. This morning there were 120 vacant campsites at Outlet and 40 at Sandbanks.

Desk Set Stolen

Someone may be planning on doing a little extra writing in the next few days.

Police report an overnight break-in at the Gordon Welding Company at 127 North Front Street.

With apparently no difficulty, a thief last night slid open a window overlooking a business desk and made off with the desk set valued at $13.

Marlies Sign A Howe

TORONTO (CP) — Toronto Marlboros of the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A series announced the signing Tuesday of Detroit Red Wings' star Gordie Howe's son Marty.

Marty and his brother, Mark, 16, played with Detroit Junior Red Wings in the Western Ontario Junior League last season. Mark won the league's scoring title while Marty earned all-star defence honors.

Marty, six foot one and 180 pounds, is expected to be an important addition to the Marlboros, who lost four defencemen to overage following the 1970-71 season.

"I think the fact that we used a low pressure approach with the Howe family helped in Marty choosing Marlboro," said Tom Smythe, Marlboro general manager.

Smythe indicated that the team hopes Mark eventually might join his brother.

The Marlboros also announced at a news conference that coach Frank Bonello has been rehired for next season.

Meanwhile, Nick Durbano, owner of Hamilton Red Wings, said teams of affluence, such as the Marlboros, should not be allowed to pick off players of distinction like Marty Howe.

Durbano said Tuesday he will recommend that all junior age players in North America be listed in the draft pool, ready for election in the OHA priority draft each summer.

"That way I think that have the big arenas wouldn't have any advantages over smaller clubs to attract players like the Howe brothers," said Durbano.

However, OHA president Tubby Schmalz said Durbano's suggestion "was not feasible."

Errors Oust Ashe

TORONTO (CP) — A flurry of errors proved costly to Arthur Ashe of Los Angeles Tuesday as he was upset 6-3, 3-6, 7-6 by unseeded Ray Ruffels of Australia in the second round of the $70,000 Canadian open tennis championships.

Ashe, who for the second consecutive day had problems with his service around the net, made 23 errors in the deciding set while the steady Australian made only seven.

The second-seeded Ashe ran into his worst series of errors during the tie-breaker that decided the final set.

He made four errors off his backhand to take 4-0 upstream off Ruffels who was assisted when two of his volleys hit the top of the net and dropped in for winners.

That gave Ruffels an insurmountable 6-0 edge in the best-of-12 tie-breaker which he won 7-3.

"It was a bit of luck that came at the right time," the 27-year-old left-hander said of his volleys that dropped over the net.

Bob Maud of South Africa was the day's other seeded victim as he fell 4-6, 7-5, 6-3 to a strong rally by Roger Taylor of England.

The 12th-seeded Maud started to make errors when the unseeded Taylor's volleying game caught fire. Taylor, whose erratic service cost him the first set, rallied from behind to take the second and then broke Maud's service with fine net play in the sixth and eighth games of the final set as he won 6-4, 7-5, 6-3.

Taylor's victory set up a rematch of last year's open final against defending champion Rod Laver of Australia who wasted little time in eliminating Keith Carpenter of Toronto 6-2, 6-2.

"I was happy to be drawn against him," Carpenter said after facing the Laver shot-making arsenal. "It's not often you get a chance to play a guy like that.

Carpenter, the last of Canada's four in a Davis Cup squad to be eliminated, earned $500 for the loss while Laver is still seeking the $10,000 men's singles prize.

Five other seeded players posted victories before the remaining matches were washed out by a thunderstorm.

Eighth-seeded Roy Emerson of Australia whipped Ismail El Shafei of Egypt 6-4, 6-1 in the other match involving a seeded player.

Cliff Richey Advances Easily

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind. (AP) — No. 1 seed Cliff Richey of Saranola, Fla., and Billie Jean King of Long Beach, Calif., advanced easily Tuesday in the early going of the $58,000 U.S. National clay court open tennis championships.

Richey, defending men's singles champion, hammered Vicente Zarazua, a Mexican Davis Cup player, 6-0, 7-6.

Mrs. King had an easier time with young Tina Watanaje of Los Angeles, beating her 6-1, 6-2, to move into the third round of women's singles play.

Sport Briefs

VANCOUVER (CP) — Vancouver Canucks of the National Hockey League sent out contract offers to 28 players last week. Only four have been returned — and they were not signed. General manager Bud Poile said Monday the four players rejecting the offers were goalie George Gardner and forwards Rosaire Paiement, Mike Corrigan and Wayne Maki. All protected players or those who played 50 or more NHL games last season must be signed by Aug. 20 or their contracts will automatically go to arbitration. Unsigned players will not be allowed to attend training camp.

JONQUIERE, Que. (CP) — Thirty eight of 118 racehorses at the Jonquiere race track must be destroyed because of infectious anemia, the track announced Tuesday. Results of Coggins tests on the animals were received Monday and another 31 test results are expected Thursday. Owners estimated the total loss at $40,000. Directors of the track say, however, that racing will continue.

WEST VANCOUVER, B.C. (CP) — Marlene Streit of Foothill, Ont., a nine time winner of the Canadian women's amateur golf championship, still gets excited at the prospect of another. "If I didn't feel I could win, I wouldn't be here," said Mrs. Streit, who first won the title at 17 in 1951. She came second in the tournament last year, beaten on the third extra hole after she and Gail Harvey Moore of Vancouver tied at 296 after four rounds. This year the event is medal play, changed from match play, and Mrs. Streit said in an interview Tuesday she doesn't feel up to the more demanding game medal play requires. "I preferred this as a match play tournament. Match play is for amateurs. Medal play is a professional game. You just don't get to play that much golf to be that precise." The 18th Annual Women's Open was to get under way at 8 a.m. today on the 6,119 yard Capilano course on the side of Hollyburn Mountain. Interprovincial team championship will be decided today and Thursday, with the individual field cut to 72 after the first 36 holes of medal play. Among the 121 entrants are 12 Americans, including Seattle's Anne Sander, three times U.S. amateur champion. Also playing are Lesley Dwyer of Zambia and South African Cheran Gerber.

Pan-Am Spotlights Shifting From Poolside to Horse Ring

By BRUCE LEVETT
Canadian Press Sports Editor

CALI, Colombia (CP) — Pretty Christabel Hansen of Sharon, Ont., who has been putting horses through their paces since she was 10, aimed for her second gold medal of the Pan-American Games today as the spotlight shifted momentarily from the poolside to the equestrian display ring.

The 24-year-old Indonesian-born rider was drawn first for the ride-off against two Chileans in the individual dressage event with a gold medal at stake.

Her first-place performance Tuesday helped the Canadian equestrians win the team dressage gold by a margin of 220 points. It was Canada's first Pan-Am gold ever in equestrian. Miss Hansen won a third-place individual bronze in dressage in the 1967 Games at Winnipeg.

The Canadian equestrian team's effort so far has produced two team gold and individual silver and bronze in the four competitions completed, with two left.

The Games are drawing to a close with half the 20-sport program completed. The 29-event swimming program winds up tonight with four finals on tap and the Canadian girls needing just one gold to share the team title with the United States.

The American girls won two swimming gold Tuesday night to tie the Canadians at six gold each. The only women's events left on the program are the two freestyle races over the 100- and 200-metre distances. Canada's 400-metre freestyle relay, Angela Coughlan of Burlington, Ont., snatched the wake of American winners in the 200 and 400 freestyle, winning silver and bronze. Her gold came in the 400 medley relay.

Angela won her fourth medal, another silver, swimming the anchor leg of the 400 freestyle relay final Tuesday night. The Canadian girls were second as a young U.S. team won the race with a clocking of 4:04.2, better. ing the Games record by fourtenths of a second.

Other Canadian medals came in two butterfly events. Byron MacDonald, a naturalized Canadian living in Glenview, Ill., was a bronze medalist in the men's 100-metre race, won by Frank Heckl, the American star of the meet with a total of four gold. Sue Smith of Edmonton took a bronze in the women's 200-metre final, where the winner, Lynn Colella, did 2:23.1, clipping 2.4 seconds off the Games mark.

Outsider Pat Miles clocked another Games record in winning the men's 1,500 metres for the U.S., with Ron Jacks of Vancouver sixth. Miles swam his gruelling race in 15:52.2 seconds, almost 15 seconds under the Games standard. Jacks clocked 17:07.2.

The four Canadian medals Tuesday brought the team's total after 11 days of competition to 74: 17 gold, 18 silver and 39 bronze.

The team is third in the medal standing and can't catch second-place Cuba which has 26 gold. The Cubans have shown tremendous improvement since the Winnipeg competition when they finished fifth with eight gold.

But the 17 Canadian gold medals bettered by two the total gold won in Winnipeg and the team has a chance of equalling or passing the all-time Canadian high in international competition—20 gold won in the first British Empire Games at Hamilton, Ont., in 1930.

Canada came close to doing just that in the Commonwealth Games at Edinburgh last year when the squad won 18 gold.

Just as it got pretty tiresome to hear the Star Spangled Banner played 120 times in Winnipeg, the South Americans have heard it here 96 times for U.S. gold medals. But the Americans are not going to come close to their 120-gold total of 1967.

It was the final-day jumping event in Winnipeg that clinched second-place for the Canadian team when Jim Day of King City, Ont., took the individual gold. That victory put Canada ahead of Brazil 11 golds to 11.

Here, the equestrian team's showing in the last three days of the Games looms large in the over-all Canadian picture. The Prix de Nations team jumping is scheduled Friday just before the closing ceremonies.

Canadian officials were unhappy with the way the Canadian equestrians have been posted first in riding order for every event so far.

"But we might as well make up our minds we're going to ride first Friday," said Tom Gayford of Gormley, Ont., the 43-year-old stockbroker-horseman and veteran interfederalist.

"The way we've been picking them, we're bound to draw first again for the Grand Prix jumping."

No rider likes to go first. In judgment competition such as dressage, the judges usually award lower points to the first rider to allow room for higher points to a better performer who might follow.

"And that's just what happened to us today (Tuesday)," said Jen Elder of Aurora, Ont., as he watched Miss Hansen ride first in the dressage event to help win the team title for Canada.

"There's our best hope for a gold medal and she drew first slot," said Elder.

Despite going first, Miss Hansen's ride stood up as the best of the day as she scored 1,556 points riding her 10-year-old chestnut gelding Armagnac.

Cindy Neale of King City, riding Alexandra, had 1,538 and Zelian Szabo of Calgary, on Virtuoso, scored 1,515.

Miss Hanson went into the ride-off for the individual gold against Chilean riders Antonio Piraino on Salitre and Roberto Gomez on Palermo. The two Chileans, in bulging give their country the silver team medal, scored 1,617 and 1,583 respectively.

Canada totalled 4,895 points, Chile 4,855 and third-place Colombia 4,223.

Canada's wrestling team meanwhile has a chance for medals in at least one class—middleweight. Taras Hryb, 19-year-old Canadian champion from Victoria, will face off against two others tonight for the gold medal. Hryb, a native of Timmins, Ont., won two matches Tuesday to reach the final round.

The far-from-folksy rivalry between the U.S. and Cuba will be accented tonight when the two countries, both with perfect 4-0 records, clash for the water polo gold medal. Canada is out of the running after losing to Mexico 5-3 Tuesday for its fourth loss. Dave Hart and George Stephens of Hamilton, Ont., scored the Canadian goals.

The Canadian baseball team with a 4-4 record wound up fourth as Cuba won gold, the U.S., silver and Colombia bronze medals. Cuba won all its eight games, the U.S., was 6-2 and Colombia and Canada had identical records. But Colombia defeated Canada and took the bronze on that basis.

Rider Suspension Came Out Wrong

CALI, Colombia (CP) — Robin Hahn of Belle Plaine, Sask., can breathe easier. He is not suspended from Pan American Games equestrian competition for life — just for the present Games.

Jim Pryor of Calgary, information officer for the Canadian equestrian team, said Tuesday that the "life suspension" was an error in translation or interpretation.

"When Robin's horse refused the 12th fence on the cross country test last Thursday, he was eliminated anyway," Pryor said. "The fact that he tried to discipline the horse afterward had nothing to do with it. He was eliminated because he didn't make it past that 12th fence.

"But then some officials apparently saw him use the whip and since he had been eliminated and could not compete any more at these Games, they announced that he was suspended."

Pryor said that "somewhere along the way, the suspension, which applied only as long as the Three Day event was on here, got translated into a life time suspension, which was wrong."

UIC Trend Typical

The Unemployment Insurance Commission continued the trend of upsets in the Industrial Softball League quarter-finals Tuesday night by stopping Mead Johnson 4-2.

The UIC finished eighth during the regular season but has now forced fourth-place finishing Mead Johnson to play catch-up ball in the best - of-three series.

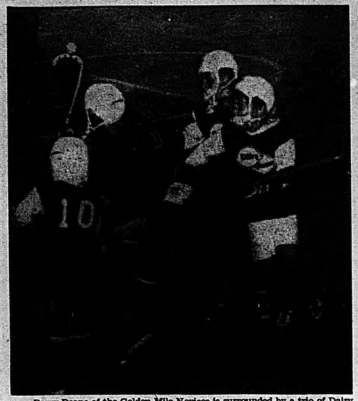
Hamilton picked up the win for the UIC, allowing seven hits and three walks. Bernie Coughlin relieved in the sixth, blanking Mead's the rest of the way. Clint Halliday smashed a double while Healy and Cassidy had singles for the winners' only other hits.

Mead's starter Sonny Holoway was a victim of seven errors by his team-mates including four in the disastrous fourth when UIC pushed across three runs. Holoway fired three-hit ball in a losing effort picking up 10 strikeouts while showing flawless control. Ray Wood led the way at the plate with three singles. Young had a double with singles coming from Bennett, Leasels and Williams.

Midas Touch Fails

It was both the start and the finish of teams in Tuesday night's Belleville Minor Softball peewee play-off series.

Western Tire won their semi-final play-off series with Midas Muffler by stopping the Mufflers 12-5. Scott Wilson paced the Tiremen to victory with two home runs and a double.



Meanwhile Woodland Cleaners opened their semi - finals in a winning manner by defeating Richard Ellis Printing 16-9. Tim Duval's grand slam homer was the big blast for the winners. Bill Forbes had a homer, triple and double for the Printers with Kelly Munkittrick adding a homer, triple and single.

In two other play-off games almost played last night Conley's Grocery won by default over Wm. Belch and Sons in peewee and Wray's Furniture took a default game from Ziebart Rustproofing squirts.

Girl Softballers Taking Time

One thing about a round-robin play-off system is that it insures a lot of games before a champion is decided.

The Belleville Girls Minor Softball play-offs have developed into just that as the junior play-offs continue for another week. Tuesday night Quinte Food Market 27-19.

Barry Deane of the Golden Mile Novices is surrounded by a trio of Dairy Queen checkers is an exhibition Belleville Minor Lacrosse contest last night. Golden Mile was forced to forfeit the game when they failed to come up with a sufficient number of players, but were augmented by members of other squads for an exhibition bout. The victory by Dairy Queen assured them of at least a tie for first place in the novice division.

Midgets Find Scoring Eyes

The midgets got into the scoring groove Tuesday night, potting 28 goals in two Belleville Minor Lacrosse games.

The Belleville Auto Dealers recorded the highest output of the night when they doubled the score on the Bantam All-stars 12-6. Dan Nuttall led the winners attack with five goals.

Dave Drake added the hat-trick with John Loder scoring two. Andy Ricketts and Andy Forgie rounded out the midgets scoring.

Roger Chapman and John Geen scored two apiece for the bantams with Rick Barbeau and Brent Walmsley tallying the others.

Brian Duffy, Wade Grier and Kerry Reid replied for Sun Lucks.

Marv's Esso stopped Sun Luck Gardens 7-3 in another mid-get game. Steve Muldoon, Joe Muldoon and John Ashley each fired two goals for Marv's with Rick Belanger scoring the odd-goal.

Ron Dattilo, Wade Grier and Kerry Reid replied for Sun Lucks.

One-Hitter Barely Wins

Hillier kept pace with Foley's in Tuesday night's Prince Edward North Shore Softball League game despite playing with a serious handicap.

Hillier's handicap was the lack of hitting power as they managed only one hit the entire game but still forced Foley's to come up with two runs in the final frame to eke out a 6-4 win.

Dontator pitched the one - hitter for the winners fanning seven and walking two. Alan. Boisvert and Dontator each had two hits for the winners.

Jim Bell took the loss for Hillier giving up 11 hits while fanning eight and walking three. Pete Pettingill was the only batter to reach Dontator.

Hawks Turn Tables On Pennant Winners

Shannonville turned the tables on Plane's Concrete last night to take a 6-2 win, their first in three South Hastings semi - final games between the two teams. The loss left Plane's with a 2-1 edge in the best - of - seven series.

Bill Barkentock fired a four - hitter at the South Hastings' pennant winners, striking out nine batters and not issuing a single walk.

Larry Lewis, Ted Atherton and Larry Adams all saw action on the Plane's mound. The trio yielded eight hits and three walks, while recording four strikeouts.

Blaine Loft and Bud Hill supplied the bat of the Hawks' firepower with Loft crashing a homer and double and Hill a homer and single. Wayne Sager had three hits while Pete Young collected the winners' other safety.

For Plane's it was John Tweedy with a pair of singles and Larry Adams and Ted Abram with one each.

Commercial Playoffs Previewed?

If Tuesday night's action was any indication Commercial Softball League fans could be in for some exciting action in the semi - final round of playoffs next week.

Point Anne took a tight 3-1 decision from their first-round opponents the Ellis Juniors while Rollins slipped past their opening playoff foes, Howard and Robert Fricking, by a 5-2 count. Idle Quinte Hotel, with a 2-21 record, sits out of the playoff picture.

A pair of runs in the third inning and the nifty three-hit hurling of Jamie Hunter accounted for the Point Anne victory.

A double by Mike Cook, an infield error and Rick Rossbush's clutch double provided all the support that Hunter needed for the victory. The Junior's lone tally came in the fifth inning on Pete Stallkvitch's triple and a pinch single by John Sutherland.

The Cementman starter fanned four batters and walked only one to record his three - hit win. Losing hurler Ron Hill allowed only five hits, whiffing a quartet of batters and yielding five walks.

Stallkvitch fired a triple and single for the losers, while Cook and Rossbush each had a double and single for Point Anne.

Rollins battled back from an early 2-0 deficit, scoring the winning run in their final at-bats to hand Howard and Robert the 3-2 loss.

A single by Ralph Plane, a fielding miscue and an intentional walk to Steve Ling loaded the bases in the bottom of the seventh before Carl Boonhower's single chased home the winning run.

A walk, two wild pitches and a pair of errors accounted for the Printers' only tallies of Rollins' hurler Scott Reid. The winning pitcher yielded three hits, walking six batters and setting 14 down on strikes.

Larry Marshall was tagged with the loss in a seven-hitter, whiffing a pair of batters and issuing four free passes.

Cliff Scott paced the winners with a pair of hits with the others going to Paul Goodfellow, Chuck Rowbotham, Ling and Plane. Gary Gow, Paul Zakos and Marshall had the losers' hits.

Dorow Not Fan Of Twin System

OTTAWA (CP) — Al Dorow, coach of Hamilton Tiger-Cats, said Tuesday night that it was ridiculous for Toronto Argonauts to continue to use the twin quarterback system.

Dorow, who played quarterback for both Toronto and British Columbia Lions, told a press conference here that he preferred Joe Theismann to Greg Barton of the two quarterbacks Toronto has been giving equal time.

"But we are not here to talk about Toronto," Dorow said as he led Ticats into the Canadian capital to tonight's game against Ottawa Rough Riders.

Hamilton is unbeaten in its only start of the season in the Eastern Football Conference. Riders go into the game with wins against Edmonton Eskimos and Winnipeg Blue Bombers and a loss against Calgary Stampeders.

The game will be televised by the CTV eastern network starting at 8 p.m. EDT.

Dorow said Joe Zuger is his No. 1 quarterback and will start against Riders. Zuger was lifted late in Hamilton's only start against Edmonton Eskimos in favor of Wally Gabler who sparked a late-minute touchdown for the Ticat win.

It's been two weeks since Hamilton won that game and after tonight's match, ticats will have to wait another two weeks before its next start.

General Manager Ralph Sazio conceded to reporters that the Hamilton club had sacrificed speed for bull strength in using twin fullbacks Steve Worster and Dick Wesolowski.

Thanks to their long layoff, Hamilton goes into the game "in perfect condition," said Dorow.

Riders also have their lineup intact for the game.

Thanks to Dennis Duncan, Riders now have a respectable running game to complement pass-catching of flanker Hughie Oldham.

Youth Helps B. C. Win Willingdon

OAKFIELD, N.S. (CP) — David Mick, a 20-year-old just out of junior golf ranks, fired a sparkling three-under-par 70 Tuesday to lead British Columbia to the Willingdon Cup team championship.

Mick, playing on his first Willingdon Cup team, finished the two-day, 36-hole event with a 142, lowest in the 40-golfer field. His 70 was also the lowest individual round.

Team-mate Burt Tieehurst of Vancouver credited him with the team victory. "We came away with the best possible team," Tieehurst said. "Mick played beautiful. I think he made the difference."

The next contest for the Victoria shotmaker is the Canadian Amateur. Some 164 golfers were to start the 72-hole event today. It finishes Saturday.

The West Coast team finished the Willingdon Cup competition with a 595 total, nine strokes better than Ontario, defending champion.

Baltimore Puts Damper On Killebrew's Parade

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Baltimore Orioles spoiled Harmon Killebrew's little party but Chicago White Sox couldn't do much to dampen Sam McDowell's celebration.

Killebrew snapped a long dry spell with his 500th career home run and then added another for good measure Tuesday night, but it wasn't enough for Minnesota and the Orioles overtook the Twins 4-3 in 10 innings.

McDowell, absent 16 a contract dispute since July 31, returned to Cleveland and combined with two relievers for a six-hitter, as the Indians beat the White Sox 4-1.

In other American League action Tuesday, Detroit Tigers walloped Milwaukee Brewers 12-3, California Angels stopped New York Yankees 7-6, Kansas City Royals swept a doubleheader from Washington Senators 9-2 and 3-1, and Oakland Athletics took a pair from Boston Red Sox 6-5 and 7-5.

Killebrew became the 10th man in major league history to reach 500 career homers when he unloaded on Baltimore lefthander Mike Cuellar in the first inning.

He had No. 499 on July 25.

He unloaded on Cuellar again in the sixth inning, tying the score at 3-3, where it stayed until the 10th when Merv Rettenmund broke the tie with a Baltimore homer, giving the Birds and Cuellar, the victory.

"They don't matter," said Killebrew of his homers, "if you don't win."

McDowell, making his first start since July 27, remembered to win his game. The tall lefthander hurled six shutout innings before leaving the game and Alan Foster and Phil Hennigan finished up, nailing down Sudden Sam's 11th victory of the season.

McDowell allowed four hits, struck out seven and walked two as he beat Chicago for the third straight time.

Dick McAuliffe, Norm Cash and Bill Freehan drove in three runs apiece, leading Detroit to its romp over Milwaukee.

HARMON KILLEBREW

McAuliffe contributed a triple and homer and Freehan and Cash also homered as Joe Coleman, 13-6, coasted to his sixth consecutive victory.

Kreehan's homer—his 17th of the season—gave him four in the last two games.

Spencer's 14th homer of the season snapped a 4-4 tie and then Repoz tagged his ninth—a two-run shot—that gave the Angels enough cushion to stand off a late Yankee rally.

Carl Hopkins cracked a three-run homer in the first inning—his fifth straight hit in two games—and started Kansas City to its first game romp over Washington.

In the nightcap, Mike Hedlund and Ted Abernathy combined for a four-hitter, completing the sweep.

Expos Only Find Two Holes in Juan

Juan Marichal pitched a brilliant two-hitter as San Francisco Giants edged Montreal Expos 1-0 Tuesday.

Marichal, the enigmatic veteran Giants' right-hander, had started the season with 203 victories and 98 losses. He also led active pitchers in shutouts with 46 and was third on the all-time earned-run-average list with a 2.68 mark, behind only Walter Johnson's 2.27 and Grover Cleveland Alexander's 2.56.

This was despite the worst season of his 11-year San Francisco career, when he won only 12 and lost 10 in 1970 and his ERA soared to 4.11.

This season, Marichal appeared to have overcome the illness that plagued him last year, as he got off winging with a 10-4 record through June 27.

Then he lost four in a row before blanking the Expos for his first victory in seven weeks.

Although he allowed only Rusty Staub's two-out double in the fourth inning and Bob Bailey's lead-off single in the seventh, he was locked in a scoreless duel with Bill Stoneman, who also had permitted only two hits, through the first eight innings.

Then, Stoneman, 12-10, who had been tough in the clutch, stranding nine runners in eight innings, finally cracked in the ninth.

Alan Gallagher's one-out single got the Giants started. Then, Marichal doubled down the third base line and Bobby Bonds walked, before Tito Fuentes broke up the scoreless battle with a single to right.

Marichal walked three and struck out eight in helping the Giants preserve their 4½-game lead over Los Angeles in the National League West Division.

Demand for Bond Blocks Festival

SARNIA (CP) — Mayor Paul Blundy said Tuesday a city council demand of a $50,000 bond has "virtually destroyed any opportunity" for the promoter of a rock festival to stage the event Aug. 25 - 28.

Mayor Blundy met with promoter Grey Quinn last week and said the "youth festival" could go on, despite the city's belief when it issued a permit in July that the event was to have been an exhibit of handicrafts. Mr. Quinn was to have posted a $250 property damage bond to use a city park.

But council Monday night decided $250 wasn't enough and a $50,000 bond would be required.

"If the intent was to prohibit the holding of the festival, they (the aldermen) should have come out and said so," the mayor said.

Hospital Designs Called Wasteful

REGINA (CP) — Gordon A. Friesen of Washington, D.C., a former Canadian hospital administrator, says existing hospital designs waste millions of dollars, are illogical and make inefficient use of staff.

It is "outrageous" that nurses in the average hospital spend 50 per cent of their time acting as messengers, he told a service club luncheon Monday.

A properly designed hospital could decrease nurses' walking times by 3 Sper cent, increase by 100 per cent the amount of time nurses spen. with patients, and reduce staff requirements by 14 per cent.

Hellyer Says Prosperity Could Be Restored

WINNIPEG (CP) — Proper management of the economy, such as wage and price controls in areas where there is no real competition, could return Canada to prosperity and reverse the cycle of unemployment, former federal cabinet minister Paul Hellyer said Tuesday.

Speaking on the first leg of a cross Canada tour to promote the Action Canada movement, Mr. Hellyer told about 250 persons at a meeting in a Winnipeg hotel the present effects of the federal government's "economic insanity" would first have to be reversed.

Mr. Hellyer said his main aim is to return Canada to full employment and stable prices.

Mr. Hellyer, Commons member for Toronto Trinity, said he is still a Liberal but he had formed the movement so the average person would have an opportunity to join a group where opinions and ideas were respected.

He is scheduled to leave Winnipeg today for Regina. He will visit several Canadian cities before returning to Ottawa at the end of the month.

Quebec Seeking to Rationalize Construction

QUEBEC (CP) — The provincial government is making a three-pronged study aimed at bringing some order to Quebec's chaotic construction industry.

And government sources indicate that one result may be a reduction of the 130,000-man construction labor force because of the apparent inability of the industry to provide an adequate income for persons now working in construction.

A labor department source says Quebec construction workers put in an average work week of 32 hours.

As a result, the government will be faced with deciding whether to reduce the number of construction workers or to institute a basis to which employers and workers would contribute to give the workers a guaranteed annual income, the source said.

In recent years, the construction industry has been hit by a shortage of work projects, irregular income and massive unemployment.

Also dividing the industry is the fact that the workers are represented almost equally by the urban-based Quebec Federation of Labor and the rural-based Confederation of National Trade Unions.

In an effort to "rationalize" the industry, the government established a construction industry committee last June.

Among other things, the 14-member committee will make a monthly inventory of total construction manpower in the 11 regions under its jurisdiction.

In January, 1972, the committee will issue a work permit to every employee currently in possession of a labor department identity card, as well as to all those who have worked in construction in the last 18 months.

The committee also will determine by Jan. 1, 1972, norms for admitting new wage-earners to the industry and, based on these standards, decide on how many wage earners are to be accepted.

The government also established a social benefits committee to study problems related to fringe benefits in the industry.

Both bodies will be headed by the same chairman.

The government also authorized the labor department to study the two principal causes of labor conflict within the industry: wage instability and freedom of unions.

Beginning Oct. 1, the department will begin a study aimed at seeking a solution to these two problems, which have halted construction projects in the last two years.

Government sources indicate that the recent government action to sort out the problem was spurred, ironically, by legislation late last year which Labor Minister Jean Cournoyer has admitted was unworkable.

The legislation, aimed at guaranteeing job security, required that work permits be issued to construction workers who had worked 1,500 hours during the year or 4,500 in the previous three years.

The measure was boycotted by the QFL which termed the plan a "tremendous bluff." Instead of reducing unemployment, it would enable the government to select who would be out of work in various areas of the province.

The federation said very few workers would be able to meet the qualifications needed for an identification card.

Mr. Cournoyer himself said last March: "Nothing is served by giving work permits to 130,000 laborers when only 60,000 can live decently of construction."

Farm Crisis Seen

COBOURG, Ont. (CP) — A crisis of staggering proportions is facing small farmers in Ontario, says Stephen Lewis, provincial New Democratic Party leader.

He told 150 people at a nomination meeting here Tuesday night that 3,000 Ontario farmers are leaving their farms each year.

The meeting nominated Arthur Cockerill, 41, of this town 30 miles south of Peterborough to contest Northumberland in the next provincial election. He is the 100th NDP candidate nominated.

Preservation of farms means saving society, said Mr. Lewis.

"Urban life has been strengthened for many years by the steadiness of the rural people."

He said the Conservative government has no feeling for the small farmer.

"They are supporting the buying out of the small farmer by agri-business."

Farm marketing boards should have the right to collective bargaining, ending the domination of farmers by food processors, he said. Under an NDP government it would be illegal for food processors and retailers to own farms.

THE LITTLE WOMAN

"It could be worse. We could be paying $50 a day at some fancy resort."

Woman Is Invited To Defence College

KINGSTON (CP) — Flora Macdonald, former national secretary of the Progressive Conservative Party of Canada, has been accepted as the first female course member at the National Defence College here.

The commandant of the college says Miss Macdonald was invited to take the course "because she is a woman and because she had political experience. We think we can also learn from her."

The course, which runs for 11 months, has been open to men destined for posts in the civil service, defence partment or diplomatic corps.

Miss Macdonald has been administrative assistant in the department of political studies at Queen's University. She will continue at the university at a reduced salary while taking the course.

Vancouver Mayor Says Riot 'Necessary' And May Be Repeated Coming Weekend

VANCOUVER (CP) — Mayor Tom Campbell has predicted renewed violence between police and young people this weekend in the old Gastown area on the waterfront, where a protest against drug arrests turned into a violent riot.

In a television interview Tuesday on CBC, Mr. Campbell said what happened last Saturday "was necessary and may be necessary again. . . . Anybody that goes to Gastown next Saturday night may be standing in the middle of a riot."

He said the police were provoked into action Saturday night, a statement contradicted by many eyewitnesses, including two aldermen, who said the demonstration was peaceful until riot police moved in on two-minute notice to break it up.

Earlier in the day, city council—without the support of Mayor Campbell—voted $2 to ask Attorney-General Leslie Peterson to investigate the incident. Mr. Campbell favored a probe by the police commission, and a government inquiry only if the commission's findings warranted one.

Council received a preliminary report from a five-man police team investigating the riot which interviewed some 200 witnesses and reviewed statements by most of the 80 police involved.

The preliminary report said there were only isolated cases of police over-reaction, Mayor Campbell said.

Meanwhile, the Gastown Merchants Association delivered about 100 sworn affidavits to the city clerk's office, taken by a lawyer from eyewitnesses to the fray. The affidavits alleged police brutality and criticized their tactics in clearing the demonstrators from Gastown.

100 Die In Siberia

MOSCOW (AP) — A Soviet airliner crashed at Irkutsk airport in Siberia last week, killing about 100 persons, travellers reported today.

The Aeroflot plane was believed to have been on a domestic trans-Siberian flight.

The travellers said the craft "came down heavily and flipped over as it was landing."

"We have no information on this," said the Soviet aviation ministry. That is its usual comment in such cases.

The last officially acknowledged Soviet air crash occurred at Moscow's Sheremetyevo airport in August, 1969, when 16 summer vacationers were killed.

The most recent known air disaster happened at Leningrad airport last Dec. 31. Western airline representatives reported at the time that an Aeroflot Ilyushin 18 on a flight to Armenia crashed on takeoff killing more than 93 persons.

The government has never acknowledged this crash.

Artillery Helps Farmers

Russians Shoot Down Hail

MOSCOW (AP) — The Russians are shooting down hailstorms with artillery fire before they can destroy summer crops, a Soviet newspaper reported Tuesday.

Selskaya Zhizn, or Rural Life, said farmers in the Central Asian republic of Azerbaijan have long been plagued by summer hailstorms that flatten their wheat and cotton crops.

Under the headlines, Guns Against Hail, the newspaper described how Soviet scientists developed a radar and artillery unit which tracks a hailstorm in the atmosphere and then destroys it with shells containing chemicals.

The daily paper said the "Shemakhim artillery squad" now protects about 740,000 acres and will increase its fire power in the next five years to cover nearly 1.5 million acres.

Judge Turns Down Ellsberg's Appeal

BOSTON (AP) — A U.S. Court of Appeals judge has refused an appeal by Dr. Daniel Ellsberg and has ordered him to face charges in California for unauthorized possession of secret government documents.

Ellsberg, 40, a senior research associate at Massachusetts Institute of Technolgy, is charged with unauthorized possession of Pentagon papers, which he said he released to various news media.

Federal District Court Judge W.Arthur Garrity Jr. ruled last week that Ellsberg be removed to California for arraignment Aug. 16.

Appellate Judge Frank M. Coffin upheld the ruling Tuesday.

Ellsberg's lawyers contended the government should be forced to reveal whether illegal wiretap information was used to obtain the indictment against him.

Ellsberg surrendered to federal authorities in Boston June 28 after admitting he gave the press copies of the 47-volume Pentagon study he helped to draft.

The Pentagon Papers ,which cover a 20-year-period, outline details of U.S. involvement in Vietnam.

Ellsberg was indicted in Los Angeles because the government contends he had access to the papers while working for the Rand Corp. in Santa Monica, Calif. Rand is a "think tank" which does sensitive policy research for the government.

Sydney J. Harris Says

Famous Meet Bizarre Deaths

The parent of a friend died not long ago, having been struck by a falling branch from a tree while walking along the street. This extraordinary misfortune reminded me that history and biography are replete with instances of famous persons dying from trivial or bizarre causes.

The familiar phrase, "killed with kindness," was more than a metaphor in the case of Draco, the Athenian statesman. He is supposed to have met his death from his popularity — being smothered in the theatre of Augusta by the thousands of caps and cloaks showered on him by the spectators.

Pliny, in his ancient history tells us that Aeschylus, the first great tragic dramatist, was killed by the fall of a tortoise on his bald head from the claws of an eagle in the air. What modern playwright of the absurd could conceive a more eccentric end of a character?

Agathocles, the tyrant of Sicily, was killed by a toothpick. Anacreon, the composer of love poetry and drinking songs, was choked to death by a grapestone. Bassus died from the prick of a needle in his left thumb.

Charles VIII of France, while leading his queen into a tennis-court, struck his head on the lintel and never recovered. And Frederick Lewis, Prince of Wales, died from the blow of a cricket-ball.

Fabius, the Roman praetor, was choked by a single goat-hair in the milk he was drinking. Gallus Cornelius, another praetor, and Titus Haterius a knight, each died while kissing the hand of his wife.

La belle Gabrielle, the mistress of Henri IV of France, died from eating an orange. King Louis VI met his death on horseback, when a pig ran out between the horse's legs, causing it to stumble. And William III, likewise, died from his horse stumbling over a mole-hill.

Thomas Otway, the 17th Century English dramatist, was starving when a patron gave him a guinea; he rushed out, bought a loaf of bread, and died while swallowing the first mouthful. In classical times, Sauleius was choked to death sipping up the white of an under-boiled egg; and Torquatus, a consul, died in the act of munching a cheesecake at dinner.

Four notable deaths have been recorded in the act of laughter. Chalchas, the soothsayer, died of laughter at the thought of having outlived the predicted hour of his death. Marguite died of laughter at watching a monkey tryint to pull on a pair of boots. Philomenes died of laughter at seeing a donkey eating the figs provided for his own dessert. And Zeuxis, the great painter, died of laughter at the sight of a hag which he had just depicted. Have a good day.

Lie Test Results Withheld

TORONTO (CP) — The results of a lie-detector test taken by Rae Heighes will not be released to his family, at least until an inquest into the poisoning death of his wife is completed, Metropolitan Toronto police said Tuesday.

Staff Superintendent Adolphus Payne said although one of Mr. Heighes' sons told the press he was demanding the results, none of the family had approached Metro police about it.

Mr. Heighes, 37, apparently shot himself Friday shortly before he was to leave his Owen Sound home to testify at a Toronto inquest into his estranged wife's death. Earlier testimony at the inquest, now adjourned until Aug. 20, indicated she had died of strychnine poisoning after collapsing on a bus here Feb. 20, 1970.

Police officials have refused to reveal the results of the lie-detector test taken nine days before Mr. Heighes' death, and Supt. Payne said even the coroner's jury may not be told when the inquest resumes.

There were reports Tuesday that a senior police official said the test was inconclusive.

However, Supt. Payne said in an interview that no lie-detector test conclusively proved guilt or innocence.

"It might change your mind one way or another as to the truth of certain statements," he said. "It would help investigators evaluate something they had discussed with someone."

James Heighes of Edmonton, son of the dead man, said in an interview Monday he was demanding the release of the test results. He said the results would prove his father was innocent of any wrong-doing in the death of his wife.

Supt. Payne said he thought the family should see the police about the report if they were concerned.

"I think we could certainly discuss something about it with them, but we might not, at this point, be able to cover what was in it. We are not trying to hide it from them but we could at least assure them that it wasn't something they would never know the contents of."

He added that he didn't think the report on the test "is a matter for the inquest to have either. It was done merely to assist investigations."

The lie detector is an instrument which registers certain physiological responses in a subject when a series of questions are asked. It requires an experienced operator to evaluate the responses and to judge whether or not the person appears to be lying or telling the truth. Its evidence is not admissible in trials.

Members of the Heighes family have said Mr. Heighes was bounded to death, and there has been widespread criticism in political and legal circles of the way the inquest was handled.

Earlier Tuesday, Ontario Attorney-General Allan Lawrence said he has deliberately refrained from commenting aggressively on the inquest.

He said the department of justice is "well along the line" in preparing legislation to change the system of coroner's inquiries.

U.S. Firm Is Given Deadline

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP) — The BASS Wyandotte firm of Michigan has been given until the end of the year to improve the quality of effluent entering the Detroit River from Fighting Island, George Kerr, Ontario energy and resources minister, said Tuesday night.

The company is the former Wyandotte Chemical Corp.

The island, adjacent to LaSalle in the Detroit River, has been the sludge-dumping spot for the firm for almost 40 years.

About 475 tons of solid waste are pumped to the island each day, including 400 tons to the 120-acre north settling basin from the firm's soda ash plant and 75 tons to the 137-acre south basin from another plant.

Mr. Kerr said at a news conference after visiting the island that if there is no substantial improvement in a year "drastic steps" might be taken by the province.

He defined drastic action as a move by the province to revoke an existing lease through the department of lands and forests which permits the company to run pipelines to the island.
